Canal Ready, Col. Goethals Says.

Short Channel Through Cucaracha Will Be Entirely Cleared Today.

Depth Will Be Sufficient to Float a Vessel of Ten Thousand Tons.

First Steamship Will Probably Make the Short Cut Next Wednesday.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PANAMA, May 16.—Water-borne freight will begin passing through the canal on Monday at noon when five barges carrying about 2100 tons of miscellaneous cargo will be towed from Balboa at the Pacific end to Cristobal at the Atlantic end of the canal.

At Paraiso the railway trestle has been removed and a new pontoon bridge swung into position, over which boats are now passing. The Empire suspension bridge has practically been removed. Thus all the impediments to traffic through the canal are out of the way.

Col. Goethals is authority for the statement that the channel through Cucaracha will be completed tomorrow. Its approximate width is 135 feet with a depth of thirty [illegible] feet, sufficient to pass without difficulty a 10,000-ton vessel.

Just when the first steamer will go through Gov. Goethals was unable to say tonight, but it probably will be Wednesday, provided the channel shows no change.

LONE KNOCKER A DETROITER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT, May 16.—"Talk of battleships being rushed through the Panama Canal from one coast to the other. Why, it can't be done, and it will be a long time yet before such a feat can be accomplished," declared Frederick F. Ingram, business man and politician, just returned from the Panama Canal.

"Only boats, principally barges of seven-foot draft or under, are now able to pass through the canal. The water is becoming more shallow than ever, especially in the Culebra cut."

The Culebra cut, that part of the Panama Canal which has baffled foreigners for decades, is now cutting up new didoes, according to Mr. Ingram, who went over the works with engineers. The slides of earth have ceased, but a new difficulty has been encountered. The floor of the canal is slowly being forced up from beneath. Engineers are at a loss as to how to meet the latest difficulty and while they are racking their brains for a means to meet it and overcome it, the floor is slowly being forced up and the draft is becoming less each day.

"According to geographical experts, the mountains and ravines there are not old ones and there is no adhesiveness in the make-up of the earth," said Mr. Ingram. "The tremendous weights of the mountains on both sides of the Culebra cut force up the canal floor and will continue to do so until some of the weight of the mountains is taken away."

Ernesto Madero Telegraphs Friend in Washington All Church Property Has Been Restored.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Ernesto Madero, in a telegram today to a personal friend in Washington, stated all the priests arrested by Constitutionalists in the Monterey district had been released and that confiscated church property had been restored. Madero implied that this action was the result of a general change in the tactics of the Constitutionalists.

THE CITY. Seventeen elections in two months have cost Los Angeles taxpayers over $600,000, according to figures compiled yesterday. And more elections are coming.

Republican women here yesterday expressed hearty approbation of the suggestion that a woman be made Lieutenant-Governor of California.

A motion picture actress, who was charged with shooting a New York millionaire, declared to an audience Wednesday that a miracle saved her when she took poison to kill herself.

Kilfoil on the stand yesterday declared he confessed wrongdoing before the grand jury on a promise that the Palmer girl's name would be kept out of the poison inquiry.

A wealthy woman who tried to commit suicide in Salt Lake City was rushed to a sanatorium here early last week, after the affair had been shrouded in secrecy.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA. Monrovia birthday celebration yesterday was attended by thousands.

Hermosa Beach dedicated its new municipal pier yesterday.

Pasadena laid the corner-stone yesterday of its new postoffice.

Long Beach is preparing this week to fight its Empire Day suits.

Citrus belt cities are vying with one another to celebrate the opening of the Pacific Electric's new line.

PACIFIC SLOPE. U. S. Grant, Jr., and family will leave their home in San Diego and take up their residence in New York City.

The State Controller admits the poll tax will be abolished despite a prospective State deficit.

GENERAL EASTERN. A hundred and fifty thousand men were reported to be idle in Chicago because a few brick makers had gone on a strike and tied up the building trades industry.

Twenty planing mills were closed in Cincinnati yesterday on account of a strike and by Tuesday it is said thousands of men will be idle.

WASHINGTON. President Wilson spoke at the unveiling of a statue to Commodore John Barry in Washington.

Representatives gave a luncheon to Clark, Underwood and others in which the guests from different States contributed viands.

MEXICO. Rebels at Tampico have given Admiral Mayo renewed assurances for the protection of American interests.

Ernesto Madero has reported all the priests imprisoned by rebels have been released.

FOREIGN. A Limerick dispatch last night reported that Irish Nationalists are organizing a great force of volunteers to cope with the Ulster volunteers.

The reader who would do justice to himself will not depend wholly upon the summary, comprehensive though it is, but will take in the complete news which necessarily cannot be luminously summarized, epitomized or classified.

FOREWARNS COLORADO.

Sovereignty at Stake Says Wilson.

Either Run Your Own Affairs or Get Out of Business, Hint to Ammons.

Executive Threatens to Withdraw Federal Troops from Strike District.

Legislature Adjourns Without Enacting the Constabulary Law.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 16.—President Wilson made it clear today that Colorado must quickly solve its own difficulties growing out of the strike situation and that the Federal troops now on duty there would be withdrawn as soon as possible. At the White House tonight it was said by officials close to the President that he does not plan to withdraw the Federal troops if anarchy is to break out again, but he feels there is no excuse for the Legislature adjourning and leaving the problem to the Federal government. The President believes that under the Constitution he has no right to use Federal arms in Colorado when the Legislature had a chance to act. It was recalled that when he sent the troops to Colorado he made it clear the arrangement was only temporary.

DENVER (Colo.) May 16.—President Wilson today served warning on Gov. Ammons that the State of Colorado must be prepared to maintain peace in the coal miners' strike districts without Federal aid. The President said that Federal troops would remain in the troubled districts only until the State of Colorado has time and opportunity to resume complete sovereignty and control.

"I cannot conceive that the State is willing to forego her sovereignty or to throw herself entirely upon the government of the United States," said President Wilson.

In response Gov. Ammons telegraphed the President, pointing out that an extra session of the Legislature, just adjourned, had provided a $1,000,000 bond issue to cover past and future expenses of the State militia. The Governor expressed confidence that as soon as these funds are available the State would be able to control the situation.

The Colorado coal mine districts, where approximately 6000 miners have been on strike since last September 23, have been under a virtual martial law for months and have been guarded by United States Cavalry for about three weeks. Previous to the arrival of Federal troops, the mines were guarded by the State militia. It was during the control by the militia that riots and battles between strikers and mine guards broke out. After the militia and strikers participated in the battle and fire at the miners' tent colony at Ludlow on April 20, when twenty-one were killed, and after other serious conflicts, the militia was replaced by Federal troops.

Of the $1,000,000 provided by the bond issue referred to by Gov. Ammons in his message to the President, $691,000 already has been spent in past expenses of the militia.

President Wilson in his telegram said he was "disturbed to hear of the probability of the adjournment of your Legislature and feel bound to remind you that my constitutional obligations with regard to the maintenance of order in Colorado are not to be indefinitely continued by the inaction of the State Legislature."

GOV. AMMONS'S REPLY.

The Governor's reply was:

"I regret exceedingly that you have been misinformed. The Legislature has just passed an act, which I have approved, providing for a bond issue of $1,000,000 for the purpose of paying the indebtedness which has been incurred and which may be incurred in suppressing insurrection and defending the State.

"As soon as the bonds can be issued these funds will be available and this State can and will control the situation. This is the only constitutional method of raising funds in the immediate future. In addition to this act, the Legislature has enacted a law permitting the Governor to close saloons in times of disorder, and also a law prohibiting the carrying and disposition of firearms in times of disorder. Moreover, a committee on mediation in the present strike has been provided for and appointed."

The Governor's call convening an extra session of the Legislature May 4 asked the enactment of five strike measures.

LASSOOED AND SAVED.

Lariat Employed in Chicago to Rescue Man from Quicksand.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HAMMOND (Ind.) May 16.—Drawn in to his armpits in quicksand after sinking inch by inch from 10 in the morning until 4 in the afternoon in the East Chicago flats, C. F. Belinski, a member of the Chicago Bar Association, was dragged from death by a lariat in the hands of Nick Hall, East Chicago. Belinski is in St. Margaret's Hospital today critically ill from exposure. Far from human habitation he called vainly for help. At 11 o'clock he took out his watch; his knees were fast. He figured he would disappear entirely at 6 o'clock. Shortly after 4 o'clock help came.

RAISE MISSIONS TO EMBASSIES.

ARGENTINA AND CHILE GIVEN FULL RECOGNITION.

Wilson Signs Bill in Presence of Envoys from South American Countries and Felicitates Them on Progress Made in Business and Civilization.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The American diplomatic missions to Argentina and Chile today were elevated in rank to an Embassy from a Legation when President Wilson, in the presence of the Argentine and Chilean Ministers to the United States, Romulo S. Naon and Eduardo Suarez, respectively, and a party of prominent officials, signed the two bills passed by Congress for that purpose. To Minister Naon he presented the gold pen with which he signed the Argentine bill and to Minister Suarez he gave another gold pen, which he used in signing the Chilean bill.

The two South American nations will reciprocate by also raising their diplomatic missions to the United States to embassies. Brazil is the only South American country now having an Embassy here, all the others maintaining a Legation.

After signing the bills the President turned to the two South American diplomats, who, with the Brazilian Ambassador, are the envoys now using their good offices in an attempt to settle the Mexican imbroglio, and said:

"Let me say, gentlemen, how gratifying it is to me that it should fall within my time that this long-deserved recognition of the full rank and sisterhood of your two countries should have been accorded. It affords me great personal pleasure and I want to look forward, if I may, to the closer relations with our sister republics, whom we so honor and are glad to be associated with.

"In the present circumstances, when you have so thoughtfully and graciously offered to show our common interest in the peace and righteous government of America, it is particularly fitting that this thing should occur. I appreciate your being here very much."

Ministers Naon and Suarez thanked the President and expressed the warm friendship felt by their countries for the United States.

Secretary Bryan and Mrs. Bryan, John Barrett, director-general of the Pan-American Union, and Secretary Tumulty also witnessed the signing.

Young Millionaire Improved in Health Starts on Trip Aboard His Yacht, Noma.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, May 16.—Vincent Astor and his bride left Rhinecliff this afternoon on board his yacht, Noma, for a cruise to Chesapeake Bay. It will be his first sea trip since his marriage, April 30.

It was announced some time ago that Astor would take a sea trip on his honeymoon and would go to the Mediterranean and even to India. Because of illness, congestion of the lungs, which overtook him, the sea trip was postponed.

Since the wedding there have been rumors that Astor's condition was no better. Today this was denied and it was pointed out that his sea trip proved that he had regained much of his health.

Cries "Halt!"

NOT ANOTHER STEP, WILSON TELLS UNIONS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 16.—President Wilson will oppose the changes in the pending anti-trust bills advocated by labor leaders to make more explicit the exemption of labor unions from the operation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The subject was discussed tonight at the White House at a conference between the President and Representatives Clayton, Webb and Carlin of the House Judiciary Committee. Mr. Wilson told them he agreed with them in thinking the Clayton bill now before the House went far enough.

The President was told that trade union members of the House were consulted before the drawing up of the Clayton bill, and that they fully approved of its provisions at that time.

The entire subject of anti-trust legislation was gone over at the conference and the committee members told the President that after the special rule for the consideration of the bill was brought in on Tuesday little trouble was anticipated by administration supporters.

Revenue.

POLL TAX MUST GO DESPITE STATE DEFICIT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, May 16.—From an annual average of $1,500,000 the inheritance tax collected by the State has jumped to nearly $2,500,000 for the past year, or a boost of about a million dollars, according to the report of the State Controller, John S. Chambers.

The figures up to today, a month and a half before the close of the fiscal year on July 1, next, are as follows:

For the first half of the year, $793,344.45; reported in to date on the second half, $1,350,759.92; reported by appraisers as due and payable, $176,341, making a total of $2,320,445.37.

In addition the Ross estate of Los Angeles, in litigation, will pay eventually anywhere from $187,000 to $200,000.

"With the loss of the corporation license tax, amounting to over $800,000 a year after June 30, next," said Controller Chambers, "and the fact that the people will vote in November, next, to abolish the poll tax, which also runs over $800,000 a year, the State of California is facing a serious financial situation. It is necessary that we see to it that every dollar justly due the State is collected. We have been fortunate this year in increasing the revenue from the inheritance tax, but there is no possibility, of course, that it can be made to cover all actual and prospective loss of revenue. It will do its share, however, and during the next fiscal year probably will show another gratifying increase."

LIMERICK VOLUNTEERS TO CHECK ULSTER MEN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LIMERICK (Ireland) May 16.—The County Council unanimously resolved today to support the Nationalist volunteer movement which was started for the purpose of organizing a national force to uphold the authority of the Crown and government of Ireland on the same lines as the Ulster force.

Thomas Lundon, National Member of the House of Commons for East Limerick, during a speech said that the day the Home Rule Bill was placed on the statute books 200,000 volunteers would parade in Dublin to prevent the withdrawal of the dearly-won measure.

MME. CAILLAUX'S TRIAL.

Woman Who Killed Gaston Calmette to be Tried on Charge of "Premeditated Homicide."

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, May 16.—Madame Caillaux, who shot and killed Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro, is to be tried on the charge of "homicide with premeditation." Theodore Lescouve, procurator of the republic, has made this announcement after examining the papers prepared by Henri Boucard, the magistrate who made the preliminary investigation. The trial date has not been fixed.

Aeroplane Routs a Gunboat.

Honest Test Is Reported from Mazatlan; Its Efficiency Is Vouchsafed.

The Morelos, Her Upper Works on Fire, Forced to Put Out to Sea.

Cannon on Board Silenced by the Bombs Dropped by the Aviators.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Mexican delegates to the mediation conference will leave tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock for New York, after spending only a day in Washington. They plan to go direct from New York to Niagara Falls, leaving probably on Tuesday morning.

DURANGO (Mex.) May 16.—The vulnerability of war vessels to the attack of aeroplanes was demonstrated yesterday, according to a message received today by Gen. Carranza, when the Federal gunboat Morelos, which has been one of the effective defenses of Mazatlan against Constitutionalist attack, was forced to put to sea with her upper works on fire to escape the bombs of the Constitutionalist aeroplane fleet.

The message, which was sent by Gen. Alvaro Obregon, stated that the bombs from an aeroplane bursting on the deck of the gunboat, not only silenced the federal guns, but also prevented the riflemen on board from firing effectively.

As the upper works, the bridge and the bulwarks of the Federal vessel were ripped away by the Constitutionalist bombs, the Federal commander, without a defense, put to sea while the aeroplane hung like a hawk above him, hovering in apparent fearlessness above the battered craft in an apparent effort to drop a bomb into one of the smokestacks.

The bombs, however, did not reach either of the vital parts of the vessel, the magazine or the engine-room and the gunboat, steaming desperately under forced draught, finally drew beyond the radius of the aeroplane's gasoline supply and the destroyer of the air turned back over the harbor to the protection back of the Constitutionalist lines, where the hangars are located. The pilot of the aerial craft was not designated in the message, but it is thought here to have been Capt. Salinas Carranza, a cousin of the first chief, who is in charge of the Constitutionalist aerial fleet.

Gen. Carranza, with his staff, the Governor of the State of Durango, Ignacio Bonillas, Minister of Communication, and Isidro Fabela, Minister of Foreign Relations, left today for a visit to Sombrereto, Zacatecas. The first chief of the Constitutionalists went at the invitation of Gen. Panfilo Natera, jefe de las armas of the State of Zacatecas, who came to Durango to request Gen. Carranza to establish civil government in that State. The party is expected to return to Durango tomorrow.

VILLA SPEEDING THROUGH DESERT.

ADVANCING RAPIDLY TO TAKE SALTILLO WHILE TEPIC HAS FALLEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TORREON (Mex.) May 16.—On the speed with which Gen. Francisco Villa is able to move his troops depends the date of the fall of Saltillo, according to Constitutionalists in close touch with movements at the front. With the advance guard, the Zaragoza brigade, in possession of Paredon, and other brigades advancing rapidly, only forty-five miles separate Villa from his goal.

That forty-five miles, however, is desert country. The railroad from Paredon to Saltillo has been cut. No one knows here whether Gen. Villa will wait for its repair under the direction of Eusebio Calzado, chief of railroads for the Constitutionalists, who has done wonders in the repairing of roads, or whether he will march his troops across the desert.

The forty-five-mile march through the desert country normally would require at least three days, but Villa has shown he is perfectly capable of leaving his infantry, taking the most efficient of his 15,000 mounted men, hurling them across the desert in a dash of eight hours at the most and striking a blow before the Federals could prepare for the attack. The Mexican horses, seemingly scrawny and small, are tough as whipcord and cover an astonishing distance through

HUERTA ENVOYS IN WASHINGTON.

Introduced to Mediators by Ambassador Riano.

State Department Engages a Mansion for Them.

But the Parks Case Has Not Been Pigeonholed.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The arrival here this afternoon of Gen. Huerta's representatives, sent to the mediation conference to open at Niagara Falls, Canada, next Wednesday, gave the most tangible evidence thus far presented of the efforts now under way to compose the Mexican conflict—the actual presence at the American capital of Huerta's spokesmen, direct from Mexico City, and clothed with plenary powers.

As the three Mexicans, Senors Rabasa, Rodriguez and Elguero, with their families and a numerous official suite, descended from the train, they were met by the Spanish Ambassador, Don Juan Riano, and presented to representatives of the State Department and of the three mediators, who had assembled at the station. A curious crowd looked on respectfully as the Mexicans were escorted to automobiles and taken to a hotel.

Tonight the Mexican delegates were the guests of honor at dinner at the Spanish Embassy. Other guests were the three mediators, Ambassador da Game of Brazil and Ministers Naon of Argentine and Suarez of Chile and the commissioners of the United States, Justice Joseph R. Lamar and Frederick W. Lehmann, with the American secretary, H. Percival Dodge, and numerous American, Spanish and Mexican officials. Secretary Bryan could not attend owing to an engagement to see a Greek outdoor pageant, given here for charity.

The dinner was said to be purely one of courtesy to the arriving delegates and without political significance. But coming at a time of warlike conditions, the presence in Washington of the Huerta delegates and their meeting with the United States commissioners and the mediators, it attracted widespread attention as indicating the more hopeful aspects of the Mexican embroglio.

THE PARKS CASE.

Meanwhile the urgent representations made by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan to the Huerta government through the Brazilian Minister at Mexico City, as to the reported execution of Private Samuel Parks, an American soldier, who strayed through the Mexican lines, was partly relieved by a message from Mexican Foreign Minister Ruiz to the Spanish Ambassador, Mr. Riano, stating that the disappearance of Parks would be immediately investigated. Beyond this Secretary Bryan had no information on Parks's disappearance. Both the Brazilian Minister at Mexico City and Gen. Funston at Vera Cruz have received word that Parks was summarily executed and his body mutilated, but they have not been able to confirm these reports.

OFFCIAL REPORTS.

Official reports through the day showed the Constitutionalists rapidly extending their field of occupation. Consul Canada at Vera Cruz reported them in possession of Tuxpam, the east coast town with extensive oil industries, only a few miles from Lobos Island, which has been a bone of contention between the Huerta lighthouse-keepers and the American naval officers, who sought to keep the light burning. The State Department also received word that Constitutionalists had occupied the town of Monclova, after its evacuation by Federals.

On the Pacific side Admiral Howard reported the Federals were likely to evacuate the port of Guaymas.

Tampico, now in full control of the Constitutionalists, was reported by Admiral Mayo to be resuming its normal condition, with foreign properties protected, and the Constitutionalist commander, Gen. Gonzales, exchanging informal calls with the American and British admirals.

The British now have four cruisers at Tampico, the Essex, Suffolk, Hermione and Lancaster, with the Bristol en route from Portsmouth; the Germans have the cruiser Dresden and the Dutch, the cruiser Kortenaer. The American ships include the Des Moines and Dolphin, while the Tacoma has followed the Mexican gunboats Zaragoza and Bravo to Puerto Mexico.

Puerto Mexico has now become a center of interest with the arrival of the Mexican gunboats and the possibilities of some move they may make. Three American ships are watching them, the Chester having joined the other American ships today. With the Federals cut out of Vera Cruz and Tampico, Puerto Mexico is about the only important eastern port controlled by Huerta.

CONFUSION.

Little excitement, but considerable confusion attended the arrival in Washington of the three Mexican delegates, in whose hands rest the hopes for the pacification of the stricken southern republic. Prior to the arrival of the train bearing the Mexican party, there was considerable speculation as to whether they would accept the hospitality of the American government, or would decline and make arrangements for their stay in Washington on their own account. C. M. Cook, social secretary of the State Department, was at the station to extend the invitation of the State Department.

Spanish Ambassador Riano and Counsellor Walls of the Spanish embassy, representatives of the mediating South American nations, and the remaining officials of the abandoned Mexican embassy, Secretaries Huerta and Fernandez and Military Attache Avalos, were in the official group that greeted the delegates. They were the center of a small crowd of diplomats, newspaper men and photographers.

The tall, spare form of Emilio Rabasa, head of the Mexican mission, first appeared as the train pulled in, smilingly watching the throng. As he descended he was greeted by Ambassador Riano, who presented the State Department's representative, Mr. Cook, and the representatives of Brazil, Argentina and Chile.

Delegate Rodriguez, bowed under his 72 years, was assisted from the train by one of the attaches. The third delegate, Luis Elguero, with his brother, Rafael Elguero, another attache, followed. The four daughters of Mr. Rabasa, a daughter and son of Mr. Rodriguez and the wife of Mr. Del Campo, an attache, joined the throng. Rafael Rodriguez, another son of the peace delegate, who will be attached to the mission at Niagara Falls, had come from New York to greet his father. The wife and mother-in-law of Military Attache Avalos of the abandoned Mexican Legation, were on hand to meet the women of the Mexican party.

A general round of embracing among the Mexicans followed, interspersed with official introductions all around. Meanwhile a sad-faced Mexican nurse girl in apron and cap stood on the outskirts of the throng holding the year-old baby boy of Attache Del Campo.

Delegate Rodriguez enthusiastically embraced his son, and Torres Adalid, a Mexico City capitalist, temporarily residing in Washington, who hobbled through the crowd on crutches.

While embraces and kisses and introductions went on to the accompaniment of snapping cameras, Mr. Cook and Spanish Ambassador Riano endeavored to make plans for the entertainment of the delegates. The latter, after the platform confusion had been on for nearly an hour, accepted the proffer of hospitality by the State Department, and the throng strung out toward the automobile entrance of the station.

Ambassador Riano, the representatives of Brazil, Argentina and Chile and Mr. Cook escorted the delegates to a local hotel, where accommodations had been reserved by the State Department.

Senors Rabasa and Rodriguez were smilingly appreciative of the courtesies offered them, and said their trip thus far had been a pleasant one. They firmly declined, however, to be drawn into any discussion of their mission, or to venture any opinion on the prospects for success in the mediation. Senor Del Campo, secretary of the delegates, also asked to be excused from any statement.

At 5:30 p.m. the three Mexican delegates, piloted by Ambassador Riano, made an official call on the mediators, assembled to meet them in the Argentine Legation.

Although arrangements are not completed, it is understood the delegates and their attaches will spend only a day in Washington, leaving on Sunday afternoon for New York, and proceeding from there to Niagara Falls. Senor Rodriguez, with his son and daughter, will go via New York in any event, in order to visit his son's family there before the conference.

The dinner at the Spanish Embassy was not ceremonial in its nature and served chiefly for the formation of acquaintanceships between the mediating envoys and the delegates from the two countries. There was only one formal toast, that proposed by the Spanish Ambassador to the success of the mediation.

"The noble task of the mediators deserves the greatest credit," he said, "and I am confident that the record of their work will be handed down to posterity as one of the greatest endeavors in the interests of humanity and peace that has ever been attempted, and it is my earnest hope that these noble and disinterested efforts will meet with the success that they deserve."

Ambassador Riano, then speaking in Spanish, said:

"As for you, representatives of Mexico, brothers in the blood and united with Spain by the closest bonds of blood friendship, I need not tell you how cordial is the greeting and welcome I offer you. Here in this house you are in your own house and in myself you find a loyal and sincere friend, desirous of contributing, as far as depends on me, the happy outcome of the mission, which with such high patriotism you have undertaken."

The Ambassador finished in English, saying:

"Gentlemen, I ask you to raise your glasses and drink with me to the success of the mediation."

American Commissioner Frederick W. Lehmann replied wittily, apostrophizing Columbus as a personage in whom all present could take a common pride, and Senor Rabasa, the first Mexican delegate, thanked Ambassador Riano for his hospitality and kind wishes.

At the dinner table the Brazilian Ambassador, Senor da Gama, as the senior of the mediators, occupied the position of honor at the right of Ambassador Riano. The other mediators, delegates and attaches were seated according to their respective ranks, Justice Lamar being placed besides Mme. Riano, the only woman among the assemblage of Spanish, Mexican and American men.

By common accord, the topic of mediation was avoided during the dinner and the hour's conversation in the salon afterwards.

Effect of American Shots on Vera Cruz Building.

Where Mexican snipers were dislodged.

The photograph which is here reproduced was sent to this city by Armand Johnson of Los Angeles, who shipped from Galveston aboard the United States transport Meade and was in Vera Cruz at the time of the occupation by American marines, where he witnessed some of the work of the sharpshooters of both sides.

BRITISH SCRIBE IS RUN OUT.

[BY MEXICAN CABLE AND A. P.]

VERA CRUZ, May 16.—Oliver Madox Hueffer, correspondent of the London Daily Express, has been expelled from Mexico City, although he was the bearer of a British passport.

Three times he was arrested in the capital on the allegation that he was a "notorious American spy."

After his last release he received the order of expulsion and arrived here on a refugee train today. He says no change has taken place in conditions in the capital, so far as is apparent on the surface.

The refugee train brought in twenty Americans and a number of Mexicans.

The commission of naval officers, which has been engaged in separating the prisoners confined in the fortress of San Juan de Ulua completed its work today. It released twenty-five Federal army recruits as well as a number of prisoners guilty of minor offenses. The remaining prisoners who are charged with serious crimes have been held in prison and are employed at hard labor at the drydock. The Mexican newspapers today publish a report from Mexican sources stating that the country about Pueblo, 150 miles southeast of the capital, is over-run by Constitutionalists and that the city is virtually in a state of siege. The papers discredit the report that Provisional President Huerta is preparing to make a last stand at Puebla.

HUERTA AS FINANCIER.

Capt. Jebsen of San Francisco Says He Has Made Arrangements for Hasty Departure.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—Capt. S. Jebsen, head of a local shipping firm and captain of the steamer Mazatlan, which arrived here today from Mazatlan, announced that he will not return to that port until both Mazatlan and Guaymas have been taken by the Constitutionalists.

While in the trouble zone Capt. Jebsen was incarcerated for four days in a Federal prison and was not liberated until the German Consul interceded in his behalf.

During a recent trip to the City of Mexico, Capt. Jebsen says, he found it to be a matter of common knowledge that Huerta has sent to Paris a sum aggregating 8,000,000 pesos, sent there, it is said, against the necessity of a hasty departure from Mexico. This fund is throught to be Huerta's portion of the profits of a trading company, which furnished the government with supplies. Huerta was president of this concern, the other officers being his son and son-in-law and members of his Cabinet.

Capt. Jebsen says that the general belief in Mexico is that Huerta never will be allowed to leave the country.

CHEYENNE DUE TODAY.

Monitor Will Reach San Diego Bearing Refugees From Lower California Ports.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, May 16.—With about half a hundred refugees from Lower California ports, the United States monitor Cheyenne will reach San Diego tomorrow noon from San Quintin, Mex., according to radiograms received today from Lieut. Jansen, commanding the warship. It is said that there are twenty-five members of a Johnson family among these refugees on board the Cheyenne.

GRANTS TO LIVE IN NEW YORK.

SON OF FAMOUS UNION GENERAL TO ABANDON SAN DIEGO.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, May 16.—Ulysses S. Grant, son of the famous Union general and President, who was married in San Diego last July to Mrs. A. W. Will of Marshalltown, Iowa, against the opposition of his family, will abandon his home in San Diego for a residence in New York City. This admission was made last night by Mrs. Grant at the Palace Hotel shortly after she arrived there with her husband on the final lap of a 'round-the-world honeymoon journey.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant came West by way of Portland, where they visited his daughter, Mrs. King. It was this visit that Mrs. Grant particularly emphasized as a suggestion that no differences that may exist between her husband and his family in the Southland has anything to do with their removing to New York City.

"The only reason we have for removing to New York," said Mrs. Grant, "is that I like that city better than San Diego. Business compelled Mr. Grant to return to San Diego at this time. In fact, we have come back to California earlier than we had expected. Our final decision as to our future home will be reached after we have returned to San Diego and Mr. Grant has attended to a lot of pressing business matters. We contemplate leaving for the South Sunday."

TO COAL WEST COAST FLEET.

Two Naval Colliers Taking New Cargo to United States Steamers Now at Mazatlan.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, May 16.—Two United States naval colliers, Justin, Capt. Nash, and the Nero, Capt. Kelton, passed off Point Loma within a few hours of each other today, both bound for Mazatlan, coal laden. The electric collier Jupiter and the Saturn are the only auxiliary ships now in west coast Mexican waters. They have sufficient cargo to last the fleet for two more weeks.

Officials of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company in reply to a radiogram from Admiral Howard inquiring if 2000 tons of coal stored at Acapulco and owned by the steamship company, could be used by the Pacific fleet, stated that the entire amount was at the disposal of the United States government. Either the Saturn or the Nero will load this coal before either ship comes north to refill their bunkers at California City.

CHARTER BRITISH FREIGHTERS.

Property of American-Hawaiian Steamship Company to Be Removed from the Railroad.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—The British freighters Ulidia and Strathdon have been chartered for the purpose of removing from the terminals of the Tehuantepec Railroad the freight of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company left stranded along the railroad route and at Salina Cruz and Puerto de Mexico, when the road discontinued handling freight. This announcement was made today.

The management of the Tehuantepec road has notified the Huerta government that it expects every ton of freight to be shifted to either Salina Cruz or the Atlantic terminal at once. The Ulidia will reach Puerto de Mexico May 20 and the Strathdon will be at the West Coast terminal May 25.

Officials of the steamship company expect that the freight will be moved according to request. This completed, all the company's business in the future will be cared for at Panama.

DOSTER STILL MISSING.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The State Department declared today that all efforts to locate Edward Depew Doster, an American newspaper man, had so far been fruitless, but that continued effort would be made by Senor Cardoso.

Greetings.

CABLEGRAM FROM NUDSEN READ TO THE NORWEGIANS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MINNEAPOLIS, May 16.—A cablegram extending the greetings of the Norwegian government to the national fest, from Gunnark Nudsen, Prime Minister of Norway, was read tonight to the thousands of persons gathered here for the celebration of Norway's one hundredth independence day, by H. H. Bryn, Norwegian Minister to the United States.

Senator Knute Nelson delivered the principal address of the day, reviewing the events that made May 17 dear to the hearts of all Norwegians.

The principal event of the celebration, which will close on Monday night, was the two parades, starting simultaneously in Minneapolis and St. Paul, the columns meeting at the State Fair Grounds gate, where the celebration was held.

Twenty-two members of the famous Norwegian Civil War regiment, the Fifteenth Wisconsin Volunteers, held a reunion this afternoon. With the exception of six others unable to attend, the twenty-two are all who are now living of the 1080 men who went to the front in 1862.

At the banquet tonight Einar Hilsen, editor of a Christiania newspaper, brought greetings from King Haakon and the Norwegian Parliament.

rough country at a shuffling walk that exhausts neither horse nor rider.

The Constitutionalists who have studied the question here expect little resistance from the Federal outposts at the towns about Saltillo. They believe that, cognizant of the mobility of Villa's troops, the Federals would not dare mass a sufficient number of men to offer serious resistance at any one position outside Saltillo itself.

The best informed people here expect no great delay before battle is joined. Many place Monday as the latest time for the first assault, and some even expect that Villa may deliver a night attack tomorrow night.

CITY OF TEPIC TAKEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

JUAREZ (Mex.) May 16.—Gen. Carranza telegraphed today from Durango that the Constitutionalist Gens. Lucie Blanco and Rafael Buelna had taken the city of Tepic, capital of the State of that name, after a severe engagement lasting more than twenty-four hours.

The number of killed and wounded was not given in the first chief's dispatch. The message also stated that the Constitutionalists had taken the town of Santiago Excuintlan and the port of San Blas.

BLAME DEFEAT ON RAINSTORM.

FEDERALS MIGHT HAVE KEPT TAMPICO IF THE WIND HAD BEEN RIGHT.

[BY MEXICAN CABLE AND A. P.]

VERA CRUZ, May 16.—A heavy rainstorm which flooded the trenches and blew blinding torrents into the faces of the Federals contributed much to their defeat at Tampico, according to Americans who have come here from that port. After the first day's fighting the Federals appeared to be weakening, but still resisted. Over night they made all preparations for a retreat. Trains stood in readiness, with steam up.

At 8 o'clock the next morning a great rainstorm from the eastward drove the Federals from the trenches. The Constitutionalists took advantage of this and poured a terrific fire into them, forcing them back from the outposts into the town. Immediately the Federals began entraining.

The gunboat Vera Cruz struck by a Constitutionalist shell, was run up the river and beached. Soldiers and crew remained aboard waiting for the trains which soon passed the point filled to their utmost capacity with fleeing Federals. The other gunboats moved down the river firing a few shells as they went.

The Federals burned the barracks before evacuating, destroying a large quantity of ammunition.

The Constitutionalists came into town shooting in the air and shouting "Viva Carranza! Viva Wilson!"

There was little actual disorder and little looting.

Within two hours the water supply and light connections were restored, police guarded the town and the saloons were closed. Several persons engaged in looting were shot.

The German Consul, R. Everbusch, accompanied by the American Vice-Consul, Thomas P. Bevan, proceeded through the residential district and placed German seals on all the houses. These were not touched. The refugees knew of no cases of private houses having been looted.

In their retreat the Federals opened the drawbridge on the San Luis Potosi line at the edge of the city and crippled the mechanism. They then proceeded to Ebanol, two miles west, where they planned to cross into the State of Vera Cruz by a pontoon bridge which they had previously constructed. It is reported that they were surrounded at that place by the Constitutionalist chief, Gen. Aguilar, who had moved up from the south with a heavy force.

Tampico is now quiet; the stores have been reopened and Americans are returning on every steamer.

ANNEX MEXICO, WINGO'S ADVICE.

ARKANSAS CONGRESSMAN DOUBTS THE NECESSITY OF AN EMBASSY BUILDING THERE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill aggregating $5,000,000 was passed by the House today. It provides for the acquisition of embassy sites and buildings in Tokio at $150,000; in Berne, Switzerland, at $140,000, and in Mexico City at $150,000.

During the debate on the Mexico City embassy, Representative Wingo of Arkansas protested it would be a waste of money.

"Is there any man here who believes we are going to need a building in Mexico City for many years?" he asked. "We may patch up peace now, but the history of Mexico shows what? Mexico's history for 400 years has been one of strife, revolution, anarchy and despotism. I do not want war. I hope it can be averted, but I am not cherishing any illusion that we may have permanent peace in Mexico until we take possession of that country. I hope for peace, but I expect ultimately we will have war."

REBEL WAR SONG BY MISS ANGEL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) May 16.—The war song of the Constitutionalists in Mexico has been written by an American woman. Some time ago Miss Elena Angel of East Northfield, Mass., wrote to the confidential agent here of Gen. Carranza, declaring that she was in deep sympathy with the objects and aims and aspirations for reform of the "plan of Guadalupe," which in effect represents the Constitutionalist declaration of principles.

Miss Angel asked that a picture of Gen. Carranza and a Constitutionalist flag be sent her and this was done. The local Constitutionalist junta forgot the incident until a few days ago when a letter was received from Miss Angel inclosing a hymn to the Constitutionalist. The words were in English, but the music is said to be typically Mexican. In curiosity one of the members of the junta, a musician, played the music and was delighted with it. The words are being translated into Spanish by one of the band masters of the Constitutionalist army.

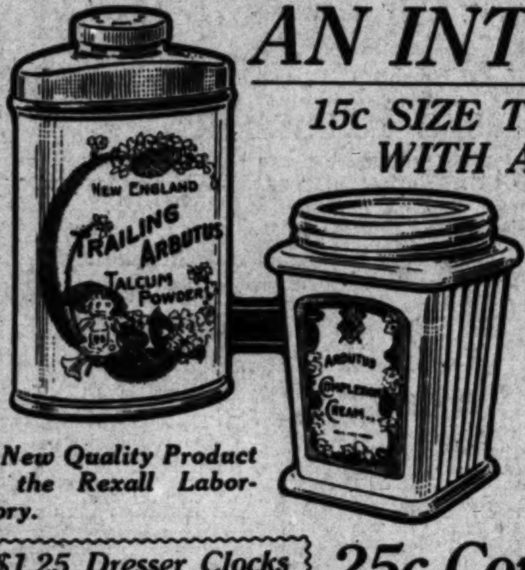
AN INTRODUCTORY OFFER

15c SIZE TRAILING ARBUTUS TALCUM FREE WITH ARBUTUS COMPLEXION CREAM



A New Quality Product of the Rexall Laboratory.

50c

Trailing Arbutus Talcum has met with such universal recognition that a new product—the complexion cream mentioned—has been placed on the market as a companion article. Arbutus Complexion Cream contains just enough Peroxide to make this preparation extremely valuable in purifying and cleansing the skin and complexion.

The Cream is a triumph of a laboratory renowned for the imperial quality of its many toilet preparations. In introducing this cream to Los Angeles, we do so believing it will become one of the most popular face creams on the market.

Trailing Arbutus Talcum has already won a place with many thousands—its soft, delicate fragrance is distinctly new in talcum powders.

UNVEIL STATUE TO JOHN BARRY.

WILSON PAYS TRIBUTE TO EARLY COMMODORE OF AMERICAN NAVY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Simultaneously with the firing of a salute of eleven guns and the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner," a statue to Commodore John Barry was unveiled here today in Franklin Park. The cord that released the large American flag surrounding the figure was pulled by Miss Elsie H. Hepburn of Philadelphia, great grand-neice of the distinguished son of Erin who served conspicuously in the United States navy.

President Wilson participated in the ceremonies and made a brief address.

The President referred to the creed of the revolutionary heroes by saying that Washington and Barry "were the men who first saw that America must live her own life without entangling alliances."

"We need not," said the President, "and should not form alliances with any nation. Those who are right, those who hold their honor above their advantage do not need alliances. You need alliances only when you are not strong. You are weak, when in the wrong, and when afraid to do right.

"And there is another corollary. John Barry was an Irishman, but his heart crossed the Atlantic with him. He did not leave it in Ireland. And the test of all of us is whether we will assist America to live her life, retaining our ancient interests and affections, but determining that everything we do shall be first for America. A man is an American when he votes and when he acts or when he fights, and his thoughts are nowhere but in thoughts and emotions and the policies of the United States."

Milwaukee Doctor Run to Earth in Los Angeles Gets Six Years in Wisconsin Penitentiary.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MILWAUKEE, May 16.—Dr. F. X. Schaefer, once head of the State Odd Fellows, but arrested in San Francisco under an alias, after a three-year world search, was today sentenced to the State Prison for six years for manslaughter through the death after an illegal operation on Mrs. Rose Diedrica, wife of a university professor here. Although he declared that Victoria Buil, his traveling companion on the world tour, was left penniless by his arrest, Schaefer today before being taken to prison, went to the Courthouse and took the necessary proceedings to perfect the divorce secured from him after his flight by his former wife, Baroness von Oettingen of Berlin. The Baroness had never perfected the divorce. Schaefer was known in Los Angeles and San Francisco as Miller.

IOWA BANK CLOSES.

Small State Financial Institution at Brooks Will Go Out of Business Although Solvent.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BROOKS (Iowa) May 16.—The Bank of Brooks, a State institution capitalized for $10,000 and with deposits amounting to about $30,000, closed today. Its stock was mostly held by the owners of the First National Bank of Corning, which closed yesterday. It is stated that the Brooks bank is solvent, but owing to its connection with the Corning institution, its owner thought best to close it.

PISTOL DUEL, TWO DEAD.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LEXINGTON (Ky.) May 16.—Word reached here today that Hubbard Miniard, aged 17, son of County Attorney J. B. Miniard of Leslie county, and Joseph S. Hensley, a member of a prominent Leslie county family, had killed each other in a pistol duel at Coons Creek near Hyden.

close saloons in times of internal disorder without declaring martial law.

Authorizing the Governor to prohibit the sale or purchase of firearms by unauthorized persons in times of internal disorder.

The two measures, included in the call which were defeated, were a constitutional amendment for the enactment of a compulsory arbitration act and a bill establishing a State police force.

In the closing hours of the extra session a joint resolution was adopted for the appointment of three Senators and three Representatives to act as advisers to the Governor in handling future strike developments and to recommend to the Twentieth General Assembly, which convenes next January, laws they may deem necessary to meet the situation.

The adjournment of the extra session at 2 o'clock, the hour agreed upon, was delayed by the receipt of the telegram from President Wilson.

There are in Colorado approximately 1700 United States cavalry of the Eleventh, Twelfth and Fifth Regiments, distributed chiefly in the coal fields in Las Animas, Huerfano, Fremont and Boulder counties.

That the acts of the Legislature are not sufficient to cope with the strike situation in case the Federal troops are withdrawn was the substance of a minority report adopted by members of the Senate and telegraphed to President Wilson.

"We believe that the measures passed by the Legislature at this session are inadequate to meet the situation in this State," said the report addressed to the President. "We protest our sincere desire to alleviate the condition in this State. We deplore the necessity of your telegram to Gov. Ammons and the condition that makes necessary a reminder to the Governor of Colorado by the Chief Executive of the nation that the State is derelict in its duty in the premises."

FIND A CLUE TO THE GUNMEN.

BIT OF HARD RUBBER MAY IDENTIFY ASSAILANTS OF MINE GUARDS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TRINIDAD (Colo.) May 16.—A bit of hard rubber, broken from a rifle stock, was the clew upon which the military authorities tonight began an investigation of the battle fought at Forbes on April 29. The fragment, picked up on one of the hills from which the strikers made their attack on the camp, was given to Col. Lockett, who at once ordered an investigation to determine whether it is missing from any of the rifles turned in under the disarmament order. It is stamped with the name of a well-known manufactory of repeating rifles.

The battle of Forbes followed an early morning attack upon the camp by strikers who, after the fight, fled across the hills in the direction of Trinidad. Later in the day John Brown, then in charge of the strikers' military camp at San Rafael on the outskirts of Trinidad, admitted that a body of his men had left the camp during the night and returned about noon.

The Forbes battle resulted in the killing of nine defenders of the mine. One striker died of wounds. The Coroner did not find any bodies of strikers in the hills, although it had been reported that several had been killed.

United States regulars, in riding over the hills where the battle was fought, have found several rolls of blankets, but nothing suggesting possible identification of the attackers was discovered until the piece of gun stock was brought to Col. Lockett.

William Diamond, who has been in charge of strike headquarters here, left tonight for Ft. Smith, Ark., where he will confer with John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, over the Colorado situation.

It was announced today that the first families to occupy the new tent colony at Ludlow probably would be moved in on Monday. Robert G. Bolton said a census of the inhabitants would be taken as fast as they moved into the camp, and that information requested by Col. Lockett would be furnished promptly. The colonel has asked the union to furnish him lists of the population of the colony, that he may determine whether all are entitled to live there under the terms of the order of the Secretary of War.

SUES PROMOTER FOR BOARD BILL.

Woman Seeks to Collect from Frederick A. Stokes.

Declares He Operated in United Wireless Stock.

Said to Have Been Leader Among Democrats.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, May 16.—Suit to recover $300 alleged to be due Miss Wilhelmina Schacht for board and lodging was filed in the Superior Court today against Frederick A. Stokes, candidate for the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor, promoter and organizer of a military organization for service in the Mexican war in case of necessity. Miss Schacht of Berkeley alleges that Stokes, his wife and his step-daughter, Alma Crowley, contracted for board and lodging between June 30 and July 25, 1910, and failed to pay.

The suit is entitled "Wilhelmina Schacht, an unmarried woman, vs. F. A. Stokes, alias F. F. Stoll."

The complaint alleges that the true name of the defendant is F. A. Stokes, but that he has been known by the name of F. F. Stoll, "assumed when disclosures were made concerning the United States Wireless Company, of which fradulent operating company said F. A. Stokes, alias F. F. Stoll, was district manager and general fiscal agent in Minneapolis." This allegation forms the second count in the complaint.

Miss Schacht asks for payment at the rate of $12 a day for the time Stokes was at her home, the total amount being $300.

Stokes refuses to admit he is F. F. Stoll, but admits he is from New York and Chicago and was in the Democratic National Committee during the second Cleveland campaign.

MISS SCHACHT'S STORY.

"Stokes came to Berkeley from Minneapolis on June 30, 1910," said Miss Schacht, "and asked me if he could board at my house. He stated that he was willing to pay me rates equal to the best hotels in San Francisco and accordingly I served him with champagnes and all the delicacies that I could purchase.

"At one time Stokes went under the name of F. F. Stoll, a name he changed, he told me, when he inherited an estate. It was shortly after his marriage to my sister that he was attacked in his room one night by another woman, who claimed to be his wife. My sister has told me that there is still a third woman who declares that Stokes is her husband."

AS TO STOLL.

Capt. Frederick F. Stoll, who Miss Schacht says is F. A. Stokes, was born, according to his own statement, in New York.

In 1894 Stoll received an appointment as superintendent of carriers in the Chicago postoffice from President Cleveland. At that time he was a captain of the Illinois National Guard. According to Stokes's statement he was a captain of the New York National Guard.

Stoll acted as campaign manager for Washington Hesing, when Hesing ran for Mayor of Chicago in 1897, on the Independent Democratic ticket. Hesing was defeated.

In 1900 Stoll left Chicago and went to New York City. Soon after his arrival in the metropolis he organized the Chelsea Association, civic purity league, and received warm letters from ex-President Cleveland, President Roosevelt and other prominent men for the work he had taken up.

When, in 1907, Stoll became involved with two women who claimed him as their husband and who sought to find a third, undivorced wife, he was still acting as president of the Suburban Realty Brokers' Association.

Stoll dropped from view in Chicago about the middle of July, 1907, sought by the two women claiming equal right to bear his name, and a host of creditors flourishing checks, investment receipts, I.O.U.'s and other claims amounting to thousands.

In April, 1907, he was married in New York to Miss Alma Earle, a San Francisco actress. On the morning of July 18, 1907, Mrs. Julia Garrett Stoll called at the Albany Hotel in New York, where Stoll and his actress bride were living, and created a noisy and embarrassing scene. She declared she was married to Stoll in Benton Harbor, Mich., in 1899, and demanded to know why he presumed to marry again.

The next day Stoll disappeared. Then Mrs. Alma Earle Stoll and Mrs. Julia Garrett Stoll joined forces and instituted a search for a third wife who was supposed to be living in Chicago. The Chicago wife was said to have prior claim of the three on the much-wanted swain.

At length on July 26, 1907, the Chicago wife was found. She was Mrs. Louise Stoll, at that time living with her daughters Mabel, aged 17, and Lucille, aged 11. She refused to join in the prosecution of Stoll.

Capt. Stoll next cropped up in Minneapolis, where he is alleged to have used the name of Frederick A. Stokes. In Minneapolis he was general fiscal agent for the United Wireless Company, when in January, 1910, several officials of the concern were indicted in New York on fraud charges.

STOKES'S STATEMENT.

When on April 12, 1914, Stokes announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor of California, he issued statements making the assertion that he had always been a staunch and active Democrat and that when Grover Cleveland made his last race for the Presidency Stokes was chairman of the Democratic National Finance Committee.

Stokes said he is at present chairman of the Executive Committee of the Iroquois Club of San Francisco, State Treasurer of the Iroquois Clubs of California and chairman of the Twenty-sixth Assembly District Democratic Club of California.

He said he resided at No. 109 Alpine street with his wife, who formerly was Miss Alma Ranier, daughter of the old California family of Raniers, who were among the pioneer settlers of Tehama county. He has two children, he says.

Requiem High Mass Held Over Boy Who Died at Thursday Island On World Tour.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—Requiem high mass was held today over the body of George M. McDonald, the 14-year-old boy who died on Thursday Island while on a tour of the world with the Columbia Park boys. The boy occupied a cot adjoining that of the late Madame Nordica in a hospital on Thursday Island. The diva furnished a head stone for his grave. He also was befriended by Sir Thomas Lipton.

TYSON TO FIGHT DIVORCE.

Millionaire Lumber Baron of San Francisco to Oppose Action Brought Charging Cruelty.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

OAKLAND, May 16.—Robert J. Tyson, president of the Seaboard National Bank of San Francisco and member of the millionaire family of lumber barons of that name, will fight the action of his wife, Charlotta Carson Tyson, for a divorce on the grounds of cruelty. He filed an answer to her charges in the Superior Court today, denying all of the allegations.

Tyson merely denies his wife's cruelty charges and asks that the court deny Mrs. Tyson a divorce. He declares that their two children—Robert, 12 years of age, and William, 17—need the aid and advice of their father, and asks their custody.

Mrs. Tyson left the home of her husband at Piedmont last January after a married life of more than eighteen and a half years. Two weeks ago she filed a complaint for divorce charging him with continual nagging and hectoring of herself, alleging that it was no loner possible for them to live together. Tyson makes strong denial of this one point, and avers in his complaint that this is untrue.

Mrs. Tyson has one of the boys with her, while the other is with the father. Mrs. Tyson was before her marriage Miss Carlotta Carson, a daughter of the late William Carson, multi-millionaire lumber king of Humboldt county. The Tysons were married in Eureka in 1895. Mrs. Tyson has a fortune of several millions in her own right.

IT'S A REPUBLICAN YEAR.

And Even the Democrats Admit the G.O.P. Will Recapture the House, Needham Says.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA ANA, May 16.—Receiving J. C. Needham of San Diego with enthusiasm, the Orange County Republican Central Committee this afternoon unanimously urged Needham to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Eleventh District and indorsed him for the position. Needham, who was present at the meeting by invitation of the committee, stated that he had not decided what to do, but that within the next ten days he will make an announcement.

Needham stated that it was in 1898 at Newport Beach that he was first nominated for Congress. He was elected and served fourteen years. He said that he returned yesterday from the East, and that while in the East he talked to Congressmen and others and found that this is going to be a Republican year. Even the Democratic Congressmen admitted to him that there is no doubt that the Republicans will have the next House of Representatives.

"I know the situation," said he, "and it is absolutely essential for the interests of the citrus fruit and sugar-beet industry that the Eleventh Congressional district be redeemed. Whether or not I shall be the Republican nominee I do not know, that if you elect a Democrat it is notice to officials at Washington that this district approves Congressman Kettner's vote on the Underwood bill."

R. Y. Williams of Santa Ana, in making the motion urging Needham to run, stated that Needham had always been a straightforward, straight Republican.

GUNBOAT PAYMASTER DIES.

Officer Aboard the Vicksburg at Mazatlan Succumbs to Scarlet Fever and Body Will Be Returned.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

VALLEJO (Cal.) May 16.—A radiogram was received at Mare Island from the United States gunboat Vicksburg at Mazatlan Harbor, announcing the death on board last night of Paymaster Rishworth Nicholson of scarlet fever. Nicholson was paymaster at Puget Sound navy yard, Bremerton, Wash., until assigned to the Vicksburgh recently, when that vessel sailed for Mexican waters. According to the radiogram the Vicksburgh has sailed for the harbor of Los Angeles to land the body.

Rishworth Nicholson was a brother-in-law of ex-Secretary of the Navy Metcalf and was a resident of Oakland, where his mother and two sisters reside.

San Francisco Fire Loss.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

EMPIRE DAY AN EVENT.

British People Prepare for a Great Celebration Next Saturday in Ocean Park.

Elaborate arrangements are under way for the Empire Day celebration at Ocean Park next Saturday. There are about 30,000 former residents of the British Isles and their descendants living in Southern California, and it is estimated that fully 15,000 of them will join in the celebration.

The forenoon will be characterized by a picturesque parade, headed by Mayor Dudley of Santa Monica and Mayor Rose of this city. At the Fraser pier speeches will be made by Joseph Ford, Deputy District Attorney, and Judge McCormick, following an address of welcome by Mayor Dudley. The day will be full of fun and frolic, and many prizes will be awarded.

The Executive Committee of the Empire Day celebration is composed of the following: G. W. L. Young, chairman; S. H. Fisher, secretary-treasurer; Thomas White, assistant secretary; William Chilton, C. W. McLeod, C. P. Norton, H. S. Battram, Mrs. W. Watts, J. A. Roden, Thomas Adney, J. Willacy, J. Orton, Mrs. F. V. Hanscom, J. Knight, chairman of finance; Mrs. J. Knight, Mrs. H. S. Whinnery, S. E. Medland, John Topham, E. H. Rudall, Mrs. May Jackson, N. H. Hansen, J. A. Simmons, W. W. Meggett, John Munns, C. E. Vatcher, H. J. Vatcher, Sr., J. Leaver, D. Anderson, Mrs. A. Anderson, F. J. Pitman and Harry Buckingham.

Indignation.

HERD AMERICANS LIKE CATTLE.

BITTERNESS AGAINST WILSON POLICY INCREASING.

Refugees in Vera Cruz Say They Have Been Treated by United States but Little Better Than by Mexico and Praise Huerta for What He Has Done.

BY GEORGE ADDISON HUGHES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VERA CRUZ, May 10.—Bitterness against the Washington administration is manifest on all sides here by American refugees from all parts of Mexico.

Officials of American mining companies, railroads and almost all other industrial and commercial and professional men declare that the treatment of our nationals by the Washington administration is worse than anything they have suffered under the Huerta regime.

Huerta, weak as he apparently is, is doing more for Americans, they say, than the administration at Washington has ever done.

Expressions of disgust are heard on all sides here and the usual topic of conversation over the dinner tables under the Plaza colonades is "Washington Wilson's weakness."

Now the feature subject of the topic is the treatment accorded refugees after they have gone through Mexico unprotected and arrive under the Stars and Stripes here en route to the States.

There is no question but that they come here like so many cattle and that the provisions made for their care are little short of abominable.

Women and children are given preference over all others and first-class cabins aboard the few refugee ships in service, but the number is so small that hundreds of other women are compelled to sleep in the steerage, while the men bunk where they can on decks and elsewhere.

None here can understand why the government keeps the harbor full of ships of all kinds and many of which they believe might be used as refugee transports, when there are so many suffering as a result.

"Mexico treats us like pigs, the United States as though we are hogs," say the Americans.

Americans, who at least claim to be refugees, are begging through the streets of Vera Cruz and these, asked why they have not shipped home, declare there is no room for them.

Beggars here get little sympathy and the Americans' chances of subsisting on what they get in that way are mighty slim for the ciudad is war impoverished and under the varnish of festivity and gayety of the rich are conditions that beggar description.

Consul Canada and Consul-General Shanklin do all they can to alleviate the suffering of the refugees, but that which they can authoritatively do seems truly infinitesimal.

The Consulate is jammed day and night with men, women and children in rags, many of them barefooted and without a second piece of clothing to their name.

Several months, even weeks in many cases, these same men and women and children were the happy inhabitants of haciendas and plantations where they were wealthy, healthy and happy.

Federals and rebels arrested the men, left the women and children to their trust in God and, wrecking what they could not carry, confiscated everything portable.

There never was law or much order along the Isthmus of Tehuantepec since the rebellions began and the United States occupied Vera Cruz conditions are unspeakable.

Everything short of murder has been committed and while refugees are unable to cite a specific instance of murder and give sufficient data for investigation, they do describe in detail everything else and know what they are talking about.

All their stories are told in an unromantic, straightforward matter-of-fact way without embellishments and all truth. Their experiences in prisons, hardships by night flights and deadly treks to safety, insult and abuse they do not exaggerate because they have as a rule lived so long in Mexico that they expect anything that may occur here.

HOGUE IS IDENTIFIED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—Walter Parham, a watchman, identified today James S. Hogue, who was shot Monday night after he had held up a Southern Pacific train at South San Francisco, as the bandit who held up train No. 87 between San Mateo and San Francisco, February 24.

EYE WITNESS OF PARKS'S END.

Mexican Deserter Declares He Saw Execution.

Promises to Relate Facts if He Is Given a Job.

Hydro - Aeroplanes Making Daily Scouting Flights.

[BY MEXICAN CABLE AND A. P.]

VERA CRUZ, May 16.—Additional confirmation of the execution of Private Samuel Parks of the Twenty-eighth Infantry was received today. There was brought into the American lines one of Huerta's conscripts who had deserted. He said he was an eye-witness of the execution of Parks and agreed to relate the facts so far as he knew them to the American general in command if in return he would be given work here or otherwise cared for.

Reports from Mexico City brought in by the refugees are that President Huerta daily rides through the streets and frequently appears at the cafes accompanied by only one or two aides or intimate friends. In the face of this apparent nonchalance, however, the usual rumors of Huerta's flight are circulated here daily. They are not taken seriously by most of those who are acquainted with Huerta's views.

Preparations are going on here that may mean either a long occupation or the equipment of a base for an indefinite period. Most of the permanent equipment which arrived here this week has already been distributed, enabling the various detachments to vacate public and private buildings for their own quarters.

The navy hydro-aeroplane makes daily flights. Lieut. George Arnemann, Twenty-eighth Infantry, has been assigned to the naval aviation corps. Col. Clement F. Flagler of the army war college, has been assigned to the command of the engineers expeditionary forces.

The officers of the waterworks outpost and along the outer lines report all quiet and no indication of any intention on the part of Mexicans to advance or harrass the Americans. The recent rumors of occasional shooting were finally explained when Mexicans were discovered a short distance from the lines burning brush into which they had thrown joints of bamboo. These exploded with a noise almost identical with that of rifle shots, and it remained for one who had campaigned in the Philippines to give the explanation.

News comes from the capital that President Huerta has created four Federal Territories—one in the State of Morelos and the other three in the State Chihuahua. Huerta originally intended to divide Chihuahua into three States.

Too great indulgence in the desire to make money out of the situation, according to Mexicans from Cordoba, is what brought about the substitution of Gen. Maas by Gen. Garcia Pena as commander of the Federal forces in front of Vera Cruz. They say that Gen. Maas had been confiscating corn and coffee and selling these at interior points at high prices.

Advices to the American consulate say that Moru, the Cuban whom Consul Canada employed as a messenger to Gen. Maas, has been reported at the capital, where it is assumed he has been sent as a prisoner. The Filipino boy of the battleship Florida, who entered the Mexican lines has not been heard from.

TAMPICO REBELS GIVE PLEDGES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Renewed pledges by the Constitutionalists at Tampico to give all practicable guarantee and protection to foreigners and their properties were made today by Gen. Gonzales and Caballero at an informal conference with Admiral Mayo and other American officers. Despite the pledges, Admiral Mayo, in dispatches to the Navy Department tonight renewed his recommendation that Americans should not be encouraged as yet to return to Tampico.

Admiral Mayo declared that it was uncertain whether the Federals or Constitutionalists are in control of the Panuco district and that the whereabouts of the Federal force that evacuated Tampico is unknown.

All Americans, Admiral Badger at Vera Cruz telegraphed, were reported today to have left Progreso and Campeche, seaports on Yucatan peninsula. The gunboat Yankton reported that the steamer City of Tampico had taken 130 refugees from Progreso and Campeche a considerable number of whom were Cubans, Spaniards and Frenchmen. The cruisers Tacoma and Chester reported their arrival at Puerto Mexico today, and the gunboat Paducah sailed today for Alvarado, fifty miles south of Vera Cruz.

HOLD OIL MAN AS A HOSTAGE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) May 16.—Gov. Villareal of Nuevo Leon State has been asked by Gen. Carranza to investigate statements that F. E. Teza, agent of an oil company at Monterey, was being held as hostage at that town for a forced loan of $5000 and to offer Teza every protection.

Constitutionalist officials here informed by representatives of the oil interests that they had received a message from Teza that he was being made a hostage and that prompt action was necessary.

Teza is an Italian citizen and representations also had been made to the Italian Ambassador in Washington.

Convention of Party at Fresno Nominates C. P. Moore of Oakland for Governor of California.

FRESNO, May 16.—At a convention in this city today, attended by delegates from all parts of California, the State Prohibitionist party placed a complete ticket in the field. Candidates approved by the conference were as follows:

Governor, C. U. Moore, Oakland; United States Senator, Fred F. Wheeler, Los Angeles; President of the California Dry Federation; Lieutenant-Governor, Helen W. Stoddard, San Diego; Secretary of State, William Pence, Ventura; Surveyor General, I. H. Kendall, San Francisco; Treasurer, A. S. Spaulding, Pasadena; Controller, H. A. Johnson, Berkeley; Attorney-General, I. H. Blanchard, Los Angeles. The remaining candidates are being selected this afternoon.

One hundred delegates are present, the session being called to order by Charles R. Berger, State chairman of the Prohibition party.

INSULT ITALIAN FLAG.

Ambassador Calls on Bryan to Protest at Action of American Seamen in Philadelphia.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Mr. Confalonierri, the Italian Ambassador, called on Secretary of State Bryan today in regard to a reported insult to the Italian flag by two American seamen in Philadelphia on May 14. The flag was displayed in front of a barber shop at the time of memorial exercises over American Vera Cruz victims and it is thought the seamen mistook it for a Mexican flag. The flag was pulled to the ground and trampled upon. Mr. Bryan assured the Ambassador that the seamen, if found guilty, probably would be punished. The answer was accepted as satisfactory.

SAILORS ARE REPENTANT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—The two sailors from the Philadelphia navy yard who tore down an Italian flag from in front of a barber shop last Thursday, thinking it a Mexican emblem, today purchased a new flag and hung it where they had torn down the other one, and then apologized for their act.

The bluejackets said the incident was only a prank. The two men were identified at the navy yard and they frankly told of their action. The barber disclaimed any intention of making an international issue of the incident. He said he felt certain the young sailors had mistaken the Italian flag for the Mexican and that no insult was intended against the Italian colors. All he wnted, he said, was that he be compensated for the loss of his flag.

The barber had displayed the Italian flag along with the American, in honor of two Philadelphia sailors who were killed at Vera Cruz.

JAILED TO AVOID EXECUTION.

Mexican About to Be Deported Says Sure Death Awaits Him Across the Border.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, May 16.—Alleging that if the orders for his deportation were carried out and the immigration authorities forced him across the line he would be executed by the Federal soldiers at Tia Juana, Frederico Torres, alleged son of a rebel general operating with Gen. Carranza, is being held in the County Jail awaiting word from Washington as to his disposition.

Torres was being taken to the boundary line this morning for deportation, when he protested to Immigration Inspector Harry Weddle. Although doubting the Mexican's story, Weddle was loth to let the alien go to his death without giving him the benefit of the doubt and investigating his story. Accordingly he wired to Washington asking permission to hold the deportation warrant in abeyance pending further investigation.

Torres was to be deported for violation of section three of the United States immigration laws, which relates to the importation of women for immoral purposes. He perjured himself when testifying before a board of special inquiry in the case of the woman concerned and was sentenced by Judge Olin Wellborn to serve three months at hard labor. At the expiration of the term which occurred yesterday, Torres was to be deported.

The Mexican says he is bitterly hated and that a price is on his head, placed by the Federals through the actions of his father, who was an ardent supporter of the Diaz regime and later took the field in the interests of the rebels.

WHO GOT THE MONEY?

Object of the Interstate Commerce Commission's Inquiry Into the Case of the New Haven.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Just who got the vanished millions belonging to the stockholders of the New Haven Railroad, and how the deals were carried out by which these millions were diverted from the road's treasury to the pockets of favored financiers, are questions which the Interstate Commerce Commission expects to answer through the pending investigation into the New Haven's financial affairs.

Thus was stated authoritatively today the purpose of the commission in forcing the examination of Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New Haven, and of other witnesses who have been or will be, called on to testify.

Examination of papers and documents now in possession of the commission indicate clearly, Chief Counsel Joseph W. Folk pointed out, that it became really a practice of certain financial interests to buy up properties which they had been led to believe the New Haven wanted, and then unload them onto the New Haven at from two to four times what they paid for them.

In view of the commission and of Mr. Folk, suit would lie against these interests by which they could be forced to restore money so obtained to the New Haven stockholders.

Mr. Folk said neither he nor the commission had received further communication from the Department of Justice concerning the testimony of Mr. Mellen, already adduced, or about to be given.

Wakefield Rioters Routed.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WAKEFIELD (Mass.) May 16.—A large crowd which had gathered today near the furniture factory of the Heywood Bros. & Wakefield Co., the scene of rioting last night, was driven from the streets by the police. In the crowd were many women, some of whom resisted and were carried off by officers.

A NEW STRIKE IN CINCINNATI.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CINCINNATI (O.) May 16.—Eleven hundred men were thrown out of employment here today when twenty planing mills closed their plants, and it is estimated that between 5000 and 6000 others, including carpenters, teamsters, painters and members of various other trades affiliated with the building trades will be forced to stop work by next Tuesday as a result of being unable to obtain building material.

DABBLING IN THE OCCULT.

Unusual Activity Among the English People

Since Sir Oliver Lodge Announced His Belief.

"Psychical Expert" Warns of Dangerous Spirits.

[New York Sun:] The words spoken by Sir Oliver Lodge in his address to the British Association, expressing his belief in the reality of occult manifestations, have led to a new activity among English spiritualists. Apart from that encouragement there has been, during recent years, an immense amount of spiritualistic proselytizing, under the guise of higher thought, theosophy and other forms of belief which endeavor to establish communication with the spirit world.

All classes of society have been induced to dabble with these mysteries. Among the "intellectuals" there are thousands of men and women who, after abandoning Christianity, have, in the search for some kind of spiritual life which is an essential craving of the human heart, plunged into the dark labyrinths of occult science with little knowledge and less discretion. Society women and shop girls, scientists and city clerks, clergymen in large numbers and young men with a smattering of self-taught culture are indulging in seances, crystal gazing, table turning, automatic writing, and the invocation of spirits by one means and another, to an extent which is incredible to those who, so far, have not come within the sphere of influence.

A writer in the Chronicle, who designates himself "A Phychical Expert," publishes "A Warning to Spiritualists," in which he says:

"There is one man who is devoting his life to counteract these spiritualistic practices. It is J. Godfrey Raupert, a well-known writer on spiritistic phenomena and philosophy, and formerly a member of the Society for Psychical Research. For many years, while a clergyman of the Church of England, he was an ardent and indefatigable student of 'spooks' and the spirit world, attended innumerable seances at home and abroad and obtained the experiences and opinions of men like Sir William Crookes, Prof. Lombroso, Prof. James of Harvard University and other leading authorities. There is no man in this country who has been more steeped in the whole philosophy and practice of spiritualism, so that his present attitude on the subject is exceptionally interesting. It is an attitude of loathing and detestation, based upon the firm belief that such practices lead to insanity, immorality and spiritual debasement."

POWERFUL SPIRIT AGENCIES.

In an interview with the writer Mr. Raupert explained his reasons for his abandonment of psychical research and for his solemn determination to fight against the growth of spiritualism.

"From my own investigations," he said, "and from the evidence of men who can hardly be disbelieved, I became convinced that spirit agencies are at work in these phenomena which baffle all other explanation. During many private seances, at which I invariably adopted a critical and sceptical point of view, I exacted tests that admitted of no fraud on the part of those present. It was always necessary, for instance, to guard against words and actions rising out of the subconsciousness of the medium or his companions. Thus in automatic writing when some one present finds the arm violently agitated and beginning to write under the apparent dictation of spirits it is always conceivable that the sentences which he scrawls on the paper come from the subliminal self and are not due to independent spirit actions.

"On one occasion, therefore, I put the paper in the center of the table beyond the reach of all hands, which were plainly visible. In the middle of the paper I placed the point only of a lead pencil. Presently the paper became luminous and began to move about in a zigzag fashion. Then suddenly it was wafted up into the air and we could hear faint scratchings on it. When it came down again I seized it and saw that it was covered with little pencil smudges which conveyed nothing to my mind. But upon examining these smudges under a magnifying glass it was seen that each little dot of lead was a word written so minutely that no human hand could have done it. They formed into sentences, ethical platitudes without importance, such as those which are often given in automatic writing."

Mr. Raupert was present at many seances where all the usual "phenomena" occurred, such as musical instruments played without visible agency, materialization of forms and faces, recognized by those present as in the likeness of dead friends or relatives, and flowers or fruits brought into the rooms in spite of locked doors. On one occasion a lot of lilies were deposited in a room which had been thoroughly searched and locked against all intruders, and the spirits declared through the medium that they had been plucked from a neighboring greenhouse. The party instantly searched and saw, truly enough, where the flowers had been broken off their stems.

In America Mr. Raupert himself was photographed, and upon the plate being developed he saw his portrait surrounded by vague faces which he recognized as belonging to people, living and dead, with whom he had been closely related. But one curious fact struck him. Among the faces was one in the likeness of a lady whom he had known many years before in England. But it was a portrait of her in young womanhood, as he best remembered her, and not as she looked at the time the photograph was taken. It was obvious that in some mysterious way the plate had reproduced the images, not of the actual faces, but only as they were remembered in the subconsciousness of Mr. Raupert himself.

FAILED TO PROVE IDENTITY.

It was this, among scores of other experiences, which led Mr. Raupert to believe that the spirits of the dead are not actually materialized, but that the spirits of evil draw upon the subconsciousness, or sublimal self, of those who invoke them, and use the knowledge so gained to imitate the personality of the departed. Spiritualists, he says, have utterly failed to prove identity. The spirits are able to give some facts relating to a deceased person with whom they claim identity. But these are generally of a superficial and trivial character, and are apparently gathered from the minds of the experimenters themselves.

The spirits cannot give important or evidential facts which might at least tend to establish their identity. An experienced investigator found that the errors which he detected in a spirit's attempt at establishing identity were always in the details which he did not know himself and that he was not able to correct at the time In one case a fact was given as though it had happened to a deceased wife, while it was really connected with the life of a deceased mother. It has been proved without possibility of doubt, says Mr. Raupert, that poor people, duped into the belief that they have been brought into touch with departed friends, have really been having intercourse with evil powers impersonating the spirits of the dead.

By what means they do this is, of course, beyond the present knowledge of science. But it is, says Mr. Raupert, an extraordinary fact that the spirits seem to draw upon the material substance of the medium in order to clothe themselves, as it were, in the human form or phantasm. Experiments, for instance, with the famous medium, Eusapia Palladino, who was weighed during her trances, showed that she lost exactly half her weight, and experiments with another medium named Miss Wood showed that the weight of the phantasm conjured up by her was exactly equal to half of her own weight, which had been correspondingly reduced.

While not denying the extraordinary phenomena of spiritualism, Mr. Raupert denounces the practice of them as belonging essentially to the black art. Throughout the whole of his experience he obtained proofs that the character of these spirits is immoral and of blighting influence upon their victims. Although for a time they dictate high moral principles, especially to those who indulge in automatic writing, these invariably degenerate into sinister, blasphemous or obscene suggestions.

OPEN DOOR TO EVIL SPIRITS.

Hints are thrown out that morality is a matter of conventionality, that instincts are implanted in us in order to be gratified. Mr. Raupert asserts that he has known women ruined utterly in body and soul by these debasing immoralities. One case investigated by Mr. Raupert is described in the victim's own words:

"Having got into touch with a spirit which impersonated a dead friend I asked for tests of identity. But all were false, nothing but lies was told. For a time the spirit tried to avoid giving definite proofs of identity by cajolery and vague explanations. Then I said: 'I am tired of humbug, and of being deceived. I am not a fool. You are not A——. You don't love me; you always seek to lead me wrong. . . . You are a devil.' The pencil was gripped in my hand with superhuman force, and I could not unloose my hand. It wrote the most vile language and the most terrible curses. It was just a thunderstorm of hatred and obscenity."

As Mr. Raupert says, the end of these experiments is in hundreds of cases the sanatorium or the asylum. Yet in spite of the frightful danger to the nation there is no attempt to check the propaganda of spiritualists who, even though they may be inspired by high motives, or by scientific ideals, are inducing men and women to adopt a passivity of mind which opens the mystical doors of the soul to the evil spirits who prey upon weak-willed men and women, sapping their ethical and physical health and driving them into vice and lunacy and moral death.

MEXICAN MINES IN BIG SLUMP.

TREMENDOUS LOSS CAUSED BY CESSATION OF WORK IN SONORA.

BY GEORGE ADDISON HUGHES.

[BY MEXICAN CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VERA CRUZ (Mex.) May 16, via Galveston.—Every mine in Central and Southern Mexico closed down and more than $1,000,000 a week is being lost by the cessation of operations in the El Oro, Guanajuato, Zacatecas and Pachuca districts alone. Mexico which was first in silver production, second in copper, fifth in gold of the world, has ceased to be a factor in the mineral market, and a world-wide slump in Mexican stocks is inevitable. Mexican petroleum interests also have lost the rating of third in the world's producing centers and comparatively no petroleum is being developed. Important as these facts are they would be nothing in comparison to the real situation were they expressive of but a temporary condition that might be remedied at any reasonable time, but mining men here say they can picture a condition which is apparently to plunge from bad to worse and for which there is no remedy if mining operations in Mexico [illegible] not resumed by American or other foreign interests. Charles McCormack Anderson, editor of the Mexican Mining Journal of Mexico City and a widely quoted authority on Mexican mining affairs, arrived here today on the refugee train. But one thing will save foreign interests in Mexico he said, and that is invasion by American forces and institution of a government that will be sane enough to permit the resumption of business.

"None of us who have fled the country leaving the vast deposits of unguarded mineral wealth behind ever expect to see the mines again unless the United States declares war or is warred on," he said. Reports from each mining district indicate tremendous losses sustained in the agricultural sections in this district alone. Fruit in this, a fruit country, is worth its weight in gold. One thousand boxes of California oranges received here today sold at 6 cents gold per orange. Everything else is equally high and eggs are quoted at 10 cents gold each. Buzzards are dying in the streets of Vera Cruz, the city is so clean.

UNION CHIEFS TO DON STRIPES.

[illegible] Dynamiters to Wear Them in June.

Ryan and Fellow-Convicts Have Three Weeks More.

[illegible] that Tveitmoe May Also Join the Colony.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, May 16.—Frank M. Ryan, [illegible] of the thirty must report either [illegible] of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, and nineteen other members of the organization must report June [illegible] to resume the serving of their sentences in Leavenworth penitentiary [illegible] conspiracy to transport dynamite [illegible] passenger trains. The explosive [illegible] used to wreck bridges and buildings [illegible] by non-union labor.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals issued a mandate today that the serving of sentences must be resumed within three weeks for all but [illegible] of the thirty members of the association originally sentenced.

The court heard the government's [illegible] opposed to the retrial of [illegible] of the six men, whose cases it [illegible] January 5 and remanded for rehearing. The court adjourned [illegible] Monday when a decision may be announced.

The court's order was that twenty-[illegible] Leavenworth penitentiary or to the United States Marshal in Chicago [illegible]. Four men, however, already [illegible] resumed the serving of their sentences. They are Edward Smythe [illegible] Peoria, John T. Butler of Buffalo, [illegible] A. Cooley of New Orleans and [illegible] C. Webb of Hoboken, N. J.

[illegible] H. Houlihan of Chicago, [illegible] Bernhardt of Cincinnati and [illegible] Tveitmoe of San Francisco will [illegible] learn Monday whether they [illegible] granted new trials. This will [illegible] upon the decision based upon [illegible] oral arguments.

The government offered no opposition to the retrials ordered for William J. McCain of Kansas City, James [illegible] of Peoria and Fred Sherman [illegible] Indianapolis. No date has been set for the hearings.

Sentences of from one to six years [illegible] to be served by the twenty men [illegible] will go to prison in June. They [illegible] convicted of conspiracy to [illegible] dynamite on passenger [illegible] in 1910 and 1911. Involved in [illegible] was the wrecking of the Los [illegible] Times Building. During the [illegible] Tveitmoe was named as "paymaster" for that job. In the explosion twenty persons were killed.

[illegible] N. Zoline of Chicago, counsel [illegible] the convicted men, pleaded in [illegible] for a further stay of the mandate sending them to prison. He asked that they be granted sixty days before resuming the service of sentences and that they be allowed to [illegible] to the United States Marshals [illegible] nearest their homes.

COURT'S HOLDING.

"The men have known ever since March 4, when the United States Supreme Court denied a writ of certiorari, that they would have to serve," said Judge Baker, presiding judge of the court.

Sitting with him were Judges Seaman and Mack.

The court then ruled that two weeks would be granted for the men to report either to Leavenworth prison or to Federal authorities in Chicago. Upon the plea of Mr. Zoline the time was extended to three weeks.

The majority of men convicted in Indianapolis and who began to serve their terms at Leavenworth soon afterward were released on bond pending their appeal.

When the men affected by today's decision reach the Federal prison there will be twenty-four ironworkers in that penitentiary.

Thirty-nine men were originally found guilty in the United States District Court at Indianapolis. Six of the thirty-nine were given their liberty on suspended sentences. The other thirty-three were checked in at the penitentiary New Year's Day, [illegible].

Thirty-two of the men imprisoned, except Herbert S. Hockin of Detroit, appealed. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals ordered their release on bonds of $10,000 for each year of sentence imposed.

Two were paroled. All save six of the remaining thirty were released on bonds. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals granted new trials to six and denied new trials to twenty-four. The United States Supreme Court refused to review the convictions of the twenty-four.

STATUS OF CASE.

The status of the dynamiters' cases [illegible] is:

ORDERED TO PRISON.

[illegible] M. Ryan, head of the Iron [illegible] Union, Chicago, released on [illegible] February 8, 1913; seven years.

CASES STILL PENDING.

Olaf A. Tveitmoe, San Francisco, six years; Richard P. Houlihan, Chicago, three years; William C. Bernhardt, Cincinnati, one year.

THUG CLUBS VICTIM.

Three Young Highwaymen Assault Pedestrian, But Sharp Sprint Saves Pocketbook and Watch.

Fred Miller, 58 years old of No. 360 North Hill street, was held up by three young highwaymen at the northern end of the Broadway tunnel shortly after 11 o'clock last night. The more aggressive of the trio struck Miller over the head with a hard instrument, which may have been a revolver, and when he put up his hand to protect his head, another blow broke his second finger.

Miller's unaccustomed efforts at sprinting saved his pocketbook and watch. The highwaymen ran north without any results for their criminal enterprise. The injured man went to the Receiving Hospital, where his hurts were attended.

Designs Prepared.

READY TO MAKE NEW MONEY.

CURRENCY LAW REQUIRES A COMPLETE NEW SET.

Three Characters Contemplated to Meet the Requirements of the Various Issues Provided For—Portraits of Noted Men Will Adorn the Series.

[Baltimore American:] The system provided by the new currency law will require a new issue of paper currency, and the artists of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, where the paper money is made, are already at work preparing designs. No official approval has yet been given to the designs, but the artistic merit of those already submitted has been applauded by officials of the Treasury Department. It will probably be a year before the new money will be required for circulation, and this will give ample time to the engravers to produce the best workmanship possible, if the designs are early passed upon. It is probable that the designs submitted will await the return of Secretary McAdoo for his official sanction.

The designs contemplate three characters of paper currency—the Federal reserve note, which is to displace the emergency currency, the issue of which was extended a year by the new currency law; the Federal bank note, for issue as the circulation currency of the reserve banks, as the national bank note is now the circulation medium of national banks, and national bank notes to replace the circulation of national banks that do not cancel their present circulation and that take advantage of all or part of the twenty-year period for the retirement of all national circulation.

The notes are to be made in value of $5, $10, $20, $50 and upward. The three characters of paper currency are to be similar in all respects, except that each will be distinguished for the character of currency that it is by the engraved words, Federal reserve currency, Federal bank currency or national bank currency and other necessary descriptive matter of similar character.

The size of the notes will follow the present standard, although it is most probable that a later issue will conform to the size proposed in an issue of paper currency by the last administration directed, but never put into circulation, and held up by this administration.

The faces of the five-dollar notes, as designed, bear the portrait of President Abraham Lincoln in miniature on the right-hand side of the note. The denomination is expressed in a large Arabic numeral, one at each of the four corners. There is a delicate and beautiful border around the edge of the note, leaving a wide expanse of white in the center. The back of this note bears designs illustrative of agriculture. At one end of the note is a scene depicting agricultural pursuits. At the opposite end is an allegorical group devoted to the same theme. There is again considerable expanse of white center.

Cleveland is to be the portrait for the ten-dollar note. Manufacturing is the theme for the back of the note, with a scene of a busy factory, and allegorical figures, following the same treatment, given the back of the five-dollar note. Commerce is to be the theme of the twenty-dollar note, and Jefferson the portrait. Grant's portrait is to adorn the fifty-dollar note, with arts and sciences as the engraver's theme for the back.

The backs of the five and ten-dollar notes and the face of the five-dollar note have already been drawn, and the drawings submitted for approval. Bureau draftsmen are now working on the designs for the other denominations.

COVINA FARMERS IN ANNUAL PICNIC.

GROWING AND MARKETING OF ORANGES SUBJECT OF ADDRESS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COVINA, May 16.—C. C. Chapman, the Placentia grower of "Old Mission" oranges, addressed the Covina Valley Farmers' Club today at the annual picnic on the growing and marketing of oranges.

Prof. W. T. Clarke of the University of California addressed the club on the subject of "University Extension Work," a department of which he is the head. He spoke of the fact that eighty clubs have been formed in high schools, which are working on agricultural subjects under the supervision of the university, and that a thorough system had been arranged by which the work of the various experimental stations might be carried to the rancher for the purpose of practical application. Eighty per cent. of the young men and women who take agricultural courses at the university return to the farm to make agriculture a life-work, he said.

Another speaker was H. A. Miller of Irwindale, who has recently been elected president of the Covina-California Orange Boosters.

The picnic was held beneath the oaks and palms on the eighty-acre orange ranch of Mrs. Frank M. Chapman. Tables were laid beneath these trees. Music was furnished during the afternoon by the girls' orchestra of the Covina Union High School.

CONCRETE DAM IN SANTIAGO CANYON.

IRRIGATION WATERS TO BE PUT BEHIND RETAINING OBSTRUCTION.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, May 16.—Ranchers of Villa Park and El Modena through their water companies, the Serrano Water Company and the John T. Carpenter Water Company, have launched a project for building a $200,000 dam across the bottom of the Santiago Canyon for the purpose of impounding irrigation water. The matter is to be taken up with James Irvine of the Irvine Company, on whose land the dam, if built, will be constructed. Irvine is expected here from San Francisco in about two weeks.

Quietly the ranchers have had engineers make careful examinations of the canyon, and their reports favor the construction of a concrete dam at what is known as Fourth Crossing, one end of the dam to rest upon a landmark called Man-Cow rock, the other end to reach bedrock in a jutting hill on the side opposite. Bedrock will be reached clear across the canyon with but little excavation.

The dam as proposed by the engineers will be 700 feet across the top and eighty-seven feet high at the center. A lake between a mile and a mile and a half long will be formed, and, making all due allowances for evaporation, the engineers state that in a year of usual rainfall enough water will be impounded to provide the irrigators with a continuous flow of 1500 inches during 200 days.

At present the ranchers save some of the winter's storm waters by spreading them upon waste places, but a large portion of the floods goes to the sea, not only useless waste but a menace as flood.

On the Irvine Company property a mile west of Delhi a magnificent well has been brought in. The well at 1340 feet struck a flow of 175 inches of warm water, slightly tinged with sulphur. The temperature of the water is 103 degrees. It will be used for irrigation in the sugar-beet fields. This is the deepest well in the section, the Irvine Company having one other well 1238 feet deep.

CREAMERY PAY DAY YESTERDAY.

STEADY BUTTER MARKET PUTS BUSINESS ON SOLID FOOTING.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HANFORD, May 16.—After a long period of steadiness, the butter market shows promise of an increase before the end of the present month, a slight increase during the last week being the foundation for the belief that the market promises to rise.

Today is pay-day at the creameries of Kings county and dairymen patrons of the various institutions either in or near the borders of Kings county, will receive for deliveries of butter fat for the thirty days ending today, an aggregate in cream checks of about $120,000. This amount is a fair monthly average and figures therefore show that Kings county's dairy industry is worth to the farmers engaged in it a yearly average of nearly $1,500,000, making it one of the largest and most profitable industries in the county.

The prices paid by the creameries today are:

Lucerne Cream and Butter Company, Hanford, 26 cents for butter fat.

Los Angeles Creamery Company, Maple Grove, 25 cents for butter fat and 30 cents for sweet cream, bought at its Lemoore station.

Riverdale Co-operative Creamery Company, Riverdale, 26 cents for butter fat.

Central Creameries of Lemoore and Riverdale, for the period from the first to the eighth of April, 26 cents for butter fat in sour cream and 30 cents for butter fat in sweet cream; for the period from the eighth to the sixteenth and on throughout the balance of the month, the price fixed is 25½ cents for butter fat in sour cream and 29½ cents for butter fat in sweet cream.

Laton Creamery Association, Laton, 25 cents for butter fat.

Swift and Company, Hardwick, 26½ cents for butter fat.

PROGRAMME LAID BY HIGH SCHOOL.

POMONA COLLEGE PRESIDENT TO DELIVER COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, May 16.—Principal J. E. McKowan of the local High School today announced the programme for the commencement exercises, which will be held on the evening of June 23.

Two of the six speakers were voted for by the class of seventy-three young men and women. The diplomas will be presented by Robert White, president of the Board of Education. There will be no baccalaureate address.

The annual educational address is to be made on the evening of Sunday, June 21, by Dr. Blaisdell, president of Pomona College. This will take place in the auditorium of the High School.

The highest class honors, which have been bestowed on popular students in the years gone by, will be for Miss Vivienne Brown, who will give the valedictory. Warren Betts will be salutatorian. Roland Speers and Miss Helen Coffman will speak, as will Margaret Sufts and Warner Parker, class president.

YAQUIS ATTACK CUMURIPA, SONORA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) May 16.—Word of an attack on Cumuripa, Sonora, by 250 Yaqui and Mayo Indians was received here today in a private letter. The Indians attempted to surprise the inhabitants of the town, May 7, but found it strongly fortified. A fierce battle raged all night, after which the Indians were driven off, leaving six of their number dead. Of the defenders of the village, four were killed and two wounded.

The Indians are reported to have destroyed considerable property, burned a number of buildings on the outlying ranches and also drove off many head of cattle. Cumuripa is on the Yaqui River, and also on the Southern Pacific Mexican Railway.

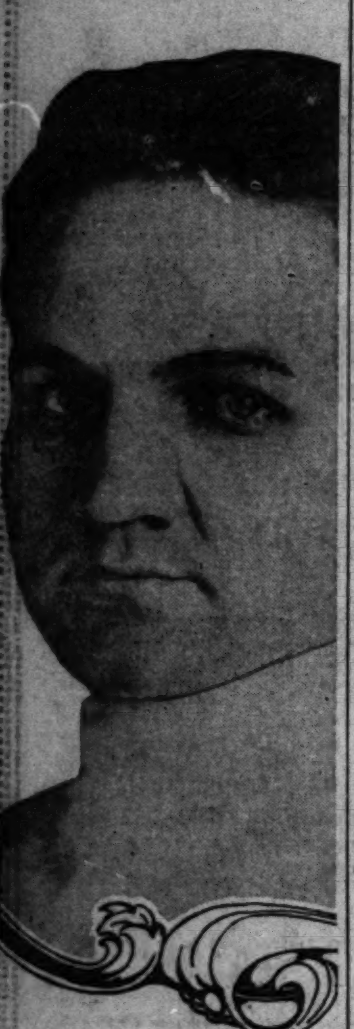
The Greatest Word



Buddha said equanimity was the greatest word in any language, but another word is greater today.

When common sense is applied to anything it is done efficiently, viz: without wasting time.

Efficiency is the greatest word in any language today with the single exception of "Deity."

We know white paper in a room gives 80 per cent. efficiency of light from the paper, while dark brown only gives 10 per cent.

The headline in a newspaper should not contain over four words as the human eye cannot see over four things at once.

There is no longer any guess work about the efficiency of wall paper or headlines.

William Ostwald, the German chemist, has recently written a book wherein he applies the principles of efficiency to Philosophy and Chemistry.

As to the efficiency of our own bodies we know that fifteen human organs show signs of improvement, one hundred are of no present use at all, and seventeen show signs of decay.

The teeth are one of the organs showing signs of decay and for obvious reasons deserve special consideration.

Efficient dental work is prevented many times by pain.

By the analgesic method we can now extract, fill, crown or remove a live nerve without pain.

Teeth absolutely free from decay are in many instances attacked by Pyorrhea.

Every person should watch for bleeding or receding gums, teeth slightly sore or loose, and a bad breath as these are symptoms of Pyorrhea.

Our specialties are treating Pyorrhea and making teeth without plates, giving a full set of solid teeth if you have two remaining teeth in either jaw.

We also make special plates to restore expression and prevent shrinking gums.

91 Year Old Pioneer Thanks Duffy's

MR. CONRAD HYMAN.

"Grand Old Age and How To Attain It" has been told hundreds of times by willing testimonials to the fact that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey actually delays the effects of old age and brings back the vivacity and versatility of youth to its grateful users. Here's another achievement to its wonderful record:

"In 1835 I landed in New York after a voyage of about eight weeks from Germany, then to Buffalo via the Erie Canal, staying in Buffalo a short time. We started through the woods for our future home, known as the 'Hyman Homestead' to this day. Our family consisted of nine children, and not having much money to start with, we had the experience of the early pioneers. Later, as I grew up, I became interested in the milling business, farming, cattle dealer—worked hard for a good many years, and the famous John Miller, at that time one of the leading doctors in this section, said my time was short, so for the last 25 years or more I have been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and I am thankful to say that I am well and healthy at 91 years and hope to make a good record yet."—Conrad Hyman, Strykersville, N. Y.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

gives to the aged the vigor of youth and the power to sustain strength and energy. When taken just before mealtime it stimulates the mucous surfaces and little glands of the stomach to healthy action, thereby improving the digestion and assimilation of food thus giving to the body its full proportion of nourishment. Thousands of people in all walks of life have enthusiastically testified to the wonderful and sustaining powers of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. It is a remedy you should not fail to try. "Get Duffy's and keep well." At most druggists, grocers and dealers, $1.00 a large bottle. Valuable medical booklet and doctor's advice sent free if you write. The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

GAIN ON NATURE AT CUCARACHA.

Rock and Dirt Still Moving Into the Culebra Cut.

Dredges and Steamshovels Handling the Debris.

Diplomacy of Goethals Stops Pending Labor Trouble.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PANAMA, April 10.—Rock and dirt are still moving down the Cucaracha Slide into the Culebra Cut, but the engineers who have been fighting the treacherous slides in this vicinity are at last gaining upon nature. Fears that the opening of the canal, set for January, 1915, would have to be postponed indefinitely, have been growing less each day, for the dredges and steamshovels have been taking out the dirt and rock much faster than it slid into the canal.

The Culebra Slide, just to the south of the Cucaracha trouble, is entirely at rest and it is hoped it will remain so, but the canal engineers will watch this treacherous hillside with some anxiety as the rainy season approaches. Breaks already are showing far back from the canal prism and these may indicate a movement which might any day precipitate tons of crushed rock and dirt into the canal for the tireless dredges and steamshovels to remove. The coming wet season will be likely to loosen anything ready to slide.

Dredging and hydraulic operations in the cut continue day and night. Back of Gold Hill the hydraulic pumps are washing away vast quantities of loose soil, greatly relieving the pressure which has forced so much of the dirt into the canal prism. At the toe of the slide the dredges have been busily engaged in removing the dirt out of the channel itself while far up the side of the slide other hydraulic operations are tearing at the very heart of the hill.

Within a short time two new, large dipper dredges will be engaged. These are the largest yet built of this type. One already has been received on the isthmus and is almost ready for operation. At the same time the dredge "Corozal" will begin deepening the channel which now averages about twenty-five feet, to the required forty-five feet.

This deepening of the channel, the engineers believe, will be a tedious operation, for the weight on the hillsides at Gold, Culebra and Contractors hills is constantly forcing the bottom of the canal upward. It is anticipated that this will continue until the weight on the hillsides has been sufficiently lessened.

According to figures just compiled there have been removed from the canal prism between Gamboa and Pedro Miguel, which includes the entire Culebra Cut area, a total of 27,000,000 cubic yards of dirt, with a probable 6,000,000 cubic yards remaining to be excavated.

LANDSCAPE GARDENING.

Work has begun on landscape gardening in the vicinity of Gatun Locks and Dam. The top of the dam is being graded for tropical plants. The work is being done by H. H. Reed, Supervisor of the Fourth Division. It is planned to beautify the grounds surrounding all the locks just as fast as the construction work has been completed.

The navigable reaches of the canal will be allowed to grow up in their natural tropical verdure, confined within certain limits. Already in many places the canal looks more like a natural water-course than one constructed by the hands of men.

At Cristobal it is proposed to build a tropical park along the land ends of the wharves of the Panama Railway.

SELL CANAL MACHINERY.

Discarded canal machinery is being sold to several private corporations in South and Central America. Venezuela has had a commission on the isthmus which purchased considerable dredging machinery with which to deepen several harbors. A number of the large dredges that dug their way through Culebra Cut have been sent to Porto Rico, where they are soon to be engaged in harbor work. Many of the locomotives that hauled the spoil cars out of the cut have been sold to South American concerns. Because of their wide gauge they are not suitable for railways in the United States.

Service.

GETTING READY TO USE CANAL.

Steamship Lines Expect Enormous Traffic.

Political Campaign Excites Republic of Panama.

Work on Chiriqui Railroad Starts at David.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PANAMA, May 6.—Since announcement that the Panama Canal probably will be ready for through navigation by July this year many letters of inquiry regarding the conditions to be imposed have been coming to the canal authorities from all parts of the world. It is apparent that steamship companies of all the great maritime nations expect to make an almost immediate use of the canal.

The communications also indicate that in virtually all cases the companies contemplate a through service from European ports to those on the west coast of North, Central and South American countries. Among the inquiries are those regarding tolls, conditions of navigation, pilotage in entering the terminal ports and through the canal, and the charges for this service, wharfage facilities at Balboa and Christobal, location and equipment of repair shops, coaling and provisioning facilities and a host of other items relating directly to the usage of the canal.

Most of these questions are addressed to the Governor of the Panama Canal direct, while others are sent to Washington and are forwarded to the isthmus. It is planned to turn them over to the newly-appointed superintendent of transportation, who will be instructed by the Governor to supply the desired information. Steamship companies which already are represented on the isthmus have sent their local representatives to the canal officials seeking similar information.

It is apparent to the canal authorities that as soon as the waterway shall have been thrown open much greater use of it will be made than has been anticipated. It has been stated that not more than 10,000,000 tons traffic could be expected for the first year the canal is in operation. The letters of inquiry seem to make it plain to the authorities here that already a greater tonnage for the first year is indicated.

Passenger-carrying lines are evincing considerable interest in the question of passenger tolls through the canal. This subject seems not to have been settled to the satisfaction of the companies, who desire to be informed whether tolls will be charged at all, and, if so, at what rate. The letters indicate that most of the companies are preparing for a heavy passenger traffic through the canal next year at or about the time of the formal opening and thence to the exposition at San Francisco.

Schedules of charges aside from tolls for various services to be performed by the Panama Canal are in the course of preparation and probably will be promulgated in an official circular from the Governor's office in the near future.

PANAMA POLITICS.

With the arrival of Dr. Ramon Valdez, Panamanian Minister to London, politics became active and there are indications that he will wage a heated campaign for the presidency of the republic, to succeed President Porras, whose term expires in 1916. Dr. Valdez is known to be the candidate President Porras favors to succeed him and through whom he hopes to continue the policies of his administration. It is understood that Dr. Valdez, who now is counsellor for the Department of Foreign Affairs, was brought back to Panama to begin an early and aggressive campaign.

At present political activities center about the coming election of thirty-six members of the National Assembly, which takes place in July. Interest, however, is only lukewarm. The candidates of the Liberal party are unopposed, the Conservative party not taking any part in the contest. The latter maintain they are saving their strength for the Presidential election, when they contemplate putting forth a strong candidate who can win the favor of the United States government officials on the isthmus.

Dr. Valdez probably will be opposed in his own party for the Presidential honor by Rodolfo Chiari, Secretary of Government and Justice in the Porras Cabinet. A split in the ranks of the Liberals is indicated, but probably will not have serious consequences, for the reason that the party is by far the larger of the two. Secretary Chiari, it is declared, has the support of Dr. Carlos A. Mendoza, a former President of the republic and one of the strongest political leaders in the country.

CHIRIQUI RAILROAD.

Work on the Chiriqui Railway, in the western part of the republic, has been started. Within a week after the ceremonies incident to the beginning of work at David and which were attended by President Porras, supplies were being shipped by sea to Pedregal, the port from which the railway extends into the interior. The line will penetrate the most important agricultural country of the republic and is expected to prove a great trade stimulant with the coffee country in the mountains north of David.

Moving-Picture Man in Babylon.

LONDONERS RESPECT THE LAW.

"When a "Bobbie" Raises His Hand to a Driver the Law of England Stands Behind Him.

[Washington Post:] "Respect for the law is one of the most striking characteristics of the English people," remarked Matthew Minor, a former newspaper man of Washington, just back from a hurried trip to Europe, "I have been on the other side numerous times. On this visit I spent ten days in London and made a short trip into Ireland. I could not but marvel, as I have on other occasions, at the difference in the management of street traffic in London and that of New York. I am informed that in New York, a city smaller by a couple of millions than London, the death rate due to accidents is something like 1000 a year. In London it is 300, and this is regarded as enormous. When it is considered that there is no section of the globe so thickly populated as the streets of London, this is remarkable.

"I stood in Picadilly Circus a few weeks ago, and in forty minutes counted 3100 vehicles pass. There were as many as fifty motor vehicles in an unbroken line. But there was no congestion, no disorder, and the street policeman at all times had the situation in complete control.

"The driver of a vehicle would not think of trying to violate the traffic laws, because if he did, he would know that he would never drive again. The London street 'bobbie' raises his hand when he wants to signal to a driver, and the driver knows that the law of England is behind that hand. You may know that the London police—there are 30,000 of them—do not carry either pistol or club. But their power is absolute. It is somewhat remarkable to an American that in such conditions the police do not overstep their authority or become officious. They, He dare not even push a pedestrian, but he nevertheless compels order. The only weapon the London policeman carries—if it can be called a weapon—is a strong leather thong, which he uses on occasions to quiet a prisoner. There is another striking thing about the police department of London. No man is ever arrested for being drunk. If one should happen to imbibe too much he is bundled into a cart, a sheet thrown over him, and he is taken home, if there is anything on his person to identify him."

GLASS GROWS IN FACE.

A Brand New Disease Found in a Cleveland Boy That Proves the Atavistic Theory.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] A little boy, Arthur Lovejoy, complained some time ago of "glass growing on his face." He had consulted a few family physicians, all of whom were very much puzzled by his trouble, but unable to achieve anything in the way of a successful remedy. Finally, after he had been treated by numerous excellent doctors, he was recommended to consult me by Dr. Hugh Randolph Potter. Arthur was then 10 years old.

Upon examining the little fellow it was discovered that a most curious condition existed. Spread broadwinged across his cheeks and nose was a butterfly-shaped area peppered with what superficially appeared to be little sebaceous glands or ordinary pimples and blackheads. In fact, many alert but quick-glancing medical men had taken this skin trouble of Arthur's to be only a resistant, stubborn variety of acne—the chronic eruption which appears on the faces of many young persons.

Luckily, a painstaking search of the face this time proved that each so-called acne pustule, instead of containing matter and an inflammatory mixture of germs and pus, held within its cavity a very minute, almost invisible crystal that closely resembled a diamond.

As a matter of fact, Arthur Lovejoy's face contained nothing as valuable as diamonds, yet the clear-cut crystals that were spread-eagled across the nose and cheeks, in separated pimples, were equally as strange and puzzling to the medical world as they would have been had they actually turned out to be of untold value.

The bits of crystallizable and sparkling things found concealed in the pretty patient's skin were examined by the X-rays and by chemical analysis. They proved to be fragments of glass. That is to say, they contained sodium silicate in crystal form, which, as is well known, is the chemical substance of glass. Fortunately, his troubles were cured.

When it is remembered that many plants, such as diatoms, sugar cane and certain weeds, as well as many of the lower types of animal life, such as sponges, make during their normal growth, crystals of silica or glass, it should not, after all, be so startling to find that the human skin under certain pathological conditions might have restored to it the power of producing bits of glass, just as the ancestral forms did. It is, after all, only a state of affairs called by high-browed biologists "atavism." Atavism means merely a return to the primeval ancestral condition. Thus, when a civilized man partakes of the brutal instincts or habits of savages and gorillas, he is said to be atavistic.

CASH AWARDS TO KEEN OBSERVERS.

Count the Total Number of Separate "Liners" Printed in "The Times" for the Seven Days from Monday, May 18, to Sunday, May 24, Inclusive, and Receive Five Dollars in Gold.

On Monday, May 25th, and on each Monday thereafter, The Times will award $5.00 in gold to the person making the nearest correct estimate of the total number of classified, or "liner," advertisements printed in The Times during the preceding seven days.

This contest does not involve luck, chance, guessing or the solving of problems. Accuracy in counting the total number of "liner" advertisements that appear from day to day in The Times, including those printed in the classified Business Directory in the Sunday issue, is all that is necessary to win the award.

Answers should not be submitted until after the publication of The Times for Sunday of the week for which the contest is held, and they must be delivered at The Times office, Broadway at First street, before 10 a.m. the following Tuesday.

Estimates will be numbered in the order of their receipt at The Times office, and the prize will be awarded each week to the person sending in the first correct, or nearest correct, answer. Any person winning the weekly prize twice will be ineligible to compete in succeeding contests.

The name of the prize winner for the preceding week will be published every Wednesday.

This contest is not open to employees of The Times-Mirror Company, and this company's advertisements should not be counted.

Address letters to "Contest Editor," New Times Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

Month after month, year in and year out, The Times regularly prints more advertising than any other newspaper in America, and more "liners" than the two other Los Angeles morning papers combined.

Dr. Barlow Explains Theory at Surgeons' Meeting.

States Substance Is Present in Diseased Tissues.

English Trades Unions Join in Mammoth Combine.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, May 2.—Dr. Walter [illegible] Lazarus-Barlow, who has recently had success in the treatment of cancer by radium, says radium in the human body may also be the cause of cancer.

At a recent meeting of physicians and surgeons he told of experiments he performed upon animal cells and explained that while cancer might be divided into various classes, it was nothing more or less than disordered cell growth. "It is reasonable to suppose," he said, "that there is one cause, and I would suggest to you that in the radium and [illegible] have the probable cause."

Radium, he continued, was widely distributed in nature in quantities which had been shown to produce stimulation of cell growth and [illegible] to develop some deleterious [illegible] which culminated in death.

Cancer was very closely associated with inflammation, to such an extent, he said, that chronic irritation was the only cause which was universally accepted, but chronic irritation was closely bound up with bacteria and there arose the question whether radium stimulated an animal cell.

Dr. Barlow said experiments [illegible] had demonstrated that bacteria actually pulled radium out of a solution and attracted it to themselves. [illegible] radium, therefore, were circulating in the blood while bacteria were present, the latter would attract and [illegible]cally deposit the radium, forming a focus of that substance, producing stimulation of the cells in the neighborhood. He said radium was present at times in normal human tissues, and it was found in greater quantities in cancerous tissues.

Disposing of the theory that cancer was necessarily caused by irritation, the doctor pointed out that it would naturally be assumed that cancer of the gall bladder would be relatively common, whereas it was [illegible]

UNIONS COMBINE.

A great trades union combine has been organized in England, in which miners, railwaymen and transport workers, totaling 1,350,000 men, will hereafter support each other in their disputes with employers. The members of the Miners' Federation voted in favor of this working agreement between the three organizations and the executives have appointed a committee to arrange the details.

It was found in some of the most recent strikes that without a working agreement, by which all would stand together in case of a dispute, not a great deal could be accomplished by any one organization. When the transport workers were on strike, for example, the railwaymen kept at work and the attempt to tie up the transport of goods, except in restricted areas, did not succeed. Also when the miners go on strike they cannot make it immediately effective unless the railwaymen refuse to handle coal, as in many cases the collieries have large stocks on hand and at other mines non-union labor can be obtained. With the three working together, the leaders believe they can enforce better conditions from the employers.

Robert Smillie, M. P., president of the Miners' Federation, which with its 800,000 members, is the largest organization in the combination, believes that co-operation between the three classes of workers will do away with strikes and lockouts, as representations made to employers by leaders representing nearly a million and a half men will be sure to receive every consideration, while others consider that the combination will wield a great influence in politics. Special legislation supported by all these voters will certainly, it is argued, receive the attention of Parliament.

TO INVESTIGATE GERMAN COLONY

Treatment of Kamerun Negroes Arouses Protest.

Regulations Allow Whipping of Native Soldiers.

Pencil Industry Suffers from Scarcity of Wood.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, April 18.—The Secretary for the Colonies has decided to send out a special commission to investigate conditions at Duala, the seaport of the German colony of Kamerun in Africa.

A storm of protest has arisen in Germany against the alleged high-handed proceedings of the colonial authorities of Kamerun, who wish to dispossess the entire negro population of Duala in order to establish there a purely European quarter with sanitation and other modern improvements. It is claimed that this cannot be done so long as the natives with their wretched huts and other insanitary modes of life occupy a considerable part of the ground needed for the white settlement.

The Reichstag, which has been asked to appropriate $500,000 to compensate the natives, does not object in principle to dispossession of the negroes, but members of the Budget Committee protest strongly against the manner in which dispossession heretofore has been carried out. The negroes have declared that the colonial authorities gave them but a pittance of what their lots are worth and that the new site on which they were compelled to settle was a plague spot compared to their old homes.

In deference to the public demand for a just and humane treatment of the natives, the Secretary for the Colonies finally decided to have an exhaustive report made to him upon the whole matter. The commission which he appointed will proceed soon to Kamerun to hear the negro side of the controversy as well as that of the local authorities. The friends of gentle and humane methods in the treatment of the natives are also pleased with the report that Baron von Rechenberg, formerly Governor of German East Africa, has been nominated for the Reichstag in a district where he is sure to be elected. His administration in East Africa was marked by zealous efforts to protect the natives from all high-handed methods on the part of the German planters. Gen. von Liebert, also a former Governor of East Africa and a leading exponent of stalwart policies in the colonies, has just lost his seat in the Reichstag, having failed of re-election after having been unseated because of irregularities.

LASH FOR NATIVES.

Sarcastic comment from the Liberal press has followed the official publication of a new order of the Imperial Chancellor establishing corporal punishments for the native troops of the colonies. The new regulations provide that offenders sentenced to imprisonment for more than six weeks shall be fettered, and that corporal punishment up to twice twenty-five lashes may be inflicted. Any commissioned officer is empowered to order the fifty lashes, and the highest non-commissioned officers may order twenty-five lashes. Flogging is also permitted in addition to arrest.

In cases of "close arrest," the prisoner is to be bound for two hours a day, with his back against a wall or tree, "in such a manner that he can neither sit nor lie." At the same time, this punishment is not to include measures "which could make the punishment appear cruel."

The native soldier has no appeal from a sentence to be lashed.

The regulations are introduced with the statement that the punishments provided are necessary in view of the fact that the black soldiers do not possess "a developed soldiery honor and joy in obedience."

FEEL WOOD SCARCITY.

The steadily-progressing destruction of American forests has made itself unpleasantly felt by the German pencil and vehicle industries. Red cedar, which the German pencil factories got chiefly from Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky and Texas, is growing so scarce that the question of a possible substitute has become very actual. As long ago as 1898 the factories of Nuremberg found it impossible to get enough cedar timber without resorting to the supply contained in fences made in days when cedar was freely used for rails. Now all sources seem to be nearly exhausted.

The case is the same as to hickory. For more than twenty-five years the tates Substance Is Present in Diseased Tissues.

nglish Trades Unions Join in Mammoth Combine.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, May 2.—Dr. Walter S. azarus-Barlow, who has recently had ccess in the treatment of cancer by dium, says radium in the human dy may also be the cause of cancer.

At a recent meeting of physicians nd surgeons he told of experiments performed upon animal cells and plained that while cancer might be vided into various classes, it was thing more or less than disordered ll growth. "It is reasonable to suppose," he said, "that there is one use, and I would suggest to you at in the radium and radiation we ve the probable cause."

Radium, he continued, was widely tributed in nature in quantities hich had been shown to produce the mulation of cell growth and later develop some deleterious effects hich culminated in death.

Cancer was very closely associated th inflammation, to such an extent, said, that chronic irritation was only cause which was universally cepted, but chronic irritation was so sely bound up with bacteria that re arose the question whether dium stimulated an animal cell.

Dr. Barlow said experiments of his d demonstrated that bacteria actually pulled radium out of a solution and attracted it to themselves. If dium, therefore, were circulating in blood while bacteria were present, the latter would attract and ly deposit the radium, forming a us of that substance, producing mulation of the cells in the neighborhood. He said radium was present at times in normal human tissues, and it was found in greater ntities in cancerous tissues.

Disposing of the theory that cancer was necessarily caused by irritation, the doctor pointed out that it uld naturally be assumed that cancer of the gall bladder would be relatively common, whereas it was rare.

UNIONS COMBINE.

A great trades union combine has n organized in England, in which ners, railwaymen and transport rkers, totaling 1,350,000 men, will eafter support each other in their putes with employers. The members of the Miners' Federation voted favor of this working agreement ween the three organizations and executives have appointed a committee to arrange the details.

t was found in some of the more ent strikes that without a working eement, by which all would join ether in case of a dispute, not a at deal could be accomplished by one organization. When the transport workers were on strike, for example, the railwaymen kept at work the attempt to tie up the transport of goods, except in restricted as, did not succeed. Also when miners go on strike they cannot ke it immediately effective unless railwaymen refuse to handle coal, in many cases the collieries have e stocks on hand and at other es non-union labor can be obtained. With the three working together, the leaders believe they can orce better conditions from the ployers.

Robert Smillie, M. P., president of Miners' Federation, which with 800,000 members, is the largest organisation in the combination, believes that co-operation between the e classes of workers will do away h strikes and lockouts, as representations made to employers by ders representing nearly a million a half men will be sure to receive every consideration, while others consider that the combination will d a great influence in politics, for legislation supported by all these rs will certainly, it is argued, receive the attention of Parliament.

TO INVESTIGATE GERMAN COLONY

Treatment of Kamerun Negroes Arouses Protest.

Regulations Allow Whipping of Native Soldiers.

Pencil Industry Suffers from Scarcity of Wood.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, April 15.—The Secretary for the Colonies has decided to send out a special commission to investigate conditions at Duala, the seaport of the German colony of Kamerun in Africa.

A storm of protest has arisen in Germany against the alleged high-handed proceedings of the colonial authorities of Kamerun, who wish to dispossess the entire negro population of Duala in order to establish there a purely European quarter with sanitation and other modern improvements. It is claimed that this cannot be done as long as the natives with their wretched huts and other insanitary modes of life occupy a considerable part of the ground needed for the white settlement.

The Reichstag, which has been asked to appropriate $500,000 to compensate the natives, does not object in principle to dispossession of the negroes, but members of the Budget Committee protest strongly against the manner in which dispossession operations has been carried out. The natives have declared that the colonial authorities gave them but a pittance of what their lots are worth and that the new site on which they were compelled to settle was a plague spot compared to their old homes.

In deference to the public demand for a just and humane treatment of the natives, the Secretary for tht Colonies finally decided to have an exhaustive report made to him upon the whole matter. The commission which will be appointed will proceed soon to Kamerun to hear the negro side of the controversy as well as that of the local authorities. The friends of right and humane methods in the treatment of the natives are also pleased with the report that Baron von Rechenberg, formerly Governor of German East Africa, has been nominated for the Reichstag in a district where he is sure to be elected. His administration in East Africa was marked by zealous efforts to protect the natives from all high-handed methods on the part of the German settlers. Gen. von Liebert, also a former Governor of East Africa and a leading exponent of stalwart politics in the colonies, has just lost his seat in the Reichstag, having failed of re-election after having been unseated because of irregularities.

LASH FOR NATIVES.

Caustic comment from the Liberal press has followed the official publication of a new order of the Imperial Chancellor establishing corporal punishments for the native troops of the colonies. The new regulations provide that offenders sentenced to imprisonment for more than six weeks shall be fettered, and that corporal punishment up to twice twenty-five lashes may be inflicted. Any commissioned officer is empowered to order up to fifty lashes, and the highest non-commissioned officers may order twenty-five lashes. Flogging is also permitted in addition to arrest.

In case of "close arrest," the prisoner is to be bound for two hours a day with his back against a wall or post in such a manner that he can neither sit nor lie." At the same time, the punishment is not to include anything "which could make the punishment appear cruel."

The native soldier has no appeal from a sentence to be lashed.

The regulations are introduced with the statement that the punishments were found necessary in view of the fact that the black soldiers do not possess "a developed soldiery honor nor joy in obedience."

PENCIL WOOD SCARCITY.

The steadily-progressing destruction of American forests has made itself especially felt by the German pencil and vehicle industries. Red cedar, which the German pencil factories get mainly from Tennessee, Alabama, Kentucky and Texas, is becoming so scarce that the question of a possible substitute has become urgent. As long ago as 1898 the makers of Nuremberg found it impossible to get enough cedar timber and resorting to the supply contained in fences made in days when cedar was freely used for rails. Now these seem to be nearly exhausted.

The case is the same as to hickory. For more than twenty-five years the German army has bought in America the hickory for the tongues of its gun carriages. The carriage and automobile industry also is dependent in large measure on a sufficient supply of this tough but elastic wood, and it now appears that there will be no hickory available in a few years.

LIVED IN THE ICE AGE.

[New York Tribune:] Archaeologists of Syracuse University say one of the most important discoveries in recent years is that of the petrified bodies of a woman and child, who are believed to have lived in glacial times, found on the Seymour V. Merriam farm, five miles east of Cazenovia. They were found lying in a small clump of grass in the center of a field and on top of the ground. Only the trunk of the woman's body was found and beside it was the petrified head of a child, with perfect features, the eyes closed as though in sleep.

The discovery was made by Miss Dorothy Merriam, grand-daughter of the owner of the farm. Mr. Merriam is an authority on geology and on examining the head had no difficulty in tracing the eyes, nose, mouth and ears of a tiny infant.

The larger body is about three and one-half feet long, and the shoulders, chest and abdomen are perfect. The rounding arm sockets show where the limbs once joined the body and the lower extremity shows plainly where the legs had been broken off.

The face of the infant is in profile and the features are clearly distinguishable, from its small nose and ear to the closed eye that never opened to the world.

This section of New York State in the ice age formed the terminal moraine of a huge glacier, and the Syracuse University scientists say that the fossils are undoubtedly those of prehistoric Esquimaus, who lost their lives in the slowly moving mass of ice, probably having fallen in a yawning crevice. This closed before the woman could escape, and the bodies, absolutely free from air and other decomposing agencies, were deposited in a preserving stratum of pure limestone in the moraine. Lincklaen Ledyard, a New York geologist of note, says:

"The remains of plants and animals buried in these beds or deposits gradually decay and are replaced particle by particle with mineral matter, generally like that of the mass in which they lie. Thus in time the change which we call petrification is produced."

Mr. Ledyard explains that the bodies probably got in the place where they were found by the upheaving of subterranean forces, something similar to those which occasionally produce earthquakes. Instances of such upheaving, the scientist says, are not wanting at the present day.

CLAIM DOG AS ANCESTOR.

Peculiar Belief of the People of New Guinea Who Also Practice Sorcery.

[London Chronicle:] There seems to be no end to the stories of strange people and customs to be found in New Guinea. The latest news from this island is given by W. N. Beaver, resident magistrate in the western division of New Guinea.

Two of the most interesting expeditions in which Mr. Beaver took part were to the Giara country, which for three parts of the year is almost entirely submerged.

These people claim descent from a dog. They possess five totems, which are drawn on all their houses. Their villages are erected on hillocks so as to be clear of the water, and the people of each village inhabit one large common house.

The center of this huge building is a kind of common hall, which is used only by the men. The women are not allowed to enter the building by the same door as the men.

In the wilder parts of the country the chief is himself a head sorcerer. He claims to be able to separate his spirit from his body and to send it on various missions, including that of killing people. Quite recently a number of sorcerers went by the house of a native on whom they cast a spell by pointing at him a human bone. They afterward murdered their victim.

Mr. Beaver explored a large tract of country in Dutch New Guinea, where the majority of the people had never before been visited. These were very primitive folk, armed with bows and arrows. They assume a fierce aspect by inserting kangaroo claws in their nostrils and by wearing in their hair artificial tails extending to their waists.

In one district near Daru it is the custom to brand, by means of a mark on the shoulder, girl children with the mark of the men they are subsequently to marry. Cannibalism still exists.

One of the most curious movements that has recently been brought to light prevails along the northeastern coast. It is known as the Baigona movement, and its operations almost approach sorcery. Great respect is paid to snakes, none of which is allowed to be killed.

Santa Barbara.

SERIES OF LAND DEALS SPLITS UP BIG RANCHO.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA BARBARA, May 16.—The largest series of land deals occurring in this county in many years was completed this morning, involving considerations totaling more than a quarter of a million and meaning the final subdivision and disposal of [illegible] acres of the famed Santa [illegible] ranch.

The ranch is now parceled among the home builders and improvements on each parcel will go forward speedily, meaning that all that stretch of land is to be at once brought into the income-bearing column.

The tract was bought a year ago by G. W. Pratt and J. D. Martin, San Francisco capitalists, for $492,000. It lies about forty-five miles northwesterly from Santa Barbara and is regarded as one of the most fertile ranches in the county.

It is practically the first of the big ranches near Santa Barbara to be subdivided and sold off, and its disposal in acreage lots is heralded among the financial interests of the city as the biggest forward movement taken in many years to build up city and county.

Big Hike.

CHILDREN IN THRONG ON MT. WILSON TRAILS.

The summit of Mt. Wilson was one of the busiest places in Southern California yesterday. So many people suddenly took the notion to climb the peak that, had there been more room, they would have been crowding one another off.

A party of 1400 grammar-school pupils of Los Angeles began the ascent of the Sierra Madre trail at 7 o'clock in the morning and reached the summit at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. That is, some of hind at the Half-way House to be picked up on the way down.

Another party of hikers comprised the pupils of the Coston School of Physical Culture of Los Angeles. These boys made the ascent the night before and camped on the summit.

A procession of six automobiles made the ascent of the toll road with Ned A. Lord, a local automobile dealer, as cicerone. There were no mishaps and the party kept their horns tooting from the time they left the foot of the trail until they reached the summit of the peak.

A dozen or more parties started up

Look at Me I am Well.

"I cannot say too much for Peruna. It has entirely cured me of my trouble. My eye lids were thick and red nearly all the time. My eyes were especially sensitive to light. Catarrh was my trouble. I had had my eyes treated and took a great deal of medicine, but nothing seemed to help me until I tried Peruna. I always use Peruna when my family need it. Always find it very good; it helps wonderfully. You can use my testimonial anywhere you wish to." So says Mrs. C. Skehan, No. 614 S. Leavitt St., Chicago, Ills.

FRANCE'S ARMY THEIR SCHOOL.

American Officers Learn from Foreign Experience.

Capt. Parker at War College of Higher Strategy.

Pacific Coast Representation at Commerce Congress.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, May 1.—The movement of American troops in Mexico brings to notice the fact that ten United States army officers, representing all branches of the service, are on duty in France for instruction in French military training. They are here by permission of the French government, given upon request of the United States and are welcomed in the friendliest spirit. It appears to be the intention of the War Department at Washington to have six officers continuously on service in France so that French experience and French military science may from year to year be available for the United States army. Occasionally an English officer or officers from the Balkan and other smaller States have had permission to serve with one or another of the French regiments but it would seem that no foreign army, not even the Russian, has during this generation had such opportunities to know the French military system as the Americans now have.

Capt. W. A. Castle is in an infantry regiment at Orleans, Capt. N. Margettes and Lieut. A. T. Bishop with other regiments at Chalons sur Marne, Lieut. E. T. Boyd with the dragoons at Fontainbleau, Lieut. W. T. Martin at the cavalry school at Saumur, Capt. F. H. Pope in the French quartermaster's school, and Capt. Frank Parker at the war college. Capt. Morton Henry of the American quartermaster's division and Lieut. E. S. Greble and Honeycutt of the artillery have just arrived to replace three other American officers and three others are expected. The three latter do not get into the French service until October. In the meantime they are required to live in French families and perfect their knowledge of French.

Capt. Parker in the war college, the exclusive school of higher strategy, has probably the rarest opportunity and one not shared by any other foreign officer. Eighty French officers are admitted annually out of from 400 to 500 applicants who take the severe competitive examination. Years of study are devoted by the French officer in preparation for this examination because all selections for the general staff are made from graduates of the war college and no French officer need expect a high command unless he has gone successfully through this training in the deeper problems of strategy. An armchair has been placed for Capt. Parker apart from the other officers and nearest the lecturer's platform, so that the American guest may have a better chance than anyone else to follow the exposition of a subject and see the diagrams. The work in the war college is severe and is from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Part of its consist in hard riding over battlefields of France, the lecturer of the day explaining the operations of the troops that took part.

COMMERCE MEETING.

Nearly a hundred American delegates are expected to attend the international congress of Chambers of Commerce, which meets in Paris, June 8, and continues five days. Daniel P. Kingsley, George T. Wilson, Samuel W. Fairchild, James Brown and MacDougall Hawkes will come from New York while delegations equally large will probably come from twenty-five other American cities, among them Boston, Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Louisville, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Detroit, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Omaha, Denver, Seattle, Portland, Or., and San Francisco.

Edward A. Filene of Boston and the other American members of the permanent committee which has offices in Brussels are endeavoring to reorganize the International Association of Chambers of Commerce so that it shall become a more vital body. The permanent committee now has only the function of carrying out the resolutions passed by the biennial congresses. The American representation desires to have a committee which will take up and carry through new business as it arises during the intervals between the biennial sessions of the congress. The committee would be authorized to take a referendum of the memberhip in the manner now done by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, organized in Washington in 1912.

Mexico's Present Ruler Has Both the Virtues and Faults of His Race, But Hardly Likes Americans.

[Fortnightly Review:] Victoriano Huerta, whether he be considered as a general or as a President, can be expressed in one word: He is an Indian.

Huerta himself proudly says that friends claim for him that he has the virtues of an Indian—courage, patience, endurance and dignified reserve. His enemies, on the other hand, profess to see in him some of the vices of Indian blood.

From what I have seen of Gen. Huerta in the field, in private life, and as a President, I would say that he combines in himself both the virtues and the faults of his race. In battle I have seen him expose himself with a courage worthy of the best Indian traditions; nor have I ever heard it intimated by any one that he was a coward. One of his strong points as a commander was that he was a man of few words. On the other hand, his own soldiers at the front hailed him as a stern and cruel leader; and some of the things that were done to his prisoners-of-war at the front were enough to curdle any one's blood.

It was during a moment of conviviality that Gen. Huerta once revealed his true sentiments toward the United States and ourselves. This was during a banquet given in his honor at Mexico City, on the eve of his departure to the front in Chihuahua, last year. On this occasion an Englishman, who had long been on terms of intimacy with Huerta, asked the general what he would do if Northern Mexico should secede to the United States, and the Americans should take a hand in the fray. This question aroused Gen. Huerta to the following extemporary speech:

"I am not afraid of the gringoes. Why should I be? No good Mexican need be afraid of the gringoes. If it had not been for the treachery of President Santa Ana, who sold himself to the United States in 1847, we should have beaten the Yankees then, as we surely shall beat them the next time. Let them cross the Rio Bravo! We will send them back with bloody heads.

"We Mexicans need not be afraid of any foreign nation. Did we not beat the Spaniards? Did we not also beat the French, and the Austrians, and the Belgians, and all the other foreign adventurers who came with would have beaten the gringoes had we had a fair chance at them. The Texans, who beat Santa Ana at San Jacinto, you must know, were not gringoes, but brother Mexicans, of whom we have reason to be proud.

"To my mind, there are only two real nations in the world, besides our old Aztec nation. Those nations are England and Japan.

"All others cannot properly be called nations, least of all the United States, which is a mere hodge-podge of other nations. One of these days England and Japan and Mexico will get together, and after that there will be an end to the United States."

Small details often decide purchasers in favor of a particular car. Castings in the Chalmers formed the decisive feature in the eyes of a Pacific Coast foundryman. Lined screw heads convinced another; color of upholstering appeals to some; while smooth running, or size of doors effect sales to many.

All medicines are furnished free to patients. Get busy and get well. Remember, right now is the favorable season for quick cures. Do not delay. Call or write.

Head and Throat Catarrh

Is your nose stopped up?
Does your nose discharge?
Is your nose sore and tender?
Is there pain in front of head?
Do you spit up slime?
Do you hawk and clear the throat?
Is your throat dry in the morning?
Do you sleep with your mouth open?
Now is the time to be cured—don't let it run into cmplications.

OF THE EARS.

Is your hearing failing? Do they ring?
Do your ears discharge?
Is the wax drying in your ears?
Do you hear better on some days?
Does a cold make your hearing worse?
Don't neglect this until your hearing is irreparably destroyed.

ASTHMA.

No one but an asthmatic can appreciate the terrible distress of this disease. Gasping, smothering, panting for breath—suffocating feeling, sitting up in bed at night, are but a few of the terrible torments of an asthmatic sufferer. If you are an Asthma victim, let not another day pass until you try our wonderful treatment — which gives almost immediate relief and lasting benefits.

RHEUMATISM.

If you are hobbling about with rheumatic joints or suffering torments from inflammatory rheumatism—come and let Drs. Shores explain their theory and treatment for this painful affliction.

ECZEMA.

This affliction often baffles the skill of the regular doctor—and tries the patience of the specialist—but our methods have proven successful in so many cases that, no matter who has failed to cure you, it is worth your time to consult us. We will gladly explain our method of treatment free of charge.

STOMACH AND LIVER.

If you have distress and bloating after eating, don't neglect treatment. Catarrh of the stomach is a most common ailment, and can be cured, but remember, a cancer of the stomach we can not cure. Do not neglect stomach and liver trouble. Consult doctors that know how to cure. Consultation and advice free.

FINDS HAVEN IN HOSPITAL.

Rich Woman Who Attempted Suicide Shielded.

Secrecy Shrouds Episode in Fashionable Hotel.

Brought from Utah; Friends Aren't Admitted.

After she had swallowed chloroform last Saturday in Salt Lake City and lain at the point of death for five hours; after the police had been called off of the case and it had been shrouded with the utmost secrecy, Mrs. Jessie Clayton, 38 years old, wife of a wealthy Denver stockman, arrived here Thursday and until yesterday afternoon was held incomunicado at Mrs. A. C. Talbot's private sanatorium, No. 431 North Normandie avenue.

Mrs. Clayton came here in care of two nurses and was met at the depot by Dr. Joseph W. King, who conducted her to the sanatorium and issued orders that she was to see no one. The order was not rescinded until yesterday, and then only to the extent that one personal friend of Mrs. Clayton was permitted to see her for a few minutes.

The trip here was a return after a stay of less than three weeks in Denver and Salt Lake City. Mrs. Clayton, who has spent much of her time in Los Angeles for a year or more, went to Colorado, avowedly to see her husband. Advices from her friends told that he had gone to Salt Lake City and that she had followed there to see him. Then came the news that she had tried to take her life in the Hotel Utah. The next news friends here had was that Mrs. Clayton had returned and was in the sanatorium. Requests to see her were denied and inquiries answered by the information that no one would be given access to her.

"FOR OWN GOOD."

Dr. King stated yesterday that he had arranged the treatment of Mrs. Clayton and that refusals to permit visitors were on his instructions. She was in such nervous and physical condition, he said, that the orders were issued for her own good. Dr. George J. Hunter, who was called in consultation, confirmed this.

During the last months of her residence here, Mrs. Clayton occupied apartments on Westlake avenue. She declared at this time that she was very anxious to see her husband, who was living at the Brown Place in Denver. On arrival at Denver, she wrote that Clayton had removed to the Athletic Club and then gone to Salt Lake City, where she was to meet him.

She arrived in Salt Lake City May 1, going to the Hotel Utah, though the register did not show the number of her room. On the evening of the 16th, she came into the hotel about 5 o'clock a package from a nearby drugstore was handed her at the desk. One hour later she was found unconscious. A box of flowers was delivered on the order of an unknown man shortly after her deed was discovered.

Several physicians were called, but Dr. G. Gill Richards finally assumed charge of the case.

Last Thursday, Charles J. Clayton, the husband, went to Salt Lake City from Denver and with two nurses in attendance the Claytons started for this city. However, nothing has been heard from Clayton here, Dr. King stating that Mrs. Clayton arrived in charge of two nurses and that he assumed charge of the case on a request by wire from Dr. Richards. Clayton is supposed to have left the train at Milford and returned to Salt Lake City.

During the early part of her residence in this city, Mrs. Clayton maintained a home on a considerable scale, but during the last months lived very quietly.

No intimation of her condition is given by physicians, except that she is "a very sick woman."

She was able to talk with a personal friend yesterday and was said at the time to be "much improved."

EXPECT DIVIDEND.

Palmer Annex Holding Corporation Will Begin Payments Soon is Report—Meeting Next Month.

That a dividend will soon be declared by the Palmer Annex Oil Company, the holding corporation for the Santa Maria Oilfields, Limited, is the tenor of a well-defined report in financial circles.

A meeting of the stockholders of the company will be held June 1, and this will be followed by a directors' session, at which it is expected the dividend will be declared at the rate of 1 per cent. per month, payable for an indefinite period.

The dividend will represent the fruits of the sale of certain assets of the Palmer Annex Company to the Santa Maria Oilfields, Ltd., it is stated. A. A. Daugherty, resident manager for the Santa Maria Oilfields, Ltd., and manager of the Palmer Annex Oil Company, only recently returned from a trip to Europe where he completed some of the details of the deal.

The Palmer Annex has as its president the well-known contractor Carl Leonardt, and its principal stockholders number some of the prominent capitalists of the city. Most of the stock is owned in this section. It has been rumored for a year or more that a dividend would be declared on the stock, but nothing in the line of definite probabilities has been forthcoming until the present time. The stock, which is unlisted, has been bid up to 30 cents a share. The dividend requirements of the company at 1 per cent. would be about $20,000 per month. It is possible that the stock may be listed on the local exchange when the company begins paying regular dividends.

MAYORS BY THE SCORE HELP MONROVIA PLAY.

Thousands of Visitors at City's Birthday Party. Pageant, Comedy Circus, Queen's Ball and Street Carnival Are Features of Twenty-eighth Anniversary. Dimpling Kiddies Help Make Merry.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, May 16.—Fourteen thousand visitors, including a score of city Mayors, helped Monrovia celebrate the greatest birthday in her history. With the first peep of dawn automobiles began to arrive and the earliest cars of the Pacific Electric were crowded. By 10 o'clock Myrtle avenue, from White Oak to Falling Leaf, ten blocks, was packed. Automobiles were parked in solid ranks for many blocks and every cross street was choked with a great, good-natured throng. An ideal California day greeted the visitors, cool and cloudy in the early morning and warm with bright sunshine from 11 o'clock on.

At 11 o'clock the head of the parade appeared and was greeted vociferously by the masses that lined the streets. First came Ray D. Welch, general secretary of the Monrovia Day festival and grand marshal of the day, followed by a guard of honor and twenty-four Knights of the Rose Tournament in their brilliant hunting costumes of crimson and white. Then followed Queen Dorothy's royal float, a gorgeous affair in royal purple and green. With Her Highness rode the four maids of honor, Elizabeth Dixon, Mabelle Wessling, Irene Hammond and Dorothy Brown.

The pageant, two miles in length and containing 150 entries, was composed of seven divisions and was for diversity and variety the most pretentious ever seen outside the Pasadena Tournament of Roses.

A unique feature of the parade was the comedy element. Fun-makers, professional and otherwise, mingled with the floats and military organizations and kept the crowds in roars of laughter. The local police force was trebled to handle the great crowd and not a single accident marred the day.

In the afternoon at 2 o'clock the burlesque circus was given in a monster stadium erected on the High School field. Here clowns, acrobats, performing dogs, ponies and monkeys kept the crowd amused for two hours. There were spectacular drills by half a dozen military organizations, represented by several military academies, the "Dokkies" and Grand Army men. A dozen bands played.

EXECUTIVE DIGNITY.

Mayors from every city in Southern California of over 3000 population were present and reviewed the parade from an especially-erected grand stand. The distinguished guests of the city were given an elaborate noonday banquet at Hotel 'Leven Oaks and afterward witnessed the afternoon circus from the Mayor's grand stand.

Among the executive heads present at Monrovia's birthday party were Mayor Rose of Los Angeles, T. R. Woodbridge of Upland; F. C. Crowell, Ontario; W. M. Carter, South Pasadena; Charles F. O'Neall, San Diego; C. S. Beardsley, Covina; L. J. Bentley, San Jacinto; W. A. Vandergrift, Pomona; Oscar Ford, Riverside; C. W. Jones, Sierra Madre; Thomas Price, Sawtelle; Joseph Sailer, Oxnard; John B. Weston, Hemet; O. W. Maulsby, Whittier; R. S. Gregory, Fullerton; R. L. Metcalf, Fullerton; A. E. Engelhardt, Glendora; Frank Nye, Santa Ana; T. H. Dudley, Santa Monica; H. J. Maye, Compton; George T. Cortner, Redlands; W. J. Pentelo, Corona; L. N. Whealton, Long Beach; Thomas W. Watson, Glendale, and J. S. Collins, Azusa.

During the morning and afternoon performances a company of twenty-five motion-picture actors and actresses from the Biograph company staged a movie comedy, written especially for the occasion and utilizing the crowd and various officers of the Monrovia Ten Thousand Club in the plot. The film actors included a platoon of comedy police who did much to keep the comedy element active throughout the day.

The baby contest held at 9 o'clock this morinng was a largely-attended feature, twenty-four dimpling kiddies, varying in ages from a few months to 3 years, were entered and gave Hon. and Mrs. A. J. Sears of Pasadena and Mrs. Elizabeth Key of Birmingham, Ala., a difficult time to select the prize winners. The winners were Patricia McCullagh and Charley Ainley for babies under 1 year, Mable Suter and Arthur Quiggle for babies between the ages of 1 and 2, Alpha Jane Spence and Hugh Holehan between 2 and 3. The first prize for twins went to Dorothy Frances and Dora Eleanor Vosburg.

The day closed with the queen's ball held at Odd Fellows' Hall, at which Gracious Queen Dorothy Stone led the grand march of 100 couples. It was a big day and a celebration creditable to any-sized city in Southern California.

Significant were the number of features from neighboring towns and cities, especially from Pasadena. Members of the Ten Thousand Club of Monrovia feel that the birthday party was a success and extend to all the cities of the Southland their most grateful appreciation of their co-operation in making the celebration an unprecedented success.

LEAGUERS REVIEW WORK IN RELIGIOUS PROGRESS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, May 16.—For the twelfth annual convention of the Pasadena district of the Epworth League, there are delegates from fifty Methodist churches.

Tonight the Registration Committee of the Epworth League convention here reported 535 registered delegates, breaking the record of any previous district convention.

Tomorrow afternoon Rev. Dr. F. D. Mather will publicly install newly-elected officers as follows: Dr. H. E. Beckwith, Los Angeles, president; J. R. Jennings, Alhambra, Arthur Hobson, Pasadena, Rev. S. L. Todd, Fillmore and W. B. Way, Pomona, vice-presidents; Karl Cooper, South Pasadena, secretarp; H. Beckwith, Los Angeles, treasurer; Miss Florence Peters, Garvanza, junior superintendent.

The convention has adopted a resolution strongly indorsing a joint conference convention next year of the Pasadena, Long Beach and Santa Ana districts, which heretofore has met separately. It is probable that the Fresno district will also join in the grand convention. The proposition has already been indorsed by the Long Beach and Santa Ana districts, now in session. Pasadena and Long Beach are boht in line for the honor of next year's meeting place. This will be decided by the conference board.

This morning's programme of the convention opened with the watch service held at 6 o'clock, and during the forenoon the speakers were Rev. Byron Wilson of Highland Park, Rev. M. C. Hartzell of Lamanda Park and Guy Hill.

Dr. George F. Bovard, president of the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, gave an interesting address upon the work and aims of the university of which he is the head and which is being attended by students of Methodist families in this city.

Dr. Herman E. Beckwith, president of the district league, gave his annual report, which reviewed the progress and work done during the year and the reports of the other business committees and those regarding the work done among the Spanish people and in Borneo were interesting. In the afternoon Rev. V. M. McCombs, superintendent of Spanish work, and Mrs. S. F. Johnson of Pasadena, who is interested in the Borneo work, spoke entertainingly. Other speakers were E. Guy Talbot and Frank Toothaker, who spoke on social service and the U.S.C. Volunteer respectively, and Rev. Charles H. Scott of San Bernardino, president of the conference board.

Shortly after 3 o'clock, scores of automobiles took the delegates for drives about Pomona Valley and an old-fashioned basket picnic was enjoyed at beautiful Ganesha Park.

This evening was held the great "California Dry 1914" meeting at the First Methodist Church. There was stirring music by the chorus and orchestra and the chief speakers were Rev. Dr. Guy W. Wadsworth, general superintendent of the California Dry Federation, and Harry G. McCain of Portland. Dr. Wadsworth is sponsoring the world-wide temperance movement, which includes the most important temperance work carried on under denomination direction, more than a million and a half persons being engaged in the effort, which is national.

An attempt is being made to concentrate the leaders of temperance effort in five Western States, California included, and force the issue in each State with utmost vigor. The whole plan of campaign is for an ultimate world-wide movement. Dr. Wilson told of the spread of the national work and of what has been done in Kansas. There was much enthusiasm during the meeting for the cause of temperance.

The Pacific Electric will hold the formal summer opening celebration at Urbita Springs Park, the "playground of the Orange belt," on May 30 and 31. Plans are being made for the entertainment of more than 15,000 people. There will be band concerts, sports, fireworks and other features, and Manager Lou Somers of the park announces that the celebration will surpass anything ever staged by the Pacific Electric before. Visitors are expected from Pomona, Ontario, Riverside, Redlands, Colton and other cities.

"BEEN ROBBING, THAT IS ALL."

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, May 16.—"Here, what are you doing?" yelled E. P. Reno at a man he saw leaving the home of a neighbor, Christ Hansen, at No. 992 Grant avenue, late last night.

"Been robbing the house is all," complacently replied the individual and began to walk fast. Reno commanded him to stop, but the thief broke into a run as his pursuer pulled a revolver and fired three shots at the fugitive. None seemed to take effect.

The Hansen house was found completely ransacked, but nothing apparently had been taken and two households and the police are puzzled as to whether it was a joke or the real thing.

Long Beach.

CITY TO WAGE LEGAL BATTLE.

Millions in Damages Asked by Many Plaintiffs.

Charges Against Chief Being Prepared, Is Rumor.

Druggists Fight Back in Blind-Pig Cases.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, May 16.—Determined to resist to the last the demands from more than 100 persons for a total of $3,618,000 damages resulting from the collapse of the auditorium May 24, of last year, the City Council has engaged the engineering firm of Mayberry & Parker to make a thorough examination of the scene of the collapse of the pier approach for the purpose of making an adequate defense. The firm is to be paid $250 for the work of examination and a fee of $25 a day for court attendance.

The city lost the first legal skirmish. In the damage suit of Mrs. Georgiana Saunders, the demurrer of the city was overruled by Judge Works. Although claims amounting to over $3,000,000 have been filed with the City Council, but forty persons, claiming a total of $750,000, have filed suits thus far. The statute of limitations will act to bar further suits after next Wednesday.

HOLDS HIS TONGUE.

Although the Mayor, head of the Police Commission, refuses to give out any information regarding the status of the investigation into the conduct of Chief of Police Austin and Detective O'Rourke, from official sources it was learned this afternoon that charges would be preferred against the two officials. The time limit of their suspension will be up Wednesday. On Monday, it is rumored, charges of dereliction of duty will be preferred against both.

The commission will bring up the arrests of druggists on blind-pig complaints for substantiation of the charges against Austin and O'Rourke, it is stated. The sensational allegation of the Mayor regarding the supposed giving of a bribe to Detective O'Rourke will not be a part of the charges.

The four druggists made defendants on the blind-pig charges today entered demurrers against the complaints. Judge Hart overruled the demurrers and set the cases for trial Monday morning. Attorneys Spicer and Daly, for the defendants, alleged that the penalty prescribed by the ordinance is in violation of State law, being excessive. The lawyers point out that under the ordinance, or that portion of the charter which specifies the same penalties, a druggist may lose his business, his bond of $1000, his city license, and be assessed a fine and imprisonment for one violation.

NEW BAND STAND.

A new band stand will be built in Pacific Park. Supt. Falkenhayn today commenced clearing the space just north of the library. Here will be built a pergola in the Chinese style which will house the Municipal Band on special occasions.

ANNUAL BANQUET.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, May 16.—The annual banquet of philanthropic and civic workers of Redlands will be held Friday. The committee in charge consists of Rev. R. P. Smith, Mrs. Charles A. Barker and Miss Mary Crawford. Provision will be made for 200. The programme will include a review of the year's work of the various charitable and philanthropic organizations of the city, by the Rev. Ralph P. Smith, an address on "Good Town Spirit," by the Rev. Herbert Jump, and a talk on "Small Town Problems and Their Solution," by Miss Mary Hill, president of the Associated Charities of San Diego.

Festivities.

HERMOSA BEACH'S PIER GAY WITH FROLICKERS.

Carnival Commemorates Opening of Municipal Pleasure Institution—Parade, Music, Sports, Dedication and Dance Features of First Day's Fun—Today's Events to Be Even More Extensive.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HERMOSA BEACH, May 16.—With waving flags, rippling bunting and a warm welcome for thousands of visitors, Hermosa Beach today opened its substantial and artistic municipal pier with a carnival such as the far-reaching Pacific seldom has lapped its waves upon.

Dedication exercises, preceded by an automobile parade, made the great pier a public institution. Led by bands and cheering men and women, the parade marched out on the pier, the weight of the long line of autos being as nothing to the staunch structure that poked a bold front against the Pacific, mightiest of waters.

The festivities continued far into the night, when the carnival ball was held on the pier, the gay lights and merry music flashing and rolling far up and down the coast. Tomorrow the carnival is to be continued and thousands of visitors are expected to be on hand to help Hermosa Beach celebrate.

TODAY'S PROGRAMME.

Following will be the programme tomorrow: 10 a.m., casting contest by Rod and Reel Club, exhibition by world's champion; 11-12, band concert; 1:30 p.m., aerial gymnastics; 2 p.m., band concert and famous Thomas Taylor Drill chorus; 7 p.m., aerial gymnastics and rope-walking; 7:30 p.m., band concert; 8:30 p.m., fireworks.

The celebration today was a grand success from every standpoint. The day opened auspiciously, the weather being everything that could be asked, warm and balmy. The town was dressed in carnival array, all of the principal streets and many of the houses being a profusion of decorations, Pier avenue, especially, the approach to the wharf, was a mass of colors, the flags and pennants waving welcome to the many visitors.

The festivities were begun with the arrival of the Pacific Electric band of twenty-eight pieces, followed by an automobile parade, many of the machines being artistically decorated with flowers, bunting and ribbon. The line of the parade was through the principal streets, terminating at the pier.

The dedication exercises consisted of band selections, speeches by prominent men and songs by the school children.

SPORTING EVENTS.

The afternoon was given over mostly to sports and resulted as follows:

The 50-yard race, boys under 9 years of age—John Frank won, Gerald Selby second, Erwin Church third.

Girls' race of the same class—Mary Owens won, Thelma Morrison second, Caroline Adams third.

The 75-yard race for boys under 12—Dick Menton won Gerry Stamatos second, Dewey Schumacher third.

Girls' race, same class—Margaret Parker won, Jessie Escotedo second, May Barnes third.

Boys' skating race—Morris Parker won, William Spotts second, Ferrell Buckels third.

Girls' skating race — Margaret Parker won, Helen Luxford second, Ruth Batay third.

Three-legged race—Simon Kanouse and Ralph Lucas won.

The 100-yard ladies' race—Mattie Gilbert won, Phyllis Bert second, Jennie McCall third.

Sack race—Louis McBride and Lucius Selby won.

The 100-yard free-for-all—E. W. Wilson won, Ralph Lucas second, Clarke Ryder third.

Pie-eating contest, first heat—Jerry Stamatus won in three minutes; second heat, Dewey Schumacher; both too full for finals.

Tug - of - war — Hermosa Beach Chamber of Commerce won, Redondo Beach Chamber of Commerce second.

CARNIVAL DANCE.

Band concerts, turning on the municipal lights on the new pier, carnival dance on the pier and the confetti battle completed the day's celebration.

In addition to a band concert and Thomas Taylor Drill's chorus, solos and duets will be sung by Miss Myrtle Stedman, Miss Gertrude McIntyre, E. C. Rivinius, Mrs. Wolf, Anna M. Otto and Otis G. Mercer, to be followed in the evening with a grand display of fireworks.

Removal notice: The California Title Guarantee Company has moved from 329 West Third street to 315 West Fifth street, ground floor, main entrance of Metropolitan building.—[Advertisement.

GIRLS BARRED ON TAG DAY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, May 16.—Fearing that the Associated Charities will place young girls on the streets to sell charity tags to strangers on tag day, next Saturday, citizens have protested against the practice.

They say that girls should not be subject to approach by strangers, who might exert an immoral influence over the fair peddlers of tags.

The protestants threatened to go to the City Council, but the Associated Charities published the names of the solicitors of funds for this deserving cause by the tag system and all but one or two are married.

MARRIAGE PAPERS GIVES HIM AWAY.

SECRET WEDDING OF POPULAR REDONDO BEACH COUPLE MADE PUBLIC.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, May 16.—The secret marriage of James Brooks Moffitt to Miss Marie Varonica Touhey on the 6th inst., at Santa Ana, was discovered in a very peculiar manner today.

Moffit, who works for the Edison Company here, lent his overcoat a few evenings ago to a fellow clerk, who returned home with it. The wife noticing the new garment investigated the pockets and discovered therein a marriage license belonging to the young couple.

The development was such that it would not keep and all the young people's friends were notified of the marriage. When presented with the evidence of his marriage and told how the discovery was made, Moffitt acknowledged the corn and was ready to receive congratulations.

The young lady is prominent in Los Angeles and a valued employee of the Pacific Electric Railway. Now that the fact is know, Mr. and Mrs. Moffitt will make their home in Redondo Beach.

GIVEN A TRADE TO MAKE GOOD.

Young Burglar Saved from Confinement in Ione.

Three Men Injured in Two Motorcycle Crashes.

Woodmen of World Buy City School Bonds.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, May 16.—Impressed with the pathetic figure which young Felipe Harcasitas presented in the Superior Court this morning, Judge Densmore left it to the prisoner to determine what the sentence should be for the plea of guilty entered to the charge of burglarizing the Glenavon schoolhouse.

Felipe, who is 18 years old, didn't know just what sort of punishment he should mete out to himself for the mistake which two other boys helped him to commit, but he intimated that he would like to learn a trade.

The District Attorney thought the Industrial School at Ione a good place for this suggestion to be carried out, but the judge, pondering on the fact that the boy's father is dead and that his mother had left him to shift for himself, decided that the county should be saved the expense of supporting the lad at Ione and placed him on probation for six months, and he will learn his trade under the eye of the court.

MOTORISTS BREAK LIMBS.

Failing to observe the approach of a Magnolia-avenue car, Eugene Ford, with the motorcycle he was riding, was tossed into the big ditch known as the lower canal of the Riverside Water Company, when attempting to cross Brockton avenue this morning at the intersection of Linwood place. Ford was taken to the City Hospital with a broken leg, and it is feared he may be injured internally.

Harry Wortman, who resides on Palmyrita avenue, is at the City Hospital today as the result of an accident last night when he and his brother Clyde, riding a motorcycle, collided with an automobile driven by P. J. Bollinger of the Armour fertilizer works. The machines came together when Bollinger, in trying to pass two other cars on Colton avenue, saw the approaching motorcycle and steered to the extreme left of the road to avoid a collision. The driver of the motorcycle also steered for the gutter, the impact damaging both machines in addition to bruising up both riders.

BUYS SCHOOL BONDS.

Riverside city school bonds look good to the officers of the Woodmen of the World as an investment for the funds accumulated for the protection of the members of this order. W. W. Squires, clerk of the local camp, has received a telegram from I. I. Boak, Head Consul at Denver, informing him of the purchase of a $10,000 block of the bonds.

A jolly good time for you if you spend this summer at Coronado Tent City. Opens June 1, but be sure and make your reservation early. See H. F. Norcross, agent, 334 South Spring —[Advertisement.

CHAFFEY CITRUS BELT CHAMPIONS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, May 16.—Chaffey decisively defeated Redlands High School here this afternoon, 10 to 2, in the battle for the citrus-belt league championship, scoring 7 runs on 7 hits, two Redlands errors and a walk in the seventh. The teams had entered this frame with Chaffey leading, 3 to 2. Outside of the first and fifth innings, but twenty-one men faced Nicholson, none of them seeing first.

For the farm lands that are making good Where are the people going?

To the Irrigated Fruit and Dairy Lands of

PERRIS VALLEY

Blend soil, water and sunshine anywhere in Southern California and the combination assures big crops. Add to that combination a locality in the center of a proven profitable district, with all the great centers of population within a two-hour trip, and rising values are certain. These are the potential factors that make Perris Irrigated Farms attractive to the farmer and investor.

Supreme for Peaches

Famed in every market place for its remarkable dairy products, these lands are equally notable for their quality fruits. The soil is rich and warm. The water is plentiful. Trees root deep and produce big crops. Perris Irrigated Farms are adapted to all deciduous fruits.

Study the Peach Question and Bear This Big Fact in Mind—Leading Packers Stand Ready to Contract

With growers for 10 years or even longer periods at the specific price of $25 per ton. This is market insurance—positively guaranteeing a large return for every tree planted.

Consider the Life of a Tree and Its Enormous Revenue

The fruiting period of a peach tree is 15 to 18 years. All the better varieties demanding fine soil and climate, find ideal conditions at Perris Irrigated Farms. At all times the open market is eager for quality fruits at prices higher than packing-house contracts. The income from a peach and apricot orchard is $250 to $300 per year at maturity. Pears will do even better. Think of the investment feature of this alone, on lands like these.

These Superb Fruit and Dairy Farms with Water Ready now and Water Rights Free.

$150 Per Acre — 10, 20 to 40-Acre Tracts on Very Reasonable Terms.

There is only one way to buy land. Go and see it. Special one-day return trip with luncheon and auto ride through fertile Perris Valley, $2.40. If you cannot come in, mail the coupon below for illustrated booklet.

Pythian Special.

Southland Knights of Pythias, 200 strong, will leave at 9 o'clock this morning for Sacramento in a special train over the Southern Pacific to attend the State gathering.

Sunshine Card Party.

The Westlake branch of the International Sunshine Society will give an afternoon card party on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Francis Zahn, No. 548 Ardmore avenue. The games will be auction bridge and Five Hundred.

Court Mourning.

The Empire Day Celebration Committee has been notified by White Mortimer, British Consul here, that he cannot attend any function of jubilation, because of the death of the Duke of Argyll, son-in-law of the late Queen Victoria.

Underwriters' Picnic.

The Life Underwriters' Association held a picnic at Verdugo Park yesterday, which was attended by about 100 members. The party indulged in baseball, sack races and other sports before lunch, and then held a business meeting and listened to an address by F. E. McMullen, on "Institutional Advertising."

Southern Pacific Recalls Timecard.

Word was received yesterday by Southern Pacific officials from San Francisco that the new timecard which was to have gone into effect Wednesday has been indefinitely withdrawn. As two trains were to have been taken off under the new card and service otherwise curtailed, its withdrawal is a source of pleasure to Southern Pacific officials here.

Identify Victim.

The man killed by a San Pedro local train at Sixth and Alameda streets Friday night and supposed, from a Southern Pacific employee's pass, to be Robert E. Hancock of No. 344 South Malabar street, Huntington Park, was yesterday identified at the Button undertaking rooms as Thomas Hancock, a section foreman, living at the Malabar-street address.

Advice to Principals.

"Suggestions for the Handling of Each Principal's Yearly Budget" is the subject to be discussed by A. H. Daum, supervisor of the purchasing department in the public schools, at a meeting of the Principals' Club to be held at the Board of Education rooms on May 18. "Recommendations for the Course of Study" will be discussed by W. E. White, chairman of the betterment committee.

Credit Men's Dinner.

The Associated Retail Credit Men of Los Angeles will dine at the Clark Hotel on Tuesday evening, and at the conclusion of the dinner, will listen to an address on "Modern Business," by D. H. Jones, formerly of Denver. This will be followed by a discussion on the merits of collecting interest on past due accounts. All members of the organization are requested to bring a representative of some firm that is not already included on the club roster.

Imperial Valley Hearing Postponed.

Under the revised docket of the State Railroad Commission, which was issued yesterday, the hearing on the question of the body's possible jurisdiction over the California Development Company, which was originally scheduled for this city tomorrow, has been postponed to the 28th inst. The matter came before the commission through complaints filed by Adolph Becker, Louis J. Ivey and the City of Holtville against Col. W. H. Holabird as receiver of the development company.

Glad-Handers to Front.

Reservations for the Chamber of Commerce's "glad-hand excursion" to the Imperial Valley and Arizona are going rapidly. Up to noon yesterday seventy-seven individuals and business firms had placed their names on the list. As the Long Beach band of twenty-six pieces will go along and Redondo Beach, Ocean Park, Venice and Long Beach have promised to send representatives, there now remains but five reservations to be made to fill up the party. A special train, made up of five Pullman sleepers, two diners, an observation car, and a baggage car will be provided for the trip. The itinerary remains unchanged, except that Niland will be given considerable more time than was originally intended.

HONOR SOLDIER'S MEMORY.

Veteran and Relief Corps United in Service; Memorial Day Exercises at Pasadena.

Memorial services in honor of the late Maj. J. F. Merriam were held under the auspices of Robley D. Evans Post, No. 200, and the Woman's Relief Corps, at Woodman Hall, No. 246 South Hill street, last night. There was a large attendance of former comrades of Maj. Merriam, who died in this city on January 6. Eulogistic reviews of his life were delivered by Comrades W. A. Packard and William A. Hall.

At the close of the services it was announced that the Post would hold memorial exercises at the First Presbyterian Church, Twentieth and Figueroa streets, next Sunday morning.

On Memorial Day, May 30, the veterans will go to Pasadena as guests of the Grand Army of that city and it is desired that the members meet at the Pacific Electric depot not later than 7:45 o'clock.

On June 6, Ed. Adams of San Diego will be entertained by the members of the Post.

AQUEDUCT WAY UNCLEARED.

Executive Session of Beverly Hills Trustees Fails to Open Route for Connecting Pipe.

The Board of Trustees of Beverly Hills held an executive session last evening to consider the question of permitting the city of Los Angeles to lay the Franklin-Canyon pipe line of the aqueduct across Cold Water Canyon road, part of Beverly Hills streets. Chief Engineer Mulholland of the aqueduct and Attorney W. B. Mathews were present and represented the interests of Los Angeles.

No definite action was taken by the Trustees. Attorney Mathews and Attorney E. H. Wilson of Beverly Hills will hold a conference today.

"While no definite conclusions were reached, I believe that we made progress toward a solution of the difficulty," Mulholland said after the meeting. "From the trend of the business at the meeting I believe that we will reach an agreement within a few days."

POLICE TO DANCE.

Silver Star Lodge No. 312, Knights of Pythias, the police department lodge of the order, will hold a social dance at Goldberg-Bosley Assembly Rooms, Sixteenth and Flower streets, on Tuesday evening May 26. The dance is to be in honor of the women friends and relatives of members. Those in charge of the affair include G. T. Williamson, chairman; W. A. Lower, B. D. Moyer, R. G. Hamilton, L. L. McClary, secretary.

LYING IN WAIT FOR THE THIEF.

MACHINE STOLEN IN BAKERSFIELD FOUND IN ONEONTA PARK GARAGE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, May 16.—Hoeffner Bros., of the Oneonta garage on Fair Oaks avenue, are waiting for a young man who gave his name as Howard Grayson to turn up to receive $500 for an automobile. When he does turn up he will be promptly nabbed by the police, all because he expects to collect $500 for an auto that belongs to some one else.

Last Wednesday Grayson and a companion drove a Buick roadster into the Oneonta garage, leaving instructions to repair the machine and sell it for $500. After giving his name and address as Taft, he departed, saying he would return in a few days. Meanwhile Hoeffner Bros. received a card from an insurance company offering a reward for the location of a certain Buick roadster which had been stolen at Bakersfield on April 26. An investigation disclosed the fact that the machine brought in by Grayson was the one that had been stolen. The Los Angeles representative of the insurance company was notified, and he came for the machine.

Following the two robberies which occurred last Sunday evening in the business section of the town, the police force has been increased. A night watchman has been appointed for the business section. The merchants will keep their stores lighted.

Mrs. G. Harold Powell was elected president of the Marengo-avenue Parent-Teacher Association at the regular meeting, held this afternoon. Other officers are: Mrs. Robert Crosbie, first vice-president; Mrs. W. F. Taylor, second vice-president; Mrs. H. R. Archbald, recording secretary; Mrs. W. E. Tussing, financial secretary; Mrs. George E. Grier, treasurer, and Mrs. G. Maurice Crow, historian.

The reports of the standing committees for the year were given. Saturday, June 13, was chosen as the date for the annual lawn party. Miss Mattaline Crabtree will supervise the folk dances which will be given by the younger children of the school. Arrangements were also made for the physical culture exhibition, which will be given in the High School, May 29, under the direction of Mrs. E. C. Love.

Delegates to represent the association at the annual convention to be held in Pasadena the latter part of the month include Mrs. C. A. Foster, Mrs. G. Harold Powell, Mrs. W. W. Patterson and Mrs. G. Maurice Crow.

POWER PLANTS TO BE INSTALLED.

ANGELENO ENGINEER LOOKING OVER GROUND FOR ESCONDIDO COMPANIES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ESCONDIDO, May 16.—Engineer Hawgood of Los Angeles has been in the valley for several days in the employ of the Escondido Mutual Water Company on business connected with the installation of power plants and the raising of the big storage reservoir, seven miles east of the city. With a large expenditure of money the water company proposes to utilize the water on its way from the mountain country to the valley for the generation of electric power, the electric power in turn being used for the operation of pumping plants, and for the lighting of the valley. The expense of the proposition will be met by assessments on the stock of the corporation and by a bond issue.

A big commotion has been started in the social club circles by the action of the Brotherhood of the Methodist Church, which has inaugurated a movement for the making of the town drier.

Representatives of the city churches have outlined an ordinance similar to the one in force at Pomona. At the time of presentation to the City Council it will be backed by a large petition. The city has an active "California dry" organization, which is cooperating with the churches for the drier-town project.

Rev. Ernest E. Ford, pastor of the Baptist church, will deliver the Memorial Day oration under the direction of Escondido Post, G.A.R., and Woman's Relief Corps. All of the merchants have signed a formal agreement to keep their stores closed until 1 p.m. The Memorial Sunday sermon will be preached by Rev. A. J. McKenzie, pastor of the Methodist church.

"Open house" was kept yesterday afternoon by students of the High School in the domestic science, manual training, commercial and other special departments of the school. A large number of the patrons and friends of the school were present.

Herman Beske, a rancher living west of the Geujito ranch in the mountain country, has been fined $50 by Township Justice Wisdom for allowing a fire to get beyond control.

THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, May 16.—[Reported by Ford A. Carpenter, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 30.01; at 5 p.m., 29.97. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 54 deg. and 62 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 96 per cent.; 5 p.m., 63 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., west, velocity 3 miles; 5 p.m., west, velocity 12 miles. Highest temperature, 67 deg.; lowest, 54 deg. Rainfall for season, 23.55 inches. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—The area of high pressure moved slowly northeasterly, bringing fair and moderately cool weather to the eastern half of the country. The trough of low pressure likewise drifted easterly, causing light showers in Montana and Idaho, extending southerly into Oklahoma. An area of high pressure is entering the Northwestern Coast, and will bring clearing skies to California Sunday. The presence of the western trough of low pressure will give periods of cloud and fog, but the extension of the high pressure will result in fair weather Sunday.

REVIVE MEMORIES OF EARLY DAY.

PIONEERS' SOCIETY GATHERS AT ANNUAL PICNIC AND RECALLS PAST.

The dear, dead past of Los Angeles was affectionately reviewed by speakers yesterday afternoon at the annual picnic of the Pioneers' Society at Sycamore Grove. Edward Nittinger, who has lived for thirty-one years at No. 451 South Hope street, presided at the literary exercises in the afternoon. About 200 pioneers assembled at noon for a basket dinner.

The speakers included Nittinger, Joseph Mesmer, president of the society; ex-Judge Sepulveda, born in this city in 1852; ex-Mayor W. H. Workman, who arrived here in 1853; Mrs. Mary G. McDonald, 84 years old and a resident of this city for sixty-five years; ex-Judge A. J. King, ex-Sheriff Frank Burns, A. E. Davis, Mrs. Lizzie Geary, Mrs. N. H. Mitchell and Mrs. C. F. Harper. Miss Beatrice Banner sang "I Love You, California."

"I think that life in the old days was more attractive and pleasant than it is at present, although we then lacked many of the modern comforts." Mrs. McDonald declared. "I remember with much pleasure the friends of by-gone years. The past is golden to me."

Mesmer recalled the bravery and the hardships of the pioneers and contrasted the difference between riding in a springless Mexican carreta and the modern easy-going motor car.

ELECT TEACHERS FOR EL MONTE.

MANUAL TRAINING AND DOMESTIC SCIENCE TO BE NEW DEPARTMENT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EL MONTE, May 16.—Teachers of El Monte Union High School, headed by Principal E. A. Farrington, were re-elected today unanimously. The election of teachers for manual training and domestic science was postponed until another meeting, this department having been decided upon for next year. The completion of two new buildings before the fall opening will make ample room for cooking, sewing and manual training departments.

The corps of teachers so far elected are E. A. Farrington, principal; Annette E. Ferris, history and English; L. Mary Ross, Latin-librarian; Grace E. Irwin, mathematics and science; Lierel Leighton, English and modern languages; Mary L. Reherd, English composition and drawing; S. S. Ingram, music; L. H. Wright, mathematics and commercial.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

Elsinore Parent-Teachers Hold Annual Meeting—Woman's Club Elects Officers.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ELSINORE, May 16.—The Parent-Teacher Association held its last meeting of the year Friday afternoon and ninety-two members were on hand. Mmes. Anthony Keith, Robert H. Kirkpatrick and McDonald and Miss Edna Burton were appointed delegates to the fifteenth annual Child Welfare Convention and Congress of Mothers to be held May 20, 21, 22 in Pasadena.

Chairmen of committees for next year's work are: Programme, Mrs. R. H. Kirkpatrick; Reception and Membership, Mrs. A. Keith; Emergency, Mrs. N. J. Burton; Press and Publicity, Mrs. R. C. Graham; Child Supervision, Mrs. Louisa Haughawout.

The Elsinore Woman's Club has elected the following officers for next year's work: President, Mrs. Ralph Eddy; vice-president, Mrs. A. S. Burnham; recording secretary, Mrs. Frank Williams; corresponding secretary, Mrs. T. L. Rush; treasurer, Mrs. M. E. Ellis.

Hotels and cottages are being taxed to accommodate the large number of people who are here for the climatic and mineral-water advantages. More houses are in demand.

WOULD BE HONOR TO BOTH THE STATE AND WOMANHOOD.

That's the Sentiment That Prompts Republicans to Favor a Woman Lieutenant-Governor—Leaders Heartily Indorse the Idea.

CALIFORNIANS, particularly of the south, are lining up in favor of naming a woman candidate for Lieutenant-Governor on the Republican ticket, as suggested by The Times in an editorial last Thursday. Men and women who have been in the front rank of various parties are captivated with the proposal and Republicans are anxious that their ticket this fall be adorned with the name of one of California's noble women as the running mate of the Republican candidate for Governor. From all over the State have come glowing indorsements. Few new political ideas have met with such general, generous commendation.

The Great Register of California will show a registration of approximately 1,000,000 qualified voters this fall. Of this number between 40 and 45 per cent. are woman electors. Bearing in mind the enormous portion of taxation paid by the women it is not only a matter of right that the women should be represented in the government of this great State, but it is an imperative duty that womanhood be recognized and represented in its administration, say the advocates of the idea.

Let California honor itself by nominating and electing a woman to fill the office of Lieutenant-Governor, is the slogan. And let the Republican party nominate her, say the leaders.

…women of the city are …than favorable to the plan of …a woman for Lieutenant-Governor of California. They are delighted with the prospect. Expressions …to the cause were showered …Times' interviewers yesterday, …it is a curious fact that nearly …person approached for an opinion as well as the many who volunteered their commendation, had a …reason for welcoming the …and supporting the plan. …men are talking about the …same. The following interviews show this clearly:

GIVE HER RECOGNITION.

…Roman Bridge: I am in …sympathy with the suggestion …by The Times. Why should a woman be made Lieutenant-Governor if she possesses peculiar …as an executive? There should be no discrimination against a …merely because she is a woman. It is only right that the …should be given recognition …now that the right of …has been extended to them. …are voters and have a perfect right to hold office. I don't believe …is any office within the gift of the people of California that a woman …not fill. It is merely a question of finding the right woman.

…Frank Garrett, treasurer Friday Morning Club: It sounds good …I think the women should …political honors with men. …are quick-witted and have …their capacity for parliamentary procedure. Club life has …them admirably for presiding …assemblages. They hold …with men every time in …I know of no reason …should not elevate a woman …highest office within the …the people of California.

…Judge Frank R. Willis: I …the proposal by The Times will be accepted by one of the many eminently qualified women of the State. We should encourage the women to take an active part in political affairs, and when some good woman desires public office for the public good we should support her. If a woman fitted by experience and temperament announces her candidacy for the office I will gladly vote for her, not because she is a woman, but because she is qualified.

Mrs. E. C. Bellows, president Woman's City Club: If the woman selected is fitted by natural ability and training to perform the duties of the office that she would in all probability make a more capable presiding officer than any man available for the position, then I am enthusiastically in favor of her nomination. In other words, I would treat the man and woman exactly alike in respect to this matter.

County Counsel A. J. Hill: The suggestion of The Times that a woman be nominated for the office of Lieutenant-Governor is not only right, but is symbolic of our system of government which arose out of the slogan that "Taxation without representation is tyranny."

IMPRESS RESPONSIBILITY.

Philo J. Beveridge, Hollywood: I favor a woman candidate for the Lieutenant-Governorship, not to gratify the ambition of any particular woman, but to impress upon the women of California the responsibilities of the franchise. It would be no compliment to vote for a woman simply because of her sex, but it would be a compliment to women to vote for their candidate under the belief that she was in every way qualified to worthily meet the responsibilities of the office, and I believe there are many women so qualified.

Mrs. William L. Jones, president Ebell Club: I think women make fine presiding officers and many women talk more to the point in public than men, nevertheless in the matter of judgment a man's opinion is superior because of his long training and contact with the public. I would not favor at this time a woman for Lieutenant-Governor; my natural proclivities would be against it. There may be a woman fitted for it; there undoubtedly will in the near future for it is bound to come.

LEAD THE PROCESSION.

Col. W. H. Holabird: I favor it. The Republican party generally leads the procession. The Republican party made woman suffrage a reality in California, now lets follow it up by elevating a splendid California woman to the Lieutenant-Governorship. It is the proper thing to do.

Mrs. W. J. Variel: Shall we have a woman for Lieutenant-Governor? Why not? A few years ago John Drew made a decided hit in a play entitled "Make Way for the Ladies." The question is, has the time arrived to make way for the ladies in political affairs? Many women haven't very much confidence in the capabilities of their own sex. We need encouragement and I know of no better way of instilling courage into hearts of our good California women than by electing one of our number Lieutenant-Governor.

Percy V. Hammon, Deputy District Attorney: Woman has displayed a stern fortitude in ministering to the stricken in camp, and has exhibited a high degree of courage amid din and carnage on the battlefield. Who has not heard of Molly Pitcher of America, and the vivandiere of the French corps and her sister, Joan. Woman's capacity to endure hardship is indelibly recorded in the annals of the pioneers; she has excelled in literature, music and art. Ramona is a household companion of all Californians, nor has she been backward in political and sociological affairs. Woman's abilities as a statesman are inscribed upon the tablets of history. In later generations her activities in economic and sociological affairs have won for her respect and admiration. Let California honor herself and its splendid manhood and womanhood by electing a woman to fill the office of Lieutenant-Governor.

SEES NO OBJECTION.

Superior Judge Gavin W. Craig: I don't see any reason why the right kind of material, even though a woman, could not do honor and justice to the office of Lieutenant-Governor. Recognition should be given to womanhood and motherhood. There is no objection that can be raised to the proposition. Of course the position would be an arduous one for a woman during a session of the Legislature. There are many women in the State who are capable of filling the office.

Mrs. Henrietta Spader: I believe it would be a splendid recognition of women on the part of California to elect one of their sex Lieutenant-Governor. Women are good parliamentarians and are evincing keen interest in governmental questions. The Times pays a high tribute to womanhood of California when it advocates a woman for such an important office. The Republican party has always done the right thing by the women of the State and nation.

Sheriff Hammel: It is a splendid idea. The women should be recognized. We should encourage the women to take an active part in affairs of state. The women are busy studying the fundamentals of politics and it is right and proper that we should recognize this and help them whenever possible. The Times has struck a mighty popular chord.

Charles Fleming: The suggestion of The Times is a grand one. The spirit of equality between the sexes is rapidly becoming unanimous. And why not? Woman has not just arrived. Her influence is co-existent with that of man. In fact, history credits woman with having exerted this force originally in the human race. And it has ever since been a potent factor else equal suffrage would not now be the law in so many States. There are many women in California competent to fill the office of Lieutenant-Governor and it can be safely suggested that no woman would presume to aspire to it if she did not have the ability to perform its duties. The wholesome influence of woman is needed in the political affairs of our country. No mistake will be made in writing into the political history of the State the name of the first woman to occupy so high a State honor. It was not considered other than a wise action when Dist.-Atty. Fredericks of this county appointed the first woman in the history of the nation to hold the position of Deputy District Attorney, and the wisdom of his appointment was fully justified by the record of his appointee.

Chief Deputy District Attorney W. J. Ford: Now that the women of California are recognized citizens, it is our duty to help them to secure a more intelligent grasp of things political. If a woman has the ability and desire to serve as Lieutenant-Governor, she should not be barred on account of her sex.

WOMAN'S RIGHT.

Col. R. W. Richardson: Yes, I favor it with all my heart. It is the best news of the new year. Now we want to get busy and find the right woman and then whoop it up and elect her Cold-Blooded Holdup of Mr. Taxpayer.

"Laying" for him at every turn.

Often before one freak Los Angeles election is over another has been called and the property owner mulcted to bring some citizen fixit's grouch before the "deer peepul." Seventeen in the past thirty months have affected the nerves of the man who foots the bills—always Mr. Taxpayer.

In Church.

TELLING OF MIRACLE STARTLES HUNDREDS.

Miss Ethel Conrad,

Who startled a large audience at the Third Church of Christ, Scientist, when she asserted dramatically that a divine miracle had saved her from the fatal effects of bicholoride of mercury tablets a few days ago. Miss Conrad, with Miss Lillian Graham, was tried in New York on the charge of shooting Millionaire Stokes.

AN UNEXPECTED mixing of the "movies" and divine miracles in a "testimony," given at the Third Church of Christ Scientist by Miss Edith Conrad, silent drama actress, who, with Miss Lillian Graham was charged with shooting Millionaire Stokes of New York in the legs, startled an audience of 15,000 persons accustomed to hearing strange stories.

Miss Conrad gave a dramatic recital of how divine power had been interposed to save her from the fatal effects of bichloride of mercury tablets, taken with suicidal intent. She said that a skilled physician and a trained nurse had given up hope of saving her life, when a miracle, direct from the hand of God, had brushed death aside.

After Miss Conrad observed the sensation produced by her testimony she became frightened and after the meeting, which was last Wednesday night, declined to answer the questions of curious church members.

The actress said that her attempted suicide had not been reported by the physician who attended her. She did not say whether she took the poison in this city or in Pasadena, where she lives at No. 162 Terrace drive. A friend advised her to protect the physician and also herself.

After the startling episode, Miss Conrad wished to know if the physician would be subject to prosecution for not reporting her case and also if she would be liable to arrest for attempting suicide.

Friends of the young woman are at a loss to know why she made a public announcement of her near approach to death. An intimate associate believes that her dramatic instinct caused her to take advantage of what appeared to her to be a psychological moment to display the personal charms and eloquent "delivery" which attracted attention in New York.

Miss Conrad again yielded to her passion for acting when a visitor

TAXPAYERS' MONEY JUST THROWN AWAY.

Over Half-Million Dollars on Elections in Thirty Months.

Seventeen of 'Em, Mostly Special, Held in Los Angeles During that Period, Eighty-five Thousand Spent on Three the Past Two Weeks, and More in Sight. "Progressive" Extravagance.

IN THE past thirty months it has cost the city of Los Angeles—really the taxpayers—over $500,000 for seventeen elections. On an average more than one election has been held every two months. And more are coming up. The air is surcharged with threats and promises of more recalls, more bonds, more ordinances, more referendums, more initiative and then—the Tax Collector! For always the taxpayer foots the bills. When will it end?

We have had more elections in Los Angeles in two years and a half than New York City has had in ten years. No other municipality in the country comes within gunshot distance of this city in the matter of elections. We take the cake and may as well admit the corn. It's great sport to be a taxpayer!

Our elections have been of the choicest variety and color. In the past two years the citizens of this forward-moving, full-bosomed municipality have had "chances" to vote for 3456 candidates for public office and for several hundred "progressiveisms" ranging from knifing "hot dogs" in saloons to the establishment of municipal cheese plants. What next?

Right here let it be said that, as a rule, the sane, level-headed citizens of Los Angeles have come to the rescue and smashed with their ballots many of the freaky, folderol fads brought forward by passionate "reformers."

Many of the questions and issues submitted to the people at these special elections could have been held at general elections and tens of thousands of dollars saved, but for one "progressive" reason or another, this was not done.

TOO "PROGRESSIVE."

"Who's to blame for all this election nonsense?" asks Mr. Taxpayer, the man who must settle the huge bills.

"We're living in a 'progressive' age," replies the holy-roller tinker. And 'tis true, alas! with the accent on the kind of "progress."

When some of our lawmakers aren't sweating blood over the length of a woman's hatpin or the food value of a wiener they are busy calling special elections. In this they are aided and abetted by certain "progressive" laws which are alleged to have "handed the government back to the people." Without these "progressive" laws there would be no such nuisances as a recall election, initiative, referendum, etc. The small taxpayer wouldn't have to hand out his hard-earned money merely to satisfy the crazy-quilt whims and fancies of glassy-eyed "citizen fixits."

Every time the City Council calls a special election at the request of some kind friend with a peeve on, it costs the taxpayers of Los Angeles between $40,000 and $50,000. In other words, the taxpayers are everlastingly called upon to finance some cheap politician's grouch—and on a mighty extravagant cash basis.

Then, to be sure, the Council appoints the election boards and each of the 447 precinct boards in the city is manned by six to eight live-wire political workers who receive $6 to $8 a day. Of course these election officials are on husky speaking terms with the lawmakers who pick 'em out, and generally vote "right."

IT'S THE LAWS.

But our city fathers aren't wholly to blame. Many times they just can't help calling an election—it's the laws. The city has 3800 restrictive and prohibitory statutes and more coming up: It's almost impossible for a high-minded citizen to walk two blocks on Broadway without violating a dozen city ordinances. Whichever way you turn you bump plumb into one of those "you can't do that" laws. The air is blue with statutory prohibitions to which nobody pays the slightest attention.

Of course under this state of the law none of us can know what is prohibited, and it has been suggested that there ought to be means of informing visitors who come here from time to time what they may do without violating the California Constitution or the laws of the State, or the ordinances of the city. The Johnson machine has added 5000 pages to the State Constitution. Not one lawyer or judge in a thousand is on speaking terms with one out of a hundred of the ordinances of Los Angeles. But the taxpayer forks up the dinero that makes the election wheels go round.

On May 5 Supervisor Norton was retained in office by the voters of the Second District (city) who oppose the noxious recall instrument. Now, Norton, who claims to be the "father of the recall," declares he will start recall proceedings against his colleagues on the board. He does not charge them with being incompetent and of course does not question their integrity; he wants to recall them because they didn't actively support him in his fight to defeat the recall of which he appears to be the daddy. And if the elections are held they will cost the taxpayers of the city and county close to $100,000. It cost about $15,000 to hold the Norton recall election.

THIS IN TWO WEEKS!

On May 8 the power bonds were voted at a cost to the taxpayers of $40,000. Last Thursday we voted the school bonds at a cost of $30,000—a total of $85,000 of the taxpayers' money burned up on special elections in two weeks! Recall petitions are now being circulated against Mayor Rose, City Attorney Stephens and five of the Councilmen. One Allender, a rabid soap-boxer, and several other disgruntled office-hunters are behind it. It is not a question of principle. Allender supported Rose, but when the Mayor refused to bow to his soap boxisms Allender started the recall petitions. This election (if it ever reaches that stage) will cost about $50,000.

And now comes Dr. John R. Haynes and declares it is time to frame a new city charter and submit it to the voters. The electors rejected the freaky Haynes-Lissner-Earl charter on December 3, 1912, by a vote of two to one. Then, on March 24, 1913, the Haynes-Earl clique submitted a bunch of charter amendments to the people and they in turn were roundly trounced by the level-headed citizens. The December 3 election cost the taxpayers $30,000 and the March 25 election $25,945. Despite the fact that the people have refused on two occasions to stand for their whims this "progressive" outfit, hoping to foist its peculiar doctrines upon this city, would still further burden the taxpayer with election costs.

JUST THROWN AWAY.

On May 28, 1912, Haynes, Meyer Lissner and a number of equally distinguished civic patriots, had the Council call a special election to have Haynes, Lissner and thirteen comrades elected chief charter tinkers. They were elected because they had no opposition and what the voters did to their handiwork is a matter of history. It cost Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer about $20,000 to have the Haynes-Earl-Lissner ticket placed upon the ballot. Just money thrown away!

And so comes just one blamed election after another, all in the name of "progress" and "reform."

And taxes are going up.

COSTS CANDIDATES MILLION.

Political wiseacres estimate that the candidates for various city and county offices have expended over $1,000,000 to be elected or defeated in the past thirty months. Most of this enormous sum found its way into the pockets of cheap politicians, political hatchetmen, hangers-on and cigar vendors. Of course ten of thousands was spent legitimately for printing, poster distribution, advertising, hall hire, etc. Under the bungling Johnson-Eddie primary law a poor man hasn't any chance of being elected to office unless the "machine" is for him. The ambitious man of ordinary means is absolutely barred unless he sells out. Over $150,000 was expended in the Shenk-Rose-Harriman Mayoralty fight alone without touching the Councilmanic and the rest of the city ticket scraps. Under the primary law a candidate has to make two hard and expensive fights for votes while under the old and sane convention method only one campaign and election was necessary.

ASK OWL SERVICE.

City Outgrows Swaddling Clothes and Night Workers Make Their Wants Known.

This city is giving evidence daily of outgrowing its swaddling clothes. Some of this evidence is piled on the desks of officials of the Los Angeles Railway Corporation in the shape of petitions for added owl service. Another petition will be added to the list tomorrow by thirty patrons of the Grand-avenue line.

Printers, postoffice clerks and railroad men are the predominate signers of the Grand-avenue petition. Their shifts are such that many of them cannot catch the 12:56 car and have to wait for the paper car at 2:45 a.m. They ask that a 2 o'clock car be put on.

There is an axiom in the street railroad world that a city's growth can be best gauged by the demand of owl service. If this axiom is true, then this city has grown rapidly the past year, for more demands for owl service have been lodged with Los Angeles Railway officials in that time than in any previous two years.

Also many owl cars have been put on, through the corporation of necessity has had to "turn down" certain applications on the grounds that the service wouldn't pay.

The Grand-avenue car line, however, say the petitioners, is the best-paying car line in the city. They will also go before Supt. Lewis of the corporation with assurance of fifteen riders nightly for the 2 o'clock car and the names of many others who will ride the car from time to time.

Shortest and most direct highway to the sea.

The map shows the route of the proposed 100-foot boulevard from Pico street in an air line to the ocean via Fremont avenue, Santa Monica. The new thoroughfare will be at least two and a half miles shorter than any now improved. The diagram also shows the exact course of the Wilshire and Washington boulevards, whose winding turns make them longer than the Pico-street extension. The new route is less than eleven miles from the Los Angeles city limits to the ocean front. The upper picture shows Fremont avenue looking toward Los Angeles. The avenue has been widened to eighty feet, paved with asphalt, and reduced to grade by cutting down the hill, as shown in the photograph. Below is another Fremont-avenue view, near the ocean, looking toward Los Angeles.

Construction Begun.

HIGH-LINE AND AIR-LINE BOULEVARD TO BEACH.

Wide Highway from Pico Street Directly to Newly-Improved Fremont Avenue in Santa Monica Saves Two and a Half Miles in Distance and Provides Magnificent Scenic Thoroughfare to the Sea.

WITH rights of way almost wholly secured and work in progress on both ends of the proposed 100-foot boulevard from Pico street to Santa Monica the early construction of that new, direct route to the sea is practically assured. Delegations from Santa Monica and Sawtelle have recently received substantial encouragement from the Board of Supervisors regarding the boulevard which has been before the board and favorably considered for several years.

Pico street is now open to Pruess road and has been in use to that point for years. This road has recently been paved with concrete macadam. At the other end of the route the people of Santa Monica are rushing the improvement of Fremont avenue to completion and hope to have it ready for use in the next sixty days. The Fremont-avenue improvement provides one of the finest beach thoroughfares on the Coast and, according to the general plan, will be the seaward outlet for the new boulevard from Los Angeles to the ocean.

The Supervisors promised, four years ago, to build a highway from Pico street to the sea provided the people of Santa Monica would improve Fremont avenue and provide a seaward outlet. The Santa Monica improvement was blocked several times by technical errors in proceedings and failure to secure satisfactory bids, but these obstacles have now been removed and the Fremont-avenue work is well under way.

RIGHTS OF WAY SECURED.

At that time Carl F. Schader and others secured rights of way over most of the distance. With the Fremont-avenue difficulties overcome the Pico to Santa Monica Highway Association, a few months ago, again took up the work of arranging for a wide, direct boulevard to the sea, to be the shortest and most direct route between Los Angeles and the beach.

The route was divided into three sections. One committee, appointed to secure rights of way for widening to 100 feet east of Pruess road, reported yesterday that it had secured all but one. The Briggs Company was assigned that portion of the route from Pruess road to First street, Palms, at its intersection with Fremont-avenue extension. Sidney A. Briggs said yesterday that the company has the deeds signed, delivered and recorded for the entire distance. The third committee, composed of prominent Sawtelle men, has secured more than three-fourths of the rights of way necessary from First street, Palms, to Santa Monica city limits. Santa Monica has taken care of its portion of the route by widening and improving Fremont avenue from the water front, three miles to the northerly city limits, and is expending $140,000 on the improvement.

TEMPORARY ROAD NOW.

The Briggs Company will start soon on the construction of a temporary road westward from Pruess road so that egress will be possible along the route while the construction of the permanent highway is pending. The Supervisors may decide to build the highway through at once on a narrower scale with the view to widening it later, but the unanimity with which the men interested all along the route are working for the 100-foot boulevard is a strong indication that a wide highway will be built at the outset.

The new highway will be two and a half miles shorter than any other improved thoroughfare between Los Angeles and the sea. County Highway Engineer Joyner, who has approved the grade as far as First street, Palms, estimates the cost to the county at $100,000, if the work is done in accordance with the usual county highway specifications. The road will pass through Sawtelle and enter Santa Monica by way of Fremont avenue, reaching the water front close by the site of the terminus of the first railroad ever built between Los Angeles and the beach.

So directly does the road extend from the Los Angeles city limits seaward that its total distance is less than eleven miles. Aside from the advantages of providing a new, wide thoroughfare to the sea, shorter than any other by at least two and a half miles, the new boulevard will be beautifully located.

It will be a hill-top drive high above the lowlands on each side of it and will have a level grade over practically the entire distance. Passing along over the tops of sightly hills the road will afford magnificent vistas of the entire valley. Along each side of the boulevard it is proposed to plant trees, flowers and shrubs and to install a fine system of electric lights.

SCENIC HIGH LINE.

Because of its beauty and the fact that, without breaking any speed laws, the automobilist can drive from Los Angeles city limits to the beach front in twenty to twenty-five minutes the new boulevard will be one of the most popular ocean drives as soon as it is opened to travel. In addition to providing a new, short drive between Los Angeles and the sea it will be a distinct advantage to a great territory bordering it in Sawtelle, Palms and the territory this side of the Palms which is soon to be subdivided.

One of the most attractive features of the new route is the Fremont-avenue outlet to the water front. This avenue has been widened to eighty feet, paved with asphalt and the hill opposite the new Santa Monica High School building cut down to an easy grade. Palms and other shade trees and ornamental electroliers will be installed.

Coming over the hilltops through the finely-improved valley the automobilist gets his first clear view of the ocean when he reaches the slight eminence at the High School. At once is spread before his view the broad expanse of Santa Monica Bay with the mountains to the northward. The avenue passes the school grounds and park and extends directly to the ocean front with the finely-improved terrace property on the right.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION.

John A. Owings, a clerk, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court yesterday. He scheduled his debts at $15,175, of which $14,540 are unsecured. He lists his assets at $500, and of this sum $400 is claimed to be exempt under the statutes.

POLITICAL TIPS.

Champ Clark may have given up his hopes of the Presidency, but he has evidently not given up doing a little politics where it will count in his favor. The other day he gave a luncheon, and among his guests was Robert Foligny Broussard, or "Cousin Bob" as he is called by the Clark family. Broussard and Clark have not been friends for some years, as a result of the latter once voting for free sugar, and when the delegates to the Baltimore convention were being chosen Broussard pocketed those from Louisiana and voted them for Wilson, though the Governor of Louisiana and the leading politicians of that State were favorable to Clark. Visits to Trenton had convinced Broussard that no legislation was to be enacted that would destroy any industry, but with the sugar industry hit in the neck by the new tariff he feels that he was deceived, and he is no longer a caller at the White House, and he and Clark made up and are eating at the same table. Next March Broussard will take his seat in the Senate, and will have an active part in the national legislation until 1921. Meantime because of his outspoken disposition he is looked upon as the bitterest enemy President Wilson has in either branch of Congress.

Senator La Follette has stirred up the friends of the President by his recent intimation that the President has been trying to induce the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant the rate increase asked by the railroads. His position is declared "monstrous" in Washington, and the administration papers call him "irresponsible." The Wisconsin Senator is another one who has not become reconciled to the result of the last election.

The administration is now making places among the subordinates in the prominent postoffices of the country by preferring charges against them in order to get them to resign that their places may be given to some good Democrat. At Cincinnati S. G. Sullivan, the assistant superintendent of mails, has been charged with incompetency, though he has been in the service for thirty-eight years, for more than twenty-five of which he was superintendent of mails, but was reduced to assistant in 1911, when the Cincinnati office was reorganized. Other employees of the Cincinnati office have been asked to tell in writing the reason why they should not accept reductions in salary and grade or face charges. Sullivan is one of the best known postoffice employees in the West.

The liquor question and the labor question are too much for the equanimity of the members of Congress, and the most of them would evade both subjects if they could. Mr. Hobson's national prohibition resolution has, however, got to be faced by the members of the House, as Mr. Underwood, the majority leader, has told the members that the dominant party will refuse to accept the responsibility for further delay now that the Judiciary Committee has passed the matter up to the House. The Judiciary Committee made no recommendation so that everything rests with the House. Mr. Underwood, it will be remembered, has just vanquished Hobson in the race for the Senate, and he undoubtedly wants to show the people of Alabama that he is no dodger on anything that the hero of the Merrimac may propose.

Gov. Blease of South Carolina has been too much in evidence for the good reputation of the country, but about the best way to kill off such a freak is to give him all the publicity his actions warrant. His latest escapade is in opposition to the proposed legislation to require a medical inspection of the school children of the State. He said that if any physician should attempt against his will to examine privately a daughter of his, if he had one, he would kill him. He told his audience of 1500 cotton mill workers that if they killed a physician who attempted against their will to examine their daughters he would pardon them as fast as electricity could carry the pardon.

When the court decided that the Mayor of Terra Haute, Ind., was not guilty of the charges of frauds in the recent election in that city, the special prosecutor had all the other indictments dismissed, saying that the verdict seemed to indicate that was what the people wanted, and that it was no use in going to trial with any of the other cases. The Indianapolis News says in reference to the case: "But why maintain churches and schools? Would it not be better to endow 'The House of a Thousand Crimes?' as the city has now the most shameless municipal government in the world." This is a pretty hard arraignment, but evidently deserved from the evidence produced against the Mayor.

It looks like Foraker as the Republican Senatorial candidate in Ohio as Myron T. Herrick, Ambassador to France, refuses to enter the contest against the former Senator. With the opposition there is to Foraker's nomination there will naturally be some doubt about his election.

United States Senators are to be elected in thirty-two States at the next November election. The election of all Senators this year is to be by direct vote, and in nearly all of the States the nomination of Senatorial candidates will also be determined by ballot at general primaries. The thirty-two places in the Senate that will be filled by new Senators next March are divided just equally as to present holders between Democrats and Republicans. Arizona, Colorado, Indiana and Oregon are the States in which there is something better than a fighting chance that Republican Senators may be elected to succeed the Democratic incumbents from those States.

Former Congressman Nick Longworth has refused to become a candidate for Governor of Ohio, and calls it a thankless job. He does intend, however, to make the race for Congress, a political berth he liked very much.

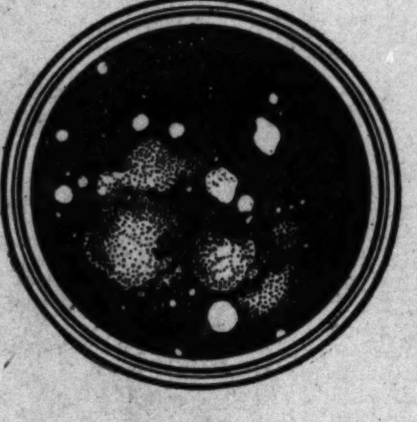
Danger in Filtered Water

If you've been drinking Filtered Water under the delusion that it is pure water, take care! It is more dangerous to drink Filtered Water than ordinary City Water.

Boiled City Water would be better than Filtered Water, but in that case you would only be drinking dead germs instead of live ones. You remember that Dr. Harvey W. Wiley said that to boil ordinary water merely makes a "cemetery out of a menagerie."

We have positive proof that more bacteria exist in Filtered Water than in Los Angeles City Water.

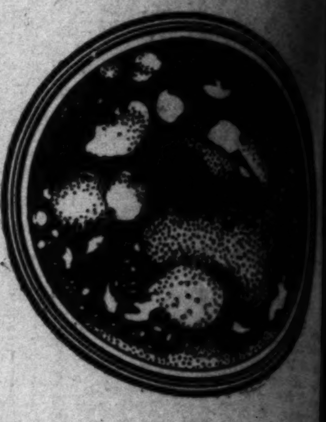


Positive Proof

At the left is an exact reproduction of one-half cubic centimeter of City Water, magnified thousands of times. Professor Ulrey, of the University of Southern California, found that this drop of water contained 1440 bacteria, per cubic centimeter.

At the right is one-half cubic centimeter of water from a Los Angeles Filter that Professor Ulrey found to contain 37,840 bacteria.

This is positive proof that Filters are "Bacteria Incubators."



37,777 Bacteria Germinated by a Filter in a Single Drop of Water in 8 Days!

The drop of water pictured above at the right was taken from a widely advertised Filter in a West Sixth St. Apartment-House. On March 17, when the Filter was cleaned and filled, this drop of water contained 63 bacteria. Eight days later, a drop from the same filter contained 37,840 bacteria! This means that 37,777 bacteria had been bred in the filter in eight days!

When many employees in a local manufacturing plant, which has installed these Filters, became sick, the trouble was traced directly to the bacteria in the Filters. This simply means that people who keep Filters in their houses or offices or stores are taking BIG CHANCES.

Drink Puritas Distilled Water and be Safe

Instead of buying a Filter and drinking water that fills your system with thousands of bacteria, which often cause dangerous diseases, take the simple means of being sure of PURE WATER by drinking PURITAS. Puritas Distilled Water is totally out of the class of all Filtered and Mineral Waters. It is distilled by the most modern processes that make it absolutely pure and healthful.

PURITAS is bottled in sealed, 5-gallon demijohns, reaching you fresh, pure and palatable. The cost is only 40 cents for 5 gallons, if you live within the city's old boundary lines. If you live further out, a slight additional charge is made for the longer haul. Don't take any chances with your Drinking Water this summer! Telephone for a demijohn of PURITAS!

Delivered in five-gallon sealed demijohns for 40 cents.

"THE TIMES" SCHOOL OF DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

IN ADDITION to chafing-dish and a la Newberg menus Mrs. Bertha Haffner-Ginger demonstrated yesterday at The Times School of Domestic Science several other equally appetizing dishes. The subject for the day was a very attractive one as was attested by an unusually large class. Among the number were more than a half dozen men, and to show appreciation this half-dozen male beings were the first served. One of the number announced that he was too full for utterance, not of the "Newberg," but of appreciation, and he was the source of much laughter when he asked if Mrs. Haffner-Ginger could not be induced to organize an evening class for the accommodation of busy bachelors. Mrs. Haffner-Ginger has the matter under advisement. She prepared and planked a handsome striped bass yesterday and, when done, served it from the plank. This she made lovely with a border of pink and white roses, done with her pastry bag from mashed potatoes. This fish as well as the crab was cooked on an electric range, which the Olston Electric Company sent down. A fault invariably found in most electric stoves has been overcome in this one. Most electric stoves will not brown; everything cooked to a pale, sick hue, but this one browns beautifully. It is built somewhat on the same plan as the fireless cooker, in that it retains the heat and has a self-regulator, which keeps it at the desired temperature. It is a handsome thing, too; all of gray enamel and steel, and it possesses an added attraction, in that Mrs. Housewife may deck the top with roses and they will remain fresh and beautiful.

If you have never eaten a baked cucumber, Mrs. Housewife, try it this way sometime. One was baked yesterday for the class, and was served with a cream sauce, just as asparagus is. Years ago a cucumber was thought to house a dozen chills and just as many fevers, but now it is considered a healthy vegetable; very cleansing and purifying for the blood.

Mrs. Haffner-Ginger told the class why Welsh rarebit often produces bad dreams; it is because milk, instead of beer or ale is used. Milk and cheese mixed, produce a very indigestible combination, and unless a rarebit is made right, it had better not be made at all. She used grated Parmesan cheese instead of the American varieties in the rarebit cooked in an electric chafing dish Saturday, because it is not only better, but a great deal more easily digested. There is art in the mixing of these dishes that no one but a professional could ever demonstrate, and at each lesson this fact is more forcibly disclosed. Everybody likes little puzzling dishes, and Saturday Mrs. Haffner-Ginger made one which was quite as tempting to the taste as it was puzzling. She used a little whipped egg, a tiny bit of garlic juice and, with spinach, mixed the whole into a ball and steamed it. Served with sweetbreads, or rather sweetbreads and mushrooms, it was quite appetizing and truly puzzling.

The next class will meet Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the auditorium of the Times Building.

SHRINERS RETURNING.

Vanguard of California Boosters to Reach City Tuesday Night When Welcome Will Be Extended.

The first of the Shriners to return from Atlanta from a memorable trip in which California's story was poured from a special train that rolled across the continent, will reach the city next Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Not all of the Shriners will reach Los Angeles at that time, but word has been received that there is traveling over the Santa Fe a large group of the men.

At the Santa Fe station Tuesday evening there will be a large gathering to welcome the wanderers home. The work they have done on the trip East has redounded to the credit of the people at home and some of them at least will take the first opportunity of showing appreciation by meeting the travelers at the train.

Tells of Miracle.

called to see her last night at the bungalow in Pasadena, where she lives with relatives. In the fine rage of a proverbial "movie" queen, she proclaimed her contempt for the public and the world in general.

"The world has torn the soul out of my body," Miss Conrad asserted. "I've been called a bandit and everything terrible. Do I look like a bandit? Do bandits wash dishes? I'm only 22 years old, but I have received horrible treatment at the hands of the public. I had a position with a film company, but lost it when they learned my identity. Now I've been blackballed by every film concern in the city."

At the church on South Hope street where Miss Conrad has been a frequent visitor for several weeks, she was known as Miss Edith Pierce. When she gave her testimony, few people in the audience knew her connection with the famous New York shooting case.

POULTRY SHOW.

The Wyandotte Club and the Rhode Island Red Club are holding a poultry show at the rooms of the Poultry Men's Co-operative Association, Boyd and Los Angeles streets. It is free to the public and is characterized by a fine display of the two breeds mentioned. The show will close on Monday.

Something for Nothing.

Los Angeles merchants will pay your railroad fare from your home town to this city and return. See announcement on Page 15, Part 3, of today's Times.

SOLDIERS' HOME NEWS.

Colorado Veteran Passes After Three Months' Visit to California in Search of Health.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOLDIERS' HOME, May 16.—A joint committee of members of John A. Martin Post, No. 153 and Uncle Sam Post, No. 177, has been appointed to complete a programme and to otherwise perfect the order of exercises to be observed Memorial Day. A number of kindred organizations will unite with veterans in the procession to the cemetery.

The local encampment, No. 138, assisted by its Women's Auxiliary, No. 16, of Los Angeles will, as customary, decorate graves of its departed members on the 28th inst.

Veteran William J. S. Henderson, aged 73, for a number of years Chief of Police at Grand Junction, Colo., who came to California three months ago in search of health, died at the hospital here today. At the request of his family the body was taken in charge by F. J. Finch, to be embalmed and forwarded to Colorado for burial.

Besides an honorable record of two services in the Civil War, Henderson was active in public affairs and prominent in fraternal organizations, being at the time of his death a member of the G.A.R., of Grand Junction Odd Fellows and of Grand Junction Lodge No. 575, B.P.O.E. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. C. M. Henderson, and a daughter, Hessie, residing in Grand Junction . His service was in Co. D, Twenty-fourth New York Infantry and later in the Fifth Veteran Reserve Corps.

OTHER RECENT DEATHS.

Charles G. Kendall, formerly of the United States Navy, a native of Louisiana, admitted from Los Angeles in 1909, died May 11, aged 64.

Ambrose Searl, formerly of Co. C, First Missouri Light Artillery, a native of Illinois, admitted from Ontario, Cal., in 1900, died May 12, aged 67.

Daniel B. Wesson, formerly of Co. F, Thirty-fifth Iowa Infantry, admitted from Los Angeles in 1913, died May 12, aged 80.

GROVE TRANSFERRED.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, May 16.—One of the most important real estate transactions of the year here was the sale this week of the orange grove owned by Mrs. Marian Hotchkiss of this city to E. W. Collins of Ontario. The grove is situated at Loma Linda and comprises forty acres. It was formerly set to lemons, but was budded some years ago to Valencies and navels and now bears a fine crop. The consideration was reported at $40,000. The grove carries with it Bear Valley water stock. It lies directly south of Loma Linda running up to the foothills.

QUARTERS ENLARGED.

J. G. Vance, who recently leased the corner storeroom of the Mason building at Fourth and Broadway, has just leased from P. D. and Wayne Mason, owners of the property, a store adjoining, formerly occupied by S. Cohn. Cohn in turn has acquired a much larger store in the same building, adjoining the one he has just vacated.

Winning Models in the Recent International Hairdressers Competition

Beautiful Women Use and Recommend

Newbro's Herpicide

A woman to be pretty must have pretty hair. There is a subtle charm about beautiful hair that lends more to personal adornment than all of the skill of all of the "beauty doctors" combined. The hair need not be of extraordinary or abnormal length, but it must have that distinctiveness of appearance that comes from intelligent care, and is the result of perfect hair health.

The most cultured ladies in every community use Newbro's Herpicide; and when you see a head of hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life, it is a fairly good indication that Newbro's Herpicide has been used.

Newbro's Herpicide is the Original Germ-Remedy for dandruff. It eradicates this trouble and stops falling hair. It is the first real scalp prophylactic. A delightful and refreshing hair dressing. Stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

Send 10 cents in stamps to THE HERPICIDE COMPANY, Dept. 111B, Detroit, Michigan, for sample. Two sizes—50c and $1.00. At all Toilet Goods Counters. When you call for HERPICIDE, do not accept a substitute. APPLICATIONS AT PROMINENT BARBER SHOPS.

Kilfoil.

PRISONER SNARLS ON THE STAND.

DEFENDANT USES WORD "LIAR" TO PROSECUTORS.

Declares He Confessed Wrongdoing Before Grand Jury on Promise that Palmer Girl's Name Be Kept Out of Inquiry Into His Sister's Death.

The wear and tear of the long investigation that preceded the trial of Philip Kilfoil, charged with a statuory offense against Lillian Palmer, told on the nerves of both Chief Deputy District Attorney Ford and the defendant, yesterday, and Kilfoil, hunched low in the witness chair snarled as he answered the questions which Ford fairly flung at him.

Court adjourned at noon until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Kilfoil remained on the stand in his own defense and entered an emphatic denial to every charge made against him. After him four character witnesses were called. The session was enlivened by a heated argument between Kilfoil and Ford over the testimony, which the defendant gave before the grand jury in April, the transcript of which was read in court. Kilfoil, according to the transcript, told the grand jury that he was responsible for the Palmer girl's condition.

When this statement was read in court, Kilfoil immediately branded those connected with the investigation made by the District Attorney's office as liars.

"You lied to me," said Kilfoil, addressing Ford. "Boden lied to me and Herne lied to me," and he pounded the arm of his chair. It was a dramatic moment when the primitive passions of the man charged with a heinous offense cropped out and it was several minutes before the courtroom could be quieted.

Kilfoil asserted that he made the statement before the grand jury because the prosecution had promised if he acknowledged this parentage they would see that Lillian Palmer's name was kept out of the investigation of the mysterious death of Mary Kilfoil. Lillian Palmer was one of the four persons who partook of the breakfast at the Kilfoil home on January 2 that resulted in the death of the defendant's sister and in order to protect her, Kilfoil told the jury yesterday that he acknowledged wrong-doing that was wholly false. He said when he made the false statements he felt he was protecting the child and that she would come forth in good time and clear him. He said if she had not been tampered with he was sure she would have cleared him long before this.

English Women's Beautiful Complexions

There is no nation in which the women live as sanely as do the English and there is no nation in which the skins are as fair and clear. Under perfect, natural conditions a well-balanced life would guarantee a beautiful and healthy skin. But the ordinary social and economic American life of today forces the system to furnish so much vital force for action that nerves, eyes and complexions all suffer. In addition to this strain many women further abuse their skin by covering it with pore-clogging powder instead of doing the wise thing—that is, using a lotion which protects and smoothes, without choking the pores.

The reason complexions suffer so much in summer is because powder does not offer sufficient protection against the hot sun. A plain spurmax lotion not only safeguards the skin from the elements, but in itself is a beautifier of great worth. To prepare this lotion at home, dissolve 4 ounces spurmax from druggist's in ½ pint hot water (or witch hazel) and add 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. This applied to the skin becomes invisible and imparts a velvety softness and dainty tint to a rough, faded skin, relieving that shiny, oily appearance, and its use will insure a clear, lovely complexion.

Public Service: City Hall, Courts.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Councilman Conwell and City Attorney Stephens returned from San Francisco yesterday and reported the outlook encouraging for securing the active co-operation of San Francisco and Oakland for the proposed constitutional amendment for city and county consolidation.

The City Council yesterday sent to its Public Utilities Committee the notice of sale for the proposed Pacific Electric elevated road franchise, and speed is urged in the final legislative action.

Released from a convent on a writ of habeas corpus yesterday, Adelaide Rene spurned her sobbing mother at the door of the courtroom and, with an uncle, went to Long Beach. The girl declared her mother had been a tyrant for twenty years. A legal fight over a legacy is pending.

The domestic troubles of a young married couple who failed to have the marriage ties severed in the divorce court have resulted in the only son being ordered to a military academy by the court, the parents being privileged to see him only on alternate Sundays.

AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION.

BETTER OUTLOOK FOR CITY AND COUNTY CONSOLIDATION.

City Attorney and Councilman Conwell Report on Conference With Bay Municipal Officials. Further Meeting to Be Held Next Friday to Decide Upon Policy.

Councilman Conwell and City Attorney Stephens returned from San Francisco yesterday morning and reported to a meeting of the Councilmen the results of their conference with bay municipal officials on the proposed constitutional amendment. They were much pleased over the prospects for the proposed amendment, but a further conference is necessary to decide upon a question of policy—whether there shall be special or general legislation covering the points involved.

In the conferences Conwell and Stephens represented Los Angeles; Messrs. English, Long and Mason represented San Francisco, and Mr. Earle represented Oakland. Step by step the proposed amendment was discussed in all its bearings.

The main question, which is one of policy, is as to whether special provisions shall be made for the conditions appertaining to Oakland and San Francisco, or whether the amendment provisions shall be general. The situation at Los Angeles will be well met by general legislation, but it is conceded that this city should fall into line with the wishes of the bay cities in this matter.

Sentiment there is divided on the subject. It is feared by some that Oakland would oppose general provisions and would insist that special provision be made so as to render certain the defeat of any project for its being swallowed by San Francisco.

Another question of importance that has to be worked out is in regard to school districts and city government. Los Angeles, San Francisco and Oakland each have different conditions in this regard, but under the proposed change the school districts must conform to the city limits. This means that there must be an adjustment of the school district financial affairs, bond issues, etc.

It was decided to hold a further conference between representatives of the three cities next Friday, and at yesterday's meeting of the Councilmen it was decided to send Councilmen Conwell, Betkouski and Wheeler and City Attorney Stephens to San Francisco to attend this meeting, which will be held in Mayor Rolph's office and will be attended by the Board of Supervisors and City Attorney of that city, the Mayor and Councilmen and City Attorney of Oakland.

The Los Angeles men, who leave tonight for a trip up the aqueduct, will proceed from Bishop to San Francisco, and will be granted a week's leave of absence tomorrow morning by the City Council.

FOR FINE HIGHWAY.
SEVEN STREETS IN ONE.

Another step has been taken in the scheme to make a fine highway under one name, to extend from Echo Park northwesterly through Los Angeles and through Tropico. The City Council has adopted the recommendation of the Streets and Boulevards Committee providing for the application of the name of Lakeshore boulevard to Lakeshore avenue, Glendale avenue and Allesandro street to its northerly terminus.

This is preliminary to the larger scheme, which proposes to include Lakeshore avenue, Glendale avenue, Allesandro street, Ivanhoe avenue, Rowena avenue, Rokeby street and Brand boulevard into one highway and give it one appellation.

F. E. Johnson of No. 2316 Baxter street has appeared before the Council urging this change as an initial step to be followed by the improvement of the new highway, making a fine, paved thoroughfare directly connecting Tropico with the business center of Los Angeles.

Johnson has filed with the City Clerk a letter to the Council in which he states that within the past few weeks a canvass of the territory included in these seven streets has been made and that the general sentiment is that the time is ripe to put through this important improvement. He asks the Council to make a personal inspection of the route and states that the Streets and Boulevards Committee of the Chamber of Commerce joins in a hearty recommendation of the project.

PROMPT ACTION.
ON L-ROAD FRANCHISE.

The notice of sale of the franchise for the Pacific Electric elevated road from the Sixth-street depot to San Pedro street, to connect with the city-owned railway, was before the City Council yesterday and was referred to the Public Utilities Committee. This committee will act promptly on the subject and send it back to the Council for final consideration. It is the sentiment of some members of the Council that there should be no more public hearings on this subject and that it should be carried to a conclusion at the earliest possible date, in order that the elevated structure may be completed in time to handle the traffic in 1915.

Fire Board Commends Eley.

The announcement of the Mayor that he has appointed Archie J. Eley as chief of the fire department for the ensuing year was placed before the Fire Commission yesterday and was heartily approved. Assistant Fire Chief O'Donnell stated that he wanted to express the appreciation of the members of the department for Chief Eley and their gratification at his reappointment. Commissioner Yates declared the act was in full accord with the desires of the members of the commission, and Mayor Rose said that he considered Eley a most valuable member of the municipal department and was glad to be able to retain him in the responsible position which he fills and to which he has brought great efficiency.

Municipal Brevities.

W. Arthur Brown, asphalt chemist for the City Engineer's department for the past eight years, has resigned, having closed his official duties last Friday. He will devote his time to private work in the same line. Brown was the first asphalt paving chemist in the municipal department and established here the first laboratory of its kind on the Coast.

The Commerce Club of the Polytechnic High School visited the Council session yesterday to observe the city's method of transacting public business, and then called upon the Mayor and various departments.

The Fire Commission yesterday approved a proposed amendment to the fire line ordinance that requires owners or tenants of property within fire lines to obtain from the Fire Chief or his representative permission to pass within fire lines. The statement was made that at several recent fires much trouble has been experienced in preventing persons from entering burning buildings, presumably for the purpose of removing effects, and there is necessity of having this under control.

The Fire Commission yesterday asked the Public Service Commission for thirty new fire hydrants for the Boyle Heights and East Side districts.

GIRL TRIUMPHS OVER MOTHER.

DAUGHTER ESCAPES CONVENT BY HABEAS CORPUS.

Spurns Parent Who Begs Her to Return Home—Legal Fight Over Legacy to Be Next Step in War Between Pretty French Miss and Her Mother.

Charging that her mother has been a tyrant toward her for twenty years, Adelaide Rene, the pretty French girl who was released from the Convent of the Good Shepherd on a writ of habeas corpus yesterday, joined an uncle and friends and went to Long Beach.

At the door of Judge Bartlett's courtroom, where Miss Rene regained her liberty, she spurned her sobbing mother.

"You must let me go my way and you go yours," said the girl. "I won't live with you and don't want you to bother me any more. I'm tired. But if you ever really need me I'll come."

The parting brought to an end one of the strangest relationships that ever came to the attention of the local courts. Adelaide Rene, now 20, and pretty, said that since she was 5 years old her mother harassed and oppressed her. She said that her mother had an exaggerated suspicion of the child's every act.

The girl's early life was passed in a convent. Last year, when she was released, her mother charged her with incorrigibility and asked that she be made a ward of the Juvenile Court. Judge Wilbur decided against the mother and the girl was freed.

Then the girl was kidnaped from a physician's office and taken to the Convent of the Good Shepherd by her mother. Since last December, Adelaide has been at the convent. Through C. O. Morgan, an attorney, the girl applied for a writ of habeas corpus.

In Judge Bartlett's court yesterday there was a brief proceeding at which the attorney for the Mother Superior at the convent asserted that the authorities do not care to keep Miss Rene there against her will.

Judge Bartlett ordered the girl's release. Mrs. J. A. Rene, the girl's mother, begged Adelaide to accompany her, but the girl refused. Instead she chose the company of her uncle, C. D. Rene of Long Beach, and John B. Akey of Los Angeles.

Shortly afterward a conference was held in the office of Morgan in the California building and the girl decided to make her home with her uncle. She will reside at No. 1124 East Broadway, Long Beach.

Another court proceeding, involving the girl is apt to take place, according to the girl's relatives. Mrs. Ida G. Reddan, an aunt of Miss Rene, died recently at Vallejo. She left the girl property valued at $10,000. It is said that the girl's mother and her grandmother have begun action to contest the will and take the property from Miss Rene. This action, says the relatives, has been brought in Alameda county.

The girl has many wealthy relatives who will care for her, it is said, and who will aid her in her strange controversy with her mother.

CHILD TAKEN AWAY.
PARENTS LOSE CUSTODY.

The marital troubles of Margye and W. S. Farnell, which grew into a divorce suit, a sensational hearing and a denial of the decree to either, ends in their being allowed to see Harold, the 7-year-old son, only on alternate Sundays.

Judge Monroe yesterday ordered the boy to be sent to the Page Military Academy, having declared that in his opinion neither parent is fit to have custody. On alternate Sundays Harold may be with his father or his mother, according to whose day it is. As both love the child this is a hardship both bitterly regret.

BIG SUM FOR MASSES.
WIDOW'S ESTATE DIVIDED.

After providing $1000 for masses, Mrs. Catherine M. Gray, a widow, who died on the 2nd inst., bequeaths $1000 to her sister, Hannah Clements, of Brooklyn; $500 to Mary Madigan, who resided with her at No. 410 West Twentieth street; the home place and the lot adjoining to Gertrude Ponet Montgomery, a niece, and a $10,000 insurance policy to her son, Thomas F. Gray.

The residue of the $250,000 estate is divided equally among the three sons, Thomas F., Joseph H., and William S. Gray, the latter of New York. Mrs. Gray leaves personal property valued at $17,000, and real estate in Los Angeles, San Bernardino and Riverside counties, worth $225,000.

QUITE ENGLISH.

Really, some of the British are very insular, don't you know. An American, riding on a motor bus in London, vouches for the following. A lady glancing over the headlines of an evening paper remarked to her companion, "My dear, they have captured Vera Cruz." To which her friend replied with true British indifference, "Never heard of her; is she a suffragette?" In English society women have to be careful as to whom they may know, don't ye know!

A VALLEY'S PRAISE.

A correspondent from the town of Imperial writes: "There is no news today, but while I am on my feet I would like to remark that God was at His best when He made Imperial Valley. I always believed He had a flaming imagination when He dreamed the Delta of the Colorado. He must have been intoxicated by His sense of the ideal. For I swear to you that this land is the most beautiful on earth, that the fields here are greenest, the flowers the brightest, the butterflies, that never seem to light, the yellowest and brownest (with here and there a shining albino among them;) the birds the most praiseful, the trees the gladdest and the sunsets—oh, the sunsets the most golden! At that hour the dust motes are whirled into sparkling air by winds so soft they do not even whisper, and lo, a shower of gold more wonderful than any gold of earth—not less beautiful because intangible!"

THE FLAG.

To the ignorant and uninspired a flag may be only a piece of colored bunting, and dying for one's country a wasted and unsatisfactory proceeding. The coward may discourse of honor as Falstaff did: "Can honor set a leg? No. Or an arm? No. Or take away the grief of a wound? No. Who hath it? He that died of a Wednesday. What is honor? A word." Yet the anaemic Socialist or self-indulgent idler will speak in vain to red-blooded patriots as to the folly of flag sentiment or the futility of honor.

When the sight of Old Glory flung to the breeze no longer starts the blood racing through the arteries, when the swelling chords of the "Star Spangled Banner" no longer quicken the heart beats, then America has forgotten her past, sullied her present and forfeited her future—then the book of her history has been closed and the volume flung into the furnace lighted by devils.

DRASTIC PROHIBITION.

Chinamen never do things by halves; when they cut off a queue they cut it off at the roots. To stamp out opium dens they are not content with penalizing the sale of opium. To destroy the drug habit they have passed a law that any man under 40 found smoking opium will be immediately shot through the vitals, and any man over 40, under similar circumstances, will be locked up. They make it easier for the old offenders, contrary to the usual proceedings in western courts of justice.

Supposing our American prohibitionists tackled the drink evil in the Chinese fashion. Under such a law we can safely predict a town could be run wide open, and the wider open it was the less signs of drinking would be manifest. But think how many men would register as "over 40" in spite of the general propensity to remain young. And women? Would it affect the average age of the fair sex? But "de feminis nil nisi bonum."

NO LONGER A GAMBLE.

Morals aside, the only difference between business and gambling is the element of chance. The wise man raises a good horse and sells it at a profit or finds substantial value in continued use. The foolish man bets on a race—and loses. The wise man had sound reason as a basis for his belief that raising good horses would pay. The other could have found equally good reason against gambling.

Nothing is more common than the story of a man who made money in Los Angeles real estate. Not long ago The Times printed an account of a man who had owned in succession a number of now immensely valuable corners, had sold them at a profit—but had lived to see them advance amazingly. And the latest buyer is pleased with his bargain.

One man bought a lot ten years ago for a thousand dollars and sold it in April for ten thousand. One paid ten thousand for a corner and sold it in less than two years for fifty thousand. A little group of men bought a farm, platted a subdivision and multiplied their fortune by fifty.

The city grows, and the country in every direction develops. Values everywhere increase because there is substantial reason for it. The judgment of early operators is abundantly justified. To the less discerning it may seem that those successful investors took a chance; that they "risked their money and tried out the proposition." But they certainly won. They reaped a magnificent profit. That is established. Without a known exception investors in Los Angeles property have prospered.

But there are better opportunities now than ever before. The pioneers have demonstrated. They "tried out the proposition" and proved its merit. They have eliminated uncertainty. There is no gamble in emulating their example. In city or suburb or at the beach, in the valleys or the mountains about Los Angeles—in all Southern California—chances at fortune are greater than ever before. The reasonable basis for confidence has succeeded whatever of speculative quality may have seemed at one time to exist.

The man who buys Los Angeles real estate now is certain to win.

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNORSHIP

From expressions of opinion that The Times has received regarding the selection of a woman as the Republican candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, it is apparent that representative citizens, both men and women, not only acknowledge that it is reasonable, but heartily approve of the proposal. A few objections have been made, but in the main they are the same objections that were advanced to keep suffrage from women—the implication that women are not equal to the responsibility. As yet no statutory objection has been urged, and attorneys say they do not think one of that nature is possible; nor any other objection that is particularly convincing, especially to those who have come to a realization of women's capabilities.

Mrs. Robert J. Burdette has called attention to the more or less obvious fact that as "old women" of the politically favored sex have held the office, it might be well to give the "new women" a little consideration. No argument is needed to demonstrate that numerous women have evinced ability, judgment and sincerity, at least equal to that displayed in the office of Lieutenant-Governor within the memory of even children.

Former Judge Wheaton A. Gray sees no valid objection, and goes further in saying: "I would be delighted to work and vote for a woman for Lieutenant-Governor. The Republican party made possible the enfranchisement of women in California, and the greatest of all Republicans, Abraham Lincoln, favored it."

Professional men and women, and especially those who have taken an active or sympathetic part in the campaign for enfranchisement, look upon the suggestion as a grand way in which to show the women of California that they are not only highly respected, but are more than theoretically accepted as the political equals of men, and that they are entitled to share honors and responsibilities with the men.

The women themselves are confident of their ability to fill the position. They have proved, to practically all who were sincerely inclined to doubt, that they have a grasp of governmental affairs which entitles them to consideration; they have done superior work in many public enterprises; they have displayed and maintained an interest in all matters pertaining to the commonwealth, and have given energetic assistance to the furtherance of civic welfare. It is no uncommon thing to elect men to the office of Lieutenant-Governor whose actual political and parliamentarian experience has not been so great as that of many women in California. And in other respects there seems to be no reason for believing that the dignity, judgment and perception of a number of women who could be named is inferior to that of the average man who is given the office.

To many it seems decidedly advisable that the Republican party at this time recognize the right of women to representation in the great offices of the State. It was the Republican party which gave enfranchisement to the women of California, and it is only natural that their appreciation should in a large measure take the form of loyalty to that party. And the party can in no way so effectively attest its faith in the principles of suffrage and the intellectual equality of women than by extending them—at this, the first general election since the suffrage law was passed—a distinctive and highly coveted place upon its ticket. And, as The Times has said before, it would perhaps not only be a gracious but a judicious advance for the party to make possible the nomination of a woman.

However, it must be understood by both those who approve and those who do not approve of the proposal that there is no organization in the Republican party—as in the Progressive party—which can pick and choose the candidates at will. The Progressives have already set up their candidates, saying to the people: "Vote for Johnson and Eshleman, and none others." The mass of Republicans themselves will nominate the candidates for the Republican ticket at the primary election and choose those candidates from the men—and, it may be, from the women—who express themselves as willing to accept the offices. And it is not unlikely that if the suggestion to nominate a woman for Lieutenant-Governor shall meet with as general an approval among all of the men and women of the State as it has in Los Angeles, Pasadena, Redlands and neighboring communities, the candidacy of a woman for that nomination would be strong enough to overcome any opposition that might arise. But after the woman has been placed on the ticket then the entire party organization will support her and elect her.

WHAT COSTUME SHOULD A WOMAN LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR WEAR?

Such wide and intense interest is manifested in the proposal to nominate a woman for Lieutenant-Governor that the question has arisen, what would be the appropriate manner of her dress, in the event of her election, while presiding over the Senate. In many States the judges wear an established costume on the bench, and it seems to be appropriate to discuss that which would be most fitting for a woman raised to so dignified an office as that of Lieutenant-Governor.

Some readers may think that this discussion is premature, as it is by no means certain that a woman will be elected or even nominated. But that is no reason why the interesting question should not be considered.

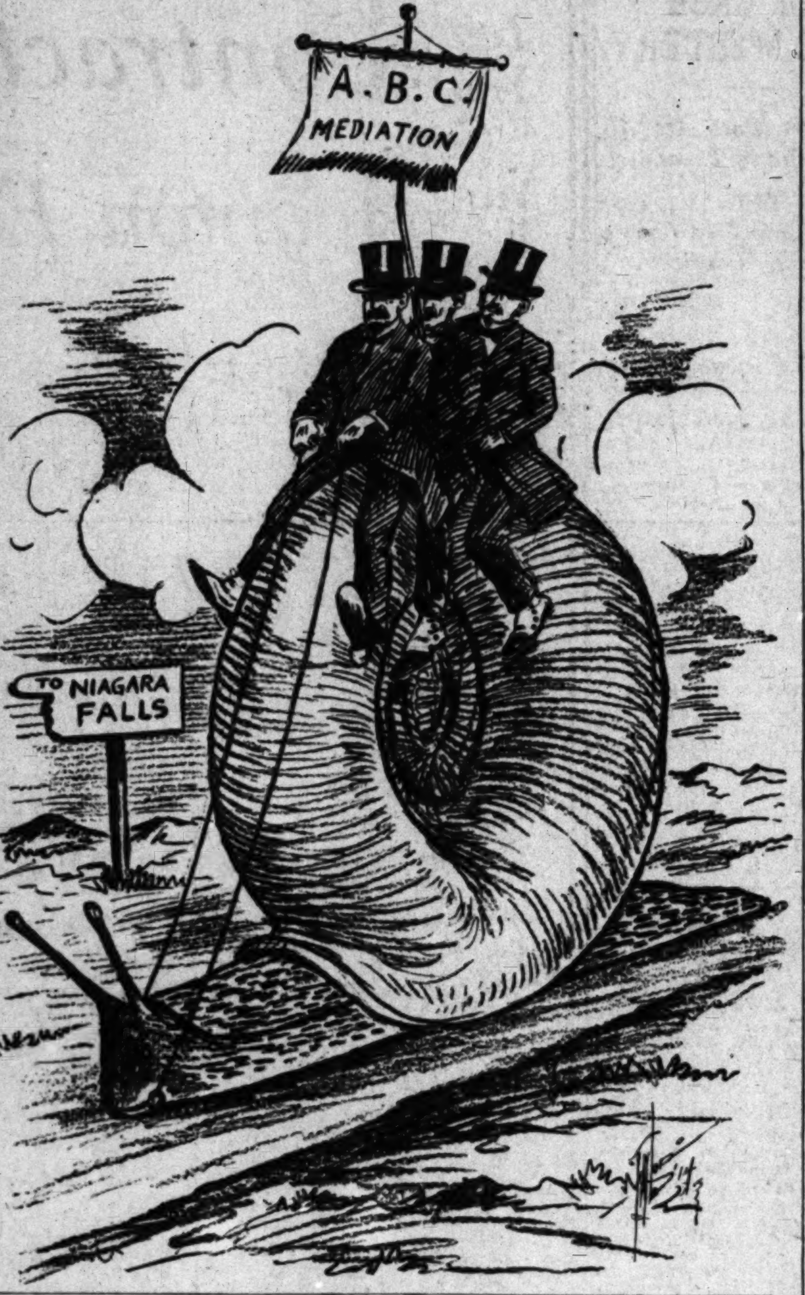
Of course, when in her house, on the street or about her private affairs, her dress would be entirely a matter of personal taste. But as the representative of the people, and holding the second most important office in the State, it is reasonable to expect that she would gladly defer to the taste of the citizens.

On this question The Times invites suggestions and ideas from its readers. Let no one think that this is not a question of dignity. It is. The precedent that would be established by the first woman Lieutenant-Governor would in all probability be perpetuated.

The Times suggests that the official costume should be noble and elegant, yet simple; with superb and commanding lines, modeled on the classic style. It could appropriately be made of black velvet, or black silk, with perhaps lace and a touch of braid, but no gewgaws and flumadiddles to detract from the dignity of the office.

The Times does not think that any woman whom the citizens of California might elect to that office would be lacking in taste or incompetent to choose a costume simple and effective. In fact, we are inclined to believe that the inclination on the part of the woman Lieutenant-Governor, in her wish to be moderate and inconspicuous, would be to select a costume too simple and modest. But if this question of the appropriate costume is given full and illuminating discussion, she will know the public's opinions and wishes in this regard, and thus be given assurance that the costume selected will be one thought appropriate by the citizens whom she represents.

While the War Goes On.



We think it obvious why all this is not out of place, though no such discussion has arisen in California over the dress of the men who have held the office. By what men may well term good fortune their style of dress does not vary to anywhere near the same degree as that of women. There are many people of the opinion that there should be a ceremonious costume for public officials when attending to their duties, as is worn in many States by judges and by the judges of the Supreme Court; and The Times feels that particularly in the costume that should be worn by a woman Lieutenant-Governor there is reason for discussion and comment.

THE BISHOP'S WARNING.

Bishop Johnson sounded a deep, full note of warning in his masterly address delivered before the Episcopal church convention. Though intended primarily for the guidance of the men engaged in carrying on church work in his own diocese of Southern California, his words might be read with interest and profit by every one of our citizens. In brief, he made an earnest plea for the spiritual in human affairs, that men and women should remember that social, material and worldly success are not ends in themselves, but only means to an end.

At the present time, in the vast industrial expansion, in the restless rush for novelty everywhere manifest, there is a danger of our losing some of the true spirit that must be behind all advance and all pleasure to make it permanent or satisfying.

Behind national prosperity must be pure patriotism; behind business enterprise must be unswerving honesty; behind the making and changing of laws must be unimpeachable justice to all; behind the spread of religion must be ever the ideals of the Master. However obvious they may appear, from time to time it is well to draw attention to these principles.

Religion needs the help of business, but not half so badly as business needs the offices of religion. Patriotism depends on the sinews of commerce, but not nearly so vitally as the sinews of commerce depend upon patriotism. Justice calls for not a multiplicity but an enforcement of laws. The spirit in which a thing is conceived and accomplished is the only motive power. The wings of an aeroplane are its most conspicuous feature, but the unseen engine is the secret of its flight.

Apparent success at all costs is actually today causing us to hold too lightly the ideals of government on which this republic was founded. The churches are catching the modern measles. As the bishop said, "The scramble for large congregations and large contributions, with no regard for the character of the means employed, becomes a mad one."

A burnt-cork minstrel show, held in the chancel of a cathedral, might result in the immediate attraction of large crowds and ensure an ample silver collection for a good cause, but it would kill the cause and the church that employed such methods. A welter of laws and ordinances, scribbled all over the statute book of a State, to suit "the passing shows of 1913"—or any other year—might bring immediate votes to a get-there-quick political party, but later on it would destroy popular confidence and kill the hurry-up party that so trifled with the deep, earnest truths of statesmanship.

A society leader might gain an immediate spot in the limelight by giving tango dances to the strains of the "Dead March" in Saul or hesitation waltzes to Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus," but the disgrace will be as permanent as the fame was transitory. Methods, incongruous or disorderly, always defeat their own objects. A state, a society, a religion without a spiritual side is already passing from the physician to the undertaker.

Apparent success is never worth the cost. On the other hand, through a natural reaction, those who consider the spirit before the substance, those who stick to their convictions and ideals regardless of passing favor or disfavor, those whose ends are dignified, not disgraced, by their methods eventually win material success, as Solomon's choice of wisdom inevitably brought him riches.

Nobody ever lost by aiming high. A bulls-eye in the open at 2000 yards is better than a hundred bells rung in a fifty-foot shooting gallery. Working on a spiritual basis means waiting for a far-off success that shall be worth while, instead of growing puffed up over minor achievements that by tomorrow night the next door neighbor has forgotten.

Spiritual work is the hardest, least recognized, slowest and most discouraging that a human being can put his hand to, but it is in the long run far and away the most satisfying.

FIELD PERILS.

WALT MASON IN THE TIMES.

The farmer plants his field of corn—the kind that doesn't pop—and hopes that on some autumn morn he'll start to shuck his crop. And shuck his crop he often does, which is exceeding queer, for blights and perils fairly buzz around it through the year. I think it strange that farmers raise the goodly crops they do, for they are scrapping all their days against a deadly crew. To plant and till will not suffice; the men must strain their frames, to kill the bugs and worms and mice, and pests with Latin names. The cutworms cut, the chinchbugs chinch, the weevil weaves its ill, and other pests come up and pinch the corn and eat their fill. And then the rainworks go on strike, and gloom the world enshrouds, and up and down the burning pike the dust is blown in clouds. And if our prayers are of avail, and rain comes in the night, it often brings a grist of hail that riddles all in sight. And still the farmers raise their crops, and nail the shining plunk; none but the kicker stands and yawps, and what he says is bunk. If all men brooded o'er their woes, and looked ahead for grief, that gent would starve who gaily goes to thresh the golden sheaf.

MORE MONEY IN DANCING.

[San Francisco News Letter:] The Oakland Observer wants to know why charming Mary Shafter was dropped from the faculty of the University of California. Not because of incompetency, for Mary is a perfect wonder in her work. You see, she has been instructing future pedagogues in the round of folk dances, which by educational deduction have been found so essential to American education. Mary received early suggestions of the coming invasion of the dances from over the sea, and at the conclusion of her college work went East to become one of the first exponents of the fad. In the meantime, dancing has grown to universality, and the sagacious Mary has gone with the tide. Her modern ballroom classes are the swaggerest on the east side of the bay, and keep her busy every hour in the day. The story runs that the regents and whoever else has to do with faculty employ have come to think that Miss Shafter's ardent devotion to the tango and others of the modern dances is too pronounced for the dignity of a university instructress; that the air of frivolity that breathes from her society dancing has a deleterious effect on the sweet young co-eds at this formative period of their careers. To which, sans doute, the clever Mary snaps indifferent fingers, for the income of a University attache compels a most frugal existence, while a successful society dancing teacher of today reaps a harvest of golden ducats.

THE POLLS NOW OPEN.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

While acquiring a little polish at a downtown shoe embellishing parlor a little, beetle-browed man with a barb-wire mustache passed the stand. He was about as imposing as a jack rabbit on the background of Mt. Olympus, but the artisan dropped his brushes and saluted impressively with the salutation: "Good morning, judge!"

"Howdy! Tony," said the judge, and passed on.

"He's got a bum forehead for a judge," I exclaimed, coldly.

"Why, don't you know him, boss?" queried the artist in mild scorn. "That's Judge Toots; he's judge of election in the 139th precinct. Everybody knows him!" And Tony looked on me with as much compassion as the king of the bootblacks can show for a reformed journalist.

This overwhelming plethora of elections is developing a class of pop-gun politicians who strive to eke out a living by practicing small-bore politics. They are petty officials in their respective voting precincts; they attach themselves like barnacles to party committees; they are on the campaign staffs of candidates; they are circulating petitions for special elections; they gather names for the Great Register, and they fetch and carry for the organization to which for the moment they profess allegiance. In any event they gain a semi-official standing that makes them seem of some importance to a mass of unthinking citizens. This gives them a certain sense of satisfaction, even if the life that goes with it is somewhat precarious. They would rather bark at the heels of some statesman than to have a real job with a responsible house and a pay envelope every Saturday night.

In Kentucky a man who has presided at a horse race continues a judge, and in several States one who has served his community as a peace justice is called judge to his dying day, but we hate to see the title cling to the man who counts our ballot on election days.

When there is an election every other day these gentry do, of course, keep in the public eye to some extent, but elections do not always draw a crowd, and if they keep piling 'em up it may pan out the way it does in some districts in the South, where about the only ballots cast are by election officials. The ballot is a comparatively new thing to our illustrious companions, the ladies, but they are already tiring of the toy. They don't dress up for an election any more, and therefore voting has ceased to be a function. It is a cross between a duty and a summons, and therefore not popular. I remember when my fascinating neighbor, Gladys Canby, cast her first vote. She wore a wonderful creation of cerise charmeuse with a vestee and collar of cream organdie, all margined with wide silk braid. She had gloves and stockings to match, and when she swept into the election booth it was like a queen ascending her throne.

I caught her again when they were dragging her out for the power bond election and asked her what she was going to wear.

"Oh, piffle!" she exclaimed, "any old thing. I'm wearing a rough-neck sweater and a khaki skirt!"

What can you expect of an election when the ladies feel that way about it?

Men about town and sports in general find that elections come so often they can't make books on them. In fact, about all the betting, freak and otherwise, is saved up for the Presidential contest. There are so many different kinds of elections that the fraternity has been compelled to classify them after its own fashion. A recall is known as a "bob-tail;" a bond election is a "jack pot;" a primary is an "ante;" a license election is a "blind;" an annexation election is a "straddle;" a referendum on a question of public policy is a "split;" a judicial election is a "show-down;" a school election is a "full house;" a regular city or county election is a "straight," and a Presidential contest is a "royal." Those who have flirted with the freckled pasteboards or dallied with poker when it is hot will comprehend some of these terms and realize how closely they apply.

With three elections a month and campaigns costing from $15,000 to $50,000 apiece, it is small wonder that the taxpayers' sleep is troubled. There was a strange dream in my own noodle the other night. It seems that I was at sea on the faithful scow, Mary Ann, but we struck a rock when two thousand acres from the shore and were sinking fast. The boats had all been swept away, and death was imminent. But the captain and crew climbed into the basement of the ship and began to bring up the bars of pig-iron that made up the cargo, and with them we constructed a life raft on which fifty-seven of us floated for several days and finally landed on a desert isle where the beach was paved with oysters and the shore lined with cocoanut trees. There we seemed destined to spend the remainder of our days. To occupy the time and to keep us from going mad a passenger from Long Beach, who was a trifle nutty already, suggested that each day we should hold an election for king. The campaign of the incumbent to hold over and of new candidates in rivalry would keep everybody interested and troubles would be forgotten.

It went well enough for the first week, but about the tenth day the vote began to shrink. On the morning of the fourteenth the election officials came to my cave and urged me to turn out and vote. They said they would run me for king if I would, but I merely yawned and begged them to please go 'way and let me sleep.

It appeared that all the survivors received them in about the same way. There had been so many elections that interest had waned and no one wanted to be king of a dodgasted island where every day was election day. The result was that when an American warship passed the next day there was no king to order a salute. The ship sailed on and we all remained on the island till we died.

If there is any moral to this I would like to know what it is. But I will say that, if elections continue to multiply as they are doing under the present system, they will pull off an important one some time, and those most concerned will be too ennuied or forgetful to participate.

Half the elections are without just warrant and many of them without actual result.

TO THE EAGLE.

BY JAMES GATES PERCIVAL.

Bird of the broad and sweeping wing,
Thy home is high in heaven,
Where wide the storms their banners fling,
And the tempest clouds are driven.
Thy throne is on the mountain top;
Thy fields the boundless air;
And hoary peaks, that proudly prop
The skies, thy dwellings are.

Thou sittest like a thing of light,
Amid the noontide blaze:
The midday sun is clear and bright;
It cannot dim the gaze.
Thy pinions to the rushing blast,
O'er the bursting billow, spread,
Where the vessel plunges, hurry past,
Like an angel of the dead.

Thou art perched aloft on the beetling crag
And the waves are white below,
And on, with a haste that cannot lag,
They rush in an endless flow.
Again thou hast plumed thy wing for flight
To lands beyond the sea,
And away, like a spirit wreathed in light,
Thou hurriest, wild and free.

Thou hurriest o'er the myriad waves,
And thou leavest them all behind:
Thou sweepest that place of unknown graves,
Fleet as the tempest wind.
When the night-storm gathers dim and dark
With a shrill and boding scream,
Thou rushest by the foundering bark,
Quick as a passing dream.

Lord of the boundless realm of air,
In thy imperial name,
The hearts of the bold and ardent dare
The dangerous path of fame.
Beneath the shade of thy golden wings,
The Roman legions bore,
From the river of Egypt's cloudy springs,
Their pride, to the polar shore.

For thee they fought, for thee they fell,
And their oath was on thee laid;
To thee the clarions raised their swell,
And the dying warrior prayed.
Thou wert, through an age of doubts and fears,
The image of pride and power,
Till the gathered rage of a thousand years
Burst forth in one awful hour.

And then a deluge of wrath it came,
And the nations shook with dread;
And it swept the earth till its fields were flame,
And piled with the mingled dead.
Kings were rolled in the wasteful flood,
With the low and crouching slave;
And together lay, in a shroud of blood,
The coward and the brave.

And where was then thy fearless flight?
"O'er the dark mysterious sea,
To the lands that caught the setting light,
The cradle of Liberty.
There, on the silent and lonely shore,
For ages, I watched alone,
And the world, in its darkness, asked no more
Where the glorious bird had flown.

"But then came a bold and hardy few,
And they breasted the unknown wave;
I caught afar the wandering crew;
And I knew they were high and brave.
I wheeled around the welcome bark,
As it sought the desolate shore,
And up to heaven, like a joyous lark,
My quivering pinions bore.

"And now that bold and hardy few
Are a nation wide and strong;
And danger and doubt I have led them through,
And they worship me in song;
And over their bright and glancing arms,
On field and lake, and sea,
With an eye that fires and a spell that charms,
I guide them to victory."

[illegible] Levi P. Bunce, No. 4217 [illegible] an experienced [illegible] evidence that he has [illegible] the long-lost secret. He [illegible] of copper which ap[illegible] in ductility and in re[illegible]; he asserts that [illegible] that he can take crude [illegible] harden it as steel only [illegible]

"I needed a spring of less ductility than steel and tried copper. Repeated experiments showed that copper could be tempered and after twelve years I perfected the process to my own satisfaction.

"What am I going to do with it? Well, if anyone wants it he can pay for it. I am an old man, with few years to live, and money means nothing to me. But the secret belongs to my family and will remain in its keeping until it is worth while for them to part with it."

How soon it will be worth while for anyone to purchase the long-lost secret of tempering copper is problematical. Dr. Bunce, however, asserts that tempered copper has a use as a sheathing for ocean-going vessels. As is well known, barnacles will attach themselves to any substance excepting copper. The reason is imperfectly understood, though is supposed to have some relation to the dissolvent action of verdigris, otherwise known as copper-rust. The removing of barnacles from the bottoms of vessels is an expense item which all shipping concerns recognize as among the inevitable.

In the British navy an attempt was made some twenty years ago to eliminate this item by covering the iron hulls of vessels with sheet copper. But it was found that sheet copper was lacking in resistent properties. Consequently, the experiment was abandoned.

With tempered copper it will be different. It may even become possible, if copper declines sufficiently in price, to construct boat bottoms of copper.

"I am negotiating with a boat-building concern," said Bunce yesterday, "for the use of my process.

"Expensive! No, my method of tempering copper is inexpensive. I use nature's own processes."

HARRELL CASE STILL MYSTERY.

Parties in the Case Are All Said to Be in Texas.

Rebels Maintain Law Courts in Cananea District.

Judge Defends Jury Which Acquitted Prisoner.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BISBEE (Ariz.) May 14.—Little more has been learned in the Harrell murder case, though it is believed by the officers that there has been a concentration of all interested parties at Webb City, Tex., the home of Harrell's parents, to whom his body has been shipped. From Los Angeles has been learned that the woman, "Minnie," who write Harrell two letters a day for weeks, is believed to have gone to Texas, instead of to Bisbee, though she had written should would come here. From Los Angeles has come a pocket-flash light, apparently sent by J. Stafford, No. 924 West Tenth street, though the writing is similar to the woman's.

SALESMAN MISSING.

James Dick, head of an El Paso wholesale-house, has gone on to Los Angeles from Bisbee, hunting for T. B. Grace, a former salesman for his company and later connected for a brief spell with the Rio Grande Musical Comedy Comedy, as manager. Grace left here, it is believed with a feminine member of the chorus, headed westward. After his departure, there were charges that he had been very careless in the drawing of checks and a man erroneously supposed to be Grace was arrested at Yuma. Beyond all of this are charges that Grace has cashed large checks belonging to the Dick Company and has appropriated the proceeds to his own uses. One of these checks, from a Cananea firm, was for $500. Dick, who is accompanied by an El Paso officer, already has enlisted the efforts of the Los Angeles police.

REBELS RUN COURTS.

That the Constitutionalists are maintaining the law courts is shown by the release yesterday at Cananea of B. S. Pelzer, who had been under arrest for about six weeks, and, who for about a month had been held in the jail at Cananea. The jail doors were thrown open on receipt of a mandate of the Supreme Court of the State of Sonora, at Hermosillo, to which Pelzer had appealed for the right to give bond. The high court did even more than expected and wholly dismissed the action. The charge was that Pelzer had counterfeit money in his possession. This was not denied, but was considered merely an incident of the defendant's banking business. There had been many reports about the disposition that had been made of the banker, who was said to have been sentenced to eight years imprisonment, removed to Hermosillo and shot. He will return to Canana and reopen his business-house.

JUDGE DEFENDS JURY.

Superior Judge J. E. O'Connor has come to the defense of the jury that acquitted Roy Haigler of the killing of two men in a Bisbee restaurant. One of the men, the judge states, was shot accidentally, while the other, Wall, had been threatening Haigler and was feared by the latter, to whom had gone a former female associate of Wall's. So when Haigler, seated in a restaurant box with the woman, saw Wall appear in the box entrance, apparently in truculent mood, he lost no time in shooting.

An unusual and interesting condition is that J. E. O'Connor and W. A. O'Connor, brothers, are superior judges, respectively, in the adjoining Arizona counties of Cochise and Santa Cruz. This has proved embarrassing on several occasions, as the superior judges often are called upon to preside in the courts of other counties than their own and the decisions of one of the brothers frequently are credited to the other.

SUBWAY IN TUCSON.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) May 15.—Improvements costing $100,000 now are being made by the Southern Pacific Company in Tucson. Plans are being drawn for a subway under the tracks, to allow safer access to the university section, a water-treating plant is to be erected at once and new trackage past the reicing station is being rushed to be in time for the Imperial Valley melon trains that soon will be passing eastward. It is probable that an additional $35,000 will be expended upon a depot eating-house. A part of the local Southern Pacific engineering force is absent, building a twenty-five-mile road for the Reclamation Service from Yuma southward to the international line. The line is to be complete within sixty days, as much of the roadbed is ready, on the top of a long levee.

BIG NEWSPAPER BUILDING.

A handsome three-story building, especially for the use of the Tucson Daily Citizen, is to be erected by O. C. Parker on South Stone aveune, on the location lately vacated by Grace Episcopal Church. The interior is to be fitted up for the uses of the newspaper, with most modern equipment.

Learning that a petition had been started in Tucson seeking his appointment as president of the State University, the Rev. L. W. Wheatley of this city has issued a letter refusing to become a candidate for the honor. It is understood that the regents are considering the names of Dr. H. E. Douglass, now in charge of the departments of physics and astronomy, and Prof. R. H. Forbes, for years director of the experimental station work.

DAMAGE BY FIRE.

On Monday $150,000 damage was done the business section of Deming, N. M., by fire. The heaviest losses were those of the Kinnear Drug Company, $20,000; Clark Clothing Company, $22,000; Clark Grocery Company, $15,000; the Deming National Bank and the Victoria Hotel.

BOY SAVES SISTER.

Victor S. Griffith, Jr., aged 9, of Tucson, has entered the hero class through his plucky action in diving to the bottom of a deep pool of water, northeast of the city, and bringing to the surface his 3-year-old sister, who had sunk, possibly for the last time.

ARIZONA NOTES.

There are local allegations that an egg trust has been evolved in Tucson through the popular demand for local poultry products created by the lately-celebrated "Egg Day," and so an independent association has been formed to fight the Tucson Poultry Association in the field it has considered its own.

Upon the star route carrier from Glamis, Cal., to Cibola on one day last week was placed the task of transporting 800 pounds of Portland cement, mailed in fifty-pound sacks at the Yuma postoffice. Another mail carrier, operating a buckboard from Wenden to Alamo, fifty miles, had a ton of flour dropped for him from a mail car on the Arizona and California Railroad.

Tucson has been made permanent western headquarters for the Eclair Moving Picture Company, which has purchased for its offices the Sorin property on North Main street. There full companies are to be maintained here. This city has been favored because of its clear atmosphere, scenic attractions and the quaintness of its Mexican quarter.

TOO MUCH HYGIENE.

Concentrated Attention Paid to Bodily Ailments and Improvements May Have a Deleterious Effect.

[The Argonaut:] One likes to associate Bryn Mawr College with good sense, but it is a liking that we shall have to restrain if current reports prove to be well founded. We are told that twenty young girls have been selected for a hygienic experiment that will take eleven years to produce its results. These girls are to undergo a special course of training and are to be virtually isolated in such a way as will tend to make them "physically perfect above everything else."

Now, why should a girl be physically perfect above everything else? To the mind unadulterated by hygienic insanities it would seem somewhat more important that girls should be morally and intellectually perfect "above everything else." And how can we expect even physical perfection from girls whose minds for eleven long years are to be concentrated upon their own health, who are to be incessantly reminded of their bodies by every detail of their daily lives. It will be fairly safe to predict that all of these girls will be neurasthenics, dyspepics and hydrochrondriacs. One wonders what their silly mothers are thinking of.

We are hearing a lot too much about the advantages of physical health. Good health is produced not by care, but by a sort of commonsense carelessness, a wise neglect, and an occupation of the mind with things that do not relate wholly to one's self. Too much hygiene can be trusted to undermine even the most robust constitution. Even, a healthy crocodile would succumb, not to germs, but to the fear of germs. The man who is not particularly anxious to live can be killed only with a hatchet. The man who "takes care of his health" is signing his own death warrant.

JAPAN'S COTTON INDUSTRY.

The Number of Spindles in Operation Has Almost Trebled in Only Three Years.

[Baltimore American:] If cotton manufacture is as yet an infant industry in Japan, it is surely a rapidly growing infant. Last year, owing, it is said, to China's increased demand for cotton following the revolution, there was a tremendous increase. Thus the number of spindles in operation had already arisen from 760,000 in 1897 to more than 2,000,000 in 1911, and more than 400,000 spindles were added in 1912. The industry is about fifty years old; in 1882 there were only 30,000 spindles at work. What this imports as regards America is indicated by the Japan Magazine, from which we take the figures above. It says:

"The industry that, more than all others, is bringing Japan more and more into competition with the West, and which has shown the most phenomenal development, is that of cotton-spinning. In the Orient, where cotton may be regarded as a staple of dress, this is but natural: but that Japan can import her raw material and place her goods on the home market and even on the markets of India and China as cheaply as the manufacturers of Europe and America, is what gives food for thought.

"The Japanese cotton spinner is not cutting down his dividends in order to undersell his foreign competitors. The cotton-spinning business has been paying a large profit on the investment.

When No Man Pursues.

PREFERS ARREST TO UNCERTAINTY.

INSURANCE MAN CHARGED WITH FORGING CHECK.

Former Prosperous Angeleno Surrenders to Berkeley Police When His Nerves Are Worn by Imagined Surveillance of Detectives Met on Every Hand.

Everybody seemed to have turned detective, constable or policeman to Robert E. Mills, formerly a prosperous insurance man of this city, after he heard that he was wanted here for the alleged forgery of the name of George E. Brazier, president of the Los Angeles Underwriting agency, to a check for $31.85. He surrendered to the police in Berkeley and was brought here yesterday by the Nick Harris detective agency. In court he was released on his own recognizance until his hearing Wednesday.

The son of wealthy parents, and former sergeant-major in the army, and also former member of the Governor's staff in Missouri, Mills became prominent locally in insurance work when he was vice-president of the insurance firm of Scott, Powell & Keely.

When he withdrew from that firm he went to San Francisco. There he learned that he was wanted on a warrant charging him with forgery.

Immediately he believed that detectives were trailing him. When he talked by chance with a man he happened to meet casually, it always seemed that the man had some ulterior motive, and that the talk always turned to crime and fugitives.

It made him nervous. So he went to Mill Valley, a small town across the bay from San Francisco. He spent the day in quiet there, and was at the station to return to San Francisco when he observed a man watching him closely. The man casually lifted aside the lapels of his coat and displayed a constable's star. Mills said yesterday that he thought, of course, the man had identified him.

"Are you a stranger here?" the constable asked with little geniality. "Yes," said Mills and made ready for arrest.

"Well, I want you ——" and the constable seemed to halt over his words. Then Mills felt that all was over at last and was somewhat relieved.

"You want me for what?" he said. "Well, stranger, I want you to sample some of that spring water over there; they tell me it is the greatest in this part of the country."

The shock of the simple remark almost unnerved Mills. Immediately he went to a telegraph office and gave out the word that he was willing to surrender himself and face trial.

He alleges that he was employed by Brazier, and the latter did not pay him his earnings, and for that reason he appropriated the sum of $31.85 that he had collected, using it, he said, to apply on the sum that was due him from Brazier.

DESERT LAND AVAILABLE.

Entries on Half-Sections for Dry Farming Possible Tomorrow Under New Homestead Law.

Entries of public land under what is known as the enlarged homestead law, recently enacted by Congress, may be made at the local land office beginning tomorrow. Homeseekers may enter 320 acres of desert land instead of 160, as the old law provides.

Records in the local land office disclose the fact that the land subject to entry is in small areas here and there in the eastern and southern end of the land district, for the most part. Under the law only such land as has not been heretofore entered can be taken and Register Buren says that a great deal of the land that under the circular of the General Land Office is eligible to entry, has been preempted or is unavailable by reason of withdrawals.

The land available is only that on which a supply of water for irrigation purposes cannot be secured, and its improvement will necessitate dry farming.

HAND CAUSES ARREST.

Identified by Missing Finger, Cook Goes to Jail as Swindler; Laughs When Released.

The absence of the second finger of his right hand caused John Daniel Bentley, a chef, troubles that began soon after the burning of the famous Hotel Maryland in Pasadena and ended yesterday in his exoneration of a charge of complicity in a notorious Oregon land swindle.

Bentley lost his job when the Maryland, where he worked as a cook, burned. He came here to work in a restaurant on Broadway and was last Thursday arrested, largely because his description, especially in the detail of the missing finger, corresponded to that of Fred Brantner, under indictment for swindling in the sale of timber lands owned by the Oregon and California Railroad.

Immediately after a police officer had taken Bentley to the County Jail, a complaint was duly prepared and proceedings begun for his removal to Oregon.

Yesterday, Bentley was taken before United States Commissioner Williams to ascertain if he could give bail. Witnesses, who knew Brantner when he operated his timber-selling scheme here, declared positively that the chef was the wrong man.

He was not only released but spent half an hour laughing over the indictment against Brantner.

POPULAR EDUCATION.

Y.W.C.A. to Open Summer Physical School—Exhibit and Graduation Exercises Next Tuesday.

The Young Women's Christian Association will conduct a summer school of physical education during June and July, under the direction of Miss Ella Stevers. Besides gymnastics, dancing, swimming and other healthful exercises, there will be tennis and hot suppers at the Huntington Park Clubhouse, picnics and excursions. Young women should look into the details of this two months' training school. Next Tuesday will be exhibit day for the academic and commercial schools, at the association building, and the public is invited to inspect the work. In the evening forty young women will receive diplomas.

Validity of Martial Law.

[London Chronicle:] Martial law, which now obtains over the greater part of South Africa, has not been known in England for considerably over a century. Yet its validity in times of domestic trouble and war is recognized by a clause from the Petition of Rights inserted in the army act which Parliament passes every year. Essentially, martial law means that the ordinary law is suspended, because it is too cumbrous and slow, in favor of summary judgment in times of great stress. The last occasion it was proclaimed in London was the Gordon riots in 1780, and the Jacobite rebellions of 1715 and 1745 brought about the same state of affairs throughout Great Britain.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at first sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

PLANS FIRE PREVENTION.

Forest Supervisor Will Have Mt. Wilson Trails Patrolled Day and Night During Summer.

Supervisor Charlton has arranged for a day-and-night patrol of the Mt. Wilson trail, to avoid fires in the brush. He estimates that on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays not less than 30,000 people make the long hike during the season, and many fo the travelers are not careful about scattering fire and papers along the trail.

In order to make further provision against fires, it is proposed to deliver a series of lectures to the school children in the valley towns just previous to the coming summer vacation, on the care that is necessary in order to prevent forest fires. The first of these lectures, to be delivered by William Hodge of the San Francisco forest office, will be to the scholars of the Uplands High School, and San Bernardino and Pasadena will probably folloy.

In order to prevent as far as possible recurrence of summer fires on Mt. Wilson, the Mt. Wilson Resort Company and the Carnegie Observatory organization have agreed to employ at their own cost during the fire season a forest ranger, who will patrol the summit and vicinity and look out for fires.

Pasadena Idea.

HAVE HAD "OLD WOMEN;" TRY A "NEW WOMAN."

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, May 16.—Pasadena women and men, too, today expressed themselves candidly in favor of a woman for Lieutenant-Governor. Here are some of their statements:

Mrs. Robert J. Burdette: If ever a country needed mothering it is our country, and of all the States that need it now California can lay strongest claim, with its peculiar problems in the next four years. Our State government, while not paternal, is greatly in need of the characteristic influence that is peculiarly woman's—courage—for the courage of motherhood is greater than that of battle; justice that is untainted with self-interest, high principle that is uncolored by party precedent, and independence that is born of recent enfranchisement. The attitude of the women of California since the franchise became their privilege has marked them as possessing executive ability, intelligence, sanity and sincere earnestness, and there is no reason if the capable woman is sought and consents to be nominated and is elected for Lieutenant-Governor, or any other high office, why she should not serve. We have in the past had some "old women" for Lieutenant-Governors. Why not try a "new woman?"

Mrs. Clara M. Odell, member Pasadena Board of Trade and the first woman elected to a public office in Pasadena: The idea is all right if the time is ripe, and I shouldn't wonder if it is. I do not think a woman should be elected to the office just because we have woman's suffrage in California and a woman may hold the office, but if a candidate is found who has the requirements—and there surely are many such—there is no reason why she could not be quite as efficient in office as a man. As to the physical exertion of attending the work involved, I do not think that would be found to be too great.

Former Mayor T. P. Lukens: It seems to me to be altogether a question of what the women want themselves. It is my suggestion that the women of the State take a straw vote at their clubs and thus ascertain what is their desire in the matter. I am for suffrage, and have been. It is only with me a question of whether the time has arrived for a woman to hold such an office. I think very probably it has.

Mrs. Calvin Hartwell, president of the Shakespeare Club: I have no doubt that we have many women in the State who are capable of holding the office of Lieutenant-Governor so far as their mental qualifications go. Whether or not a woman could stand the physical strain is another matter. I am not so sure of that, but if one could it would be a very admirable thing to have a woman in the office. Women make fine presiding officers. They are especially adapted to preside over conventions and many of them have had much experience along this line. I know there are many women who would be equal to the office—unless it were that, as I say, the physical strain of presiding over such long-drawn-out sessions as are sometimes held would be too great. There are many women we would be proud of in the office.

H. J. Stuart, president of Union National Bank: I am always desirous of giving the women all they want. If they desire to have a woman nominee for Lieutenant-Governor on the Republican ticket I don't see why they should not have one. I think it would be a good idea.

W. F. Knight, president of Pasadena Board of Trade: If the women of California want to see one of their sex in the office of Lieutenant-Governor I have no objection. My five years' experience in Colorado taught me conclusively that women are eminently fitted for members of the school board, juvenile court and many positions where a woman's intuition and good judgment can be brought into action.

REDLANDS STARTLED. SOME SKEPTICS THERE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, May 16.—This city woke up with a start at the possibilities contained in The Times' suggestion that it might be a good thing to nominate a woman for Lieutenant-Governor of California. It set people thinking and expressing their opinions freely. Some of those who spoke of the matter and what they had to say are:

Mont P. Chubb, politician: It would be a mistake to place a woman in such an important position—not that any woman could be much worse than some of our recent administrations have been. It would, in my opinion, however, be tempting Providence to put a woman in such a position and I draw the line at it sharply.

Halsey W. Allen, attorney: Women with the same political rights as men might be trusted to fill important political positions. At the same time it is my opinion that there are few, if any, women at present sufficiently acquainted with parliamenttary law to preside over the Senate, which would be part of the duty of a woman Lieutenant-Governor.

Robert Hornbeck: I am heartily in favor of the movement. Women in office certainly couldn't make a worse mess of it than the men have, and they might do better.

Mrs. S. L. Beiler, president Contemporary Club: I am unqualifiedly in favor of the movement. It is a startling suggestion, but I could name several women in Los Angeles who are eminently fitted to fill the position of Lieutenant-Governor and who would undoubtedly transact all the business connected with such an important post fully as efficiently as could a man.

Miss Artena Chapin, head of A. K. Smiley library: I believe the time is not ripe for a step so radical. I cannot recall at the moment any woman who would be fitted to fill such a post and think it behooves the women themselves to move pretty carefully in the matter of accepting new and pressing responsibilities.

Mrs. Sarah M. Johnson, club woman and student: I approve trying out women in public office, but feel that they should gradually work up to the important offices from those lower in the scale of importance. I consider that to nominate a woman for the next to the highest office in the State as a beginning might not be altogether good policy.

IDEA "TAKES" IN SAN BERNARDINO.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, May 16.—The idea of a woman Lieutenant-Governor "takes" here, as the following expressions show:

Mrs. H. M. Barton: I think it would be great for California to elect a woman to such an important office. A woman could fill the place as well as a man and I hope that this State will take the lead in putting her there.

Dr. A. K. Johnson: If there can be found a woman as good an executive as Queen Elizabeth, I would be in favor of electing her, not to the second place, but as Governor.

Mrs. W. H. Stiles: It would be quite an innovation.

Mrs. C. M. Grow: After attending the recent State Federation of Women's Clubs at Riverside I am convinced that there are many women in the State who have plenty of executive ability for such an office.

Rev. M. B. Shaw: I indorse the idea heartily.

Mrs. George N. Gish: As long as the women are in harness in this State, I am heartily in favor of placing one in nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. There is no sex difference now in politics.

George H. Seager: The move to place a woman in nomination for Lieutenant-Governor on the Republican ticket has my support.

Mrs. J. W. Bishop: It is possibly a bit too previous for women to take an active part in State affairs. Perhaps they should remain in municipal politics until they get more experience, but as far as executive ability is concerned, I think the woman has as much as the man.

IN RIVERSIDE. SOME WOULD, SOME WOULDN'T.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, May 16.—Many of the leading local men and women would like to see a woman Lieutenant-Governor of California. Some take the opposite view. They say:

Dist.-Atty. Lyman Evans: There is no impropriety in putting a good, strong woman into that office. There are many capable women in the State who could fill the position. Yes, I think it would be wise for the Republicans of the State to nominate a woman, although the place is rather a strenuous one when the Legislature is in session. There are many strong parliamentarians among the women of the State.

H. L. Graham, president Chamber of Commerce: It is rather a startling innovation which The Times proposes, but I have no doubt there are many women in the State who would be entirely capable of filling the position.

Mrs. H. E. de Nyse, recording secretary California Federation of Woman's Clubs: There are undoubtely women in the State capable of holding the office. A dozen I could name who could do so with credit. Men don't give the attention to details that women do. There is no question about the ability of women as presiding officers. A woman presiding over the State Senate would not for one minute allow the present filibustering of the men politicians.

Superior Judge F. E. Densmore: The office of Lieutenant-Governor is a sort of fifth wheel. There is not much to do in the office. I should say it all depends on the woman. There is no question in my mind as to woman's capability. No one who attended the sessions of the recent convention of the California Federation of Woman's Clubs in this city can have any doubt as to the ability of women as parliamentarians. There are many women who could preside over the Senate. I don't know any reason why a woman shouldn't be nominated.

Mrs. J. H. Holland, president local Federation of Woman's Clubs: It doesn't seem to me that the time is ripe for a woman to take that responsible position. The time will come, however, when women must be recognized, but political responsibility has rested upon her shoulders for so short a time that I don't think there is a woman in the State capable of taking the office and doing honor to the women of California.

Former City Attorney W. A. Purington: I have no objection to a woman in the office provided she is qualified for the position, but the demands of the office upon the physical strength are great. I can't see any particular reason why the Republican party should nominate a woman for the place. There are plenty of capable men.

TO SAVE EYES

Is the Object of This Free Prescription—Try It If Your Eyes Give You Trouble.

Thousands of people suffer from eye troubles, because they do not know what to do. They know some good home remedy for every other minor ailment, but none for their eye troubles. They neglect their eyes, because the trouble is not sufficient to drive them to an eye specialist, who would, anyway, charge them a heavy fee. As a last resort they go to an optician or to the 5 and 10-cent store, and oftentimes get glasses that they do not need, or which, after being used two or three months, do their eyes more injury than good. Here is a simple prescription that every one should use:

5 grains Optona. (1 Tablet.)
2 ounces Water.

Use three or four times a day to bathe the eyes. This prescription keeps the eyes clean and quickly overcomes inflammation and irritation. Weak, watery, work-strained eyes, granular lids and other similar troubles are greatly benefited and oftentimes cured by its use. Many who wear glasses have discarded them after using it for a few weeks. It is good for the eyes, and will not injure the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged. The Owl Drug Company or any other druggist can fill this prescription promptly. Try it, and know for once what real eye comfort is.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashmed of your freckles, as the prescription othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Dr. G. F. Holt, pastor of the First Baptist Church: The question as to who shall hold the office should depend entirely upon personal fitness. The proposal would be all right provided the woman had the needed knowledge of political conditions. Just at present, however, I think the men are better qualified than are the women. But it is a question of who is the most available person, man or woman.

Mrs. H. A. Hammond: If the Republicans can get a woman who is capable and has ability, I see no reason why she shouldn't be a candidate. As long as the women have suffrage in this State it's all right for them to take upon themselves the responsibilities of office. The wisdom of nominating a woman at this time would depend upon the woman, I think.

Mrs. H. A. Atwood, member of the Board of Education: My feeling is that it is better for women to stay out of office for awhile. I don't think the time is ripe to place a woman in the office of Lieutenant-Governor.

BREEZY REMARKS. HEARD IN POMONA.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, May 16.—There is strong sentiment here in accord with The Times' suggestion of a woman Lieutenant-Governor, and also some decided expression of opinion the other way. Following are some breezy remarks heard today:

George Phillips, capitalist and prominent Republican: I heartily favor a woman nominee for Lieutenant-Governor.

J. A. Fitch: First I want to say I'm not for Johnson; neither am I for a woman Lieutenant-Governor. I don't believe in it.

L. L. Lostutter, member Republican County Central Committee: I am for it strong.

Charles A. Walker, president First National Bank: It makes no difference to me; would rather have a capable woman in office than an incompetent man.

C. D. Baker, cashier Savings Bank: I do not approve of it.

Charles M. Stone, cashier First National Bank: Woman's place is in the home.

Mrs. Mel Campbell, prominent club woman: I don't see why a woman cannot serve efficiently in such a high office. She has certainly proven her executive ability in club and other work.

Mrs. J. W. Wilkinson, secretary of the library: I am particularly enthusiastic over the proposition just now.

PROS AND CONS. VENTURA SENTIMENT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, May 15.—Ventura county Republican voters are divided in their opinions on the proposition of a woman candidate for the office of Lieutenant-Governor on that ticket. They express themselves as follows:

James Blackstock: Of course, it largely depends on the woman, but I do not see why she could not fill the office all right, and then I believe a woman candidate for the place would add strength to the whole ticket.

F. W. Baker: The proposition does not appeal to me. A woman might be fully as good as a man for the place and a great deal better than a good many of the men we have had in the position.

M. E. V. Bogart: I would not favor the plan of a woman for Governor, and if she was in the office of Lieutenant-Governor, she would be in line for the higher place in an emergency.

N. B. Smith: I do not think the time is ripe for such an experiment yet.

H. A. Giddings: The plan meets with my hearty approval.

Phares Myers: I would not approve of it at all as the time is not yet ripe.

W. H. Barnes: I have given the subject no thought whatever, but do not see why it should not be. Of course, it depends upon the woman.

John Reppy: Why not a woman for Lieutenant-Governor. Sufficiently capable, she could fill the office as well as a man.

Judge Frank Hobart: If capable and of proper executive ability, there is no good reason why a woman could not fill the bill.

W. E. Ready of Mound: I would not be in favor of the plan, for a woman Lieutenant-Governor might become the Governor, and I have already been governed for thirty-two years by a woman.

IN ORANGE COUNTY THEY LIKE THE IDEA.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, May 16.—Orange county likes the idea of a woman for Lieutenant-Governor, as the following statements indicate:

Mrs. E. M. Mealley: I know of probably three women, who are doubtless as well qualified for such a position one could be without actual experience in the office.

Mrs. E. B. Norman, candidate for Orange county Superintendent of Schools: Why not? It is a matter of qualification. If there is a woman or women fitted for the position, as is undoubtedly the case, there is no good reason why such a nomination should not be made. Women voters are looking for efficiency, regardless of sex or political affiliation.

Mrs. A. J. Lawton, president Santa Ana Valley Ebell Club of 400 members: There are women in California eminently fitted for the position of Lieutenant-Governor officers of large clubs, participation in civic affairs and close study of political affairs. Could one of these women be nominated, I would be greatly pleased to work and vote for her. Otherwise, I would regard the nomination of a woman as unwise.

O. M. Robbins: There should be no question of sex in office. If the interests of the State can be best served by a woman as Lieutenant-Governor, I am for the proposition.

C. S. Crookshank, cashier First Nation Bank: I would not favor the nomination of a woman for Lieutenant-Governor, as I believe public sentiment is against woman occupying political offices.

City Superintendent of Schools J. A. Cranston: I would oppose the nomination of a woman for Lieutenant-Governor, as women have not yet sufficient political or civic experience to fit them for so high and responsible an office. I believe the chances for electing a woman to that position would be poor.

An Ancient Curfew Stilled.

[New York Times:] How old traditions pass is shown by a happening at Wokingham, England, where a curfew, which had tolled for 200 years, is no longer rung. Ten dollars was spent yearly in tolling the bell, the amount being derived from a piece of land on a certain estate which was recently sold. The new owner denies that there is a charge on the land and the charity commissioners, whose opinion was sought, replied that it appeared that the land could not be sufficiently identified. Therefore, it would be impossible on the evidence obtainable for the claim on the land to be successfully maintained.

Honor Womanhood.

by the biggest vote in the history of the State. Equal suffrage is here to stay and it's about time we realized that "woman's right" is not a joke but a stern and laudable reality. I find every one in favor of it.

David Martin: Put me down as a booster for a woman for Lieutenant-Governor. I haven't heard one logical or sane objection advanced against the suggestion for the simple reason that no objection can be found. I'll do all in my power to elect a woman to this office. California women have had ample opportunity to study conditions and become accustomed to political ideas and organization work. The men are boosting just as hard to bring about this end as the women.

HE'D GO ONE BETTER.

Former Judge George R. Davis: The enfranchisement of women carries with it an added responsibility to the State and they should be encouraged to appropriate participation in our governmental affairs. Just how far this should lead them in the direction of office-holding must be largely a matter of development. There are some offices which women fill as capably as men and grace more becomingly, such as those which come directly in touch with the education and training of the youth. There are other offices to which appertain duties often calling for the exercise of a stout heart and iron nerves. It should not be overlooked in this discussion that the Lieutenant-Governor of the State is liable at any time to become the Governor. There is another State office for which I would gladly support a qualified woman. I refer to the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction.

OUGHT TO BRING ACTION.

Mrs. M. H. Pehr, No. 200 St. Andrews place: The Times' suggestion opens a field for discussion that is both curious and interesting and it ought to end in action. I believe if a person is fitted for any office sex should not count against them in making the race. It is high time that women were given more recognition and certainly time that when a big woman appears the rest should be willing to recognize her. Women must begin to hold office and they must be steeled, as men have had to be, against political scandal. I have heard of good men who would not run for office because their private life would be dragged into review. They were not bad men; they had nothing to cover, but they were too sensitive to stand for being so much in the public eye. Women must recognize this feature as a part of the day's work in politics and must not be afraid to take a stand because somebody will say some bitterly personal thing about them.

Mrs. James Westpheling, No. 1130 West Eighth street: I like the plan to have a woman Lieutenant-Governor if for no other reason than that it would allay some of that foolish, old-time prejudice against women in politics which is still too much alive in some quarters. We have many women in this State who could qualify. I am sure not a few have the strength of body and character and the knowledge of parliamentary law that would entitle them to preside over the upper house of our Legislature.

THINKS PLAN IS GOOD.

Mrs. George Goldsmith (Lillian Burkhart,) Third street and Kingsley drive: Say that I think the plan is good. A woman would bring to this office an equipment the place requires. She would bring to the State Capitol an element we have always needed and have never had there. As the Governor's adviser she would give him a woman's counsel about every executive measure that concerns women and that touches the making and execution of the laws affecting children.

Mrs. C. D. Hudson, No. 1003 East Twentieth street: While it may be hard to find the right woman for this important post, I am sure that the State has plenty who would acquit themselves and the party proudly if elected, and I think it is a position that should be filled by a woman. All of the women in the State would appreciate such recognition.

GREATEST MOVE.

Mrs. M. E. Moore, No. 1255 Crown Hill: It is the greatest move the State could make right now, as well as the noblest and wisest step the Republican party could take. I was a Republican when I could not vote and it would give me the greatest satisfaction to see a woman so near the head of my ballot this fall. Place her there and her election will be a certainty. She will run ahead of her ticket.

Mrs. Mary Coote No. 956 West Forty-seventh street: Certainly, let us have women in all positions and if we have the luck to begin at the top, so much the better for us.

Mrs. Fern Dickey, Los Angeles Business College: The time is ripe for women to accept some of the more active responsibilities entailed by equal suffrage. This is one of the offices a woman could fill with ability and with perfect dignity. Of course suffrage is almost too new to be sure of how many women we have who are well prepared for such a task, but then we need only elect one.

Mrs. P. P. Morrison, treasurer Woman's Republican League: Here is our chance to do something worth while for the women. I am grateful to The Times for this brave suggestion. It gives us new courage and hope. I just clapped my hands when I read the editorial in The Times. The Republican party has always stood by the women of the State and nation. There are many women fitted to fulfill the duties of the great office of Lieutenant-Governor.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

French Statistics Give a New Idea of the Fidelity of Widows and the Infrequency of Legal Separations.

[New York Times:] Some interesting conclusions in regard to French character may be drawn from the marriage and divorce statistics of Paris, which have just been published. Of the 31,611 marriages held there in 1912, in only sixty-one cases was the bridegroom more than 25 years older than the bride, whereas 7171 courageous women married men much younger than themselves.

Of 2905 widows, 813 married within a year of their widowhood, while 57 deferred a second matrimonial venture for over a quarter of a century. In other respects, also, the fidelity of the Paris widow is remarkable. Of 2525, only 25 married at all, and these after twenty-five years. It is true that black is becoming, but then, generally, only as a means to an end, and in the foregoing cases the end was postponed as long as possible.

Nineteen hardened bachelors waited till they were three-score and fifteen or over before they took the plunge, and two "jeunes filles" were led to the altar at the age of 78.

As to divorces, six young couples wanted their freedom before either contracting party was 20, and 60 suddenly found each other intolerable at 75. The most frequent motive for divorce has been incompatibility of temperament, which is usually interpreted by a French phrase meaning "the interchange of insults."

JURY DECLARES DAVIS GUILTY

Life Imprisonment to Be the Penalty for Crime.

Deputy Blair Brings Case to Thrilling Climax.

Veteran Hears the Verdict Stoical Silence.

After deliberating less than hours, the jury in the case of Wilson E. Davis, charged with murder of his partner, William Wheeler, at Sawtelle, brought verdict of first-degree murder fixed the penalty at imprisonment life.

There was something way the ex-soldier received the dict, for not a muscle of his changed and he raised his head to take the blow, but the blood swept from chin to tell-tale color that told of the strain under which he was Not for a minute did he cease ing his body to and fro, just has throughout the five-day but his face alternately paled as he followed with each individual juror who to the poll, that "guilty" was verdict.

When the jury retired after lunch recess, Davis took his stand the "bridge" that connects the with the criminal courts. Back forth he paced through the long dious hours, his shoulders erect his head held high. It was o'clock when the verdict was read fore Judge Craig.

Public Defender Wood filed tion for a new trial and Judge set Thursday at 10 a.m. as the for pronouncing sentence.

Deputy District Attorney made a telling plea to the jury day morning. He had woven a fabric of guilt about Davis the eloquence and skill of Wood not shake sufficiently to reasonable doubt in the minds of jurors. Blair showed by ment that Davis brought death of Wheeler in order to the insurance which he had ly taken out on Wheeler's life, death benefit doubled in case the insured life was lost fire.

It was this insurance policy its gaudy gold seal that proved undoing of Davis's well laid when he attempted to collect small part of the insurance confronted with an investigation investigation which in the the jurors his conduct could stand.

The fire insurance policy played a startling part in the viction of Davis. This policy he collected and which Deputy trict Attorney Blair brought the evidence as covering many articles which Davis took from Wheeler house before it was This strange collection of goods might have been pathetic for the tragedy with which they linked. The worn blankets, slippers, the piece of smoke-blackened dishes, which of such value to their owner risked detection to keep them possession, secreted them before fire in order that the flames believed would wipe out the of his crime when they small shack where he lived with partner, would not take up various household articles prized.

The jury retired after hearing uty District Attorney Blair's ament, at 11:34 a.m., and except recess at noon argued the until 4:12 p.m., at which time foreman, W. H. Collins, that a verdict had been reached.

Public Defender Wood the verdict with tightened told Davis that it would be gone into again. Wood's of the defense was a remarkable and but for the mighty chain cumstantial evidence with which confronted the jury, would have his prisoner. Wood was David R. REVERENCE THE FLAG.

Home Flag-Raising Ceremony for Memorial Day to Teach Lesson of Patriotism.

That children may be taught reverence for the flag, and a proper observance of Memorial Day, C. S. Ashley has suggested a home flag-raising ceremony that might with profit be adopted at every home and assist in adding the patriotic feature to the day that Young America is inclined to make a day of sports. Here is the programme:

As the flag is raised, the bugle sounds the "reveille;" children gather around the flagpole and repeat the school "oath of allegiance;" all rise and point to the flag and say, "My flag forever;" all face the city of Washington, wave the right hand and say, "Long live the President;" oration on the flag; lower the flag to half-mast, explain its meaning and also the meaning of "taps;" all bow heads as bugler sounds "taps;" sports and games.

Experiment.

TEA GROWING IS PROJECTED.

CALIFORNIA TO TRY HAND IN NEW INDUSTRY.

English Tea Dealers Testing Conditions in San Diego County and Promise Supply as Feature of Exposition—Commercial Aspect of Industry Staggering.

Tea growing promises to be added to California's already long and varied list of commercial crops. Sir Thomas Lipton made no idle remark when last in California when he stated that conditions here looked favorable for the commercial growth of tea, for English tea dealers are now carrying out experiments in tea growing in San Diego county, promising California-grown tea as one of the attractions to the Exposition to be there held in 1915.

These experimental plantings by experts are undoubtedly in the growth and production of tea similar in character to that produced in India and Ceylon, where the industry is one of immense importance.

Given favorable conditions the possibilities which lay in the production of tea in California may be gathered from the fact that India and Ceylon in 1913 exported, to all parts of the world, 470,000,000 pounds of tea, of which between 11,000,000 and 12,000,000 pounds, valued at point of shipment at some $2,000,000, were sent to this country, and this in addition to the great quantities imported from China and Japan, the United Kingdom and other parts of the world.

In India nearly 600,000 acres of land are devoted to tea growing, largely upon mountain slopes and hillsides, which in 1913 produced 300,000,000 pounds of tea and gave employment to between 500,000 and 600,000 persons, while India's tea exports last year were valued at $44,000,000. The industry which is largely carried on by stock companies has over $90,000,000 invested in it.

Tea growing is now being carried out in this country at Summerville, S. C., and at Southern Pines, N. C.

The greater the number of commercial crops produced with profit the greater will be the prosperity and value of California farming land. This climate and soil, combined with enterprise, are today producing the greatest variety of commercial crops known in any part of the world, and day by day new crops are being introduced which, with but few exceptions, are found to flourish in this land of sunshine, proving a source of profit and revenue to those undertaking their growth in suitable locations. Among these new crops tea undoubtedly holds great inherent possibilities.

Industry Worth Millions.

THE GRAPE AND ITS MANY USES.

GROWERS INVITE PUBLIC TO CONVENTION HERE.

Annual Meeting Next Saturday Under Auspices of Viticultural Commissioners to Be Educational in Character—Prominent Speakers on the Programme.

To educate the general public to the importance of the viticultural industry of the State, the grape growers in their annual convention, to be held in Blanchard Hall next Saturday, will throw open the doors to all who desire admission. The meeting will be under the auspices of the State Board of Viticultural Commissioners, all of whom will be present at the convention.

This educational work is carried out in pursuance of an act of the Legislature creating the commission and defining its duties. Vineyardists in all sections of the State are deeply interested in the outcome and are giving their hearty support to a movement that they feel will benefit their industry by showing that prohibition would destroy property worth many millions.

Secondo Guasti, commissioner of the Fourth District and president of the Italian Vineyard Company, will preside at the coming convention and will introduce among other speakers, Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith, whose topic will be "Viticulture in California;" Prof. Frederic T. Bioletti of the State University will discuss the best grapes for commercial purposes that can be grown in California and State Commissioner H. F. Stoll will explain the manner in which the grape growing industry will be exploited at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. In addition a series of motion picture films depicting all phases of the grape industry will be shown.

The State of California, through the Viticultural Commission is compoling a complete roster of vineyard owners throughout the State and in the future will be prepared to reach all of these with literature regarding the industry. Civic and business men's organizations, as well as some of the women's clubs, have been invited to assist in the plans outlined for dissemination of a greater knowledge of the immensity of grape production in California and the methods employed in curing grapes for raisin, wine or other purposes in addition to the growing of them for table use. California produces more varieties of grapes than any other country in the world.

Unique.

HOMES EXPRESS INDIVIDUALITY.

CITY DIFFERENT MOVEMENT IS ORGANIZATION'S AIM.

European Idea With Western Improvements Attacking the Commonplace, Stupid and Uninteresting Architecture of Residences to Be Tried in This City.

How to make of residences homes that express the individuality of the occupants is the aim of a unique organization composed of representatives of various clubs and commissions in Los Angeles. It has been termed the "City Different" movement.

It is a European idea with western improvements. It attacks the commonplace, the stupid and the uninteresting in the architecture of homes, and when the movement is well under way, it will advance to a general movement to improve the architecture of schools and other public buildings.

The idea was first fostered here when a prominent architect and landscape artist of the East announced that the public buildings in America were woefully lacking in distinctive architecture. The buildings, they reported, had nothing distinctively American or local in their designs.

With the suggestion, representatives of various women's clubs and other organizations began a quiet movement to establish a bureau of some kind that might assist the home builder first, and then the public buildings could be considered. They believed that it would be best to start with the residence, and improve the architecture in the residential sections that the utmost in effect and appearance might be realized from the money expended by home builders in their buildings.

To secure competent counsel in their work, the delegates from the women's clubs sought the assistance of the members of the Builders' Exchange, who are also affiliated with the architects. The builders and the architects agreed to give their counsel and advice free of cost.

All the women's clubs in the city have been informed of the details of the movement, and have been enthusiastic in arranging to take an active part in the work. Recently the movement received the indorsement of Mayor Rose, who said that he believed that it would increase original thought in the minds of the people, and if this purpose was served, it would be of inestimable value to the city.

Arrangements are projected for a practical working out of the plans. Those who are about to build homes will be invited to get into touch with the promoters of the movement, and receive such advice as may encourage them to express their personal ideas in their homes. To do this, it is suggested that a central bureau be organized where the prospective builder could get into easy communication with the authorities in the work which he contemplates.

To these authorities, the homemakers can come with the ideas which they wish especially to express in their residences, and work out the most effective design that will retain these ideas. In the past, according to Roger Babson, a prominent New York architect who recently discussed the campaign before a meeting of club women, the home builder has been tempted to take almost any available plans, no matter whether or not they were suited to the style of house he desired, or the lot on which he was to build, or the community in which he was to build.

With those who are contemplating the building of comfortable homes, not expensive ones, the promoters of the movement will come into closest contact.

Following the announcement that the movement had started here, Chambers of Commerce in many surrounding towns wrote to Joseph T. Campbell, secretary of the Builders' Exchange, asking for the details, and expressed a desire to work in affiliation with the Los Angeles promoters. Plans for a general organization to spread throughout the southern part of the State are already under way.

CITY CLUB OFFICERS.

Results of Election Under First and Second Choice System Announced—Discuss Amendments.

The City Club this year has used the first and second choice system in its election of officers, and the results were announced at yesterday's weekly luncheon. S. C. Graham is selected president, Dr. Francis B. Kellogg, first vice-president; Frank G. Henderson, second vice-president; H. H. Harris, secretary; Frank S. Hutton, treasurer; Dana W. Bartlett and A. J. Wallace, members of the board of governors.

The speaker was State Senator N. W. Thompson, and he discussed the proposed constitutional amendments, giving a brief summary of each.

There are thirty-seven separate and distinct questions to be voted on at the coming State election, including twenty-two constitutional amendments, six initiative petitions, four referendum petitions, four proposed bond issues and the proposition of calling a constitutional convention. The speaker touched briefly on all of these measures.

After summarizing the proposed amendments to the constitution, he gave some detail on the proposed bond issues. It is proposed that there shall be issued $1,000,000 for a State building in San Francisco; $3,000,000 for improvements to the State Capitol buildings and grounds and construction of new State buildings in Sacramento; $750,000 for improvement of the State fair grounds in Sacramento, and $10,000,000 for sea-wall purposes on the San Francisco harbor.

The four referendum petitions to be voted on are the red-light abatement act, the "blue-sky" law, the nonsale of game, except rabbits and wild geese, and the creation of a water commission.

The six initiative petitions include the proposed abolition of poll-tax, prohibition for the entire State, an anti-prize fight act, the Torrens land law, placing of a limit on the bonded debt and the proposed Socialist measure of a universal eight-hour law for all labor.

The club decided to devote considerable time before the election to a discussion of the proposed measures and amendments.

NO HELP FOR JUDGE.

United States District Judge Farrington of Nevada will not come here to assist Judge Wellborn in clearing up his calendar, as expected. At the close yesterday of the two-weeks' session of the District Court at Fresno, Judge Farrington announced that he has been called back to his home at Carson City, Nev. He may be here later in the summer. In Fresno, he sat for Judge Wellborn.

BRICK BLOCKS REPLACE CACTUS AT CALIPATRIA.

BUILDERS are working overtime at Calipatria to keep pace with the demand for more storerooms. Berry & Kreuger have broken ground for their fifty-foot pressed-brick building and expect to have it ready for occupancy by July 1. A temporary building has been completed on H. L. Schlaudeman's lot and is being occupied as a billiard and pool hall.

Schlaudeman began yesterday the construction of a two-story pressed-brick building on the front of two lots. When completed, half of the building will be occupied by the billiard-room. H. H. Peterson, who has the contract for a fifty-foot building on Main street for J. B. Brackett of Imperial, has gravel and cement on the ground and will begin construction work today. This building must be completed by July 1. H. E. Wills has leased one of the stores and will ship in a full stock of goods on that date. T. J. Douglas of El Centro is erecting a two-story building, with 100 feet frontage, at Centro avenue and Main street. The foundations are in and the wall partly finished.

The Southern Pacific Company has moved its box-car depot across the siding and is grading for a platform for freight and passenger traffic. The site is being surveyed for rights of way and easements across their tracks between the main business center and the industrial district. Telephone wires are being strung through the town, the first section of the domestic water system has been completed and the infant town presents generally a scene of activity. Carl F. Schader, father of the town, says it has grown faster than he believed possible and predicts that its advent as one of the important supply and distributing centers of the Imperial Valley is only a matter of a few months.

Thomas Beach, pioneer of Imperial Valley and one of the owners of Calipatria and Calipatria farm lands, left this city last week to take charge of the offices at Calipatria, where he will be permanently located. Beach has been closely identified with the development of Imperial Valley since its reclamation was begun. He was one of the organizers and the first superintendent of the original development company and was the first manager of Mutual Water Company No. 1.

Beach has arranged to move the company's office at Calipatria into the new building at Main street and Railroad avenue, which will be occupied until the completion of the Douglas building, when the company will fit up spacious offices on the ground floor at Center and Main streets. A pavilion or resting place is being erected between the two buildings now being used as company headquarters for the convenience of visitors.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company has applied to the State Railroad Commission for permission to open the crossing on Main street and extend its tracks to the industrial section.

MONEY FOR FOREST.

The allotment of funds needed for the Angeles National Forest for the fiscal year extending from July 1, 1914, to June 30, 1915, has been fixed by Supervisor Charlton at $40,000. This does not include the sum to be spent for improvements or the expense of extinguishing forest fires. The grand total is expected to be about $60,000. The allotment will provide for the employment of twenty-one men throughout the year and about the same number of extras during the summer months, when it will be necessary to patrol to guard against fires.

DANDRUFF SOON RUINS THE HAIR

Makes It Lifeless, Dull, Dry, Brittle and Thin.

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

IRRITATING AND DISFIGURING PIMPLES

On Face, Also Blackheads. Pimples Red and Inflamed. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured.

R. F. D. No. 2, Advance, Mo.—"I had a very bad case of pimples on my face which were very troublesome, as they would get sore and would leave red spots where they healed. I also had blackheads in my skin. The pimples were red and inflamed and would come to a head. They would run yellowish pus and each one had a hard core-like lump in it. They were very irritating and disfiguring.

"I was troubled with them six months and had tried several remedies which did no good. Cuticura Soap and Ointment did the work. I would wash my face with the Soap and hot water then apply the Ointment. In about half an hour I would wash again with the Soap. In two months I was cured and the red spots have gone." (Signed) Miss Ollie Richmond, Oct. 17, 1913.

A generation of mothers has found no soap so well suited for cleansing and purifying the skin and hair of infants and children as Cuticura Soap. Its absolute purity and refreshing fragrance alone are enough to recommend it above ordinary skin soaps, but there are added to these qualities delicate yet effective emollient properties, derived from Cuticura Ointment, which render it most valuable in overcoming a tendency to distressing eruptions and promoting a normal condition of skin and hair health. Cuticura Soap (25c.) and Cuticura Ointment (50c.) sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

☞Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Norsemen who assembled at Eagle Rock today to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the independence of Norway, will be told that Capt. Semb Jacobson has been offered by the Aero Club of Christiania to fly the first aeroplane across the Atlantic Ocean. The flight, which Albert O. Paulson of this city plans to make this summer, is designed to give Norsemen the honor of first crossing the water barrier by air craft, as they were the first to cross it, many years ago, in their stanch galleys, sailed by the hardy men who followed Leif Erickson.

Jacobson, an army aviator of Norway, has been named for the flight at the request of Dr. V. E. Arnesen, formerly of Pasadena, who is now in Christiania as representative of Paulson.

At Eagle Rock today there will also be on exhibition specially-designed post cards, by the sale of which Paulson proposes to finance his expedition. About 20,000 of the cards will be sold to Scandinavians in this country and by them addressed to friends and relatives in Norway. An aeroplane, built in this city, is to be used to collect these and bear them from the shores of Canada to Christiania for distribution.

The aeroplane, which is to be built by Glenn L. Martin, will have an estimated carrying capacity of 1400 pounds. Paulson has figured that 1100 pounds of human flesh, of gasoline and post cards will be ample for the purposes of his expedition.

"The 20,000 cards," he said, "will weigh 150 pounds. Capt. Jacobson and myself will go along, and enough gasoline can be carried, within the 1100-pound limit, to take us hundreds of miles further than the longest leg we will have to make without the fuel."

OVER HISTORIC ROUTE.

The journey is to be made this summer, when weather and other conditions on the North Atlantic are found to be most favorable. Paulson proposes to follow, in a general way, the route that Leif Erickson and his intrepid band took when they reached the continent of North America almost 500 years before Columbus carried the flag of Spain into the New World. The flight is to be from the Canadian coast via Greenland, Iceland, Faore Islands, Shetland Islands and Bergen, Norway, to Christiania, where a celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of independence is now being celebrated.

Paulson has issued a statement to Norwegians of reasons why they should purchase the cards, declaring that the flight has already been given publicity throughout Norway, that the machine will be presented to the Norwegian government, and that the co-operation of the navy of that government is assured, for aid and protection along the line of flight. Paulson makes the point that if the cards are delivered, they will be the first trans-Atlantic mail borne by aircraft.

The longest sea leg of the journey will be 600 miles. It has been carefully mapped, with the actual starting point placed somewhere on the shores of the Great Lakes. The machine to be used is a hydro-aeroplane of a type Martin has already made familiar, but of great lifting power.

ROOF GARDEN FETE.

Jewish Consumptive Relief Association to Open Festival and Bazaar at Hamburger's Tomorrow Night.

The settings of Hamburger's roof garden for the festival and bazaar of the Jewish Consumptive Relief Association, which opens there tomorrow night, will be of the most elaborate and colorful character. Flags and banners, palms and flowers will unite in making the garden scene one of great brilliance, and the united interest of the entire Jewish population of the city will tend to make it a great success. The object is to raise funds for the maintenance of the sanatorium which has been established at Duarte.

The festival will open with a speech by Mayor Rose, immediately after which the revelry will begin, in which the 300 girls in charge of the various booths will cut a big figure. Turkish harem beauties in rich costumes will dance and sing oriental songs and will serve Arabian coffee and other refreshments; Gypsy maidens will tell fortunes; policewomen will arrest those who laugh too boisterously and they will be fined by a girl judge. The games of chance will be presided over by girls attired in Wild West costumes; cabaret singers and comic actresses will disport themselves at the refreshment booths, and there will be no end of fun and entertainment.

There will be a moonlight dance each evening, the roof space being sufficient to accommodate several hundred couples, and a mask ball will be given on one of the evenings, to be announced tomorrow night, and the correct thing in tango will be demonstrated.

ALUMNAE RAISING FUNDS.

Money to Rebuild College Hall, Wellesley, Is Sought Through Benefit at South Pasadena.

A play amid picturesque outdoor settings, beautiful dances and other attractions has been arranged for the garden party to be given at 3 o'clock next Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. A. Vaile, No. 1830 Spruce street, South Pasadena. The event is for the benefit of the fund being raised throughout the United States by alumnae of Wellesley for the rebuilding of College Hall, recently destroyed by fire.

In the attractive grounds of the Vaile home, a Maypole dance, "The Mad Tea Party" (a play,) a harlequin dance by young women of the Polytechnic High School, fancy dancing by Misses McGuire and Gatch and music by an orchestra will be features of the afternoon.

Miss Peterson of Claremont will give an exhibition of radiopticon views of Norway and Sweden.

Home-made candy and refreshments will be sold and a fortune teller and a clothesline, substitute for the familiar "grab-bag," will furnish additional fun.

Admission will be 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children.

Curious Customs.

WHITE WINE TO CLEAN WOUNDS.

MONTENEGRIN SURGEONS USE NO WATER.

Pour Rakija Into the Holes and the Men Get Well—Their Observances for the Dead Are Also Singular—Mourners Try to Rival Each Other in Wailing.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] When the Montenegrins took Europe by surprise and plunged into war, leaving their sister states still shivering on the brink, they entered the fray armed with the most modern weapons. One wondered at their adopting the latest methods of dealing with their wounded, for until lately, at any rate, they were content to follow the old-time scriptural usage of oil and wine. Herein was displayed more science than they realized. On no account will a native surgeon use water in dressing a wound, but cleanses the injured part with strong wine, or a spirit called rakija; and the people will recount with pride the number of desperate cases which have thus been cured. One in particular is never forgotten.

This was furnished by two duelists, one of whom received a sword-cut which slashed through three ribs. This terrible wound was first washed with white wine, a quantity was poured into the body through the "envious rent," and the man was rolled backwards and forwards; then the work of nursing him back to health began, and was successfully accomplished! Another tells how he was shot through the lungs in the battle of Vucidol so long ago as 1876, and was taken to the Russian hospital, where he got "worse and worse."

The doctor finally told him he must cut another hole in him between two ribs, but he remarks, "as I had two holes in one already, I thought this was very stupid, and I knew I should die if this were done, so I asked the black sister to tell my people to come and save me." They came, bringing his wife, who took the poor emanciated sufferer and carried him as if he had been a baby. They pounced rakija, he tells us, "in at my top wound, and some of it ran out at the other hole." Then the black sister came and put the bandages on.

"They poured rakija into me very often, and the wound got well, and in a year I was strong." He is now a hale old man, and remarks that he has drunk rakija ever since, and no wine, for it is firmly believed that whichever you are dressed with—wine or rakija—you must always drink in future.

In their observance for the dead they are no less singular, and for an account of these we are indebted to the vivid narrative of Miss Edith Durham, who spent some months among these most primitive but interesting people. She had the privilege of being present at something like an Irish wake on one occasion. In this case there was only the semblance of a body, the dead youth having been killed while fighting with the Russian army in Manchuria, and the news of his fate only reached his native village six months after his death. But he was duly mourned after the custom of his people. On a bier his clothes and weapons were laid, and this done, his relatives and neighbors began their mourning.

They met at some distance from the house and came in procession—first the men, then the women. When within a hundred yards of the house they began the death wail; an awful, wailing, rhythmical chant—"Woe, woe to us, Stevo, O my brother! Woe, woe to us, my winged brother!" The cry was taken in a quick breath which rapidly became a convulsive sob, and by the time they had reached the house all were in a state bordering on frenzy.

The men then hurled themselves into the room and danced madly in front of the corpse, or what should have been, leaping a yard high, thumping their breasts with their great fists, and yelling frightfully. With tears streaming they threw themselves on the mummy corpse, almost fighting to kiss it. Meanwhile, the mother and sisters in the background sang the praises of their dead boy.

The men were allowed five minutes of this ecstasy of grief, then the priest came forward and said: "Brothers! you have wept enough, make way for others." They withdrew, some reeling with exhaustion; then came the women, who followed the same observances, save that they did not jump. And so, village by village, came the whole tribe to which he belonged. Some did not even know the poor boy's name, and had to be coached in the details before beginning to wail, but they sobbed as bitterly as any. Going home the mourners compared notes as to who had cried best.

At the burying apples, bits of bread, and quantities of rags are thrown into the grave, with fragments torn from the mourners' clothes. In remote districts even today both men and women tear their faces with their nails, that they may mingle their tears with blood in token of their grief, though the practice has been forbidden and has fallen into disuse in the larger villages.

HISTORY IN STATUARY.

Half Million Dollars for Symbolic Work in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, Without Restrictions.

[Washington Star:] A row of statuary, representing the history of America from its discovery by Columbus until the present day, will soon be placed along the east bank of the Schuylkill River in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia. This symbolic representation of the nation's history was made possible by a provision in the will of the late Mrs. J. Bunford Samuel, who left $500,000 for the work. The Fairmount Art Association announced yesterday that it had accepted the gift an dthat arrangements with the park commission had been made to permit the erection of statues.

There were no restrictions in the will upon the subjects except that they shall represent scenes of American history. Some of those considered most likely to be decided upon are Columbus discovering America, the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers, William Penn treating with the Indians, Washington at Valley [illegible] the battle of Lake Erie, Lincoln [illegible] ing the slaves and the battle of [illegible] tiago.

It is expected that work on the [illegible] tion of the statuary will [illegible] spring.

mly believing in the future of er Broadway and backing the ter-stability movement in the ckton, Dr. L. E. Cross, a physician recently paid $500,000 the Alhambra Hotel, No. 222 h Broadway, and the Alhambra directly across the street. He J. R. Hankla, manager of the properties, are now devoting energies to developing a first- s hotel center and are succeed- ing.

r. Cross's money and the capable agement of Hankla are doing t two hotel men of the city would e undertaken. They are attract- g a liberal amount of first-class el patronage three blocks north of t street.

n a visit to the city a few days o Dr. Cross expressed himself as eased with his investment. He d he will make substantial im- vements to keep pace with the rch of progress in the locality. e investment of $500,000, of rse, is the best proof of his faith North Broadway and business sta- ty on that thoroughfare.

e Alhambra is one of the few ictly fireproof hotels in the city. s equipment and service are on a r with other first-class hotels.

ll minor details of structure and sh were given close attention by T. Hall, the builder. The main lding contains 120 rooms, most of m with private bath. The annex s 100 rooms, divided into two and ee-room suites and elegantly fur- nished.

"e are trying to be leaders in e family of property owners, who e located on North Broadway, be- en First street and the tunnel," nkla said yesterday. "Our com- ned efforts are resulting in gratify- g stability and respectability in e neighborhood. AFTER THE DOLLARS.

Santa Fe Will Build Five-Mile Branch Line in Tulare County in Sixty Days.

The railroads will go where there are dollars. This was evidenced yesterday when Santa Fe officials announced that the road will attempt the construction of five miles of track in sixty days to connect Stoll, Tulare county, with Alpaugh.

Crops, as everyone knows, are unusually large this year. About Alpaugh is sugar-beet area of unusual productiveness, also a mill. In other years the product of the mill has been hauled by wagon to Stoll. This year, however, the mill offers so much tonnage that the Santa Fe deems it a good investment to expend $50,000 on a hurry-up job of track-laying.

The surveys for the line will be made this week and the grading contracts let. As fast as the grading is completed, tie and track-layers will get busy with their end of the work.

DOG WORSTS LAWYER.

Attorney W. Ona Morton is a heavyweight, but he discovered Friday evening that his big bulldog was a better wrestler than he, despite his heft. Morton was passing the time away, while waiting for Mrs. Morton to get ready to attend a card party, by playing with the dog. Morton was not taking chances, because he had on his evening clothes. The dog gave the clothes no thought and in one of his rushes, tripped up the portly lawyer and when the latter struck the ground, he heard a bone in his left arm snap. The physician summoned informed Morton that his arm was fractured.

When You Are Troubled With Hairy Growths

(Modes of Today.)

No woman need longer endure ugly, unsightly hairs on her face, neck or arms, for a simple and very effective method is here given to quickly banish such objectionable growths and leave the skin smooth and free from spot or blemish.

A thick paste, sufficient to cover the offensive hairs, is made by mixing a little of the powdered delatone with water. This is then spread over the hairy surface and in about two minutes rubbed off and with it comes every trace of hair. After this treatment the skin should be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No danger or inconvenience results from this treatment and rarely is the second application required, but to avoid disappointment be sure to get the delatone in an original package. Any druggist has it in stock.

French Beauties All Slender

In Paris (the city of the world's most beautiful women) the first thing the tourist notes when studying the beautiful native women is the absence of the plumpness or flesh. They are always slender and graceful and so active and attractive. Their nervous, emotional temperament of course affects somewhat their physique, but most of them keep up a continual fight against increase of weight. One of the many good fat preventives and cures is easily made at home by mixing 4 ounces parnotis (all good druggists carry this) with 1½ pints hot water. When cool strain and take 1 tablespoonful before meals until weight is just where you want it. This is a safe, harmless method of fat-reduction and does not depend on dieting or unusual exercising. The parnotis treatment is gentle in action and restores the symmetrical lines to the figure.

Village Town City That's Western Canada

The Completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Creates a Supreme Opportunity for You to Make Money in BRITISH COLUMBIA---Without Leaving Home.

Be alive to this money-making opportunity. $100 to $500 profits per lot are common to purchasers of Grand Trunk Pacific main line new town property. The building of this great railway—8,600 miles of track opening thousands of square miles of new country—has made the establishment of important towns necessary to supply the demands of the settlers. You don't have to leave home to take advantage of this opportunity—the last of its kind. Do as hundreds of men and women have done in Grand Trunk Pacific new towns—buy a lot at first and lowest prices, sell at an advance later—we will help you. Stuart River is the last important town to be established on Main Line.

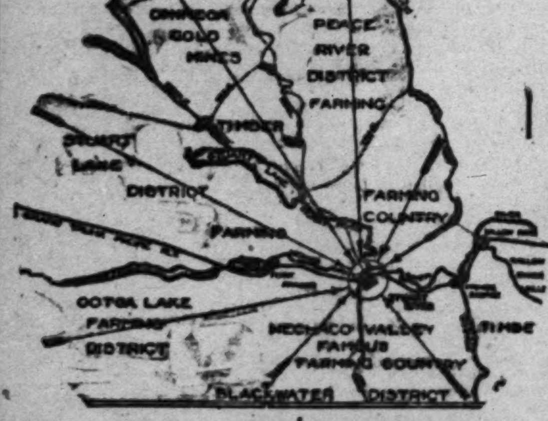
A MONTH.—NO INTEREST

Buys a lot in this Important New Town. Sell later at an advance,—we will help you. $100 to $500 profits are common. Learn all about this smashing opportunity and the reason for it. It is created by the building of the GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY

Grand Trunk Pacific Railway

Stuart River offers you the biggest opportunity of the year—the last of its kind. It's your opportunity—your main line opportunity in a Main Line town in the heart of an "Empire of Wealth." It's your opportunity to make money without leaving home. Stuart River is in the heart of Central British Columbia at the confluence of the Nechaco and Stuart rivers on the Main Line Grand Trunk Pacific Railway on 800 miles of navigable waterways. It is surrounded by some of the finest agricultural, timber and mineral lands of the entire Canadian West. The thousands of settlers rushing in to the Stuart River Valley make an important town—a future city necessary, and you have the life-time opportunity—the supreme opportunity to secure a lot in this future city of Stuart River at a very Low Price, and on terms as easy as $2 a month. No Interest. This quick development plan has been held in reserve to apply to this town, the last important town to be established on Main Line. The plan offers you the biggest and best opportunity ever offered by the establishment of any main line town on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. It's in important Main Line towns where big and quick profits are made.



Greatly reduced map, showing location of Stuart River in the heart of an "Empire of Wealth."

No Lots Sold Until Monday, June 1st

In order to give those living at a distance the same fair chance to get property in Stuart River as those nearby will have, no lots will be sold until above date, but applications may be made now and will be numbered in the order in which they are received and property assigned accordingly. Remember.

Stuart River, British Columbia is the last important town to be established on the Main Line Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Remember that property in Stuart River may be secured at extremely low prices and on terms as easy as $2 a month, No Interest. These terms are being made on Stuart River property in order to give men and women of large, medium and small means the same fair opportunity to secure property in this last important town to be established. Also, these easy terms are being made in order that the town may be developed rapidly as the thousands of settlers rushing into the Stuart River Valley are demanding that this new town be a leading commercial, educational and social centre. And it is our idea that the lower the prices and the easier the terms, the quicker the town will develop and the more traffic created. You don't have to leave home to take advantage of this smashing, big opportunity. You can buy now, no matter where you live, whether you are man or woman of large, medium or small means. You can sell at an advance later—We will help you. Send coupon for valuable book of maps and complete information. From the maps in the book you may make your selection of property and file your application by wire at our expense. The sooner you get your application to us, the better selection you will have. Avoid disappointment by sending the coupon today. Address

THE POLITICAL WATCHTOWER

The Governor of this great State is treating the taxpayers to continuous politics. Railroad Commissioner John Eshleman, his boss-picked running mate, likewise. With little intermission for the business of their respective important offices, they journey from town to town, pleading with the voters—the Republican voters especially—to betray their party and vote for them. Gov. Johnson has made an early start in his campaign, the election being six months distant. With the primary, which comes two months sooner, he does not concern himself and has no cause to do so, inasmuch as he has no rival for the "Progressive" nomination and will have none. His present State-wide canvass aims solely to drum up votes for the November balloting. Gov. Johnson first took the stump on January 5, according to Rebater Earl's sunrise advocate of Mooseism, and he has been at it ever since. He says he is coming down here again.

Johnson is ever talking "non-partisanship." "This is a non-partisan fight," he orated at Bakersfield the other night. And Eshleman followed suit. He has absolutely nothing to say about the so-called Progressive party. Foxy Hiram and his backers have noted the registration. They perceive that the Republican party is overwhelmingly in the lead, and that if Johnson shall win he must draw enormous support from voters who do not call themselves "Progressives." His entire effort is to get Republicans back to the frame of mind in which they were in 1910, when they elected him Governor as a Republican, never dreaming that he would backstab the party that had thus honored him. So now when he needs the votes of those Republicans who were then shamelessly and wickedly disfranchised, he talks "non-partisanship." And he seeks those votes so that he may be strengthened in the Presidential campaign of 1916 and continue his efforts to destroy the Republican party. But his tricky pleas for votes will gain him little.

And what about the "Progressive" party the Johnson-Eddie-Earl-Finn clique tried to put on the map some months ago in San Francisco? Has Gov. Johnson bolted that party to found the "Non-partisan party?" Eh.

Hon. J. D. Phelan, who is the Democratic fixture for the United States Senatorial race, is reported on good authority to be the nearest Californian to the President. There are those who hold that his political utterances are ex-cathedra. But how such an idea can be justified from a declaration in one of his speeches is not plain. The declaration is to the effect that the United States should proceed at once to take Lower California; whereas, President Wilson declared in a recent speech that it would be the policy of his administration, regardless of what might occur, to refrain from taking one inch of territory. It will be recalled that Phelan was opposed to Champ Clark in the Presidential primaries, though California went overwhelmingly for the Missourian. After Clark made his speech in opposition to the Wilson-Bryan-Page canal tolls policy Phelan performed a marvelous flop and came out flat-footed in favor of the repeal of the provision for free tolls for coastwise ships, urging as an argument that most of the coastwise ships are owned by railroads. Here he was maladroit, because intrenched in the Canal Act as it is now in force is the provision that railroad-owned ships shall not be permitted to operate through the canal. This provision was due to the insistence of Congressman Joe Knowland of Alameda, as every Californian is aware. Frank Griffin who has gained some notoriety in union labor circles, is Phelan's lone rival for toga honors. Phelan will poll the silk-stocking Bourbons and Griffin the "dollar a rip" clique.

The Democratic situation in California is chaotic, to say the least. While Phelan is taking the pro-British side of the tolls controversy, the view which is so directly opposed to the best interests of California, the Clark Democrats, the most numerous and active of the party clans, are quoting Champ's reference to the proposed repeal as "this stupendous folly, this unspeakable humiliation of the American republic." Wow! wow! Then Wilson's anemic Mexican policies haven't made any votes for pure Democracy. There are signs that the Democrats are to center on Signor Antony Caminetti as their candidate for Governor; at least that enough of them will center on him to secure the primary approval. But even then they will be a long journey from the unanimous; for there is even greater bitterness between the factions than at any previous stage of the party's activity, and that is a sweeping statement. Fred Hall of Bakersfield is making the most noise and therefore is spending the most money. Hall has a young army of workers plugging for him in every nook of the State. He recently opened extensive headquarters in Los Angeles. Sidney McMechen Van Wyck, Jr., of the Bay City is still convincing country editors that he is an easy winner, while Senators Curtin and Sanford are quietly working Edward White of Watsonville and Charles H. King (who admits he is a "rich farmer" from somewhere up State) are still in the ring.

It is interesting to note that the Democratic campaign in California is being started on the very issues that have proved so disastrous to its material welfare. Phelan, Van Wyck and scores of other Democratic candidates are busy making speeches admonishing voters to bear in mind the "splendid tariff policy of President Wilson" and better still "the Democratic party revised the tariff downward in the interest of consumers." Just a moment, please, to picture the boundless nerve of these Jeffersonians. The farmers, citrus growers and business and workingmen of California deeply appreciate "the splendid tariff policy of Wilson," without being told. Their depleted bank books speak louder than stump speeches. Phelan et al., thanks to their political acumen, have not touched on the absorbing question of the "high cost of living," which Mr. Wilson was to annihilate instanter with his academic switch.

Wise Democrats frankly admit they can't elect a Governor this year. Thousands of loyal Democrats will vote for a Republican Governor. Real Democrats haven't any more use for the Johnson-Eddie-Earl machine than have real Republicans. "If the Republicans put up the right kind of a man I'll vote for him," is what one frequently hears from almost every Democrat he chances to meet and pass the time of politics.

The past week Chief Deputy District Attorney W. J. Ford officially announced his candidacy for District Attorney to succeed Capt. John D. Fredericks, whose term expires January 1, 1915. Headquarters have been opened in the H. W. Hellman building and Attorney Benjamin E. Page will be chairman of the Campaign Committee. During the past seven years Mr. Ford has served in every department of the District Attorney's office, both civil and criminal, with credit to his people and himself. His handling of many cases has earned for him a high standing at the bar and a majority of the leading lawyers and judges of the county are supporting him. Ford now appeals to the people of the county for promotion on his record in the District Attorney's office.

There is a spirited fight on for Sheriff between Sheriff Hammel and former Sheriff John C. Cline. Hammel formally tossed his famous black sombrero into the ring the past week and claims it's all over but the shouting. Cline differs with the Sheriff and meanwhile is going some himself. He has opened headquarters and is a regular "in-the-hands-of-my-friends" shrievalty hunter. Hammel and Cline are both real Republicans, but of course are running as "non-partisans" under the great and glorious primary law. No Earl-Eddie candidate for Sheriff to date has shown his face, for even a Goo-Goo hates to buck a buzz saw. Under Sheriff Bob Brain is managing Hammel's fight and Bill White is boss in Cline's corner.

Candidates for judge of the Superior Court are coming out in batches. Ten judges are to be elected in this county this fall. The ten incumbents are all in the field. During the past week J. Vincent Hannon, William A. Spill, George A. Boden, Frank G. Tyrrell, Frank W. Blair, Joseph Coyne, Frank Van Buren and Elmer E. McDowell announced their candidacy for judgeships. Justice of the Peace Sidney Reeve and former Judge William Baird have been in the race some time. Friends of former Judge George R. Davis of Pasadena are urging him to run. Judge Davis is very popular and is eminently fitted for the office. Of the incumbents Judge Willis and Judge Monroe are looked upon as certain winners. Several of Gov. Johnson's seven appointees will have rough sledding, in the opinion of the man who winds the Courthouse clock.

Very few candidates for legislative berths have declared themselves. Give 'em time.

Latest registration returns from Los Angeles city and county: Republicans, 88,203; "Progressives," 48,012; Democrats, 41,562.

Republicans are leading in the complete returns from the whole State by 160,000.

"Non-partisan!"

TWO GIRLS MISSING.

Belva Peters, No. 4380 Hammel street, and her companion, Ethel Wiley, No. 4304 Eastern avenue, disappeared from their homes Friday night and are sought by the police. The parents of the girls could give no explanation for their absence. Two girls, whose description agrees with that of the missing ones, were reported to have been seen near Whittier yesterday.

RETURNING TRAVELER.

Mr. Frederick Hicks Back from the Orient—Reception by Mrs. Dean Mason Today.

A wireless message, sent from mid-ocean a few days ago, carried to Mrs. Frederick Hicks and her sister, Mrs. Dean Mason the welcome news that Mr. Hicks would arrive in Los Angeles on Saturday. For the past year Mr. Hicks has been traveling through Europe and the Orient, visiting the unfrequented and unbeaten paths of the world, and is now returning to join his wife and little daughter, who have been spending the winter in Southern California.

In honor of Mr. Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Mason will entertain this afternoon with a large reception at their beautiful home on Andrews boulevard, including among their invited guests many well-known members of the local musical set. Mrs. Frederick Hicks is a member of the board of directors of the famous Damrosch Symphony Orchestra of New York City, and during the time she has been in Los Angeles has been an active worker with Mrs. Dean Mason and her mother, Mrs. H. W. R. Strong, in the affairs of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra.

HOOSIERS MOVING.

Committee Named to Prepare Exhibit at the Coming Carnival of State Societies.

The Indiana Society of the Federation of State Societies is planning a great exhibit of products of the "Hoosier" State, at the coming Carnival of States, which is to be held at Fiesta Park, June 8 to 20. Dr. O. H. Mennet has been made chairman of the Committee of Arrangements and has associated with him C. D. Lawler, A. O. Miller, Mrs. C. B. Wilson, Miss Miller and Mrs. Julia Musselman, secretary. They are receiving suggestions from old residents of Indiana, to be used in completing the decorations and the programme of events for the booth of that State during the carnival.

NEW BILLS AT THE PLAYHOUSES

Great Detective Drama at Mason This Week.

Morosco and Majestic Play "A Dark Secret."

What's Doing in Vaudeville and Filmdom.

Robert Hilliard comes to the Mason Monday under the direction of Klaw and Erlanger, to represent for the first time here a detective play "The Argyle Case," for which he has abandoned the roses and raptures of the vampire drama. Emphasis is placed upon the fact that "The Argyle Case" is a plausible and ingenious detective story, not a fantastic "crook" drama glorifying the criminal.

Mr. Hilliard impersonates Asche Kayton, an up-tto-the-minute type of detective—a man of brains, manners and dominating force who is real, human and red-blooded. "The Argyle Case" underwent many changes before it reached New York for a career of success that covered seven months of last season at the Criterion Theater. The solution of two crimes, a murder and a counterfeiting scheme, has been embellished with all that is up-to-date in the way of scientific detective aids. Demonstrations of the tell-tale dictograph and the undeniable finger-print process are supplemented by the newest tricks of money bleaching and color photography and by the Roneophone that catches the voice of the suspect over a dictograph wire and reproduces it phonographically.

The action begins in a disordered library where John Argyle has been murdered. Various members of the family are under suspicion but the police have no definite clue. Asche Kayton, private investigator, is employed by the family to absolve the innocent members and detect the guilty. While thus employed he brings to confusion a band of skillful counterfeiters who are causing the government much anxiety.

There is a thread of love story running through the play, brought to a happy issue, which involves the detective and a young girl who is unjustly suspected of the murder.

"The Argyle Case" is the work of Harriet Ford, who wrote popular plays for Kyrle Bellew and Eleanor Robson and co-operated with Joseph Medill Paterson in "The Fourth Estate." Her collaborateur, Harry J. O'Higgins, is the well-known short story writer and historian of Detective William J. Burns and of Judge Lindsay of Denver in the "Beast of the Jungle" expose. Detective Burns co-operated in the authorship of "The Argyle Case." He put his O. K. stamp of authenticity upon each development of the story as if the case was one that came to his own office for investigation. He is authority for the statement that every character has lived and every incident has occurred.

The players associated with Mr. Hilliard in New York have been retained. There are distinct types of character found in polite society and the underworld. The cast includes Gustav von Seyffertitz, Edwin Holland, Harvey Clark, John J. Pierson, Bert Walters, William Raymond, Robert Newcombe, W. T. Clark, Ralph Theodore, Edwin Redding, Olive Oliver, Stella Archer, Agnes Everett, Elizabeth Eyre and Dorothy Tureak. It is the only company presenting "The Argyle Case."

Orpheum.

Every little. while the Orpheum comes forward with an act so big and so sensational that people wonder "will vaudeville ever reach its climax?" It is quite possible that, next week at the Orpheum, beginning with the Monday matinee, the edict will go forth: "That climax has been reached." For in the new headliner, "Neptune's Garden of Living Statues," it would seem beyond any further limit. This act requires twenty persons, a carload of material is used for the immense tank alone, and it embraces diving, swimming, posing, dances and pantomime of the most artistic sort. In the list of participants are the noted Spanish mimes, Carlo Casetta and Lillian Lestora, who do a "Danse Dementia" which is said to exceed the "limit," whatever that is. There are also the posing girls, who, as statues, assume rigid attitudes for minutes at a time, till the voice of a mortal awakens them and send them headlong into a great enchanted pool, where they remain till, near the end of the act, they are once more called forth, when they arise, none the worse for their long under water stay, to ascend to the skies and again make sensational dives into the water.

Harry Gilfoil, who has made his loveable old roue, "Baron Sands," a regular character, returns in a new series of the old chap's adventures and doings, and will again entertain everyone with this true-to-life characterization. Ben Deely, who wrote "The Alamo Rag" and other ditties that have found great favor, with Marie Wayne, returns in a lively skit; "The New Bell Boy," with some more of his songs introduced therein. Nick Hufford and Dell Chain have a lively skit anent the cullud parson and the minstrel in which the former's "sermon" is a decided feature, besides a lot of stepping, songs and merriment, and Van Hoven, the dippy mad magician" brings his skill to bear in a new way. Ruth Roye, a dainty and fetching miss, is known as the "princess of ragtime" and in that capacity is a huge hit everywhere. The only two holdovers are the topliners of the present wonderful bill, David Bispham, in some new songs and ballads, and Alice Eis and Bert French, in their " rouge et noir" dance of fortune.

Empress.

Beginning tomorrow afternoon with the regular matinee the Empress Theater will have for its headline attraction on the new bill one of the best, if not the most picturesque, sketches in vaudeville. George Hoey presents the act which is entitled "In Old New York" and was taken from an episode of the East Side.

The sketch shows a facsimile of the yard of an East Side tenement with the usual attachments thereto such as the "Neighboring Gossip" and the phonograph, the ash can and the love affair. George Hoey, who has made several trips over the Empress circuit before, comes again as the featured player in the act. He is supported by J. J. Williams, Harry Whall, Fred Hill, Hattie Carmontelle and Helen Bellew.

Second will be Mlle. Cecile, Frank Eldred and Fred Carr. The return of the international favorites will be welcomed by the Empress patrons as they are well remembered as the novelty creators.

Cooke and Roberts, who are said to be clever dancers, and who have some new and original dances that are said to be highly entertaining, will also be a feature on the new bill.

Also there will be Dorsch and Russell in their scenic spectacular novelty, "The Musical Railroaders," while a delightful sketch will be offered by the Usher Trio entitled "Almost a Millionaire."

Harry Rose, the singing comedian, and who is one of the latest musical comedy recruits to the vaudeville, will also be a feature on the coming week's bill, while the always new and first-run Fred Mace comedy motion pictures produced by the Fred Mace Feature Film Company, will complete the new bill.

Pantages.

Pantages will have a baby show next week. An inventive gentleman from San Francisco has discovered that a baby show will bring more people to a theater than any other attraction that has ever been featured

WHERE THE DEVIL BREAKS OUT.

Humanity is Not All Poetry and Idealism, and Now and Then a Playwright is Frank Enough to Credit His Characters With Some of the Malice Found Outside of Books.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK.

IT IS ALL VERY FINE to speculate about the soul. The higher self is no doubt a delightfully capable and exalted personage. There is not the least doubt that the superman may appear any day now, but whether he will look anything like Maeterlinck, think anything like Bernard Shaw, or writ anything like Heinrik Ibsen is not for me to say. He may prove a cross between Gilbert Chesterton and Woodrow Wilson for all I know; and, again, Huerta may be a superman in disguise.

He may be, but, I don't think he is.

They have life tangled up until I don't know where we are. Some men claim they have no soul and then act like angels. Some of them go around bragging about their soul—bragging or whining—and then act like the devil.

In literature it is worse than it is on the street. You bump your head against the stars in trying to reach some of these fellows, and you have to wallow in the mire to get down to others.

Personally, I suppose that John Milton was all right, but I like Oliver Herford better. Bergson is all right, but so is Louis Carroll. They may not confess it, but more people have read "Alice in Wonderland" than "Paradise Lost," and they have understood it a lot better.

If Zola wants to dig in the dirt I let him, and if Swedenborg wants to litter the universe with stardust I allow for that, too.

Meanwhile, if somebody writes a good play about the badness of men I think I like it better than a bad play about the goodness not always in sight.

Half the people I read or talk to tell me that this is a perfectly good world, only I don't realize it. The other half say that it's a rotten old

HILLIARD AND "ARGYLE CASE."

Interesting Facts About Play and Player.

Distinguished Trio Placed Drama on Stage.

Bob Got Acting Microbe at Age of Seven.

No American actor has a finer or more varied record of achievement than Robert Hilliard, who comes to the Mason tomorrow. He has personal distinction and artistic authority. During four seasons he acted before more than 2,000,000 American playgoers in "A Fool There Was" in a tensely dramatic role that was a tremendous tax upon the vital and nervous forces. As Asche Kayton, who solves the intricate mystery surrounding "The Argyle Case," he personates the well-poised detective of mentality and is enabled to show another side of his artistry.

BURNS'S METHODS SHOWN.

"The Argyle Case" was conceived by Harriet Ford, a well-known writer of stories and dramas, and Harvey J. O'Higgins, who has done a great deal to establish himself in the regard of magazine readers. This work was undertaken with the assurance that William J. Burns, the famous criminal investigator, would co-operate with them. And this he did by treating "The Argyle Case" precisely as if the crimes upon which it is built, were actual happenings in real life that he had been employed to solve through his own agency. There were hours of anxious conference, and when the issue was finally worked out, every incident had been subjected to the acid test of his own methods. The dictograph, the Roneophone and the finger print and money bleaching processes are vividly demonstrated. It is a detective story, not a crook play.

Two gripping mysteries are solved by Asche Kayton, a vital and fascinating type of up-to-date American detective, personated by Mr. Hilliard. A rich man has been found murdered in his library. The police detectives are baffled. There is much newspaper sensationalism. False theories have been spread broadcast. Suspicion is attached to innocent people. The head of the Kayton Detective Agency is employed by the family for independent investigation.

Kayton is not a policeman; he is a genius for ferreting out crime. He has gained the confidence of the government and big private interests through successful achievements. In undertaking the Argyle affair, he becomes somewhat influenced by sentiment. There is a charming girl in a distressing position and she interests him. After he has brought the murderer of John Argyle to justice, and incidentally balked the most audacious counterfeiting scheme of the century, he finds that not the least of his rewards is the winning of her heart. This silver thread of love story runs through a tangled skein of thrilling complication. Tense and thrilling are the events that rush along swiftly from the moment the curtain rises.

There is no attempt in "The Argyle Case" to transfer the Burns personality to the stage. The plot has nothing to do with graft, corporation or political interests, or the labor question. The detective who solves the crime simply employs the Burns's methods, as indicated by Burns.

THE AUTHORS.

Truly it is a trio of celebrities who wrote "The Argyle Case."

Harriet Ford has been identified with dramatic authorship to good purpose, among her successes being "The Greatest Thing in the World," "Audrey," "A Gentleman of France" and "The Fourth Estate."

Mr. O'Higgins is known to thousands of magazine readers for his graphic short stories—for example, those tales of New York's firemen called "The Smoke Eaters"—his disclosures of Colorado political conditions, written with Judge Lindsay, of the Denver Juvenile Court, and his chronices of cribe entitled, "Detective Burns's Great Cases." There is drama tense and stirring in every story that he has written, but this is his first play.

William J. Burns is a world-wide figure as a terror to evil-doers, although in no sense a police detective. The United States secret service knows his value. Grafters and political plotters are thrown into panic when his services are enlisted. Banks and great interests send for him in a hurry when affairs go wrong.

THE ACTOR.

Robert Hilliard was 7 years old when he made his bow before a small, but select, audience in the drawing-room of the late Philip Hubert, a prominent New York architect, who died not long ago in Southern California. His leading lady was the host's tiny daughter Marie, who grew up to become Mrs. Gustav Frohman, and Mr. Hubert wrote the playlet which they acted.

Marie and Robert were, of course, enthusiastically applauded by admiring friends and relatives, who predicted great careers for them. But they reluctantly yielded to parental counsel and decided to go back to school instead of becoming great stars at once.

The acting microbe had found lodgment in Master Hilliard's system, however, and lay quiescent, but alert. After he had graduated from New York College and Bishops College at Lennoxville, Can., force of circumstances fairly crowded him into business activities. He became a broker in Wall street, where the headaches and heartaches come from, and put his profits into the erection of the Criterion Theater, Brooklyn.

Mr. Hilliard appeared on his own stage in "False Shame," having previously acted in the Brooklyn amateur clubs. His New York debut as a professional was with Georgie Cayvan, in "A Daughter of Ireland," at the old Standard Theater in New York. The play was a failure, but he persevered and soon was leading man for Mrs. Langtry, a famous English stage beauty, who created a furore during her

MUSICAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

MRS. C. A. BRADLEY FAREWELD CONCERT THURSDAY.

Pragmatic School of Dancing Music Winning Adherents—Euterpean Male Quartette Concert—G. Allan Hancock Musicale for Symphony Directors.

BY HECTOR ALLIOT.

There is just now a curious undercurrent in the art of dancing and the composition of dancing music.

First conceived by a Swiss and imported into Germany, the innovation seems to flourish at present in Russia and is interesting Paris and New York.

Tomorrow we may be called upon to answer the question whether we understand the significance of "pragmatic" dancing and appreciate the tenets of the new terpsichorean school.

Is it really new or is only a revertal to the original form of what dancing was and interpreted centuries ago?

There is but little doubt that Dalcroze in Germany and Bekeff in Russia are undertaking nothing more than a cultured and more scientific form of the art based on the world-wide and centuries-old human method of expressing in pantomime human emotions.

When Jaques Dalcroze founded, at Hellerau, near Dresden, his Bildungsanstalt, where music, combined with gymnastics, was first taught, the academic composers and musicians the world over laughed at the new idea as foolish and eccentric.

The semi-athletic, semi-terpsichorean art has grown, in spite, if not because, of the ridicule heaped on the head of Dalcroze.

Treated at first as a fanciful adaptation, pragmatic music did not interest musicians generally for many years.

Tadeusz Jarecki, a very talented graduate of the Hellerau school was, I believe, the first one to make the new movement known in the United States, where it has taken root since then.

Delsarte had already prepared the ground for pragmatic music by his enthusiastic and able defense of harmonic use of all the muscles of the body.

Bekeff, probably the greatest authority of dancing, has gone much further and claimed that certain muscles in the human body correspond to certain tones, compositions and harmony of dancing music.

The followers of Bekeff's Russian school of poly-rhythmical dancing have attached themselves to prove the association of muscular action with emotions and the translation of the latter through the use of determined muscular actions.

The recent introduction of the terpsichorean art as a general divertisement is nothing more than the enjoyment of graceful and technically unmeaning motion. For generations before and as far back as the dawn of human culture, dancing was a form of religious worship, which became the expression of joy, sorrow, exultation in a public form, to which Bekeff desires to revert.

Schirjajeff has recently called special attention to the use of the hands in dancing as indicating the nuancing of emotions expressed by the body, and in defense of the new tenets of the Russian school.

Sign language is as old as man himself and practically anyone with imagination can, in plastic dancing, express joy, sorrow, anger, love and jealousy in their various moods with the use of the hands.

There does not seem to be anything new, indicating the birth of an original method or introduction of a novel interpretation of the art.

It seems far more logical to consider the efforts of Petipa, Legat and others as a return to the simple and wholesome field of the terpsichorean art as it was originally devised to be; an adjunct to speech, or, if presented in its plastic form, without words, as what Hanslick has happily defined: The, "phonetically-moving form."

Bradley Recital.

Friends of Mrs. Charles Alfred Bradley, whose wonderful contralto voice has been enjoyed by the music-loving people of Los Angeles on numerous local occasions for the past two years, will have the last opportunity of again demonstrating their approval of this talented young woman at a farewell concert to be given at the Gamut Theater auditorium on Thursday evening, May 21.

Some of the noted authorities of Europe have stated that Mrs. Bradley has a remarkable range for a contralto, the voice covering four "C's" in irresistible sweetness and sympathy. Father Tonello, the bosom friend of Caruso, said at a large musical gathering recently: "In all my experience, she is the only person I have met who gives one the instant impression of the great Scalchi, one not only to the close personal resemblance to that wonderful singer, but the seeming resourceless volume of the voice—rich, deep and flexible in quality, exhibits in a remarkable degree, the warmth and vividness of temperament so necessary to a successful operatic career."

Mrs. Bradley will leave Los Angeles via New York the early part of June with her two little daughters for Milan, Italy, and after completing her repertoire under one of Italy's greatest masters will finish in Paris.

Euterpean Quartette Concert.

Since 1890, the Euterpean Male Quartette has occupied a unique position as the vocal organization, which pioneered here singing in quartette form.

While the Euterpean has been heard in practically every city of this State, and has taken part in no end of programmes, ceremonies cheerful and sad, it is over seven years that the quartette has been heard in concert by itself.

Why after so many years, it decided to present a concert at the Gamut Club, last Thursday or why it has not kept the practice of being heard once a year or oftener in recital, is difficult to explain.

A splendid audience greeted the veterans last evening and showed by its appreciation the regard with which they are surrounded after a quarter of a century of frequent concerts.

Since their youthful successes, J. P. Dupuy, first tenor; F. E. Nay, second tenor; L. Zimmerman, baritone, and F. W. Wallace, bass, have acquired much experience, some gray hairs and most of them, the unavoidable, increase in weight, which comes with long singing practice.

Their voices have retained much of their original tonality and their ensemble singing has remained as it was of yore.

Maud Reeves-Barnard, soprano, was the attractive and talented soloist of the occasion in the pleasing "Vissi d'arte" from Puccini's "La Tosca,"

Mrs. Charles Alfred Bradley,
Contralto.

Massenet's "Ourve tes yeux bleus;" she sang with the quartette Abt's "Ave Maria" and the "Legend of the Chimes" from De Koven's "Robin Hood."

Mr. Wallace gave a bass solo, "Hybrias the Cretan," and J. P. Dupuy, the lovely tenor aria "Che celida manina" from "La Boheme."

Will Garroway, pianist soloist, gave Chopin's "Ballade in F Major," an attractive number, played with much skill and fine interpretation.

Five numbers were contributed by the quartette. "Strike, Strike the Lyre," of Cook was probably the more important. Old favorites like "The Goblins 'ill Git You." "The Mill" and the "Father's Lullaby" were especially enjoyed by the friends of the organization.

A number of floral offerings indicated how the Euterpean Quartette is regarded by the music lovers, who have some of them, heard the unique company for a generation, a rare example of survival in the world of music anywhere, but especially here.

"Samson and Delilah."

Hans S. Linne, conductor of the People's Orchestra and director of the People's Chorus, announces the presentation of "Samson and Delilah" at Morosco Theater, in a vocal and instrumental recital, May 21.

The People's Chorus will render in concert form Saint-Saen's grand opera in three acts, "Samson and Delilah." The soloists engaged for the concert are Mrs. Minnie Hance, the well-known contralto, who will sing Delilah, created in this country by Mme. Schumann-Heink, and through careful preparation for the past three months Mrs. Hance is said to have attained a perfect mastery of the part; Fred C. McPherson will sing the part of the High Priest, well fitted to the beautiful baritone voice with which Mr. McPherson is gifted; the part of "Samson" will be sung by John E. Stockman, tenor. Tracy Buddington will sing the part of "Abimelech" and will also take the solo part of the aged Hebrew in the second act. Thirty-five musicians of the People's Orchestra will render the orchestra score.

Olerich Recital.

On the evening of May 20 Charles Olerich will be heard in what may be called his first piano recital at Symphony Hall.

Professional musicians have been interested in this young artist, who has developed far beyond his years in a comparatively short time.

His programme is quite ambitious, including selections from Beethoven, Liszt, Stojowski, Chopin, Moszkowski, Brahms, Rachmaninoff, Homer Grunn and Henry Schoenefeld.

Musical Tea.

Miss Genevieve Church Smith was the hostess at the Alexandria on Monday last to a reception offered to Mr. Raoul Laparra, on his forthcoming departure on a journey of musical discovery among the Indians of the Southwest.

David Bispham, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Babcock, Mrs. Jane Catherwood, Miss Ina Goodwin, Maestro Lebegott and Charles Turner were guests on this occasion.

Ulrich's Concert.

With Mrs. Marcel Meier as accompanist, Mme. Emilie Cole Ulrich, soprano, and Gustav Ulrich, 'cellist, presented a programme of selections from Popper, Friml, Cadman, Puccini, McDowell and others before the Santa Monica Bay Club last Monday.

Busiest Vocalist.

Estelle Heartt Dreyfus will give "Songs of Spain" at the Beverly Hills Hotel this evening.

Monday, May 18, she will sing a group of songs before the Hanna College reunion, given at the Alexandria Hotel, and Tuesday, May 19, she will give a part of "Rhyme and Rhythms of the Romany" before the Hollywood High School.

Bensinger Lectures.

A series of lectures on the voice as an instrument will be given before the Matinee Musical Club, beginning June 4, by Mrs. J. H. Bensinger, a well-known teacher of voice production from New York City.

Nordica Pearl.

With the recent death of the celebrated prima donna Mme. Lillian Nordica at Batavia, Java, curiosity is naturally aroused concerning her marvelous collection of pearls.

In her various world-encircling engagements Mme. Nordica spared for years neither time nor money in collecting her favorite form of jewels.

It is said that a certain rope of pearls, with one obtained from the treasury of an impoverished Rajah, has no equal in the world.

Will her husband, George W. Young of New York, or her three sisters retain that valuable jewel, now rendered priceless by association with the lovely diva, or will it be sold?

Long Beach Musical Festival.

From Thursday, June 4, to Sunday, June 7, the residents of Long Beach and the thousands of visitors in this city will be entertained with a musical festival.

In addition to soloists a trained chorus of more than 500 voices has been prepared.

G. Allan Hancock Musicale.

On the evening of May 21 directors and officers of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra will be the guests at a musicale at Mr. and Mrs. G. Allan Hancock's residence.

Miss Adelaide Cannon, reader, will appear on the programme, also Bernice Roach Oberweinder, concert pianiste. The trio, composed of Mr. Hancock, Mr. Strobridge and Mr. Dobbings, will also give several numbers.

"Historic Musical Pageant."

"American Music" as arranged for a pageant by Mrs. Blonda Banks Coburn will be given by the Harmonia Club at the Friday Morning Clubhouse on next Thursday afternoon.

The pageant is divided into fourteen periods. They are:

Indian songs—Love and war. Mrs. Ella Ballard Hanna, directing.

Patriotic songs—Miss Anne McNab of Scotch descent will sing "Dixie," and Mrs. Nels Sorenson, "Hail Columbia."

Negro melodies—Mrs. Pearl Lindsey Conklin, directing.

Early opera—Solo from "Clari, the Maid of Milan," written by John Knowles Paine.

Oratorio—In the Boston Public Library was discovered for the Harmonia Club the manuscript of the first American oratorio, "St. Peter." This also is by J. K. Paine, and an aria from it will be sung.

War song —Mrs. William Duffield.

An old-fashioned singing school—Mrs. C. Maude Stickney, leader, assisted by fourteen of the club members.

Folk songs—Indian, cowboy and ballad.

Popular songs—College girls' songs; a Gospel hymn "powerfully sung," and a well-liked ballad.

Comic opera—Solo from "Robin Hood."

Vaudeville skit—"The Pied Piper of America." In this the much-decried ragtime enters for the first time the classic portals of Harmonia. Mrs. W. F. Howard will herself be the Pied Piper, leading a chorus in the swaying, lilting, tantalizing melody which will not "let the feet keep still."

Modern classical music—MacDowell. "Uncle Remus" will be present with the Harmonia babies.

Modern opera—Mrs. Abramson will sing an aria from "Natoma," accompanied by Mrs. F. B. Reynard.

Mrs. Colburn will read her masque of the pageant, "American Music."

Metropolitan Opera Stars.

After concluding a season of unusual artistic and financial success, the able general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Guilio Gatti-Casazza, announced his plans for the coming season, before his departure for Europe.

New artists engaged are Melanie Kurt, soprano of the Royal Opera, Berlin; Elizabeth Puritz-Schumann of the Stadt Theater, Hamburg; Mabel Garrison, American soprano; Alfred Piccaver, American lyric tenor, of the Imperial Opera, Vienna; Arthur Middleton, American bass-baritone. The management is also negotiating with other important artists.

Regarding new operas to be given next season it may be stated as certain that "Madame San-Gene" will have its world-premiere at the Metropolitan in the early part of the season. The libretto of this opera, based on Victorien Sardou's play, well known to American theater goers, is by Renato Simoni. The music is by Umberto Giordano, the composer of "Andrea Chenier," "Fedora" and "Siberia," who will be present at the rehearsals and premiere.

Other novelties under consideration are "Francesca da Rimini," by Riccardo Zandonai, recently produced in Turin; "Notre Dame" (based on Victor Hugo's novel,) by Franz Schmitt, which was produced a few weeks ago with great success in Vienna, and Goetz's "The Taming of the Shrew" ("Der Widerspanstigen Zahmung.")

Artists re-engaged for the coming season are as follows:

Sopranos—Frances Alda, Lucrezia Bori, Anna Case, Louise Cox, Vera Curtis, Emmy Destinn, Geraldine Farrar, Rita Fornia, Johanna Gadski, Frieda Hempel, Alice Nielsen, Marie Rappold, Leonora Sparkes, Rosina Van Dyck.

Mezzo-sopranos and contraltos—Mariska-Aldrich, Emma Borniggia, Sophie Braslau, Maria Duchene, Louise Homer, Helen Mapleson, Marie Mattfeld, Margaret Matzenauer, Margaret Ober, Lila Robeson.

Tenors—Paul Althouse, Pietro Audisio, Angelo Bada, Julius Bayer, Rudolf Berger, Enrico Caruso, Edoardo Ferrari-Fontana, Riccardo Martin, Giovanni Martinelli, Albert Reiss, Jacques Urlus.

Baritones—Pasquale Amato, Bernard Begue, Dinh Gilly, Otto Goritz, Robert Leonhardt, Vincenzo Reschiglian, Carl Schlegel, Antonio Scotti, Hermann Weil.

Basses—Paolo Ananian, Carl Braun, Adamo Didur, Marcel Reiner, Giulio Rossi, Leon Rothier, Basil Ruysdael, Andrea de Sagurola, Herbert Witherspoon.

THE YOUNG IDEA.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

For some aeons the conglomerate country we know as California had for its chief assets climate and scenery and, until a few generations ago, offered little else. About a dozen years ago and while I was conducting a virtuous and refined family daily in Illinois an enthusiastic tourist friend wrote me that California had not only climate and scenery, but schools. She said: "They seem like specks of paradise to one who has taught and 'boarded 'round' in the wild spots of Missouri and Kentucky."

That was twelve years ago.

Within the intervening time even the California schools have undergone another revolution and the structures of today are as far advanced as were the former ones beyond the log schoolhouses of the real pioneers.

At the present time California has by long odds the most attractive and best-built and equipped schoolhouses in the United States, and that, of course, means in the whole blooming universe. Even in the newer communities the public school looms up like a Greek temple. Take the marvelous little city of Van Nuys, for instance. When I first saw the townsite—a matter of little more than two years ago—it was a waving and colorful stretch of barley, mustard and poppies, and so far as buildings were concerned was as bald as a baby. Now there is a grammar school that would put the Parthenon on the blink, and the ambitious citizens have just ordered a hundred-thousand-dollar high school, the plans for which resemble a group from the splendor of the Versailles of Louis XIV. It would take two centuries of old-time history to achieve what Van Nuys has between two harvests.

The advanced schools of Pasadena, Santa Monica, Long Beach, Santa Ana, Glendale and other bustling cities roundabout would have shone as State capitals in the days when the republic was as young as these towns are. The Californian—whether native or adopted—has a keen vision for the future. In what we call the pioneer days communities were created in haphazard fashion by families locating near one another for protection or companionship. As they grew people would lay out roads, when they had to, and would build a school when the pupils got too bulky or numerous to be cared for in the house or barn where school rudiments had been installed. When it was built it would be by the personal labor of all the citizens of the community. It would be as small as possible and would be construgted along the simple architectural lines of a doghouse, with one opening in front and a peephole in rear for ventilation or Indian shooting.

But the modern Californian reverses the process. He picks out the site of his town with its natural and prospective advantages in mind. He lays out wide and well-graded streets—and he paves them, b'gosh! He raises ornamental electroliers for public lighting, and he puts in water and gas mains, rose bushes and palm trees. After this he rears a $75,000 schoolhouse and then feels warranted in inviting the people to move in.

And they do.

The arrivals find all modern joys and comforts, and their social and educational life ready at hand. The system as planned is considered as a good investment. The splendid schools of California constitute one of her most illustrious advertisements. They appeal to an ambitious and well-to-do class of citizenship who wish their children to have every possible advantage in early education. They explain to a material extent why so many tourists become residents. California is a delightful land in which to rear children.

The new school system has more courses than a Chinese banquet. It teaches everything from psychology to chauffeuring and ranges genially from science to cigarettes. In manual work it stretches merrily from boilermaking to cubist art. There are kindergartens for the babies and the polytechnic, the normal and the juvenile college for those who wish advanced training on educational lines without going to one of the large-calibred universities. There are gymnasiums, well-equipped playgrounds, dancing classes and open-air schoolrooms to add the elements of exercise, health and recreation to the curriculum. Nothing is too good for the rising generation and they will be spared most of the hardships and difficulties which their fathers and forefathers encountered in acquiring their store of book knowledge.

The little red schoolhouse is disappearing, but not in the manner its defenders feared. It has at times been a burning issue in politics and otherwise sane and intelligent citizens have expressed dread that the Romanist, the Socialist, the pessimist, or some other prong-horned "ist" conspired for its abolishment. It is disappearing—but it is because it was the smallest and ugliest building in the community. Another school takes its place, but it is a structure reared on graceful lines, commodious, sanitary and beautiful. The sentiment which inspired and protected the little red schoolhouse has graduated from homespun into velvet.

And it is well.

The ornate and commanding public school buildings of California with their complete modern equipment and capable instructors form the anchor which holds the future and prosperity of the commonwealth.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Mlle. Marie Galtier, one of the most talented woman members of the French bar, has been made an inspector-general to the Minister of Interior in France.

Juliet Shelby, also known as Mary Miles Minter, who made a national reputation in the title role of "The Littlest Rebel," is to appear in stock companies in that play.

Mrs. Kate Roat of Milton, Pa., has celebrated the seventy-sixth anniversary of her birth. Mrs. Roat has taught in the infant department of Trinity Lutheran Sunday-school for fifty-five consecutive years. She began teaching in the infant department on Easter Sunday in 1859, and is now superintendent of that department. Many of the present pupils are the grandchildren of the first pupils.

The State of Illinois has elected its first woman Mayor in Mrs. Kate York, who is Mayor-elect of Kingston Mines, Ill. She has been in business for twenty-three years and has held several other public offices.

Mrs. Russell Sage will pay an income tax of $200,000, and Mrs. Hetty Green is down for $180,000.

Helen Ring Robinson, the only woman Senator in the United States, will begin a campaign to rid Colorado of the divorce evil.

Mme. Calve, the opera singer, will shortly establish a traveling school for the teaching of singing.

Mrs. David Franklin Houston, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, has returned from Woods Hole, Mass., where she selected a summer home for herself and children, which will be visited by Secretary Houston as often as the St. Louis member of the Cabinet can get away from his official duties in Washington.

At the theaters.

Beautiful, this week. This timely picture is one of the finest examples of motion picture photography ever presented. The beautiful war scenes are all in natural colors making the film one of unusual artistic beauty. Even in these days of realistic war pictures this feature with its emphatic title stands out prominently among similar offerings. In being colored it has a great advantage. War being notoriously picturesque and spectacular, the element of color is vital and a portrayal of battles and military adventures in striking colors is an extraordinary attraction at all times.

In this picture only enough is shown of the horrors of strife and carnage to justify its lurid title, but the glamour and glory of the tented field are by no means neglected. The film is full of the strange incidents of war and of episodes such as will be possible only in the war of the future, of these latter the fight in the air and the destruction of a number of dirigible balloons is easily the most sensational.

"Love, Luck and Gasoline" is the name of a real comedy which comes to the Auditorium with "War Is Hell." The latter picture will be well set off by this irresistable picture of the ponderously eloquent John Bunny in a marine comedy.

There will be news pictorals and other good features.

Music provided by the augmented orchestra is among the best found in the city. It is a feature of the Auditorium policy. The great pipe organ is also heard to advantage under capable control. Next week will find "The Spoilers," by Rex Beach, at the Auditorium.

Clune's Broadway.

"The Adventures of Kathlyn" is at Clune's Broadway Theater again. This good news will be received by thousands of the young heroine's friends, who remember her in a precarious position in a burning house, from which escape seems impossible. They have been anxiously waiting for news from her, and will now receive it, for she will enact her feats of daring during the early part of the week. This is No. 11 of the series, and is really the most exciting of all. The wild animals are used in practically all of the scenes. The sub-title of this number is "The Forged Parchment," and it is in two parts. The scenic opportunities in this picture are unusually fine, and true to prediction, this number is the best produced yet.

The programme is kept light and more enjoyable by the introduction of abundant comedy, Col. Heeza Liar, as a "farmer," a Bray cartoon, will be the best laugh-producer shown here lately. There will be other good dramas and comedy, but these two are the headliners and each alone is worthy of the time and money expended.

The twenty-third number of the Selig pictorial news service will be seen here.

Woodley Theater.

"Pierre of the Plains," that thrilling melodrama of the Northwest Mounted Police, which Edgar Selwyn wrote and presented with unprecedented success, has been made over and elaborated into one of the most fascinating moving pictures ever thrown on the screen, and will be seen for the first time in this city, at the Woodley Theater for the week beginning Monday.

Double interest is added to the film through the fact that Mr. Selwyn himself appears in his original role, supported, not only by many of the members of the original company, but a whole brigade of the real mounted police as well.

It is a wonderfully picturesque film, as spectacular scenically as the story itself is thrilling, with its battle of red-blooded men, and its devotion of Spartan women, amidst the snows and bleak lonesomeness of the great Northwest.

The play itself, though a gigantic success, was but puny, compared with the grandeur of the film drama, and the accompaniment arranged for it on the mammoth pipe organ should enhance the sublimeness of nature a hundred fold.

Taking his cue from the success of "The Old Curiosity Shop" last week, Manager Woodley announces "Pierre of the Plains" for a full week.

Tally's Broadway.

Mary Pickford, as the ragged little squatter girl, dirty, but beautiful, rude, willful, saucy, but noble and self-sacrificing, renders a portrayal of inexhaustible fascination in the five-act photoplay version of Grace Miller White's powerful story, "Tess of the Storm Country," which is to be the attraction at Tally's Broadway for one week, beginning Monday.

The picturesque environment of scenery, the rich variety of character types, the vital heart interest, and, most of all, the irrisistible charm of "little Mary" make this picture one of the most eventful and delightful motion picture productions ever shown at Tally's. Tess is a character that will live in the memory of the audience long after the shallow, conventional heroine of the average picture is forgotten. Idealized by Mary Pickford, who renders a performance of compelling beauty and forcefulness, it ascends to the realms of art that words alone cannot describe.

Mr. Strobridge and Mr. Demorest promise a musical programme to accompany this production that will be hard to equal in the future. Both the great organ and the orchestra will be heard to advantage.

Hamburger's Arrow.

The program for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday consists of a two-reel feature "In the Fangs of Jealousy," a Eclair drama; "The Transformation of Prudence," Powers society drama, and "The Boarder's Mishaps," Joker comedy.

The biggest feature of the week, however, is a two-reel Eclair, "In a Persian Garden," a colored picture, with Mildred Blight and W. Thomas. The humor and pathos of this film are so clearly and interestingly depicted that it holds attention from start to finish.

The latter part of the week's program is backed up by Augustus Carney, comedy, "Universal Ike in Pursuit of Eats," and the Powers "Count's Infatuation."

Alhambra.

The Alhambra Theater announces a special feature for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, in the person of Hermann, nephew of Hermann the Great, a comedy juggler and magician, who has been winning high favor as an entertainer. He is scheduled to appear daily, at 2 and 4 p.m.

Miller's.

Klaw & Erlanger's first photoplay, "Classmates," in four parts, which has been attracting unusually big crowds to Miller's Ninth, Spring and Main Street Theater, will be shown for the last time today and tonight. This virile outdoor play of today is undoubtedly one of the greatest stage successes to be converted to the new art.

Interpreted by a great cast headed by the same stars who made that other big Miller success, "Judith of Bethulia," it compares favorably with that beautiful story, and is produced with the same wealth of detail and interpreted with the same skill that made that production the most talked-of one in the world. A good comedy and a Broncho Billy picture complete the bill.

Monday's program contains many good things, including a two-reel Vitagraph feature, entitled "The Antique Engagement Ring." The newest Pathe Weekly contains scenes of the occupation and landing of troops at Vera Cruz, shows the actual fighting in the streets, and one American marine was killed and four wounded right in front of the camera. This is the real stuff.

Little Theater.

So successful have been the performances of "Wan o' the Wood" at the Little Theater that Manager Frank C. Egan has decided to continue the play for another week, only restricting them to matinees. The first performance of the coming week will be on Thursday afternoon, and the second on Saturday, making only two performances in the week.

"Wan o' the Wood" is by all odds the most cleverly produced fairyland play ever given by children in Los Angeles. It tells a beautiful story, crammed full of child love, and has a heart interest for every man, woman and child. The cast of children presenting the play are not amateurs in the sense that the word usually applies. They are drilled performers, and display a talent not often found in professionals. Best of all, they take a personal pride in their work, and the performances at the Little Theater are proof of that fact.

"Argyle Case."

first American tours. Then he became very popular all over the country in "Mr. Barnes of New York," "Paul Kauvar," "Lost—24 Hours," "Wheels Within Wheels," "Pillars of Society," "Blue Jeans" and "Sporting Life," which ran for months at the Academy of Music in New York.

The stockbroking temptation lured Hilliard away from the stage for a time, but he came back and starred in "The Nominee," "Jim Bludso," "That Man and I" and "The Mummy."

Among the members of his company in the latter play were Amelia Bingham and Raymond Hitchcock. During the prolonged New York run of Belasco's "The Girl of the Golden West" he played the picturesque express robber. He produced "A Fool There Was," in which he starred from coast to coast for four years, until he found another popular success in "The Argyle Case," which ran in New York all last season.

Mr. Hilliard was the first legitimate headliner in vaudeville, and from time to time made excursions into that field of entertainment. Among his playlets were "The Littlest Girl," which he gave nearly 5000 times in America and England; "As a Man Sows," "973" and "The Man Who Won the Pool."

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Congressman John J. Whitacre of Ohio, who recently caused considerable comment throughout the country by the statement that Congress is no place for a man who is intellectually honest, began his career as a student in a law school, taking care of the office of a justice of the peace for a minimum wage at the same time. In time he became a successful lawyer, but finally engaged in the manufacturing business, and in this he has risen to fortune. He owns a large building-tile plant and has paid little attention to law as a profession for years. In Congress he seldom makes a speech. It is said of him that he is one of the greatest readers in the house.

Joseph G. Cannon was 78 years of age May 7. He received many letters and telegrams of congratulation. Mr. Cannon spent the day at Tuscola, Ill., where fifty years ago he was the town's only lawyer, and where he resided when first elected to Congress.

Though he has only one eye, Hon. Sanford Kirkpatrick challenges any man in the United States 72 years old or over, former professionals barred, to wrestle him catch-as-catch-can, two falls in three or three in five. Nor can Mr. Kirkpatrick see very well with the eye that remains. Besides, he has 200 bullets, more or less, of assorted sizes, in his body—mostly above the waist line. For twenty-seven years he was a government detective. Moonshiners hunted him while he hunted them. Today he is in the House of Representatives from Iowa.

In naval circles they sometimes call Rear-Admiral Frank Edmund Beatty—now in command of the third division of the North Atlantic fleet off Tampico—"Charity" Beatty, because he tries to look on the delinquent's better side in every case of discipline.

A man whose breast was covered with medals, among them the Cross of the Legion of Honor, applied for enlistment at the main recruiting station of the navy in New York. He told Commander Casey B. Morgan he was a direct descendant of Marshal Murat of the army of Napoleon, and had fought in two wars. His name he gave as Jean Murat, and said he had just arrived from Montreal, hoping to fight for the United States. Because he was 55 years old he was rejected. At first he refused to believe the navy would not take the descendant of Napoleon's marshal, but when the age limit was explained to him he wept.

OVER THE SEA.

Baroness d'Anethan, formerly the doyenne of the corps diplomatique at Tokio when the late Baron d'Anethan was the Belgium Minister, is returning to this city. Baroness d'Anethian, who is a sister of the English novelist, Sir Rider Haggard, is a well-known writer herself.

King George of England owns one of the most valuable stamp collections in the possession of any individual in the world. Part of the collection of the late Earl of Crawford, second only to that of the King, who has been collecting since his boyhood, was recently sold in London for $80,000. The King's collection will probably never come under the hammer, as it will doubtless eventually go to some museum.

Stephen Pichon, who held the portfolio of foreign affairs in France, under the Clemenceau and Briand Cabinets, as well as in the recent Barthou ministry, has, it is understood, separated himself from his former political connections and has returned to journalism. He is now on the board of the Petit Journal, and will probably control that paper's political news.

Sir Edward Clarke, formerly Solicitor-General for England, announces that he will retire in November, after having been at the bar for fifty years. He rose to his high station from a lowly position in life, having begun as an apprentice to a jeweler, sleeping behind the counter at night.

Michael Spartali, who died recently at Shanklin, Isle of Wight, at the age of 95, was formerly Consul-General for Greece in London. He was present at the funeral of George IV and the coronation of William IV. Among his friends were Gladstone, Cobden and Bright.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

THE GOOD HOUSEEEPER'S HINT: Strawberries and rhubarb make excellent jelly and jam. The addition of the cheaper fruit is not only an economy, but it actually improves the flavor and the "jellying" of the berries. The process of preparation is the same as when berries are used exclusively.

Recently I was invited to visit one of the married girls who had something of great interest to show me.

After a little chat, she led me into a pure white room which had the cleanly air of a hospital ward, in its freedom from extraneous objects, and as I looked around I realized that the room was fully prepared for the event which will soon take place there.

Beside the big bed, immaculately white, stood a little sister—a crib quite as white as the larger one, and in one corner was placed a generous chest, finished in white enamel. It was toward the latter that my attention wandered, although in doing so, it did not fail to compass the two dainty bouquets, upon the pure white dresser—a large one for the prospective mother, and a smaller one for the wee visitor-to-be. These pretty bouquets are placed there fresh each day, it seems—and isn't it a pretty thought! This is, however, but one of the many welcoming thoughts given constantly to the wanted-one. Oh, if every baby could be as welcome as will that one, what a different world this would be! More fortunate the coming little one than if he were to occupy the mansion of a millionaire, lacking the heart love which is here prepared for him.

I learned that the little housewife was prepared not only as to the garments and every possibly needed article for the stranger, but that her bungalow home was in order from end to end, every drawer and closet cleaned and freshly papered, every article in its proper place so that there will be no hurried hunt for anything during the weeks to come, when others will be at the helm.

The infant's layette, while simple, was the most complete that could be imagined, and for the benefit of other girl-mothers-to-be, I shall tell you exactly what it comprised.

The Layette.

There was the chest, not of cedar as the odor might be objectionable in connection with baby garments, but of white wood enameled white outside and containing a big, generous drawer, with substantial pulls of wood. In the upper part of the chest were the heavier articles such as bedding, the big, soft nursing shawl, comforts and blankets, for the cart, and the bassinette, together with all articles which will be needed for the bath and toilet.

In the drawer were the garments to be used later, such as the wee dresses and petticoats, the pinners and bibs, caps and bootees.

The arrangements for baby's welfare included, several comforts and quilts, two being of lamb's wool, covered with soft, silky material. The wool itself was purchased in a large square, big enough for a full-sized bed and was divided into four small comforts. There was a crib mattress, a cover of rubber sheeting for this, two quilted bed pads and two rubber pads for use upon the lap, these latter to be disguised with some pretty white material edged with lace, so that the guest who "holds the baby" will not recognize the purpose of the pillow upon which the little one lies. Half a dozen sheets for the tiny bed, and no pillow—according to the determination of this little mother; but some may wish for one. A big pillow for the go-cart and a small one to be placed at back or head when the airing is in process; and a coverlet for the cart, completes the out-of-doors et ceteras. An enameled bath tub for the daily bath, the tub to be placed on an oil cloth on top of the big chest, and an enameled pitcher to contain hot water, together with the usual quota of sponges, dainty toilet articles such as Paris ivory comb, brush, powder box, and puff, talcum shaker and soap holder, complete the outfit for baby's bath and his comfortable rest.

Clothing for the Babe.

For his personal use are selected the following garments, each sufficiently fine for contact with the baby body, but not over-elaborate or "fussy;" six slips of white crepe, made in kimono style; four petticoats made in the Gertrude shape; three flannel petticoats; four fine dresses of white daintily trimmed and having touches of hand embroidery, as well as wee edges of lace; four fine white petticoats; three pairs of cashmere hose, No. 2, three silk and wool shirts—Reubens—three kimono nighties made from outing flannel or daisy cloth, these latter made with tucks at the yoke and wrists, so that they may be let out as the wee one grows; three pinners, of outing flannel; three bands of the same; two dozen twenty-seven-inch diapers of daisy cloth; several sacques, two long kimonos of heavy material to insure comfort when baby goes into a colder room or out of doors; one bonnet; as many bootees as friends are determined to shower—and usually there are enough of these for all future babies as well as for the first; a generous quantity of bibs—at least a dozen. This completes the list of his young lordship's first necessities. The cost of such an outfit is moderate, and the equipment ample.

The Little Mother.

For the little mother-to-be, there are a number of requisites, none of which were forgotten by my friend. Plenty of night gowns, of extra amplitude, are, of course, the first necessity. Then come the pretty bed sacques, made with reference to the poetic attractiveness of motherhood. In this instance all were of washable crepe, made with dainty and original touches. The nursing night gowns, by the way, were of unique design, having a buttoned-over piece at the front for convenience in nursing. The boudoir caps matched or pleasingly contrasted with the bed sacques, and one could readily imagine how prettily these will frame the sweet mother face. Then, for the time when the home duties will be resumed, there is a quota of house dresses made on the order of kimona aprons, but having the buttoned front like the night gowns, so that baby's comfort shall be easily compassed.

Shirt and Hose Dryers.

Two features observed in connection with the baby's outfit were a shirt dryer and one for hose. The former was shaped exactly like baby's shirt, but was made from wood and was hinged in the center, so that it could be doubled over to insert the shirts and to detach them when dry. I had not seen anything similar, but how very convenient it will be—preventing these garments from the usual shrinkage during the process of laundering. The same is true as to hose dryers.

Saint's Days.

One of my friends has such a clever fad. At the top of each social letter he placed the name of the saint's day upon which the missive happens to be written. How he learns the day is one of his own particular secrets; but the custom is a pretty one, don't you think? And in conjunction—he uses the name of The Angels, instead of Los Angeles. For instance, a recent missive begins: The Angels, St. Boniface's Day, 1914.

In the World of Fashion.

Silk and lingerie combinations are frequently seen.

Satin ribbon is used for flounces and for hat brims.

Black leather bags are often lined with purple, red, or tan.

There are even hats fashioned on the old sun-bonnet lines.

Some of the new coat sleeves incline to the bishop shape.

Stripes and plain colors are everywhere seen in combination.

Bright-hued sashes appear beneath lingerie puffed skirts.

Jewels set flat are used in the clasps of the finer handbags.

Some of the girls seem to be wearing Balmacaans or check top coats.

Washable tango girdles may now be had stamped for embroidering.

Tartan silks combined with plain materials make up many chic toilettes.

Biscuit and tan are frequently seen instead of white evening gloves.

Silk and duvetyne is another seasonable combination in the tailored suit.

A new type of novelty tweed coat has the effect in the back of a double cape.

Huge circular capes to match the gowns are being much worn by smart women.

An extreme shaped hat is a coolie with a straw strap covered with flowers.

White capes have collars of Roman stripes or colored charmeuse or moire.

Bright black leaves are seen a great deal mixed with flowers on fine straw hats.

Dainty neckwear of thin white stuffs with ribbon ends adds grace to any woman.

Some of the little black hats look more like an inverted pie-dish than anything else.

The present styles of hats call for coquettish curls and puffs of hair about the face.

Mr. and Mrs. Jared W. Lincoln of Chaplin, Ct., celebrated last Tuesday their seventieth wedding anniversary. Among the many public offices which Mr. Lincoln has held was that of postmaster, granted him by President Lincoln, and taken from him by President Cleveland.

Amasa Morse, of Stafford Springs, Ct., an elder of the Adventist Christian Church, and probably the oldest preacher of the denomination in the country, has just celebrated his one hundredth birthday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. P. J. Walker.

Mrs. Anna Pander of Baltimore, celebrated her one hundred and seventh birthday last week, and received many friends and callers. She has several neices in New York, all past their eightieth year.

THE MOODS OF GENEVIEVE.

BY GWEN SEARS.

[illegible] IMAGINATIVE MOOD.

[illegible] red Imaginative [illegible] me, the mood that [illegible] of my being in[illegible] the million ten[illegible] helter skelter [illegible] of joy. Out[illegible] against my win[illegible] somewhere between [illegible] I can hear the oc[illegible] of a violin.

I can dream [illegible] the wonderful roseate [illegible] I shall have achieved [illegible] of my ambition—Success [illegible] What's that? The Im[illegible] comes closer and [illegible] hand upon me whis[illegible] in my ear. "Listen, [illegible] me this once, it is not [illegible] right that you should [illegible] you are a creature made [illegible] with your infinite ca[illegible] it is a crime, yes, a [illegible]"

[illegible] have never met my Real [illegible] Mood. I have never, [illegible]" I answer. "I know [illegible] somewhere in this [illegible] work-a-day world, but [illegible] me? Oh, Real Man—you [illegible] for me since the [illegible] of time, you who are waiting for me, somewhere, yea, now, even this minute, have you too had an Imaginative Mood?"

"Oh, no one, no one in all the world shall know Love as we shall know it. You will respond to all the myriad moods of me, you, who will love me for myself, not for my pretty girl being, creature of dancing eyes and wavy hair, whom no one can or ever does take seriously, whom no one credits with a brain. Ugh! my silly girl being, the living contradiction of my great splendid self, that no one ever realizes. But you will know me, Real Man, you will know me as no one has ever done."

"But how will we meet?" I cry with anxiety. "This wonder love that is to come to us and sweep us off our feet with its reality, its infinite understanding, its perfect union of thoughts, its harmony of moods, Oh, how will it come and when!

"Just in a glance—a swift piognant frightened glance, in a startled moment when the souls of both of us are caught off guard—or will it be a wonderful lingering of days becoming acquainted, accompanied with all the sweet delicious force of indifference—until, until the moment when all the dreams of the world pale before us into nothingness, beside the one delirious moment of reality.

"Oh, dear Real Man, despair not over this chasm of separation. Seek me, and I will wait for you. It may be that our eyes will meet in some crowded subway train, or our souls will unite in gladness in the sordidness of a business office, but we will know, yes, we will know. I would hear it in the roaring of trains, the clatter of the traffic. The glad words would sing out 'It is he, the Real Man!' Then would come the moment when our yearning hands would reach and cling while stern Convention introduced us! Oh, how trivial, how inane our commonplace chatter would sound—in comparison with the tremendous joy surging through us, and the marvelous confession of our eyes.

"Oh, this is the kind of love that I revel in, and I will have it though I wait a million years for it. Until, then, I shall struggle on under the leash of the Ambitious Mood, striving in some desperate way to fill the void—I shall live a solitary life, of unyielding purpose and put the veneer of Love from me with a firm hand. I want real Love, not veneer—the Love that will come to me with you—Real Man."

Lying in the Grass.

Between two golden tufts of summer
grass,
I see the world through hot air as through glass,
And by my face sweet lights and colors pass.
Before me, dark against the fading sky,
I watch three mowers mowing, as I lie:
With brawny arms they sweep in harmony.
Brown English faces by the sun burnt red,
Rich glowing color on bare throat and head,
My heart would leap to watch them,
were I dead!
And in my strong young living as I die,
I seem to move with them in harmony—
A fourth is mowing, and that fourth am I.

Bruce Nelson.

Bruce Nelson's landscapes, now being shown in the Merick Reynolds gallery, No. 341 South Broadway, without doubt make the most interesting exhibition that has been seen in Los Angeles for some time. We have heard that they, or others like them—sixteen were sold—created a furore in San Francisco, where they were recently shown, and the statement is entirely credible.

The artist is less than twenty-six years old, and the buoyant brilliancy of his technique corroborates his youth, even though it bears not a single mark of immaturity. It is, in fact, assured and modern, even when most experimental, but without that knowing sophistication so tiresomely prevalent in the work of our clever younger painters. Moreover, it is individual—individual, and, I think, American.

I might even declare it to be western, did I not know that almost all Bruce Nelson's education in art was received in the East. The young artist himself, however, is western, and to the manner born, for he is a native of Santa Clara county, California, and the most of his maturer years have been lived in Palo Alto and San Francisco.

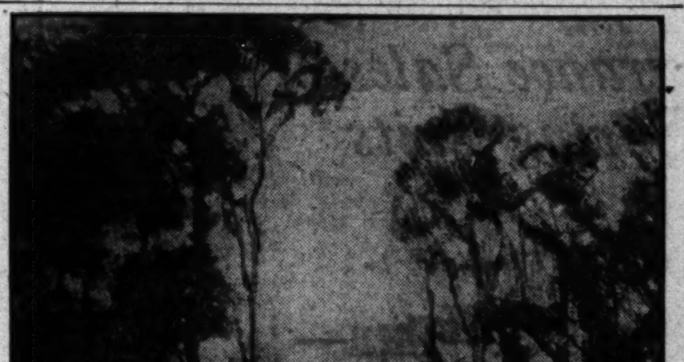
He spent three years at Stanford University, with the idea of fitting himself to become a civil engineer. At twenty he decided in favor of architecture, drawn in this direction by his art impulse. So he left college and went into an architect's office, where the quality of his drawings impelled the architect to advise him to become a painter and to go to New York for study. Nothing loth—how, indeed, should he be?—the gifted young fellow entered the Art Students' League of New York, where he studied under various instructors. Later he joined Birge Harrison's classes in Woodstock.

Bruce Nelson has the wisdom that belongs to unusual talent. He knows when advice is good, and he has the fine decision that follows it when it is good. Birge Harrison, a teacher of vast experience, himself an excellent landscape painter, told the young student not to go to Paris—that Paris might overwhelm him, as it has overwhelmed so many promising young Americans, flattening out his individuality to the level of Gallic uniformity. Therefore, Nelson remained at home. And therefore he is himself, though without eccentricity, for he has the balance that characterizes the mind trained to intelligent comparison and scrutiny.

It is high time we realized that if we are ever to have an art native to our soil we must not first transplant our painters in exotic gardens, however well trimmed and kept those gardens may be—and no one can deny the efficiency of Parisian training and pruning. The hardiest talents suffer under the change—the small, delicate ones die, utterly unable, at the last, to take root anywhere.

So Bruce Nelson remained in America, and finally came West, where he belongs, and where he will continue to paint landscapes of increasing beauty and subtlety. But they are already both lovely and delicate, full of light and air, of brooding sunshine and permeating mists, though in technical expression, as I have intimated, the young artist has the present-day breadth and directness, using a brush charged full with pure paint.

A more detailed review of some of the pictures will be given in this column next week. The exhibition opened last Monday, to remain for three weeks. Go and enjoy these strong, yet poetic interpretations of nature's moods.



After Sunset. By Bruce Nelson.

Exhibition of Miniatures.

The second annual exhibition of the California Society of Miniature Painters opened May 11 in the Friday Morning Club, to close May 18. The exhibition-room is open every day from 10 to 4 o'clock to the general public.

The present exhibition, while somewhat smaller than that of last year, is in some respects a stronger one. The standard of admission to membership in the club has been set very high, and the quality of the work hung in the general exhibitions of the club is on the same plane. No miniatures whose intent is commercial are considered for a moment, and no painters who work from photographs instead of life are eligible to either membership or exhibitions.

Miniatures are as old as the records of art, though in their early beginnings they were not what they are today. The word "miniature" is derived from the Latin "minium," which means red lead, this substance being used in the drawing of initial letters on manuscripts long before the Christian era. From the red initials came ultimately the ornamentation of gorgeous medieval manuscripts, the letters being extended upward and across the page, finally developing into a complete border of ornate embellishment.

Nowadays small pictures, instead of manuscript illuminations, have found the name of miniatures. A true miniature does not exceed seven inches in any direction, and the vast majority of them are much smaller than this. Miniatures were formerly round, but this form has been modified to an oval, undoubtedly a more graceful shape. Occasionally they are square or panel-shaped, like easel pictures. At one time they were painted on paper, vellum or ivory, in oil or opaque water color, but the present fashion is to use transparent water color on ivory, with occasional touches of gouache when needed for accent or for certain textures in drapery. As a rule, however, the best painters eschew the use of opaque color almost entirely, depending on their dexterity with transparent color.

There have been three periods of miniature painting in England. Each of the three had its inspiration from some great artist. The first, or Tudor period, belonging to the sixteenth century, was dominated by the genius of Hans Holbein; the second, that of Anthony Vandyck, flourished in the seventeenth century; the third, of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, belongs to the genius of Sir Joshua Reynolds.

There are eighteen exhibitors in the present exhibition at the Friday Morning Club, each of whom is well worthy of mention, if space permitted. All the portrait painters "in the little" are following the traditions of modern art, those of breadth and simplicity, with an honest desire to get away from the merely pretty—a temptation hard to resist in miniature painting. Besides the forty-nine portraits by the eighteen exhibitors from various parts of California, there are nine loan collections containing thirty-six pieces—portraits and enamels.

The exhibitors are: Mary Benton, George Townsend Cole, Marie Francis Crowe, Mary Harland, Rosa Hooper, Martha M. Jones, Ernest Lloyd, Alice E. Ludovici, Frieda Ludovici, Laura M. D. Mitchell, Mabel Packard, Lida S. Price, Constance A. Price, Aurelia W. Reid, Mrs. Fred F. Small, Minnie C. Taylor, D. F. Thomas, Sarah E. Traux and Mattie Young.

A jury of awards, consisting of five—Mrs. Randall Hutchinson, Everett Maxwell, Esther Hunt, Antony Anderson and Bruce Nelson—conferred a gold medal, contributed by the club, to Alice E. Ludovici for her very charming portrait of a child, "Baby George," recently painted in Santa Barbara, while special honorable mention was bestowed upon Mary Harland and D. F. Thomas, the one winning it for a beautiful study of an Ethiopian's head, the other for a lovely portrait of a little girl.

Landscapes by Jones.

Thirty landscapes in oil by J. Travers Jones are now on view in the Ebell Club, to remain there to May 19. All are landscapes of Southern California, sincere studies of our hills, canyons, oaks and eucalyptus trees.

J. Travers Jones, who studied art in the Pennsylvania Academy, and later became a newspaper man on the Boston Post, was a devoted exponent of the water-color medium when he arrived in Los Angeles three years ago. Up to that time he had not painted landscapes, but figures and portraits. The landscape wonders of Southern California won him as soon as he saw them, and he decided then and there that he would paint them—that he must paint them, indeed—and that he would use the oil medium only.

The unaccustomed medium presented immense difficulties, but Jones surmounted them, and today there are some pictures in the exhibition that have very beautiful and subtle qualities—"Willows of Mission Road Pond," for instance, which is like an Inness in color and handling, the interlacing branches of the gray-green willows seen against a cloudy sky that has glimpses of green as luminous as a jewel. The picture has the lovely and unobtrusively decorative quality of a Japanese print. Another Inness-like bit, in color as well as arrangement, is "Gray Day in Highland Park," massed oaks on a hillside seen against a greenish sky. The grays of the picture are warm, with many elusive colors.

To a lover of trees—and J. Travers Jerome is one—those of Southern California are a perpetual joy. Skirting the hills, wandering over sunlit level spaces, are the eucalyptus trees, suggesting the awkward, swaying, gracefulness of languid ladies of Japan. And while the eucalyptus is distinctly feminine, the live oak is as unmistakably masculine in form and posture, massed sturdily like an old castle on the hillside, darkly immovable against the red of sunset.

Jones's passion for the oaks and the eucalypti has compelled him to paint them often—to paint them more than anything else—and he has studied them at all times of the day and night, singly and in groups. In "Marsh Eucalypti" we see slender trees in the low tones of early twilight, while "Bimini Eucalypti" shows them massed on a height against a sky of green iridescence. "Home of the Live Oak" gives us a hillside of lapis-lazuli blue, a background for a mass of dark oaks, and "Spring Rains in the Arroyo" shows us fresh greens on broken embankments, a foreground for oaks. In "Garvanza Canyon" we see almost nothing but splendid live oaks.

The artist exhibited at the Ebell exactly a year ago. The present exhibition is a distinct advance over his first one, the result of loving and conscientious study of nature.

Art Criticism.

The one distinguishing quality of all valuable art criticism is largeness—largeness of acquired information, to grasp the knowledge of so many thousands of artists, and largeness of natural sympathy, to enter into the individual feelings and affections of so great a multitude of minds. For to criticise adequately any artist's work, mere talent and honesty, though needful, are not enough. It is necessary to have learned what he has learned, and felt what he has felt.—[Hamerton.

THREE YEARS FOR FRAUD.

American "Doctor" of the "Faculty of Chicago" Sentenced in Paris to Imprisonment.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, May 14.—Gerald MacAura, an American citizen, was today sentenced to three years in prison and fined $600 on a charge of fraud in connection with the sale of a vibratory massage instrument.

MacAura, who called himself "Doctor" represented himself as of the "faculty of Chicago." He and ten others were arrested ten days ago as a result of a crusade against the illegal practice of medicine.

Found Blood in a Mammoth.

[New York Times:] The taxidermists at the Natural History Museum of Paris are now preparing the body of a huge mammoth, which lived 40,000 years ago, and was recently found frozen in a Siberian ice block. The animal was so large that it had to be quartered before being brought to the Paris museum.

The experts discovered in a vein a few drops of brownish substance which proved on analysis, to be blood which had remained liquid through 400 centuries.

The carcass was in excellent condition, the hide being intact, and the flesh showing no signs of decomposition.

FAMINE IN OFFICERS MENACES GERMAN ARMY.

Kaiser's New War Minister Discovers He Is Nearly Five Thousand Short, but Can Find No Remedy for Lack of Numbers—Experts Say Trouble Is Due Entirely to Questions of Caste.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, May 1.—Lieut.-Gen. Von Falkenhayn, Kaiser Wilhelm's new War Minister, is combating a famine in officers which threatens the German army with the worst results. He is nearly 5000 officers short, and can find no remedy for the lack of numbers.

Money is plentiful. Thus last year the Reichstag voted an extra $250,000,000. There are more conscripts than can be trained, with the result that 48 per cent. of them are released from service. Nevertheless, for ten years past the shortness in officers has badly prejudiced army training during peace, and it will do worse when operations begin in view of war.

When the big military increases voted in 1913 and 1914 are carried through there will be 35,000 officers on the army list, but only about 30,000 in the flesh. Most of this shortage is due to last year's military law. This law added to the peace strength 120,000 privates, 15,000 non-commis-

GERMANY FEARS BUSINESS WAR.

Is Uneasy About Russia's Proposed High Tariff.

Arrest of Berliner Thought to Indicate Reprisal.

Czar Accused of Following "Policy of Pin Pricks."

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, May 2.—It is not only as a possible military opponent that Germany is uneasy about Russia. The tone of the press daily shows that there is much anxiety over the possibility of a trade war, as well as much uneasiness over what is believed here to be a growth of anti-German sentiment in the big empire of the East.

In some of Russia's recent steps German observers believe they see a combination of military and trade purposes. One of these is the prohibition of the export of horses, destined to keep in Russia all available mounts for cavalry forces, but which also affects German business interests. The already reported proposal to forbid Russian laborers from coming to Germany each harvest time would be a severe blow to the agriculturists, and the proposed increase of import tariffs on grains, now under consideration by the Russian government, would practically cut off an important market. Germany exported to Russia last year 231,000 tons of rye, 22,000 tons of wheat and 38,000 tons of oats. These figures do not include the considerable exports to Finland.

The long detention at Perm of Hans Berliner and his two companions, who landed there after a record flight in their balloons, and the determination of Russian authorities to bring them to trial on charges of espionage are generally considered in Germany as reprisals for a number of recent unfortunate incidents, one of which also was responsible for German industry losing an important contract. This was the case of a man named Popow, an engineer of the Russian Ministry of Railways, who came to Germany to buy a number of river steamers for his ministry. He was arrested on suspicion of being a spy. He left for London immediately upon his release, saying he would give the contracts to English firms. As a result of his experience, the Russian Railway Ministry is contemplating placing no further orders in Germany unless the German firms or persons with whom the dealings are had are willing to furnish a cash bond to assure the Russian agents against being arrested. Naturally no one will risk the loss of a considerable sum through the dunderheadedness of any minor official, and such a regulation would mean the practical exclusion of German industry from the Russian field.

Another of these unfortunate incidents was the arrest in Cologne of Capt. Poljakow of the Russian Marine Ministry. He was charged with picking pockets. He was released shortly afterward and the policemen who have made the error have been punished, but the incident was a further trial for Russia's patience.

Beyond the Atlantic.

but before their first winter was over the royal pair became fascinated with skiing and, under the tutelage of Capt. Roll, the King's aide, who is one of the most expert ski runners in Norway, they became so proficient that they could compete with any native-born of their age.

In the winter the royal family lives for several weeks in a small house near the scene of the world's greatest ski derby. This house, which was a gift from the people, is built in the Norwegian peasant style and is furnished in true sportsman fashion. Neither the King nor the Queen cares much for royal ceremony and etiquette, so their vacation days at the ski grounds constitute the most enjoyable season of their year.

They found particular pleasure recently in entertaining the Prince of Wales, their nephew, who tried skiing for the first time. The Prince took to the Norwegian sports so readily that during the last day of his visit he made a trip to the high mountains and glaciers, a feat that is not considered lightly even by experienced mountain climbers. When he left for home he expressed the intention of coming back next winter, if possible.

IN TURKEY.

Knife and Fork Vogue.

Not since its supposedly invincible battalions were rolled back by the Bulgarian advance at Lule Burgas has the Turkish army exerienced a greater shock than the order issued by the new Secretary of War, Envers Bey, that hereafter all Turkish soldiers must eat with a knife and fork. The enlisted men are not only alarmed at the prospect of handling the strange implements, but are hurt by the intimation that faithful hands, which have always served the primary purpose of conveying food to their mouths, should be deemed no longer fit for that useful service. The Turkish private is not proving an apt pupil. When his superiors are absent he squats upon the floor and devours his food in the good, old-fashioned way, but at the approach of an officer he scrambles to a seat at the table and falls to wielding his new weapons with all the skill he can command.

The civilizing process is not to stop with teaching the Turkish soldier table manners. The edict has also gone forth that he must learn to read and write.

IN AUSTRIA.

Flats and Children.

The refusal of landlords in Vienna to rent flats to persons with children has become such an obstacle to families of the working classes that they are suffering real hardship in their quest for suitable living quarters. The condition of affairs has been presented to the City Council and a proposal made to lower the taxes on houses whose owners would permit children to live in them. While this particular motion was shelved it is not improbable that something may be done in this direction. Since taxes on house property in Vienna amount to more than 42 per cent. of the gross rentals, any reduction would be extremely welcome.

Workers living in suburbs are found to be badly crowded, as many as eight persons sometimes occupying a flat that consists of one small room and a kitchen.

Tobacco Monopoly.

Notwithstanding that the Austrian government's tobacco monopoly three years ago increased the retail price of cigars and cigarettes, the smoking habit appears to have held its ground, yielding to the state a clear profit of many million dollars a year. The tobacco monopoly's report for 1912, which has just been issued, shows $48,000,000 profit, an increase of about $2,000,000 over the preceding year.

Cigars had a great falling off, there being only 1,154,000,000 cigars smoked during 1912, a decrease of 82,000,000, as compared with the previous year, but the consumption of cigarettes reached the enormous total of 6,222,000,000.

IN GERMANY.

Hard to Find Aldermen.

Charlottenburg, largest of the cities joined to Berlin to form Greater Berlin, has joined the ranks of municipalities seeking the repeal of an old law requiring at least two-thirds of the aldermen to be house owners. Danzig made a similar appeal to the Prussian Diet five years ago, but the appeal was killed in committee without discussion. It is doubtful whether Charlottenburg will fare better.

Conditions have changed so greatly since the law complained of was enacted—during the days of Baron Stein, one of the great figures of the struggle of 1813—that the municipalities are greatly handicapped in finding representative men for aldermen. A hundred years ago the great majority of all houses in the cities were occupied by their owners, who held them for long terms of years and generally during their whole life. Today, a quarter of all houses in Berlin have been in the same hands for only two years, and half of them for less than six. In Charlottenburg itself 70 per cent. of all houses have changed hands in the last ten years.

Two other elements enter into the situation. One is the fact that many houses are owned by corporations; the other, that a great proportion of them are held by non-residents. One-third of the buildings in Charlottenburg are owned by persons who do not live in the city. In existing conditions in the real estate world, by far the greater part of house owners have only a trifling interest in the houses nominally owned by them, mortgages encumbering the places for all they would bring at a forced sale.

Beer Checks in the Army.

An important step in combatting the excessive use of alcohol by soldiers has been taken by commanders of four army corps, the fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth and twenty-first, who have issued orders doing away with what was in effect a compulsion to drink beer or nothing on holidays, or other special occasions. At such times the soldiers are permitted to draw a portion of their earnings. Instead, however, of receiving money, they get beer checks, good at the military canteens. The new orders provide that these checks shall hereafter be accepted also for coffee and other non-alcoholic drinks.

Simultaneously comes an order from the commandant of the Strassburg garrison, Gen. von Deimling, that the price of non-alcoholic drinks in the canteens shall not exceed the price of beer. At maneuvers, wine and beer are not to be dispensed at the outpost bivouacs.

It is reported that the new orders have the especial approval of the Emperor.

Germany and South America.

Germany has just appointed its first naval attache to South American countries in the person of Capt. Moller. He will make his headquarters at Buenos Aires, but will visit the other South American capitals in order to study naval developments.

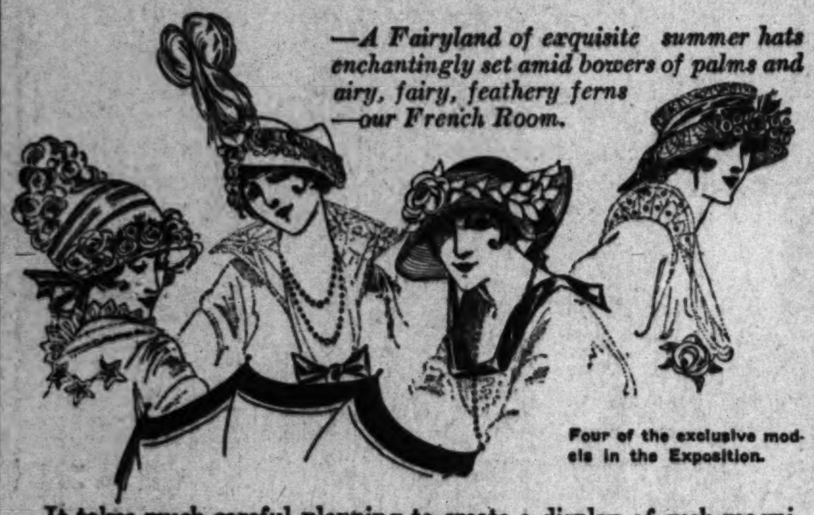
La Grande Exposition Summer Millinery

—A Fairyland of exquisite summer hats enchantingly set amid bowers of palms and airy, fairy, feathery ferns —our French Room.



Four of the exclusive models in the Exposition.

—It takes much careful planning to create a display of such magnitude and beauty. Each hat—and there will be scores of them, has had the attention of the most original millinery designers in the West.

—There will be hats for garden parties, for summer weddings, for indoor and outdoor affairs—hats different from any that you have ever seen before. Odd, but strangely becoming shapes, bewitching effects in contrasting colors; shepherdess hats and hats with roses climbing over them, and cornflowers, and hand-tinted golden wheat and great loops of ribbon artistically placed.

—Pink predominates—Summer pink, cool looking, dainty; and there'll be models in gold and silver lace; hats with foliage in hand-tinted bronze—hats which fairy hands seemed to have made just for you. Come—it's their "At Home" day tomorrow—we invite you.

(Hamburger's French Room—Second Floor)

60 Hats, Special, $11.50

—They're Monday's surprise for you—models designed for twice this price—a special feature, in addition to the Exposition—and eleven-fifty seems such a mite of a price for hats so beautiful.

—This special showing includes droopy and picturesque models, quaint bonnet-like shapes, hats with high backs, others that seem to stand perpendicular at the side of the head and face—all are new and strikingly original.

GERMAN BOYS AS SUICIDES.

Failure to Pass in School the Frequent Cause.

Zabern Affair Brings Out New Army Regulation.

Military Forces to Intervene Only When Called On.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, April 25.—The recent examinations at the German schools were again, as each year, accompanied with numerous instances of boys killing themselves, either through fear that they would not pass or because of mortification at failure. On a single day three suicides of students, all less than 18 years old, were reported, and the body of one who had drowned himself some days earlier, was recovered. These instances were in Greater Berlin alone.

One of the boys threw himself in front of a train because he had not been promoted to a higher class. A suicide by drowning was that of a 17-year-old boy who was shortly to try the examination entitling him to discharge his military duties with one year's service. According to his teachers there was no doubt that he would have passed, as he was unusually capable and intelligent.

The fixed bureaucratic scheme of life for the average German, while not explaining such suicides, throws some light on the youth's actions. Failure to be graduated from school is a very serious thing. To become a "Beamter," that is, a public official, is the goal of a great percentage of young Germans, for the official enjoys many privileges not granted to the non-official German. He has a certain tenure, a retiring pension and other material advantages, and enjoys especial protection under the law of insults, it being a much graver crime to insult an official than a private citizen.

But for those who have failed in their school work there is no chance to become state officials. Even in private life they find it almost impossible to secure responsible positions with mercantile firms, and they are, of course, disbarred from entering the learned professions. It is not altogether strange that the German youth is disposed to take a grave view of his failure.

It is not only students in the schools who kill themselves before or after examinations. A man of 22, who had been studying legal procedure, reached the point where he was to take his examination for advancement to court clerk. He repeatedly told his friends that he was sure he should not pass the examination. The night before the examination he threw himself from the window of his third-story room and was crushed to death.

THE ZABERN AFFAIR.

The general indignation in Germany over the Zabern affair of last fall has finally borne fruit in the shape of a new regulation governing the conduct of military forces in case of internal disorders.

The regulation, which has already received the approval of the Emperor, does away with the famous Cabinet order of 1820, under which Col. Von Reuter justified his intervention in local affairs and his imprisonment of Zabern citizens. This ancient order provided that if the commander of troops "decides, according to duty and conscience, that the civil authorities are delaying too long their requisition for troops, in view of the fact that they are no longer able to restore order, it is his duty and his right to intervene without the requisition of the civil authorities, and to assume command, and the civil authorities must obey his orders."

The new regulation provides that the military forces may not intervene without requisition except "in cases of pressing danger for the public security when the civil authorities, as a result of uncontrollable circumstances, are not in a position to issue the requisition." In other words, so long as the civil authorities are still in power, troops may not intervene without a direct request.

The liberal press is inclined to consider the regulation a decided victory for constitutionalism. It regrets, however, that such an important regulation, affecting the rights of all citizens, can still be made in Germany without consulting the Reichstag, and is somewhat disquieted over a new provision covering the cases in which a soldier may make use of his weapons. To cases where life, limb or property is threatened by an unlawful attack are added cases of "an attack upon honor." This is a most elastic problem, and critics of the new order recall that Lieut. Von Fornster justified his sabering of a lame shoemaker by declaring that he acted in defense of his threatened honor.

SEWS ON HUMAN HAIR.

Budapest Surgeon Cures Cases of Baldness by First Making Punctures in the Scalp.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BUDAPEST, May 2.—A method of sewing hairs to the human scalp in cases of baldness has been successfully used by Dr. Szekely at the Hospital of St. Stephens in this city. The number of hairs planted in the head of one patient has been as high as 50,000. One hundred hairs are drawn through punctures in the scalp in every square centimeter and as both ends are left free this makes over 1000 hairs to each square inch.

In the operation very fine gold wires are used, one five-hundredths of an inch in diameter and fine, long hairs from a woman's head are attached to these. The gold loop acts as an anchor, which after sterilization is introduced into the subcutaneous tissues, where it is slightly twisted, thus holding the hair in permanent position. It is claimed that 500 hairs can thus be planted in three-quarters of an hour. A special instrument has been designed by Dr. Szekely for planting the gold wires, which are so fine that after the work is completed for planting 50,000 hairs there is only one gramme of gold left in the scalp.

The hair becomes perfectly natural after a capsule of tissue forms around the gold knot. The inflamation entirely disappears within ten days after the operation and no evil results have ensued from any of the planting. The hair can be treated in the ordinary way after the operation and the doctor's earliest patient, who underwent the operation seven years ago, has a beautiful head of natural glossy hair sioned officers and 4000 officers. The chief trouble of the War Minister, however, is to get sufficient junior officers. The demand for more senior officers caused by the military law can be met, of course, by promotions, but these promotions have this result—they increase still further the deficiency of junior officers. So the most important arms of the service are far short of their due number of captains, first lieutenants and lieutenants.

Famine in Officers.

Worst of all is the state of the infantry and field artillery. Practically the whole of Prussia's infantry is dangerously under-officered. An infantry regiment needs as minimum twenty-seven first lieutenants and lieutenants. In the whole German army there are only three regiments with that number. The all-round average number of first lieutenants and lieutenants is twenty-one, which is six short of the necessary minimum. Numerous regiments have only sixteen or seventeen lieutenants, and there are a couple of regiments with only thirteen.

In reality, things are worse, because some officers are always absent "on commando" in gymnasiums, shooting schools, and arms factories; and others are on leave of absence, or ill. The field artillery regiments are not so badly off, but they are also short of officers. When war breaks out Germany will have to include in her cadres an excessive number of reserve officers, many of whom have never been trained as officers, but have had training in the ranks as "one-year volunteers." The "one-year volunteer" officers, and reserve officers generally, are in knowledge and talent for command, far behind the officers of the active army.

Germany must do something to supply this deficiency. She is asking herself first: What is the cause? The fundamental cause is that the officer's profession here is still a social caste; that it is monopolized by aristocratic and bureaucratic families whose relative number is falling off; while the quickly-growing and wealthy bourgeois is kept out of the army. The army has ceased to be a career. For most officers it has become a means of wasting the first years of life without attaining high military rank, and at the same time of becoming unfit for civil occupations. The senior officers stick to their posts and the juniors drag on in minor positions until late in life, when they retire without achievement behind or prospects ahead.

Germany's army has only 3000 positions with sufficient pay to support even modestly a married man, or with sufficient pension to make the retired man independent. As the army list counts 13,000 lieutenants and first-lieutenants, it follows that three out of four men who enter the army must retire with a junior rank and with no pension or a very small one. What makes things worse is that this retirement usually takes place when the officers are at or past middle age.

Slowness of promotion is the main source of the German officer's woe. The average man who enters the army at 20 must serve as lieutenant and first-lieutenant seventeen years. At 37 he becomes captain, and in this rank he remains till he is about 48. In this way he passes the best part of his life without position or pay. His initial pay as lieutenant is $31 a month. At the solid age of 42 as a captain of five years' standing, he is drawing $82 a month. In most cases he does not get beyond the rank of first-lieutenant, and on retiring he draws an annual pension of $230. If he sticks on as captain, and serves twenty-eight years he can retire on a pension of $1000.

Under the army increase law of 1913 these conditions will be slightly improved. The lieutenant will have a chance to become captain at thirty-four, to become major at forty-four, and to become lieutenant-colonel at 50. This will improve the dash and character of the officers' corps for war purposes. But it means the sudden promotion of numerous first-lieutenants and lieutenants and will make deficiency in number of the lieutenants bigger than ever.

Military prestige in society is damaged by this. The empire is flooded with ex-lieutenants—"Lieutenants ausser Dienst"—with small army pensions or none. They are life's failures, and are much worse off than the rank and file. The State looks after all retired non-commissioned officers, and gives them good jobs in the police, railroad and civil service. It does practically nothing for the penniless ex-lieutenant, and hundreds of those ex-lieutenants are clerks in commercial houses, drummers and petty insurance agents. War Minister Falkenhayn lately sent a circular letter to associations of commerce asking them to induce merchants to employ retired officers as clerks.

Poor men are kept out of Germany's army because they cannot attain competence. The rich bourgeoisie refuse to supply officers because of the preferment of nobles, and because of the monopoly by men with "von" to their names of all the high commands. Of four lieutenants who join the army three are non-noble. But in the senior ranks three are noble and only one bourgeois. In the highest commands practically no bourgeois at all is admitted. There has never yet been a non-noble War Minister, Chief of General Staff, Army Inspector, Governor of Berlin, General-Inspector of Cavalry, or Inspector of Military Schools. The Field-Marshals are all nobles. Of forty-nine generals forty-six are nobles. Of a hundred lieutenant-generals seventy-three are nobles, and of 119 major-generals, 113 are nobles. Thus only as rank declines does the despised bourgeois get a look in. The more exclusive regiments refuse to admit a bourgeois officer. Of the seventy-nine Prussian cavalry regiments, twenty-five have not one non-noble.

Democratisation, say the Reichstag anti-Militarists, is the one way to attract young men. At present 70 per cent. of officers are sons of officers, of high officials, or of landed magnates. Only 15 per cent. are sons of business men. Austria-Hungary has managed to democratise her army and to reverse these conditions. Two-thirds of her officers are sons of petty officials, of non-commissioned officers, and of families of equivalent social rank. This creates an abundant source of supply of officers. Germany's feudal generals resolutely oppose any change in this direction.

SWEDEN'S PROBLEM.

Both Liberals and Socialists Refuse to Form Cabinet Unless King Makes Certain Promises.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

STOCKHOLM, May 2.—The political crisis in Sweden has passed with the holding of the general election, but the results do not indicate a permanent solution of the question of natural defense on which the election hinged. The number of Conservative members has been increased from 65 to 85, the Socialists from 65 to 75 and the Liberals, hitherto the dominant party, have been reduced from 100 to 70 in the second chamber, which will soon convene here. The increase of the Conservative poll was due to the general feeling of unrest in regard to the foreign situation, which is believed at least to menace the territorial integrity of Sweden. The Conservatives went to the polls with the cry of national safety first and this rather overshadowed the other issue of the constitutional conflict between the King and Parliament.

Sweden is becoming imbued with the idea that Russia contemplates war against her within the near future and recent espionage cases have served to confirm the notion that the great northern power is laying covetous eyes on her Scandinavian neighbor.

The election has supported the view expressed by the King in his speech to the peasants, when he declared that the party which was willing independently of all other questions to vote a considerable increase for the support of the army and navy should be returned in a majority to Parliament. The Liberals while not going as far in support of this policy as the Conservatives will certainly back them in a bill for national defense against the Socialists. As soon, however, as this question is settled the alliance between the two parties will cease at once and a serious conflict of the throne with the left wing of the Legislature may then be expected.

Neither the Liberals nor the Socialists, both elected on a Republican platform, will consent to form a Cabinet unless the King promises that such a Cabinet will be free from any influence not strictly constitutional, and be guarded against any coup like the King's speech to the peasants. It does not seem that under present conditions a Conservative Cabinet will be able to govern the country.

It is evident that the Conservative press accepts this view, for it is already beginning to plead for a reconciliation with the Liberals, who, during the heat of the recent campaign, were denounced by the same press as being nothing but traitors and political adventurers.

Hungarian Premier to Fight.

My May Clearance Sale Begins Monday, 9 A.M.

It's my first big sale, my first clearance, and I want every woman who has ever read any advertisement of mine, or who has ever been at all attracted to my store through my windows, to attend it.

I want you to realize, too, if you will, that every reduction advertised here is a genuine reduction. I'm not going to start my first season in Los Angeles by marking goods up first and marking them down afterwards.

All Suits, Gowns Coats
Priced to $45
$21.75

Think what that means. Think of the hundreds and hundreds of beautiful suits and costumes and gowns and cloaks and wraps that you've seen in my windows priced at from $35 to $45, and then think of the wonderful opportunity that is presented when you can buy those same garments tomorrow for $21.75!

I feel that the store ought to be a perfect riot of customers, but then perhaps I know what wonderful values I'm giving better than you do.

All Suits, Gowns Cloaks
Priced to $60
$31.75

And in this line, too. Such splendid, dainty, unusually smart designs. The very best of my $45 to $60 stock is put in at this low price,—$31.75. I have promised you several times that if I ever held a sale it would be a REAL SALE. Now I think I am making good my promise.

WOMEN'S WORK,

BY SYDNE

"THEY HAVEN'T been here for months and months and months" chanted a member of the Women's City Club last Monday as she watched the lobbying and the voting at the primary election for officers. This quotation from the comedian topical song had reference to certain members who appeared to cast their votes for favorite candidates. It is said that the amount of scurrying round to pay up long over-due dues on the part of delinquent members in order to qualify for voting was something to surprise the gods. Such a general turn-out there has not been for "months and months and months," as was drawn by this primary election.

Tomorrow the question of whether the club shall be partisan or nonpartisan in regard to political measures will be threshed out and there will probably be some lively skirmishing. It is generally understood that the candidate for president, Mrs. Shelley Tolhurst, is strongly in favor of making the club partisan, although she refused to declare her policy at the primaries. On the other hand, it is well known that the first vice-president, Mrs. E. R. Brainerd, is distinctly opposed to this policy, as are practically all the other candidates for office.

Washington Club Women Here.

Mrs. Z. S. James and daughter, Eunice James, prominent in Washington social and club circles, are at the St. James Hotel, No. 317 West Twenty-third street, and will be in Los Angeles for some weeks. They are traveling for pleasure and intend to spend the greater part of the next two years in visiting the various clubs in the West. Mrs. James is a member of the Mayflower Society and also of the D.A.R.

Averill Club Annual.

The Averill Club will hold its annual luncheon next Tuesday at the Sierra Madre clubrooms in the Los Angeles Investment Company building at Eighth and Broadway. At 1 o'clock, preliminary to the luncheon, there will be a brief business session when reports from committees will be presented. The retiring president, Mrs. G. A. Cable, who has been elected to the presidency of the Los Angeles District Federation, and the retiring secretary, Mrs. G. V. Brewer who has served for more than five years, will be presented with booklets containing the original verses which were given at one of the club socials during the year and which created a great deal of interest.

The incoming officers are Mrs. F. K. Adams, president; Mrs. F. T. Exley first vice-president; Mrs. Ed Averill, second vice-president; Mrs. John Finlay, recording secretary and Mrs. Frank Posta, corresponding secretary.

Cosmos Club Musicale.

Oscar Werner delighted members and guests of the Cosmos Club last Wednesday afternoon with a violin recital at the Ebell clubhouse. Accompanied by Mrs. Werner on the piano, he gave a choice programme from leading composers and, preliminary to the recital, a paper written by himself and read by Mrs. Dodge, which gave a comprehensive history of violin music and a review of the particular numbers to be presented from Bach, Dvorak, Tschaikowski, Klepping, Tartini and others. The opening sonata by Veracini was charming, as well as the closing theme and variations by Thomson-Paganini.

Preliminary to the musical programme, Mrs. Bartlett, who was a delegate to the State convention at Riverside, gave a fine review of the proceedings there. The president, Mrs. A. C. Hummelbaugh, announced the annual luncheon which will take place next Wednesday at Hotel Hollywood.

Can You Swim?

How many young women and girls do you imagine have taken a swim—or at least a dip—in the Y.W.C.A. plunge during the past year? You'll lift your eyebrows a little I fancy when I tell you that no less than [illegible] have "gone under" in that pool, and of this number 500 women and children have learned to swim. Just now they are forming new classes for everyone is interested in the art of swimming, as summer approaches and the beaches and breakers beckon. If you want to learn how to back-stroke, side-stroke, dive, float, turn the water wheel, or do any other aquatic stunts just go down there and take a splash in the plunge under the instruction of one of the experts in charge.

Sawtelle Citizens' League.

Sawtelle women have formed a club to be known as the Citizens' League. A constitution and by-laws have been formulated and the following officers elected: President, Mrs. F. C. Lang[illegible]; vice-president, Mrs. Alice C. [illegible]; secretary, Miss L. Britton; treasurer, Mrs. John Farley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frank [illegible]; sentinel, Mrs. W. Pitman. Meetings will be held on the first and third Wednesdays of the month in Thayer's Hall. The aim of the league is for the progress and betterment of Sawtelle.

Sierra Madre Club.

Nominations for officers for the Sierra Madre Club for the ensuing year are, for president, Mrs. W. J. [illegible]; first vice-president, Mrs. F. Hart; second vice-president, Mrs. [illegible] Johnson; corresponding secretary, Miss Annie Coffey; recording secretary, Mrs. W. H. Ingraham; auditor, Mrs. L. E. Steinberger; treasurer, Mrs. Louis Dietz; directors, Mrs. W. F. Walker, W. W. Collins, C. Carhart and Irving N. Ward. The election will take place on May 26.

The meeting last week celebrated the [illegible] anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of of the clubhouse, and a suitable programme was given and refreshments served.

Miniature Exhibit at Club.

A display of miniature paintings attracted much attention at the Friday Morning Club on Friday. They comprise the second annual exhibition of the California Society of Miniature Painters. The display will last all this week, and is well worth seeing. Among the local artists represented are Mary Benton, Marie Crowe, Mary [illegible], Rosa Hooper, Martha M. [illegible], Frieda and Alice E. Ludovici, [illegible] M. D. Mitchell, Mabel Packard, [illegible] S. Price, Constance A. Price, [illegible] W. Reid, Minnie C. Taylor, [illegible] E. In addition are several cases comprising the loan exhibit, among which are some rare portraits, enamels and ivory carvings loaned by Mrs. Michael [illegible] Regan, including portraits of Marie Antoinette, of Mme. de Montespan and the sweet-faced Virgin. In the collection are sixteenth-century [illegible] and a couple of curious old [illegible] boxes and some exquisite cameos of Savonarola, Dante, St. Cecelia, Raphael and Mary Queen of Scots. Others who have loaned exhibits are Mrs.

Ebell Drama Department.

As all department work in Ebell closes with the end of May, the drama section will hold its last meeting of the club year next Wednesday, when Hauptmann's "Hannele" will be read by Mrs. Fred S. Lang. A luncheon will follow with a specially-interesting programme, which promises great enjoyment. Next Saturday afternoon this department will hold an open meeting in the clubhouse auditorium, when the drama by Gerhardt Hauptmann, "And Pippa Danced," will be read by Miss Maud Maynard. Mrs. Mila Tupper Maynard, the instructor of the department, will give an interpretation. This play is little known in America, but is full of interest and power. A particularly inviting feature of the programme will be solos by Miss Gentry Wickiser, recently returned from a year in New York, where her remarkable voice won much admiration.

Tomorrow at the Ebell.

The programme at the Ebell tomorrow will be given by its own members. Miss Grace Dennen will lecture on "Albert Noyes and His Poetry" and Mmes. George H. Doane and Cedric E. Johnson will give piano duos. Miss Dennen is a charter member of the club.

To Pension Teachers.

Mrs. O. Shepard Barnum addressed the Highland Park Ebell last week, telling of the work and plans of reorganization of the State Board of Education, which proposes to carry out some laws for the benefit of schools and teachers, which will include retirement salaries for those who have taught thirty years, the last fifteen years in California, whereby they will receive $500 per year. Free text-books, kindergarten laws, etc., were also discussed.

On Tuesday, May 26, the club will hold an afternoon session, when Mrs. Stanley Ross Fisher will give a song recital, the new officers will be installed and tea will be served.

Friday Mornings in June.

Mary Roberts Coolidge will address the Friday Morning on June 5 on "The Red Light Abatement Act," and the following Friday the Book Committee will furnish the programme, to which members only will be admitted. June 19 will be given over to a resume of the year's work, and the last meeting of the club year, which will occur on June 26, will witness the installation of officers and the presentation of two one-act plays under the direction of Willamene Wilkes, who will be assisted by club members. The play "Chitra" by the Indian poet Ramindranath Tagore and "The First Actress" by Christopher St. John will be the dramatic offerings.

The special meetings during the month include that under direction of the Public Affairs Committee on June 2, when Senator N. W. Thompson will present a summary of all the measures to be voted on at the election, November 3. The Book Committee will meet the following day, and each member is asked to bring a book that interests her and tell why.

On June 23 the Drama Committee will discuss Richard Bennett's "Conspiracy of Silence."

Ruskin Art Club.

Next Wednesday eighteenth century painters and sculptors will occupy the attention of members of the Ruskin Art Club. The programme will be in charge of Mrs. J. C. Bosworth and topics will be presented by Mmes. John Walls, W. S. Philp, J. A. Reckard and J. C. Bosworth.

Cliff Dwellers Elect.

The California chapter of the Cliff Dwellings Association met at the home of Mrs. J. R. McKinney last week and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Miss Josephine M. Dryden; first vice-president, Mrs. A. J. Eaton; second vice-president, Miss Alice Smith; third vice-president, Miss Anna Smith; recording secretary, Miss M. E. Elliott; corresponding secretary, Miss J. J. Roland; historian, Mrs. J. R. McKinney; treasurer, Miss W. I. Alters; auditor, Mrs. C. E. Taylor.

Shakespeare Club Elects.

The Galpin Shakespeare Club elected the following officers at its meeting last Wednesday, the personnel being as follows: President, Mrs. Matthew Robertson; vice-president, Mrs. Alfred Allen; recording secretary, Miss Fannie Smith; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert Robinson; treasurer, Mrs. A. K. Prather; auditor, Mrs. J. M. Hale; director, Mrs. J. T. Fitzgerald.

The programme was a consideration of "Richard III," with discussion and scenes presented under the leadership of Mrs. C. W. Nicklin and participated in by Mmes. A. S. Lobingier, J. M. Hale, E. C. Gates, William J. Welshaus, E. Underhill, Misses Ida Underhill and Marian Moffatt, the latter directing the presentation of the scenes.

D.A.R. Installation.

The Los Angeles Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold its next regular monthly meeting on Wednesday, June 3, at the home of Mrs. William M. Milne, No. 1429 Milan street, South Pasadena. The officers for the ensuing year will be installed, as follows: Mrs. C. C. Cottle, regent; Mrs. Walter Walker, vice-regent; Mrs. Emmet H. Wilson, recording secretary; Mrs. George C. Watson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Kate B. Rogers, registrar; Mrs. Franklin L. Morgan, historian; Miss Sallie Rose Smith, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Fletcher Quillian, chaplain; Mesdames Charles H. McKevett, Allen Aldrich, William C. Leonard, James W. Holder and William S. Bullis, directors.

At the reciprocity tea on May 26, at the Beverly Hills Hotel, Mrs. Henry J. Martin of the Los Angeles chapter will contribute a reading.

Inglewood Club Elects.

The following officers were elected at the Inglewood Women's Club at its meeting on Tuesday: President, Mrs. W. G. Brown; vice-president, Mrs. George M. Greene; recording secretary, Mrs. J. T. Leftwich; corresponding secretary, Mrs. G. R. Westlake; treasurer, Mrs. S. Blackie; historian, Mrs. Frank Friend.

The last meeting of the club for the year will be on May 26, when the husbands and male relatives and friends of members will be guests at an elaborate banquet. A programme will also be presented under the direction of Mmes. J. T. Leftwich, M. B. Mosher and G. A. Wetherbee.

South Pasadena Club.

The arrival of Queen Antoinette and King Edward and their court was an event in the annals of the South Pasadena Club Friday evening and Saturday afternoon—the annual children's carnival scenes.

Waking echoes of a long-forgotten past, the scenes of childhood were brought vividly back with the review of Mother Goose characters, "Little Red Riding Hood," with the wolf and the gallant woodsman; "Old King Cole," with his pages and his fiddlers three; "Simple Simon" and the pie man, and "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe," with her brood of little ones; "Cinderella," "Old Mother Hubbard," "Little Miss Muffit," "Sleeping Beauty," "Tommy Tucker," "Jack the Giant Killer," "Little Bo-Peep" and many others, too numerous to mention, all represented by the school children, 150 taking part. There was no lack of exquisite children's songs, and others assisting in the music were Miss Esta Kite, soloist; Miss Adele Axtman, pianiste; the Cecilian Club and the Boys' Glee Club of the High School. The proceeds of the carnival will go toward paying for a new grand piano purchased for the clubhouse in March, the first payment for which was made from the proceeds of the musicale given by Mr. and Mrs. Crossley Neilson.

The Women's Improvement Association announces that the last of the bills on the clubhouse are paid—and $500, the annual payment on the building loan, has been met. On Wednesday members may use guest cards, bringing their friends to the annual luncheon. A musical programme will be provided for the afternoon. Hostesses will be Mmes. E. E. Washburn, Lewis Conklin, Norman Foote Marsh, Howard Kelley and Kenyon Warren.

On June 17 the officers of other similar organizations in the district will be the guests of the South Pasadena association.

EDUCATORS.

Hon. Seth Low of New York, former President of Columbia University, says: "If you can't boost, don't knock," and he has made this maxim the guide of his public life.

Prof. E. M. Wollank of the chair of languages at the Pittsburgh Normal, who may be the richest school teacher in the United States, will stay in the schoolroom and work in spite of his wealth. Prof. Wollank and his son will soon get a $25,000,000 estate in Berlin, according to advices just received by the professor. The estate is that of a great uncle, whose will provided that it go to the male descendants of the Wollank line after a certain time. The time has expired and the professor and his son, who is a banker at Leihi, La., are the only heirs.

Prof. Paul Shorey, head of the department of Greek in the University of Chicago, who has been the Roosevelt exchange professor at the University of Berlin during the present academic year, has also given lectures at other German universities. The general subject of his lectures in Berlin is "Culture and Democracy in America."

A. L. Guerard, author of "French Civilization in the Nineteenth Century," while now an American citizen, is a Frenchman by birth. Prof. Guerard was connected with Leland Stanford University for six years. He has been lecturing this winter at Rice Institute, Houston, Tex., on the subject of his book.

Miss Mary Czaplicka, a Polish girl, and a native of Warsaw, Poland, is about to set out in charge of a scientific expedition to Siberia, sent thither by the University of Oxford. The rest of the members are English, but will be under the guidance and authority of Miss Czaplicka. She is now in Oxford arranging for the departure of the expedition. The date of starting has not been fixed.

MADAM KAI FU SHAH.

Wife of the First Envoy Sent from the Chinese Republic Is One of the Most Fascinating of Recent Arrivals in Washington.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

© by Harris & Ewing Wash. D.C.

Madame Kai Fu Shah in her boudoir costume.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Enter the first Minister from the land of the Yellow Dragon wearing the conventional attire of the western citizen, frock coat, flowered vest, tall hat and pumps. A dapper figure it is true and familiar on the Washington boulevards, as in Paris or London, but entirely lacking the picturesqueness to which the national capital has been accustomed. And Madam Kai Fu Shah, resplendent in a Parisian walking suit ruffled and frilled with a turned up hat which would do credit to the wax lady in the show window. How sadly Washington recalls Madam Wu Ting Fang with her poor little feet so bound she could not totter more than a few inches, and her wonderful coiffure of lace jewelled and golden wire entirely concealing her dark shining hair. Madam Kai Fu Shah takes not the slightest trouble to cover her dusky locks and twists them in the conventional way which fashion dictates at present.

"I am so much of an American," said she, "that I have not the sense of novelty which makes one's first impressions so vivid. You see I lived many years in New York where both my father and my husband were connected with the consular service, but we were in Peking during the revolution which overthrew the ancient empire and from my windows I could hear the cannon booming over the capital. I could even see the smoke and hear the awful din which accompanies war. I must confess that I have been always curious about the mysteries of the American woman's toilet, the confusing number of garments, the endless accessories. In New York, of course, I wore our national dress and I must admit that I still cling to my old way whenever I am desirous of being really comfortable. You see we have learned the philosophy of being always at our ease and our soft flowing robes make for it, more than the curious fashions which are now in vogue. Even ceremonial dressing with us is a brief labor compared with the ordinary dressing in the western garb.

"I have compromised by accepting such part of American or Parisian dresses as I find superior to my own and retaining many other features of the garb to which I have become accustomed through life-long usage. Many of the present modes, especially loose coats and lounging robes are modeled after garments used in China ages before Columbus set foot on the western world. The unbound feet are now so customary, that to wear the foot gear of the West is not surprising. Likewise the hats, though we do not place the same importance on hats which is given them here. The Chinese lady still goes abroad in her covered chair or carriage and she is content with a flower to her coiffure or a scarf of lace or tissue lightly added. But in this we do not differ from many nations where the climate is softer and where hats form no part at all of feminine finery.

"But I rather regret the complicated modes of living and of dressing. Think of the old way when one could untie a ribbon at the throat, unfasten a belt or girdle, take off one's net and be ready for slumber. Think now of the long, tedious process of getting ready to retire. Simple as we orientals try to keep our habits, we do find much more to do than our mothers or than we did ourselves in our youth. I count myself among the progressives, and while I may sigh for the olden simplicity I am fervently grateful that my country has entered into the spirit of modern life. In our national school system we have made marvelous progress. We can now compare with other nations as to graded schools and, comparatively speaking, with them as to the number of colleges for girls as well as for their brothers. Educating women in the higher sense has been accepted by us later than in this country, but we are showing so much enthusiasm that we shall soon make up for lost time. For years past we have sent our most promising pupils to colleges in this country and sometimes to England and France. The spirit of American college life is echoed in our ancient land and we follow you along many lines. Our colleges for girls frequently have very ardent suffrage societies. I should hesitate to give figures about the number, but so many that we no longer look surprised when we hear of their meeting. The change which is apparent all over the world in the industrial sense is apparent with us. We train our girls carefully for many avocations and of late years many are employed in stores or in cafes, where they were unknown a decade or more ago.

"We encourage our girls not to discontinue their needlework, an accomplishment in which China has gloried for centuries past. We do not wish them to lose any of the feminine grace, notwithstanding their intellectual culture. Needlework is woman's highest expression, the only thing in which she excels man, and in which man cannot compete, and we are proud that the women of China were perfect in this art when ignorance and uncouth ways enveloped many of the now cultivated races of Europe.

"I feel sympathetic towards suffrage, but then I cling to the old fashioned ways. I have eight children, and a large household to direct and I should not find time to study the question sufficiently to give an opinion of any value. Coming to Washington does not mean as much of a change to me as it would to most of my countrywomen. I made many visits when we resided in New York and I shall take up new duties with a feeling of having at least a working knowledge. We have already a legation and we shall add to its furnishings little home touches of our own. My daughters are delighted to be in Washington and will add greatly to my pleasure in being here. The boys attended public schools in New York and were enthusiastic admirers of a Republican form of government before the change came."

Chinese ministers are always among the most scholarly members of the diplomatic corps and it is an acknowledged fact that none of a common-place order has ever been assigned here. Wu Ting Fang continues to be a dominant figure and his influence was felt throughout the country as well as in the Orient. The last representative of the Chinese empire, Chang Hi was a delightful gentleman, educated partially at Harvard and at Oxford. His three daughters took a college course while here. The youngest, Miss Lily Chang graduated with signal honors in the Medical College of Johns Hopkins and is now a practicing physician in Canton. The present envoy is of ripe years and broad experience. Coming to this country as an undersecretary of the Consul-General in New York, he married the daughter of his chief, and rose rapidly to prominence. He has been for years a diligent and sympathetic student of English history or rather the philosophy of history with its kindred branches, literature and science. The oldest son bears the name of Lincoln, the result of Mr. Shah's excursions into recent history of the American Republic. He is a profound student of the drama and he has enrolled himself among the adherents of the Baconian theory about the Shakespeare plays. The second boy is called Francis Bacon and is to enter a school here preparatory for college. There are five of the eight children with the Minister, the others being placed in China as it was considered undesirable to interrupt their school year. They will come to this country in the summer and will probably remain permanently.

After the Minister and his wife, the most interesting and important member of the household is Miss Lang Shah, the lovely young daughter, who is just 18. Washington has rarely welcomed a bud from a titled oriental family and her advent has caused a ripple of excitement among the younger set. Miss Lang has fair soft skin and dark hair which she dresses in conventional American fashion. She attended private schools in New York and after the return of her parents to Pekin entered an exclusive and well conducted academy near her home. It is likely she will enter a local university and take a classic course, following the example set by her father's predecessor in educating his attractive daughters. She plays the lute well and has a charming light soprano voice. Music, as known in this country, is only a recent introduction into China. But professors of music are now attracting many of the children of the wealthy classes and the lute and the guitar may be seen as often as in the Latin countries.

The Chinese legation was erected by Wu Ting Fang and that astute statesman had the pleasure of being its first tenant after about two years absence from this Capital. It is splendidly equipped in accordance with the present standard of homes in China, or a modified eastern and western style. Only in the last drawing-room may be found the inner chamber where more private or sacred celebrations are held. Washingtonians only once entered this room, that is a small select invited number entered, to witness the obsequies celebrated here at the exact moment when the same solemn ceremony was in progress in the Sacred City of Peking over the remains of the Dowager Empress. It was an impressive spectacle conducted after the ancient ritual, the walls hung in black, rooms absolutely dark throughout the house except in the inner chamber, where one wax taper flickered over the bier. Wu Ting Fang conducted the service and it was the most solemn funeral service ever heard here.

Madam Kai Fu Shah knew that indomitable woman, the Dowager Empress, though she did not have the intercourse with her sometimes granted to the foreigner. She admires the great woman tremendously though she believes that the present course of China in throwing off the traditional claims, of royalty will mold her people into a higher and more useful destiny.

Madam Shah is an excellent exemplar of the neatness which is part of the oriental. A story is told of an American woman who, on being presented to the Dowager Empress, asked that sovereign if she had known many Americans and what she thought the most notable feature about them. "I have met many Americans," the ancient Empress replied, "and of them all I have noticed how untidy they keep their hair," and then she would invariably present a paper of combs, suggestive of catching straying locks. Madam Shah wears her hair in high pompadour style, caught tightly behind her ears by jeweled combs and her locks are as shining as a summer day. She has that exquisite politeness which never varies through hours of fatigue or under circumstances which strain another's patience. The Chinese lady, never under the most violent provocation, would contradict one to whom she was talking and never would she suggest a theme which might be in the least distasteful to her guests. To ask a personal question is an affront and in spite of her experience in New York and her ten years' residence in other parts of the country, she still finds questions of the personal character somewhat disconcerting.

"I love flowers and I find the gardens and parks very attractive," said Madam Shah. "So many Americans have traveled in China that knowledge of our flowers and our ways of cultivating them is familiar. It is like meeting an old friend to see some blossoms we love at home flourishing in Washington gardens. Fruit trees are of course old friends and that all over the world.

"Our blossoms are more brilliantly colored, but the general contour is the same. I came to this country in time to enjoy the glorious peach and plum blossoms. The flowering cherries which were so prevalent here a month ago took me back to my childhood days and I made many pilgrimages down by the river to inhale their aromatic perfume. Various kinds of pine always appeal to me for they are familiar ornaments on our landscape. Our most beloved ornamental shrub is the tea plant and of course I miss this from the wonderful gardens which are otherwise so tempting. Tea as we get it, is rarely to be obtained in this country, but there are so many other charming things, we could not complain. However, we bring our own, and that form of nostalgia does not attack us. Roses are my delight and our roses in certain seasons are like a vision of paradise. The Chinese tamarisks are lovely shrubs and our hydrangeas are large and brilliantly colored."

Madam Shah arrived with her five children and eighteen servants early in April and at once began to get the home in order. She will begin her social duties next month. She will follow the customs of the capital and make her calls on the higher officials before the Minister issues his cards for the traditional reception to the diplomatic corps. Miss Lang Shah is to accompany her mother on this round of pleasant duty.

PACIFIC COAST PERSONALS.

[From yesterday's San Francisco Argonaut.]

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Wheeler gave a reception at their home in San Francisco Saturday afternoon, when they announced the engagements of their two eldest daughters, the Misses Lilias and Olive Wheeler. The fiance of Miss Lilias Wheeler is Matt Savage Walton, a member of the Kentucky Legislature. Miss Olive Wheeler will become the bride of Lieut. Curtis Hoppin Nance, Field Artillery, U.S.A. Lieut. Nance is the son of Maj. John T. Nance, U.S.A., and Mrs. Nance, and was a student at the University of California before he entered West Point. Both weddings will take place in September, as well as that of Miss Elizabeth Wheeler and Bradway Head, whose engagement was announced a few months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. William Matson of San Francisco have issued invitations to the wedding of their daughter, Miss Lurline Berenice Matson, and William Philip Roth, Wednesday evening, May 27, at the First Presbyterian Church.

Col. Lafayette Campbell, U.S.A., and Mrs. Campbell, who have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Thomas N. Gimperling, at the Presidio, left a few days ago for their home in Denver.

Brig.-Gen. John J. Pershing, U.S.A., has been appointed president of the board of retiring officers to meet at Ft. Bliss and consider the retirement of Col. Robert E. R. Loughborough, Twentieth Infantry, who commands the only troops of the Seventh Brigade, Western Department, on the border. Col. George Bell, Jr., who is in nomination for promotion to the general officer list, is another member of the board.

Maj.-Gen. Arthur Murray, U.S.A., left San Francisco last week for San Diego en route to the border posts on a tour of inspection.

Duke Heinrich Borwin of Mecklenburg-Schwerin left Monday for the Yosemite after having spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Martin in San Francisco.

Mrs. William G. Irwin and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Templeton Crocker sailed yesterday for Europe, where they will spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Grant have returned from New York, where they have been visiting since Mr. Grant's arrival from Europe. Miss Josephine Grant, who accompanied her mother East, remained at St. Timothy's School.

John Hays Hammond arrived in San Francisco last week from Washington, D. C., and joined his son, Harris Hammond, at the Fairmont Hotel.

Miss Persis Coleman has gone to Washington, D. C., to visit her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Hennen Jennings. She will be maid of honor at the wedding of her niece, Miss Katherine Jennings, who will be married May 23 to Chauncey Hackett.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thompson and Miss Elsa Greenfield have returned from a motor trip through Lake county.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville D. Baldwin of San Francisco and their grand-daughter, Miss Doris Baldwin, have gone to Europe, where they will spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Irving Scott have returned from Honolulu, where they enjoyed a two weeks' visit. Mr. and Mrs. Scott sailed on the Siberia with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Foster Dutton, Mrs. Mountford S. Wilson and Miss Virginia Jolliffe. Mrs. Wilson and Miss Jolliffe will return home the last week in May, but Mr. and Mrs. Dutton will remain a month longer.

Miss Laura Bates and her brother, George Bates, have sailed for Honolulu, where they will spend a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Bourn will spend the summer in Europe with their son-in-law and daughter, who will come to San Francisco during next winter to remain several months.

Tommy Lee,

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Don M. Lee of this city. Tommy celebrated his eighth birthday anniversary last week and in honor of the event entertained forty of his little friends.

Thomas E. Newlin, Mrs. Roy Pinkham, Mrs. William Richards, Mrs. Shirley C. Ward, Mrs. Thomas Lee Woolwine, Mrs. Frank Forrester, Mrs. Samuel Haskins, Mrs. Edward Johnson, Mrs. John Newton Russell, Mrs. Cliff Page, Mrs. Charles Monroe, Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, Miss Helen Newlin, Miss Carrie Waddilove, Miss Katherine Banning, Miss Virginia Garner and Miss Lucy Clark.

Has Returned

Miss Marjorie Freeman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Freeman, of No. 2777 Francis avenue, has returned from a delightful trip through the East.

Tea Party.

Mrs. Katherine Heppe and her daughters, Mrs. E. R. Pape, and the Misses Elizabeth and Mary Heppe, gave a tea party at their home on Breeze avenue, Venice, Friday afternoon. The affair was in honor of Miss Ruth Heppe, whose engagement to Lieut. James Alexander Logan, U.S.N., was recently announced. Ferns were combined with white roses in decorating the rooms, while the table was centered with an immense kewpie dressed as a bride. Those enjoying the pleasant afternoon were Mrs. Cassou, Mrs. Freeman, Mrs. Walter V. Pomeroy, Mrs. Bowers, Mrs. Wheeler Reid, Mrs. Balch, Mrs. Nutting, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Byron, Mrs. Peren, Mrs. Tolliver, Mrs. Dow, Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Moon, Miss Amy Davenport, Miss Helen Brown, Miss Marie Nolan, Miss Ruth Wilson, Miss Bonnie Beach, Miss Margaret Hunt, Miss Margaret de Silva, Miss Maybelle Towers, Miss Gertrude Connell, Miss Willie McClelland, Miss Marjorie Nutting, Miss Mary Smith, Miss Olivia Weir, Miss Irene Parker, Miss Bess Baker and Miss M. Klaser. A dancing party at the home of Mrs. R. A. Phillips followed in the evening and among the guests were Lieut. Logan and a number of his brother officers.

Afternoon Tea.

Mrs. George H. Royce of No. 5437 Lexington avenue, entertained with an afternoon tea Wednesday, complimenting her aunt, Mrs. James M. Walker of Chicago.

Interesting Home Wedding.

On Thursday evening an interesting wedding will be celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Huntington Stoddard, No. 658 West Twenty-first street, when their only daughter, Ethel Grace Stoddard, will be united in marriage with Robert W. Garland, son of Mrs. Fannie G. Garland, of this city.

Four generations of the bride's relatives live in California and her father has been connected with the Southern Pacific Railroad for thirty-eight years. The wedding day is the thirty-sixth anniversary of the marriage of the bride's parents, and the ring to be used at the ceremony is made from the wedding rings of her two grandmothers, and was worn by her mother at her marriage, thirty-six years ago.

The young couple have hosts of friends and the bride has been "showered" with kitchen fixin's and linen, but she has chosen to have a quiet home wedding, with only the two families present.

The wedding party will consist of the bride and groom, Miss Margaret Lander, cousin of the bride, bridesmaid; Willard Garland, brother of the groom, groomsman. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. J. Horace Mallows of Pilgrim Congregational Church, the wedding marches will be played by Mrs. Elizabeth Fuhrer, an old friend of the family, and Miss Annie Schell Row, a school friend of the bride, will sing "When Song Is Sweet" (Sans Souci,) and "Love's Old Sweet Song" (Molloy.)

The house will be decorated in green and white; the bride will wear a gown of white crepe de chine and silk shadow lace and will carry a bouquet of white orchids and lily of the valley; the bridesmaid will wear a gown of pink crepe de chine and lace.

The groom is a young business man and after a short wedding trip he and his bride will make their home in the city of their birth.

Mrs. Hagan Entertains.

Mrs. Ralph Hagan of Lake street was a charming hostess Thursday, presiding at a large luncheon at the Sierra Madre Club. Members of the Westlake Bridge Club were Mrs. Hagan's guests and at the small tables, where the forty-five ladies were seated, French bouquets of hothouse flowers were used. Hand-painted china was given as prizes. Hostesses assisting were Mrs. Rudolph Schiffman, Mrs. Frank Boswell, Mrs. George Ralphs, Mrs. Theodore Simpson and Mrs. A. J. Sherer.

Colonial Dames to Meet.

The Colonial Dames will enjoy a luncheon at the hotel at Beverly Hills Wednesday. Visiting dames wishing to be present are requested to notify Mrs. Andrew Stewart Lobingier. A one-minute speech by each member will be a jolly feature.

For Miss McCutcheon.

Mrs. J. H. Seymour and Mrs. Harrison McDonald have issued 100 invitations for an "at home" to be given the afternoon of Saturday, honoring Miss Helen McCutcheon, whose marriage to Will Johnson will occur June 23. The tea will be given at the home of the former, No. 1691 West Adams street. Another affair planned for Miss McCutcheon next week is an informal afternoon, Thursday, given by Mrs. Allen Culver, at her home, No. 2801 Menlo avenue, and on Friday afternoon, May 22, Mrs. Lester Best will entertain with a bridge tea, at her home, No. 4025 West Adams street, to which 30 have been included, complimenting Miss McCutcheon.

For Miss Brougher.

Complimenting her niece Miss Verna Isabelle Brougher, the bride-to-be of Walter Saint, Mrs. F. T. Morse entertained yesterday afternoon with a Kensington party and surprise apron shower at her home, No. 5837 Lemon Grove avenue. Assisting the hostess was her sister, Mrs. Charles G. Richter. The fragrant American Beauty Rose, nodding from long stems in crystal vases, enlivened the large living-room and den, and in the dining-room, where refreshments were served, the table was aglow with Cecile Brunner roses, and covers were marked by miniature bridal slippers. The shower was presented to the guest of honor after refreshments had been served. Guessing games, and hemming napkins for the bride-to-be employed the afternoon. Those included were Mmes. Brougher, Mrs. J. Whitcomb Brougher, Mrs. Corwin, Mrs. Martin Beacon, Mrs. Cora Overstreet, Mrs. L. E. Richter, Mrs. Charles G. Richter, Mrs. Elmer R. Pascoe, Mrs. James Kammerdiner, Mrs. A. C. Brown, Mrs. Ray Petty, Mrs. E. Fels, Miss Helen Woodruff, Miss Corrine Brougher, Miss Mabel Dixson, Miss Ruth Brown, Miss Margaret Locke, Miss Annie Row, Miss Mary Patterson and Miss Alice Woodworth.

Mrs. Stephens Home.

Mrs. W. D. Stephens, wife of Congressman Stephens, has returned to her home, No. 1108 West Twenty-seventh street. She has as her house guest, her daughter, Mrs. R. T. Zane. Lieut. Zane, her husband is on the South Dakota, lying in the bay of Acapulco on the Mexican Coast. Mrs. Zane will be remembered as Miss Barbara Stephens, a popular society girl of this city, whose wedding was one of the social events of last summer.

Home Again.

Miss Alice Ryan of South Burlington avenue arrived home last week after a months' stay in the San Bernardino Mountains. Her sisters, the Misses Kathryn and Anne Ryan, who enjoyed a few days at Arrowhead, accompanied Miss Ryan home.

Birthday Surprise.

Mrs. Mary M. Crance of Brookfield, Mo., who has been spending the winter in Los Angeles was happily surprised Monday evening by about twenty of her friends, who gathered in celebration of her birthday anniversary. Many beautiful flowers were brought to the visitor. Music and games were some of the delightful features planned.

To Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Citron will give a reception today in honor of their son, Dr. I. Jesse Citron, M.D., who has just returned from San Francisco. They will be pleased to receive their friends from 2 to 5 o'clock.

Invitations Issued.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Penny, No. 1575 East Ocean avenue, Long Beach, for the dansant, to be given at Hotel Virginia on the afternoon of May 23. The affair is given in honor of Mrs. Penny's sister, Mrs. Benton Murphy, of Illinois, who recently came to California to reside.

At Hotel Clark.

Mrs. John R. Moore was hostess at a luncheon given in the banquet hall of Hotel Clark yesterday afternoon. Covers were laid for sixty-two.

Dr. C. E. Sergeant and N. L. Wells, both of London, Eng., are registered at Hotel Clark. Gustaf Nylinder of

The new 40-inch "willow" taffeta at $1.95

Strange new jewelry from over the seas

—In the jewelry shop on Monday will be displayed many new pretties from abroad that will go a long way towards increasing your admiration for the cleverness of the Europeans!

—Surely it has been well worth while—going so far from home to find these things for you—and the prices are even less than you would expect to pay for ordinary domestic affairs.

—There will be—

—Lace bands, mounted with jet buckles and slides, $1.
—Jet earrings with fancy drops at $1.00 pair.
—Mock pearl, jade, jet, amber and antique beads on German silver chains at $1.00.
—Soutoirs with rhinestone set slides at 75c.
—Amber beads at 50c with cross to match at 50c.
—And so many, many more things, too.

South Aisle—Jacoby's.

—The women who know this wonderful new silk will be enthusiastic over this offering which we have prepared for Monday—

—The new "willow" taffeta in all the season's novelty shades and in black and ivory—and think of it—at $1.95 a yard!—

> —"Willow" taffeta, you know, is soft and clinging—much like a crepe meteor—yet it has the firmness of taffeta—and the wearing qualities of serge.

—You'll not wonder that it's all the rage in the silk world—you will wonder though where we got it to sell for so little!—

—And then you'll want to know about these other new silks, too—

—40-inch heavy Georgia crepe de chine, $2.00.
—36-inch black chiffon taffeta at $1.25.
—40-inch black moire at $1.50, $1.75 and $3.00.
—36-inch black messaline—special at 79c.
—38-inch printed eponge crepe at $1.00.
—36-inch messaline in all colors at $1.00.
—40-inch all silk crepe de chine at $1.50.
—36-inch black and white checked taffeta $1.50.
—36-inch printed crepe de chine at 69c.
—40-inch crepe faille at $2.25.
—12-inch messaline petticoat of flouncing $1.25 yard.
—10-inch flouncings of A. B. C. silk at 69c yard.
—15-inch A. B. C. flounces (all colors) $1.25 each.

Center Aisle—Jacoby's.

We are closing out our entire stock of men's furnishing goods at 1-4 off

—It's a wonderful time for men to buy and save.

South Aisle—Jacoby's.

Embroidered linen pieces at half!

—A very fortunate happening makes it possible for us to print this unusual news!—

—There are included scarfs—squares—doilies and cushion covers (these are all ready to have a pillow slipped into them and be buttoned up)—

—They come in white—the new oyster white and in natural linen colors with the embroidery work in white and contrasting colors—

—Every piece is pure linen!

—Every piece is half or less than half the price you would expect to pay!—

—The prices range from 20c to $3.25.

Half-way Floor—Jacoby's.

Undermuslins at new prices!

—We've reduced hundreds of garments because they show the effects of being on display and of being handled—

—The savings amount well up into dollars!

—AT $1.00 are gowns — combinations—Princess slips and petticoats of crepe and sheer muslins with dainty lace and embroidery trimmings.

—AT $1.25 are combinations—gowns—Princess slips—petticoats and the new envelope chemise—

—AT $1.65 are elaborate lace trimmed gowns, combinations and Princess slips.

Fourth Floor—Jacoby's.

See our ads. in the other papers today. They tell of many more savings.

Our advertising

—is planned and written with the aim of appealing to the women who want good, dependable merchandise—and would buy it savingly!

—We frequently advertise merchandise that is not underprice—but in these cases it is new and different—worthy of our interest and yours.

—Our advertisements tell, in every case, of merchandise that has been bought advantageously—that has been marked at a close margin—and sold by scientific, efficient methods that eliminate tremendous wastes.

—"Better values"—you'll find by investigating, are real existing things in this store.

Little Nemo and the Princess

—Yes, and old Doc. Pill and even Flip and—"what's his name" with the big round eyes—

—They're all here!

—Just as though they had stepped right out of the funny section.

—What fun the little folks and (let us whisper this) big folks will have making these quaint little dolls do brand new stunts that even Nemo couldn't dream out—

—There are cute little ones at 25c each—and great big ones at $1 each.

Little Folks' Store, 2nd Floor—Jacoby's.

Neckpieces—hundreds of them under worth at 39c

—Why—if they hadn't come to us in a special purchase we should have had to mark them in some cases a half more and in many cases two and nearly three times this Monday price.

> —There are Gladstone collars of embroidered Swiss and mull—guimpes of net and of shadow lace—Fichus of fine net and lace vestees of mull and net—pique collars—shadow lace frills—half sleeves—camisoles—Dutch collars of lawn and crepe—Breakfast caps of shadow lace and net.

—And every piece is marked 39c.

—You can easily imagine what a merry crowd of buyers there will be around the Neckwear tables starting right at store opening Monday.

Main Floor—Jacoby's.

Now! "goodbye" to lace curtains

—We've reduced our entire stock 25 per cent.—

—And while our stock is not an extensive one—most any woman who wants curtains of modest price will be able to choose from it with satisfaction.

—The original prices range from 50c to $4.85—Monday they will be a full quarter less!—

Basement—Jacoby's.

72x90 in. seamless sheets at 65c

—These splendid sheets are bound to attract a good many economical housewives to the half-way floor on Monday at this anniversary price!

—They're made without seams—from a good, heavy, snow white sheeting that is free from all dressing—

—They're full 72x90 in. in size—

42x36-in. pillowcases 12½c

—These are practically the same quality as the above sheets—quite as exceptional in price, too.

Half-way Floor—Jacoby's.

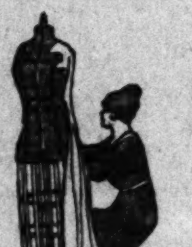
Hall-Borchert's new 14 section dress form

The Peerless at $15

—This splendid form will be of exceptional interest to professional and home dressmakers, for it combines nearly all the good qualities of the higher priced models.



—It has the steel horizontal stays throughout, as well as the vertical ones, which permits the adjustment from side to side or from front to back, just as desired. It is adjustable in the neck, bust, waist, hips and skirt length. The patented pivotal skirt of flat plated steel bands is used on this form, as well as on our other adjustables, and an extra quality of papier mache, which makes the form very durable. The adjustments are easily understood and the form may be operated by anyone without difficulty. The "Peerless" is made in two sizes, with the following ranges of adjustments:

	No. 1.	No. 2.
Neck	12 to 15 in.	12½ to 16 in.
Bust	32 to 43 in.	35 to 48 in.
Waist	21½ to 32 in.	23 to 36 in.

Half-way Floor—Jacoby's.

New waists to sell at $1.69

—These came in a special purchase made by our waist buyer, who is now in New York—

—Included are 50 sample waists that are really extraordinary values!—

—They are all lingerie waists made in low neck—¾ sleeve and drop shoulder effects. Some are of lingerie, of batiste, and others are of linen—

—They'll prove a delightful surprise even to those who are acquainted with the unusualness of our waist values.

—We would advise seeing these early!

Fourth Floor—Jacoby's.

Yes!—new moire ribbons are here!

—Both the watered taffetas and watered gros-grains have come just recently—and for Monday we offer them in black, white, navy, lavender, pink, light green, light blue, navy, red, rose, purple, old gold, dark brown, Peacock blue and green, and Tango—

—You'll be enthusiastic over the 5½—6 and 7-inch widths that will be out Monday at 39c yard.

South Aisle—Jacoby's.

Millinery reduced 'way under worth

—We've planned a great anniversary event for the first day of this third week that will give the second floor a sales total that should stand head and shoulders above any of the past two weeks.

—This ad merely hints at what's ready!

Trimmed hats $9.75

—These are all stunning hats from some of the most famous eastern milliners.

—The shapes are of Milan, Milan hemp, split, leghorn and lace; the trimmings and colors are wonderfully varied.

Trimmed hats $7.50

—The windows tell the "style" story perfectly—let us only add here that they come in hemp, leghorn, split and Milan hemp, in sailor, bandeau and poke styles, with ever and ever so many new flower and ribbon trimmings!

A great lot of millinery flowers very specially priced at 39c.

Trimmed hats $5

Because these hats have only just been reduced to this low price, they have nothing in common with the kind of hats that are seen so often at $5.

—Included are both tailored and semi-tailored hats in all good straws and colors.

Panamas at $3.95

—Real Panamas—mind you! And in not one style, but all of those that are favored for summer.

—Then there are other real Panamas, both blocked and "semi-blocked," at $2.95.

Dress hat shapes $1.95

—High side, "bandeau sailors"—plain sailors—wide brim models and rolling brim pokes in red, tan, brown, blue, green, purple, black and white.

In This May Sale of

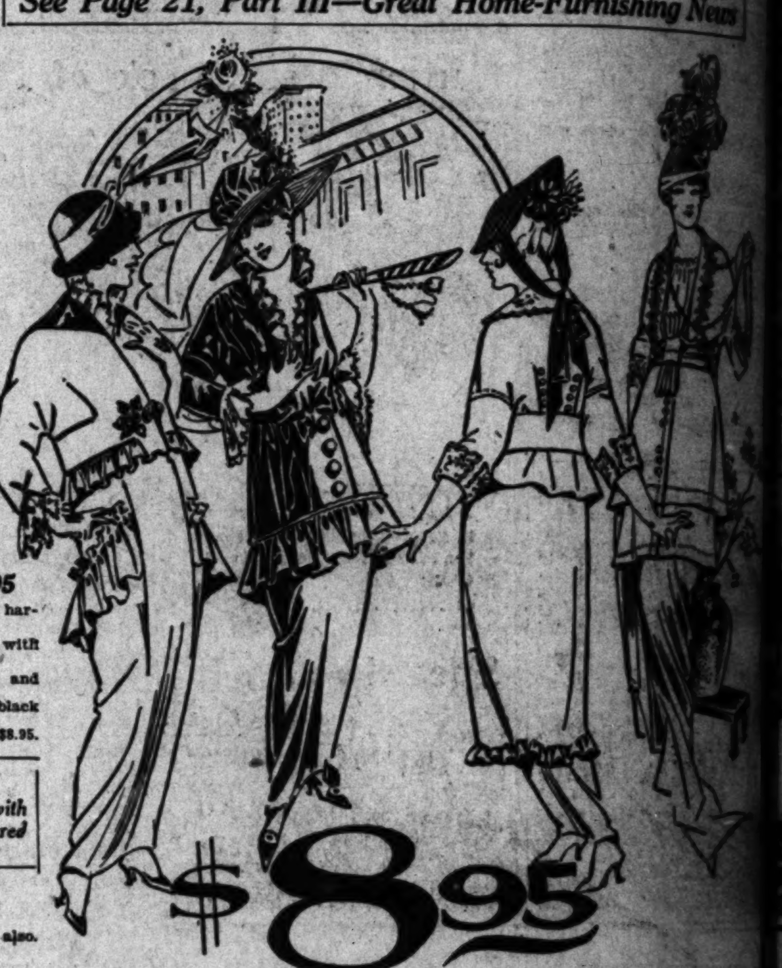
Silk and Wool Suits, Dresses and Coats for Women and Misses at $8.95

—Think of silk and wool suits selling at $8.95, wool crepes, English woolens, suits of serge, wool poplin, yes, and silk poplin suits. Why they are selling so much under their real worth that the comparison of prices would hardly be believed.

Read this remarkable color range,—King's blue, wistaria, gray, tango, olive green, biscuit, navy blue as well as black.

—Remember these are new spring models in the fancy short coat effects. Some semi-tailored models with tunic and ruffled skirts.

—And silk suits, with dainty collars and cuffs. This is just part of the great garment offering that will bring the biggest crowd of the season to the garment section Monday.



And Look! the Dresses $8.95

—Of silk messaline, taffeta, mercerized crepes, wool crepes, every one of them a new, smart model with just the added style touches that have brought dresses into such prominence this season.

—Some with lace and silk trimmings, tunics and ruffled skirts.

—Here they are in King's blue, navy, rose, tango, mahogany, biscuit, wistaria, brown and changeable silks, as well as black and white.

Then New Spring Coats $8.95

—That have been marked down to go in harmony with this May sale.

—Flare and rippled models, some full lined with silk.

—Coats of serge, of satin, of waffle cloth and novelty weaves.

—In black, blue, navy, green, as well as black and white checks and plaids.

—Yes, it's to be a great Price Carnival at $8.95.

Walking Skirts $1.95

—About 75 of these Skirts, tailored models, consisting of whipcords in brown and tan, gray mannish mixtures, black and white checks, broken plaids, etc. Only because we contracted for these specially are we able to mark them at such a ridiculous price—$1.95.

Petticoats at 49c

—These are of sateen, well-made with pleated flounce. Choice of black, green, red and navy.

Surely You'll Want One of These Silk Petticoats $1.95

—So splendidly made of messaline with pleated flounce.

—The quality of the silk is so far ahead of what you'd expect at the price. Some of silk Jersey also. The color range includes green, King's blue, wistaria, purple as well as black.

Wonderful New

Blouses $1.45

—To meet the demands of those who want the very cleverest of styles, pretty materials, and at a nominal price.

—This blouse section has become celebrated for the extensive variety of styles and the lowness of the prices.

—This blouse offering at $1.45 emphasizes these facts. Here are plain and figured voile, rice cloth and in the cleverest of styles. One model is in white with colored collar, cuffs and vest. Some have dainty lace edging, frills, tango cord, etc. Others are plain.

—One model of figured voile is in a combination of colors, including tango, pink, apricot and yellow.

Wash Dresses $3.95

Ratine and Gingham

—The wonder of it all is that women will take time to make dresses, when such clever styles may be had for so little.

—Some of Ratine, some of gingham, pretty colorings, blue, pink, tan and gray, as well as white.

—Some are in combination, others in stripes of tan, lavender, and black and white.

—We note one pretty model with single or double tunic. Description is almost impossible. The dresses are worthy of much publicity.

This Moire Ribbon For Hair Bows at 25c

Is 4¾ Ins. Wide

—And you'll find the best and most desired shades.

—A ribbon that was made particularly to be a moire ribbon, and there's a vast difference in this class of ribbon, from an ordinary ribbon that has been moired, as an after-thought.

—Lustrous quality, beautiful antique finish. Desirable, too, for millinery. 25c yard.

"Take These 4000 Yds. Val. Lace

But Don't Mention the Name—10c to 25c Qualities to Go at [illegible]

—And with these words the manufacturer turned over to us over [illegible] yards of beautiful Val. laces that [illegible] Department Manager says is [illegible] greatest lot that he has been able [illegible] present at the price in years.

—If we were only permitted to mention the name of this manufacturer you'd be doubly anxious to [illegible] some of the laces, for they have [illegible] widely advertised.

—Beautiful edges and matched [illegible] laces that are worth every bit of [illegible] to 25c.

—No, sir, we cannot be too enthusiastic about this lot.

—Just the widths you want for [illegible] lingerie, trimmings and [illegible] You'll not be satisfied unless you [illegible] by the dozen yards, 55c dozen or [illegible] yard, aisle 1. It's another great [illegible] event.

Plain Taffeta

Silk Parasols $3

—And they have the canopy top with gold finished frame and black ebony finished handle.

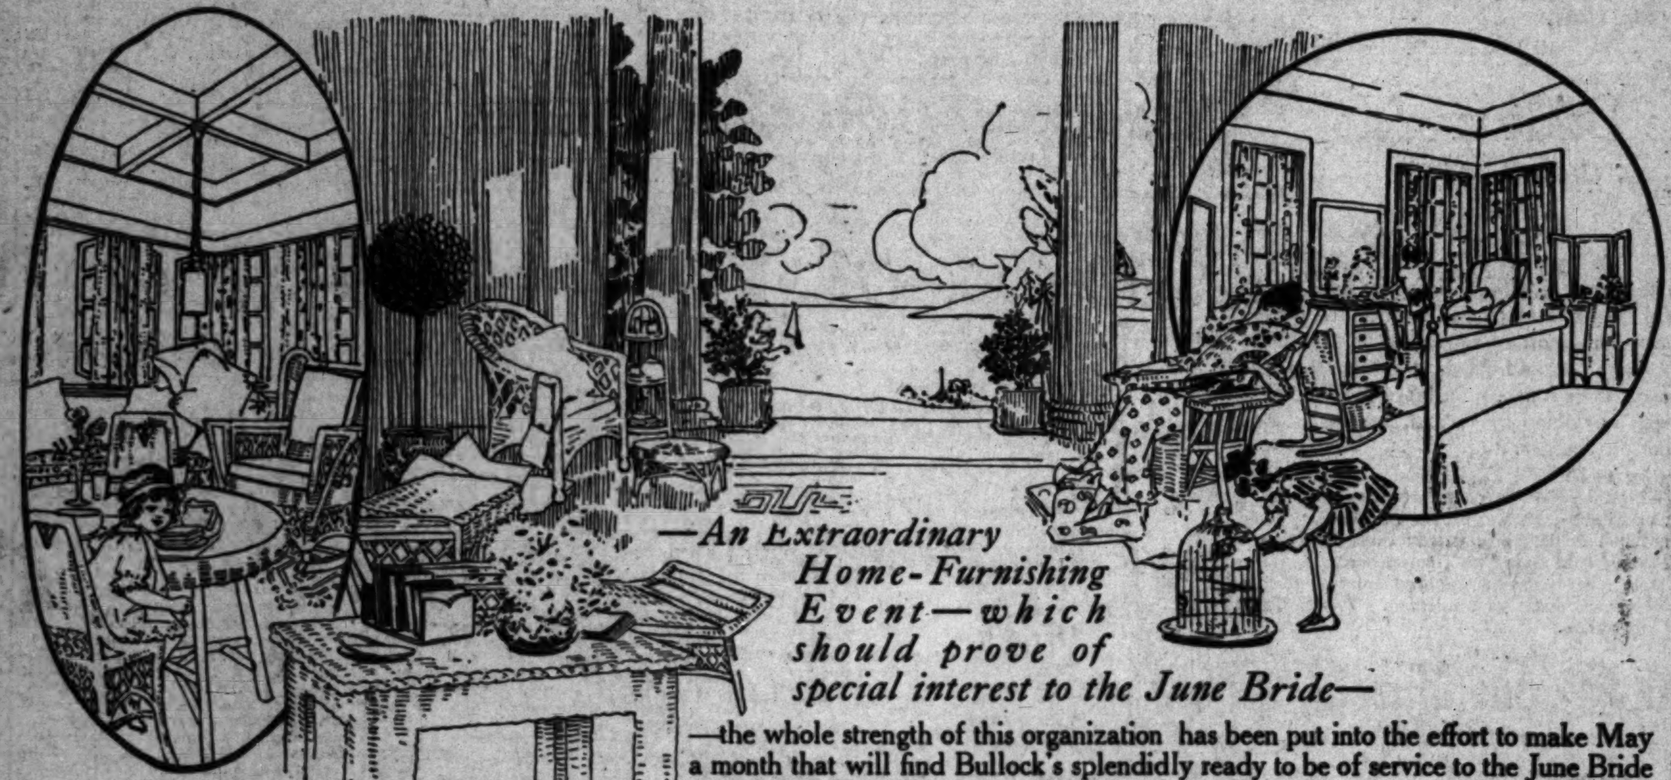
Great "Home Week" at Bullock's



—An Extraordinary Home-Furnishing Event—which should prove of special interest to the June Bride—

—the whole strength of this organization has been put into the effort to make May a month that will find Bullock's splendidly ready to be of service to the June Bride—and the Home Furnisher—for so surely as June is considered pre-eminently the Month of Brides—just so surely is May the Month that marks Bullock's as pre-eminently ready—ready with great lines of Furniture, Rugs, Draperies, Curtains, Bedding, Cut Glass, Dinnerware, Aluminum, Enamelware, Stoves, Refrigerators, Silver, Linen—In fact, there are very, very few articles for which you may wish that are not purchasable at Bullock's.

—Months ago Department Managers planned the merchandise to be featured—then bought—the results of this planning and buying are to be seen on the different floors—and for Monday a notable feature—and one worth a special trip to see—is the idea we have carried out of furnishing different rooms in practical merchandise—merchandise that would furnish a fitting home for the Bride.

—The sketches are actual drawings from the rooms as they are arranged on the 7th floor—and may serve as suggestions for the Home Furnisher—

—These rooms are filled with furniture that should be of special interest not only on account of the style and finish, but on account of the value at the price it is marked and still further interest has been given in the way of a Room Price, which price may be had if you purchase the room complete—and this feature has been added to the usual value feature that obtains every week in the year—at Bullock's—to make this a week long to be remembered by Home Furnishers—

Silverware Needed?

—Perhaps you will share the fate of so many June Brides—have an abundance of Silver given to you, but that silver not the every-day and three-times-a-day silverware that is needed for every day in the year—

—Here are just a few suggestions from the Silver Section that may be had in Sterling Silver if you prefer, although the plated ware, prices of which are quoted, is of exceptionally good quality and weight—extra plate on nickel base—it is in the New Oak pattern in the pretty gray finish—First Floor.

This Porch an Inviting Room

—(See the sketch shown below, on the left)—

—One of the most important rooms in the house, in Southern California, where so many months of the year are outdoor months—

—A Deltox Rug will do much to make your porch a comfortable lounging place in day time and sleeping place at night.

—Deltox Rugs are sanitary, artistic and inexpensive, the 8x10-ft. size has been used for the porch pictured and costs, $7.50.

—The Aerolux No-Whip Porch Shades make this porch a secluded spot where you may sit and sew, see what is going on and yet be invisible to the passer-by—and will also transform this porch into an extra sleeping room—The No-Whip attachment prevents the flapping in the wind, which is so annoying to the sleeper—These shades may also be lowered from the top as well as raised from the bottom—the acme of perfection in a porch shade—The porch pictured has two shades, measuring 8x7½ ft., and cost $4.75 each—However, you may buy them in other sizes at other prices—and in shades to harmonize with the outside of your home—

—This Porch has been furnished with Rustic Hickory of Andrew Jackson fame, noted for the Rustic beauty which is all its own and to be had in no other Porch furniture—as well as for the comfort lines upon which it is built and its wearing qualities.

—A Hickory Rocker that is very artistic and comfortable with a very unique back which is woven in a circular shape extending to the front arm posts, $8.75.

—A Rustic Stool that will serve as a seat, foot rest or for a plant has a frame of strong hickory with a woven top of the inner bark, $2.75.

—The Hickory Chair with woven back and seat may be bought for $3.75—the other chair with filled-in arms is $3.95.

—Then there is a Large Roomy Chair with woven back and seat in a very distinctive design at $6.25.

—And for the Wee Visitor there is a rocker that can be banged around without damage to it or the baby's feeling—a comfortable little rocker, $1.45.

—A Rustic Vase completes the porch furnishing, it is 12 inches in diameter, 8 inches deep and stands 34 inches high—strong enough for the biggest plant or palm—$7.50.

SOCIETY.

nephew, Master Russell Johnson, who carried the ring, and his little sister, Eleanor, who carried a basket of rose petals. Miss May Bendixen rendered several vocal selections during the supper, which followed the reading of the lines. A wedding trip to Europe has been planned.

Children's Party.

Gloria I. Montgomery entertained eleven of her little friends recently in celebration of her seventh birthday anniversary. The party took place at the small hostesses' home, No. 1246 West Forty-eighth street. The appointments and menu were carried out in a pink color scheme, and as favors pink May baskets delighted the youngsters. A huge birthday cake with seven candles centered the table, while hanging from the chandelier was a May basket filled with Cecile Brunner buds. The guests included Wonona Wenzlick, Evelyn Nandane, Betty Talbert, Elizabeth Landsberg, Evangeline Harrold, Willa Cook, Julianna Townsend, Edith Way and Gertrude Bernard.

To Visit Honolulu.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Stevens of Beverly Hills, will leave tomorrow for San Francisco. Thursday they will depart on the Matsonian for Honolulu, where they will remain for six weeks.

To Leave.

Cyrus Hutchins and wife, Dr. M. Len Hutchins, left the early part of the week for the East, where they will spend the summer. After a week or so in Washington, D. C., they will go to Boston.

In Paris.

Mrs. David Peacock and Mrs. Gilbert S. King, who sailed from New York on the steamship Rotterdam, are now in Paris, where they will spend the months of May and June.

Enjoyable Evening.

One of the elaborate functions of recent date was the dancing party given by members of the Gnome Club of Troop College of Technology at the Crown apartments, in Pasadena, with Mrs. James A. B. Scherer, Miss Virginia Pease, Mrs. George Damon and Mrs. Robert Ford, as patronesses. The club is one of the oldest in college circles and is composed of many well-known young bachelors. The officers are Joseph Beek, Kenneth Rich, Herbert Holt, William Holmes, Raymond Catland, Everett Gardiner, Henry Gerkins, Olin McCord, Herbert Shutt, Lloyd Beardsley, Earle Burt and Claude Sopp. The dance cards were in cream and gold, an owl perched in a crescent moon having been embossed in one corner. Horace Winfred Beek of Chicago and Pasadena, assisted by Messrs. Rich, Gardiner and Sopp, in charge of arrangements. The club's hospitality was shared by Mrs. J. A. B. Sherer, Mrs. G. A. Damon, Mrs. R. E. Ford, Mrs. H. W. Beek, Mrs. W. H. Adams, Mrs. F. Thomas, Mrs. C. E. Barber, Mrs. R. W. For Charity.

Society is looking forward with anticipation to the brilliant May fete which the Brownson House Settlement Association is to give Saturday afternoon and evening, May 23, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Workman, No. 357 Boyle avenue. The event will be participated in by a large number of well-known society matrons and members of the younger set, and will be one of the most interesting affairs of the month's social calendar.

Opening the entertainment there will be a brilliant pageant, in which will take part all those who are assisting in the fete. The vaudeville show will be one of the most pretentious offerings and is to be presented as a continuous performance during the afternoon and evening. The programme is in charge of Miss Gertrude Workman, whose assistants are John B. Beman and the Misses Alma and Dora Holmes. Dancing also will be a diversion, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bayer, assisted by Henry Daly.

Shetland ponies for excursions about the beautiful grounds; gaily-colored balloons for the boys and girls, and their elders; gingerbread men, and other features are to be provided for the guests. A splendid programme of music will be given and refreshments provided.

This will be the third annual May fete given by the Brownson House Settlement Association, and it is planned to make this affair an even more brilliant success, both financially and socially, than those of the preceding years.

OUT-OF-TOWN-SOCIETY.

Pasadena.

NO MORE charmingly appointed afternoon reception has been given in Pasadena during the past season than that which was given Wednesday by Mrs. Dewitt Chauncey LeFevre of South Orange Grove avenue, complimentary to her daughter, Mrs. David Livingston Scott of Toronto, who has been spending the winter here and is leaving soon for her home in Canada. The floral decorations were unusually beautiful. American Beauty roses were used in the hall and in the reception-room, where Mrs. LeFevre and her daughter received. La France roses with other pink blossoms made an effective decoration. The pink and green color scheme was carried into the living-room, where carnations and ferns were used and in the dining-room yellow roses adorned the table, while quantities of broom was massed in corners and the mantels were banked with wild columbine and other yellow flowers. Presiding over the tea table were Mmes. Elias Allen Ford and Benjamin Folsom during the first hour, and Mmes. William Brackenridge and J. Foster Rhodes, Jr., the second hour. Others assisting were Mmes. Frank G. Bartlett, H. M. Robinson, Henry Vilas, J. Dawson Thomson, William Franklin Knight, Robert Jones Burdette, Helen Belford, George W. Stimson, Phillip L. Auten, Andrew McNally, Helen Belford, Helena Childs, Ray Reed Marsh, Misses Cora Auten, Jane Stimson, Dick, Jean French and at the punch bowl were Mmes. Theodore Welch, S. M. Hamilton, David Blankenhorn and Alexander Nottmeyer. During the reception hours music was furnished by a string orchestra. Among those present were Mmes. Fred Elmer Wilcox, F. G. Cruickshank, John Earle Jardine, Gregory Purcell, Frederick Gleason, C. L. Ames, Revel English, B. M. Page, C. H. Moulton, George Van Dyke, Gerald Guyer, Hampton L. Story, Robert Allen Bower, A. H. Sellers, E. G. Reighard, Gamble Reighard, A. S. Gaylord, F. B. Wetherby, Walter Raymond, Charles K. Henry, Daniel Craig, Emil Kayser, Frank C. Bolt, G. M. Bolt, William Allen, Richard Luckey, Clinton C. Clark, William Ruddick, F. W. Kellogg, Ogden Ellis, J. B. Durand, Charles A. Goodyear, Lois G. Fobes, E. B. Shidler, H. D. Rockefeller, G. Lawrence Stimson, I. B. Winslow, Eben Pratt Clapp, Charles D. Lockwood, M. B. Coombs, Charles D. Daggett, David B. Van Slyck Cadman, A. H. Warren, Walter Edwards, H. M. Evans, Misses Cowles, Dorothy Vandevort, Hurry, Luckey, Fobes, Kellogg, Mmes. William Pugh and W. H. Sloane of Los Angeles, and many others.

The second of a series of dinner dances was given Thursday evening at the Valley Hunt Club and proved a delightful affair. The table was spread in the extension dining-room, which was decorated with carnations in club colors for the affair and covers were laid for fifty. After dinner stereopticon views were shown and dancing in the ballroom followed, Evans orchestra furnishing music. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Sinclair, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Storrow, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Macdonell, Mr. and Mrs. S. Hazard Halsted, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Good, Mr. and Mrs. William Joyce, Mr. and Mrs. John Harris Booge, Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. John Earle Jardine, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence S. Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton C. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Macomber, Mrs. S. M. Hamilton, Misses Marjorie Sinclair, Markham, Runyon, Tompkins, McBride, Mr. and Mrs. G. Lawrence Stimson, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Page, Messrs. Walter H. Lutz, C. H. Hamilton, Robert Devereaux, Ormsby Phillips and many others.

Mrs. Gertrude Macy and Mrs. L. M. Winn of North Grand avenue entertained fifty of their friends Thursday afternoon at an informal tea when the rooms were beautifully decorated with garden roses and quantities of greenery. Mrs. John S. Cravens and Mrs. H. Page Warden presided over the tea cups.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. William R. Staats of North Orange Grove avenue for the marriage of Mrs. Staats's daughter, Miss Isabel Watson and Stuart O'Melveny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry O'Melveny of Los Angeles, which will be solemnized Saturday, June 6, at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's attendants will be her sister, Miss Clara Watson, Misses Theodora Robbins, Jane Stimson, Dorothy Bailey and Helen Staats. Donald O'Melveny, brother of the groom, will serve as best man.

Miss Cora Auten of North Madison avenue has chosen Wednesday, June 17, as the day of her marriage to Charles Baxter. This will be an evening wedding at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip L. Auten, and the affair will be characterized by simplicity. Miss Auten was the guest of honor yesterday at a musicale given by Mrs. Frances B. Swan of Torrington place, East Colorado street, and has been the recipient of much social attention since the announcement of her engagement, several weeks ago.

Mrs. Benjamin O. Williams of West California street has issued invitations for an auction bridge party for tomorrow afternoon which is given in honor of Miss Cora Auten and will be followed by an informal tea for which a large number of invitations have been sent out.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Taber of South Madison avenue entertained Sunday last week with a family reunion, celebrating the eightieth birthday anniversary of Mrs. Phoebe Taber. Mrs. Hetty Taber Wheaton, a house guest, and Miss Vera June Taber, who is soon to marry Burton Hill, were also honored guests. An elaborate dinner was served and the table was decorated with white carnations in recognition of mothers' day. There were thirty present.

George Chessman entertained with a jolly dinner party Wednesday evening at his ranch at Walnut, and among the guests were Pasadena friends, including Miss Genevieve and Elizabeth Stehman, Emily McBride, Barbara Blankenhorn, Messrs. James McBride and Mac Blankenhorn.

One of the afternoon teas of last week which attracted the attention of society matrons and maids was that given at the Day Nursery, when the hostesses were Mmes. John McWilliams, Jr., Frank Morrell, B. O. Williams, Elmer Williams, Misses Jane Stimson and Joannes. There were about thirty present and the proceeds of this charity tea goes to the work of the day nursery.

South Pasadena.

THE WOMAN'S CLUBHOUSE was the scene of a delightful dancing party given for the younger set by Mrs. Howard Kelley, No. 1962 Primrose avenue; Mrs. Albert Doerr, No. 1632 Fletcher avenue, and Mrs. Edward C. Love, No. 1812 Marengo avenue, honoring their daughters, the Misses Grace Kelley, Mary Doerr and Edythe Love, respectively, Friday evening. Assisting ladies were Mrs. Horace Newton Birge, Mrs. C. L. Bennett and Miss Dorothy Seymour of Los Angeles. The ballroom and all the other apartments thrown open for the occasion were gorgeously bedecked with hundreds of Cecile Brunner roses, in beautiful relief against masses of ferns, palms and other greenery. In the dining-room the lace-covered table was centered by a great basket filled with enchantress carnations, shimmering under the light of pink-shaded candelabra. Strains of softest music filtered from the hidden orchestra, and grace, airy and full of poise, played its pretty havoc among the dancers. One hundred guests were included.

Miss Amy Davenport, No. 1813 Fletcher avenue, entertained with a dinner-dance at the Beverly Hills Hotel Friday evening, honoring Miss Elsa Becker, whose engagement to George William Miller was announced during the week by her mother, Mrs. Ida Becker, at a tea given at the Alexandria, following a box party at the Majestic. The dinner table was aglow with a mound of Killarney rosebuds and streamers of pink satin ribbon leading to the four corners ending in huge bows. Candelabra of cut-glass surmounted with pink shades shed a soft glow over the table and rose cards marked covers for eight.

Mrs. Thomas A. Sanson, No. 1617 Marengo avenue, entertained informally with a bridge luncheon Monday afternoon, honoring the ladies of the Evening Dinner Bridge Club.

Mrs. I. L. Spencer of Monterey road and Mrs. Wilbur Filley of Edgewood drive are entertaining the members

The visiting buyer in Los Angeles will be treated in such a way that he will come again. He will see and examine the merchandise before parting with his money, and a responsible local dealer will be answerable for its quality. The visitor will be considered as under the protection of the merchants whose names appear in this advertisement, and each one of them will see that his visit is made both pleasant and profitable. Moreover, each merchant will be as much interested in protecting the interests of the visiting buyer while he or she is in Los Angeles as the visitor himself could possibly be.

SOCIETY.

[illegible] turned recently after a trip around the world.

W. B. Gard has returned Monday after a few weeks spent on his grain ranch in Idaho.

Alhambra.

MISS FLORA B. COOPER was the complimented guest at a charming party given recently at the home of Miss Nelbert Murphy, No. 467 Los Robles avenue, Pasadena. Miss Cooper, who is one of the most popular young teachers in Alhambra, was the recipient of innumerable good wishes when, during the course of the afternoon, her engagement to William R. Sollender of Tonopah was announced. Those present included Miss Grace Alden, Miss Leone Taylor, Mrs. Clara Cooper Crealock, Miss Margery Hardy, Miss Lora Meyers, Miss Sara Lee Kendig, Miss Hester Wallace, Miss Charlotte Powell, Miss Ellsy, Miss Bertha Meyers, Miss Diamond, Miss Florence Irwin, Miss Bariotte, Miss Clara Johnson and Miss Katherine Hardy.

The Alhambra Round Table met Friday at the Presbyterian manse, Mrs. Chisholm proving a most delightful hostess. At the conclusion of a short business session Miss May Hatch gave a half-hour to the Mexican situation. Mrs. James Nairne followed with the reading for the afternoon on "Roman Art and Literature." A pleasing feature of the afternoon was the large collection of pictures lent for the occasion by Principal Routt of the High School. The Round Table was also invited by Prof. Routt to attend the Latin play to be given by the members of the Latin department of the High School on Wednesday afternoon. The next meeting of the Round Table will be held at the home of Mrs. Crane, No. 318 South Fifth street; subject, "Quiz on the Year's Work," led by Miss S. J. Beverly, president of the club.

Miss Marguerite Lord and Miss Agnes Goudge are domiciled for a week at Modjeska Ranch in Orange county. It is likely that they will be joined by several friends from Alhambra for the week-end.

A merry fishing party made up by W. G. Gautier, Bert McDonald, Harold Cooper and Howard Graham are spending the week-end at Fish Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Clapp of Alhambra and Mr. and Mrs. Berger of Los Angeles were the complimented guests at a dinner party given at the Alexandria Monday evening by M. Bliven of New York. Later they were Mr. Bliven's guests at the Orpheum.

Members of the Sunny Slope Club were delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. A. L. Emberson Thursday afternoon. The attractive home had been profusely decorated with roses, and after a pleasant afternoon delicious refreshments were served the following guests: Mrs. R. L. Ramsey, Mrs. R. C. Thompson, Mrs. J. E. Selkirk and Miss Mary Lee of Michillinda, Mrs. D. F. Hawley of Huntington, Ind.; Mrs. W. S. Chase, Mrs. S. B. Miles, Mrs. J. R. Slack, Mrs. Joseph Henry Douglas, Mrs. M. C. Cartwright, Mrs. E. K. Alpaugh, Mrs. H. L. Purinton, Mrs. Oscaria Bolander, Mrs. C. S. Rogers, Mrs. Abbie Bechier, Miss Mary Alpaugh and Mrs. John Arthur Smith. Mrs. T. L. Dudley will act as hostess at the next meeting of the club, to be held May 21.

William A. Graham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Van Graham, has returned from Berkeley, where he is attending the university, to spend his vacation with his parents.

Santa Ana.

MISS GRACE INWOOD, the accomplished daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Inwood of the First Methodist Church pastorate, was the recipient of a cleverly-carried-out surprise affair on Tuesday night, with Mrs. C. E. Jones as hostess. Miss Inwood was beguiled from home for all day, and in her absence the spacious rooms of the parsonage were beautifully decorated with velvety nasturtiums, whose golden tints irradiated from every available point. When Miss Inwood entered the house and found a bevy of laughing maids and matrons awaiting her she was completely and delightfully surprised. A shower of lovely gifts, concealed throughout the various rooms of the lower floor, absorbed her attention for some time, then followed a round of merry pastimes. One of these was a fortune-telling contest, which foretold that Miss Annis Snow would be the next bride of the merry circle present. Miss Inwood is to be a May bride, and the Tuesday-evening courtesy is but one of many she has been showered with, both here and elsewhere, as the Inwoods are well known in Riverside, Los Angeles and Redlands and other California cities. Tempting refreshments ended the charming evening.

Mrs. Clarence Tedford was hostess on Friday afternoon to the ladies of the Billy Club, a small social club composed of young matrons. She entertained at a theater party with a collation served later in the gold grill-room at Taylor's. A basket of sweet Cecile Brunner roses and ferns was the pretty centerpiece of the daintily-appointed table, and at each plate was a tiny bouquet of the same roses tied with pink ribbons.

No more beautiful wedding event of the spring season has been celebrated than that of Miss Amy Bent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bent, and Harlow Ray Billinsley of Villa Park, on Monday night. A bank of ferns studded with Shasta daisies with bouquets of the lovely daisies resting in a massive base formed a background for the bridal group as the bride and groom took places under a wedding bell of daisies suspended from an overhead canopy of ferns. Mrs. Ella Irene Fyfe sang most beautifully "Because" and "Red, Red Rose," preceding the opening strains of the Lohengrin wedding march that announced the coming of the bridal procession led by the officiating minister, Rev. G. M. Morrison of Pasadena, and the groom. The bride, given away by her father, wore a handsome gown of white satin and lace with garniture of white satin rosebuds. Her wedding veil was caught with lily of the valley and the same dainty flowers with maidenhair ferns formed the shower bouquet. Miss Imogene Tillotson, her bridesmaid, was gowned in pink-striped silk voile with pink chiffon overdress. She carried Cecile Brunner roses. W. Patterson Billingsley was his brother's best man. The bride and groom stood on a splendid oriental rug, the gift of the groom's parents, and the nuptial vows were taken in the presence of seventy-five guests. Out-of-town guests hailed from Los Angeles, Pasadena, Santa Monica, Oceanside, Orange and Villa Park. A wealth of valuable gifts was received by Mr. and Mrs. Billingsley, who left immediately after the wedding supper for a honeymoon trip to unrevealed destinations.

An informal merrymaking at their Newport Beach cottage was the delightful event to which a few friends of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Forgy were invited on Monday evening of this week. Motoring to the beach in the early evening, the party was entertained with a delicious supper served at 7 [illegible] all the more enjoyed from the ride through the brisk evening air. A jolly repast, making a merry [illegible] for the gay evening following. The fun was all impromptu and the jest and repartee were accom-

[illegible]

MISS GRACE INWOOD, the accomplished daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Inwood of the [illegible] Methodist Church pastorate, [illegible] the recipient of a cleverly-carried-[illegible] surprise affair on Tuesday night, [illegible] Mrs. C. E. Jones as hostess. Miss [illegible] was beguiled from home for [illegible], and in her absence the spacious rooms of the parsonage were [illegible] decorated with velvety [illegible], whose golden tints irradiated from every available point. When Miss Inwood entered the house [illegible] found a bevy of laughing maids [illegible] matrons awaiting her she was completely and delightfully surprised. [illegible] shower of lovely gifts, concealed [illegible] the various rooms of the [illegible], absorbed her attention for [illegible] time, then followed a round of [illegible] pastimes. One of these was a fortune-telling contest, which foretold [illegible] Miss Annie Snow would be the [illegible] bride of the merry circle present. Miss Inwood is to be a May [illegible], and the Tuesday-evening courtesy was but one of many she has been [illegible] with, both here and elsewhere, as the Inwoods are well known [illegible], Los Angeles and Redlands and other California cities. [illegible] refreshments ended the [illegible] evening.

Mrs. Clarence Telford was hostess [illegible] Friday afternoon to the ladies of [illegible] Club, a small social club [illegible] of young matrons. She entertained at a theater party with a [illegible] served later in the gold grill-[illegible] at Taylor's. A basket of sweet [illegible] Brunner roses and ferns was [illegible] centerpiece of the daintily-[illegible] table, and at each plate was [illegible] bouquet of the same roses tied [illegible] pink ribbon.

[illegible] more beautiful wedding event [illegible] spring season has been celebrated than that of Miss Amy Bent, [illegible] of Mr. and Mrs. George [illegible] and Harlow Ray Billinsley of [illegible] Park, on Monday night. A bank [illegible] studded with Shasta daisies [illegible] of the lovely daisies [illegible] in a massive base formed a [illegible] for the bridal group as [illegible] bride and groom took places under a wedding bell of daisies suspended from an overhead canopy of ferns. Miss Irene Fyfe sang most beautifully "[illegible]" and "Red, Red [illegible]," preceding the opening strains [illegible] Lohengrin wedding march that [illegible] the coming of the bridal [illegible] led by the officiating minister, Rev. G. M. Morrison of Pasadena, and the groom. The bride, given away by her father, wore a handsome gown of white satin and lace [illegible] of white satin rosebuds. Her wedding veil was caught [illegible] of the valley and the same [illegible] with maidenhair ferns [illegible] the shower bouquet. Miss [illegible] Tillotson, her bridesmaid, [illegible] in pink-striped silk voile [illegible] chiffon overdress. She carried [illegible] Brunner roses. W. Pat[illegible] Billingsley was his brother's [illegible]. The bride and groom stood [illegible] splendid oriental rug, the gift [illegible] groom's parents, and the nuptial [illegible] were taken in the presence [illegible] twenty-five guests. Out-of-town [illegible] hailed from Los Angeles, Pasadena, Santa Monica, Oceanside, [illegible] Villa Park. A wealth of [illegible] gifts was received by Mr. [illegible] Billingsley, who left immediately after the wedding supper for [illegible] trip to unrevealed des[illegible].

[illegible] informal merrymaking at their [illegible] beach cottage was the delightful [illegible] to which a few friends [illegible] Mrs. H. K. Forgy were invited [illegible] Monday evening of this week. [illegible] to the beach in the early [illegible] the party was entertained [illegible] delicious supper served at 7 [illegible]. All the more enjoyed from [illegible] through the brisk evening air. [illegible] jolly repast, making a merry [illegible] the gay evening following [illegible] the fun was all impromptu and [illegible] were accompanied by the toasting of marshmallows and similar diversions before the cheerful open fire. The small hours of the night were at hand before the merrymakers reached their Santa Ana homes. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Metzgar and Arthur Lyon and the Theo Winbiglers were the guests.

Orange.

A BRILLIANT reception was given Saturday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Osman Pixley at the home of D. C. Pixley, the hostesses being Mrs. Walter Pixley, and the Misses Frances and Alma Pixley. A bewildering array of pink and white roses were used in house decorations. Reception guests were: Mmes. F. L. Ainsworth, C. B. Bradshaw, A. A. Bennett, J. P. Boring, J. L. Birnbaum, Ray Billingsley, I. L. Collins, S. M. Craddick, F. L. Chapline, A. H. Domann, B. J. Fletcher, W. S. Gregg, J. F. Gillis, J. F. Gray, F. M. Gulick, Harry Huff, F. E. Hallman, B. E. Heartt, E. D. Jencks, V. D. Johnson, R. W. Jones, H. Kennedy, A. J. Klunk, J. F. Keller, W. F. and J. G. Marks, McKeag, J. W. Morrison, Marshall Northcross, J. E. Parker, J. R. Porter, J. E. Pickett, U. D. Rhodes, V. A. Rossiter, Guy Richards, Charles C. and A. R. Smith, Agnes E. Smith, A. N. Saxton, C. P. Taft, A. L. Tomblin, G. D. Toothaker, G Weltbrecht, Sr., K. V. Wolf, K. E. Watson, Alfred E. Zapf, Misses Prince Bibber, Hester Billingsley, Gladys and Leona Freeman, Winifred Haig, Vera and Bertha Johnson, Katherine Northcross, Marian Pryne, Floe and Sue Scarritt, Marguerite Smith, Susie Weitbrecht, Merle Williams, Lenore Rose, Othie Birnbaum and Dr. Ida Parker.

More than half a hundred of the Tustin "Y's" and their friends were delightfully entertained at the handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Utt recently. From the wealth of flowers that flourish on the Utt grounds had been gathered myriads of lovely pink roses to adorn the spacious rooms, whose fragrant beauty was intensified by the luxuriant rose foliage used as greenery. Informality reigned during the evening, Miss Dorothy Utt as hostess, Miss Emma Thorman and Miss Avis Smith acting as mistresses of ceremonies. An informal programme was given by Miss Mildred Marchant, with several charming piano numbers; Clifford Truesdale of Los Angeles with stirring cornet numbers, and Miss Gertrude Utt in the reading of a pretty story. The very jolliest feature of the evening was an old-fashioned spelling bee, in which one side was completely "spelled down" in a brief space of time. Mrs. George Brown, superintendent of the "Y" work, was assisted by Miss Minnie Childs, a well-known artist from the East, who is sojourning here, in serving the choice refreshments that preceded the closing hour of the highly enjoyable social event.

Miss Rita Russell of Modesto, Cal., who has been the house guest of Mrs. A. R. Smith for several days, was the central figure in a charming affair given in her honor by Mrs. Smith on Friday. Miss Smith is the fiancee of H. T. Smith of Flagstaff, Ariz., son of her hostess. She was presented to Orange society women at the charming afternoon event. Cecile Brunner roses and ferns mingled in a pretty decorative effect. Bridge was played, first award going to Mrs. A. H. Domann of Orange and the second prize to Mrs. William Winters of Los Angeles. The guest prize, a handsome luncheon set, was given to Miss Russell. An intermission in the games allowed the serving of choice refreshments.

Venice.

MRS. J. S. JONES of Tokio left Tuesday morning on an extended trip through the South and East. She will stop in Brady, Tex., where she will visit her cousin for a week. The greater part of the trip will be spent at Newburg, Ind. Mrs. Jones will stop in Kansas City, Chicago and other large cities, returning to Venice during the late summer.

Miss Ruth Heppe, who is to be married to Lieut. J. A. Logan of the U. S. S. Cheyenne was the honored guest at a reception given by her sisters at their home, No. 33 Breeze avenue. The affair was given to formally announce the engagement of the young lady. This reception was Tuesday afternoon, and many of the bay's social folk were present. The wedding will be on June 10 in Santa Monica, and all the pomp, grandeur and exclusiveness of a military wedding will mark this coming event.

Mrs. Force Parker, formerly of Venice, but who is now living in Beverly, was the toastmistress Tuesday evening at the banquet given in honor of Grace B. Caukin, secretary of the State Democratic Central Committee.

Mrs. Broaddus won with 5370 at the Monday afternoon meeting of the Five Hundred Club. Her score was seconded by Mrs. H. J. Slater, who piled up 4280. The coupon for the day was also won by Mrs. Broaddus. The session was a most delightful one, being held as usual in the east box of the dancing hall.

Tuesday evening the Women's Club of Sawtelle held full sway in the dance temple. The lodges were filled with society representatives from that city, Santa Monica and Los Angeles. Some late steps were performed by persons who evidently had practiced the difficult gyrations. Mrs. J. W. Wearne was the efficient chairman. It was decided to hold dances here two times a month from now on. The next meeting will be on the 26th of this month.

Ocean Park.

THE most fashionable tango given on the bay for some time was that held last evening in the new quarters of the Breakers Club on the Fraser pier. The new home of the club is in the building just completed by A. R. Fraser, which was designed especially for the use of the lively social organization. The dancing was a feature of the evening, many being expert in several new steps. Some original dances were also seen. The beauty of the hall, with its light shades and golden trimmings, was well set off by the latest creations in gowns and the black of the full dress. All the society elite were there and danced until a late hour. There were many present from nearby towns and Los Angeles.

The Linen Committee of the Women's Club held a benefit performance at the Rosemary Theater on Thursday evening, at which there were present many devotees of the club. The ladies' quartette, composed of Mrs. W. F. Barnum, Mrs. Creveling, Miss Elizabeth Harrison and Miss Charlena Welsh, offered some of their popular songs, which were well received. Pretty Miss Marion Gerard whistled some tunes, to the great satisfaction of all present. The trio of musicians from the Breakers cafe were loaned for the occasion, and they drove dull care from the theater with their humorous songs.

Wednesday evening the pier palace of dance was the scene of a bridal dancing party, when Duane D. Davis and his newly-acquired wife were the honored guests of his brother, N. E. Davis, of Ocean Park. The bride was formerly Estelle Schillinger of Hollywood. About twenty couples danced.

Thursday evening the dancing pavilion was the scene of a merry gambol. All the Woodmen who were left over from the afternoon's picnic were there in their full blue uniforms, and a joyful dance was enjoyed by the sons of the forest. Many were there with their ladies, and the scene was brightened by these military gentlemen.

A fashionable throng of Los Angeles, Pasadena and beach society people gathered at the dinner dance given at the new Merritt Jones Hotel on Tuesday evening of this week. The tango, the hesitation, the one step and the Boston were the favored steps.

Mrs. R. A. Phillips of Venice entertained a large number of friends at a large round table; Mrs. Harlan Clatworthy of the Bryson was also hostess to several friends, and Mrs. R. J. Randolph of Los Angeles had a motor party in attendance.

Redondo Beach.

A VERY pretty affair was held at the home of Mrs. Roy Heath, No. 617 North Guadalupe avenue, Tuesday evening, given in honor of the members of the Sima Kappa Society. The living-room was tastefully decorated with pink and white carnations and asparagus plumosus, and in the center of the dining table was an elegant cut-glass bowl filled with flowers of the same kind and color. The evening was spent in pleasant conversation, after which an elegant luncheon was served.

Mrs. Ernest Heath entertained a few ladies at her home on Catalina avenue Wednesday afternoon. The hours

Nemo EASY-FRONT

WHEN more women learn of the wonderful style and comfort of the new Nemo "Easy-Front" Corsets, you'll never hear a saleswoman say:

"Why, the Nemo is only for fat women!"

"Easy-Front" gives the slender woman everything she wants in a corset—light weight, strength, flexibility and up-to-the-minute style.

In material, making and finish, it's a big $5.00 value; but you can't duplicate its splendid service at any price.

No. 304 has a low bust, but high enough to get the Nemo "bridge" effect, which prevents all pressure and "digging in."

The wide gores of thin but strong Lastikops Cloth (semi-elastic) cover gastric and abdominal regions, giving the idealized "nature figure" and full, free breathing.

The skirt is long and flexible—modish in the last degree. For slender to medium figures. Fine Steeltex batiste, lightly boned; sizes 19 to 26.....$3.50

—No. 303 is the same, but nearly "topless"—$3.50.

Imitations, made with the same old heavy, stiff wear-out-quickly elastics, are practically worthless.

BE SURE IT'S AN "EASY-FRONT"

Other splendid models for slender and medium figures include the new were spent in playing whist, after which dainty refreshments were served.

Another interesting card game for the benefit of raising funds to defray the furniture expense of St. James's parish home was given Thursday evening at Hotel Redondo by Mrs. J. Perdue. The parlors and lobby were beautifully decorated with flowers and ferns and about 200 guests were present. Whist was the feature of the evening and prizes were awarded the lady and gentleman scoring the highest number of points. After the game a dainty lunch was enjoyed.

Mrs. Mary Gulliver of San Diego is visiting this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brolaski.

Balboa.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE COLLINS of Los Angeles are occupying the Collins apartments for about two weeks' vacation.

The Misses Kundrup, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith, left Thursday morning for a short trip to Salinas, Cal., to visit friends.

The dance given by the Quadrille Club at Balboa pavilion Tuesday evening was largely attended. The Virginia reel was the leading dance of the evening.

C. K. Greenhow has moved down from Los Angeles and will occupy his cottage on Balboa Island for the summer.

East Newport.

THE South Coast Yacht Club held its spring opening for its clubhouse at East Newport Saturday evening. About twenty-five couples from Los Angeles and San Pedro were present, as well as the local members of the club with their ladies. Refreshments were served. The ballroom was well decorated with the club colors and yachts' pennants.

E. E. Nelson returned Tuesday night from a three-months' trip through Eastern States.

Miss Helen Abbott of Los Angeles will occupy the Fontana cottage on the ocean front with a party of young ladies from that city in a house party over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ricker enjoyed a visit over Sunday from Mr. Ricker's brother, William Ricker, and wife, of Santa Ana.

William McVicar Wilson of East Newport was married in Los Angeles last Saturday to Miss Elaine Jackson of Santa Ana.

Santa Monica.

THE Woman's Club will meet tomorrow afternoon in the High School auditorium. This was decided at the meeting Monday afternoon. The meeting is to be held in the school on the invitation of Supt. H. M. Rebok. A lecture on "Art," by George L. Schreiber, head of the art department, will be the feature of the afternoon. The faculty and students will, together with club members, make a large audience which will hear this lecture. This lecture promises much, as the professor has quite a collection of stereopticon pictures which he will exhibit.

Mrs. J. D. Bliss, chairman of the China Committee of the Woman's Club, and Mrs. W. T. Gillis are working hard on plans for the dance to be given by this committee in the pier pavilion on Friday evening. They promise some novel dances, and the usual number of fancy dancers will probably be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Hassinger of Los Angeles were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McKennedy of the Dwight apartments. Mr. Hassinger is a graduate of the High School here and while going to school made many friends on the beach.

Mrs. Rosa Borde left Tuesday evening for the North, going to the university city to be present at the graduation exercises at which her son Harry will be one of the honored ones. He leaves Stanford this season.

Miss Belle Wellwood left yesterday for her old home in Western Kansas. She goes on a short vacation and also to be present when her sister graduates.

The Silk Stocking Club met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. H. Davis on Dwight avenue. Fresh sweet peas formed the decoration basis, and the green leaves of the plants were in harmonious contrast to the wall colorings. Mrs. N. N. Van Brunt and Mrs. R. D. Beckon were the fortunate prize winners of the session of auction. The club will meet on Friday instead of Monday, the next meeting to be held on the 29th at the pretty Clubhouse avenue home of Mrs. Van Brunt.

Whittier.

MRS. C. S. FAY of North Painter avenue entertained with a farewell party in honor of Mrs. W. C. Resser of Fargo, N. D., Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Resser has been the house guest during the winter of her daughter, Mrs. Ralph E. Heath, and will leave soon for her northern home.

Mrs. Will McNees entertained at her home Tuesday in honor of Mrs. L. E. Richter of Reno, Nev., and her daughter, Mrs. Richter, of Los Angeles.

Mrs. W. H. Andrews of Upland was the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. H. Crook, this week. Tuesday evening Mrs. Andrews was entertained at dinner by Mrs. L. Butman, the ladies having been old-time friends in school days back East.

Miss May Williams and Walter Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Davis, were married in Los Angeles Monday. The wedding came as a surprise to the many friends of the young people. Mr. and Mrs. Davis will continue to make their home here.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Chase was the scene of a pretty and quiet wedding Tuesday evening, when Miss Faythe Chase, their niece, became the bride of John Moore, formerly of Chicago, but now of Los Angeles. Rev. G. W. Coultas, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Whittier, performed the ceremony, using the ring service. After a brief honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Moore will make their home in Los Angeles.

As a farewell courtesy to Miss Lucile Stutz, the booster class of the Christian Church Sunday-school indulged in a party at the home of Miss Ruth Diffenderfer Tuesday evening. Miss Stutz left Wednesday for her home in Detroit.

A delightful trip to France will occupy the summer of F. F. Pellissier and family, the journey to be begun tomorrow. Those to participate in the trip abroad are Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Pellissier and sons, Frank, Leon and Lawrence, and Mrs. Pellissier's parents and other relatives, who reside in Southern France. The return trip will be made in time for the boys of the party to re-enter school here in the autumn. Travel in Europe will be by auto, and will include many interesting places.

Mrs. E. W. Reider of Rivera entertained delightfully Tuesday at her country home in honor of Mrs. W. C. Resser of Fargo, N. D. Other guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Mary Sanborn of Los Angeles, Mrs. Charles Swaine, Mrs. Edith Ingersoll, Mrs. Ralph E. Heath and Mrs. Charles R. Thomas.

Tropico.

SATURDAY evening the Ebell Clubhouse of Los Angeles was the scene of a brilliant gathering of musicians and society people of Tropico, Glendale and Los Angeles, when Miss Olive Smith presented her talented pupil, Miss Helene Morgan of Tropico. This young girl, scarcely out of her teens, has real beauty and charm of manner, in addition to her musical genius, which she inherits from her mother, Mrs. Julia Krehbiel, sister of the noted American music critic, C. E. Krehbiel, who is herself a talented violinist.

Tropico has reason to be proud of Miss Morgan, who proved her ability in her excellent interpretation of a group of Chopin's works and Beethoven's sonata, op. 22, in its several movements.

The Tropico Thursday Afternoon Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Tom Thornton, Thursday afternoon, on Central avenue. Mrs. Thornton was assisted by Mrs. C. O. Pulliam, Mrs. W. H. Kimball and Mrs. M. R. Woolsey. The annual election of officers was held, which resulted in Mrs. Charles A. Barker, the present incumbent, being re-elected; Miss Cora Hickman, vice-president; Mrs. A. J. Pruess, recording secretary; Mrs. W. H. Kimball, corresponding secretary; Miss Ida M. Meyers, treasurer; Mrs. Hal H. Davenport, member at large. The lyric section of the club, of which Mrs. Thornton is chairman, Miss Helen Beatrice Cooper, director, and Mrs. Helen de Gaston accompanist, gave a musical programme.

Misses Katherine and Dorothy Hobbs very charmingly entertained the "Round Table" at their home on Central avenue, Tuesday evening. Miss Lynn McNutt had charge of the programme, and read a short book on "What's Worth While?" Dainty refreshments were served at a table artistically adorned in red carnations and ferns.

Roses and dainty rosebuds furnished pleasing decorations for the happy young guests of Mrs. M. R. Klee, when she entertained Saturday afternoon at her home on Chestnut street, with a dainty luncheon, complimentary to the members of her Sabbath school class of the First Presbyterian Church of Tropico. Misses Floise Seamon, Altha Adair, Louise Storer, Jean Anderson, Helen Pope, Lila Shea and Lila Webster enjoyed the charming hospitality of Mrs. Klee.

Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. James Brown of Glendale avenue entertained with a dinner party, complimenting Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Brown, and Frederick Brown, of East Los Angeles.

Mrs. William Tiffany, Past Chief of Lahalla Temple, Pythian Sisters, of Tropico, accompanied by Mrs. Florence Cook, also Past Chief, leave for Sacramento Sunday morning, where they will pass the week, attending Grand Temple of the Pythian Sisters of California.

Inglewood.

MISS WINIFRED HUNTER, who has been the guest of her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Hunter, and her sister, Miss Gay, and brother, Edward, of Commercial street, left Tuesday for San Francisco, where on Thursday she sailed on the steamship Mongolia for Manila, P. I.

Miss Hunter, who is a teacher in the American school in that city, has been in the United States for a year's rest and visit, the greater part of which she spent with relatives in Utah and California. Miss Hunter will begin her school work early in June and is under contract for two years without further leave of absence.

An enjoyable social event of the past week was that of Saturday evening, when a jolly bunch of friends surprised Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Reber at their pleasant home. The affair was given especially for Mrs. Reber, who on Tuesday left for a three-months' visit with relatives in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Lehighton.

Eagle Rock.

MR. AND MRS. G. R. KINGDON of Fairmont avenue delightfully entertained on Saturday evening in honor of their tenth wedding anniversary, a number of [illegible] Games were enjoyed and [illegible] much merriment was [illegible] had to trim ladies' hats and [illegible] ners had to wear them. The Nature Form

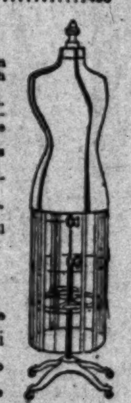
Fashioned After Your Individual Figure.



—Just think of the possibilities for home dressmaking in having a duplicate of your own figure before you, upon which to drape that dress, waist or suit you are making.

—That's the thought that was the origin of the Nature Form.

—Through a patented process, and a system of measurements, the Nature Form is fashioned into an exact duplicate of your figure.

—And besides, it may be adjusted to provide for variations in the figure, for bust, for arms, for waist, for skirt.

—And here's another feature: The Nature Form is so constructed that it is collapsible for storing, for traveling.

—No wonder we are selling so many of them—durable, light, inexpensive.

—Nature Form Busts, $8.75 and $11.75. Nature Form Full Figures, $12.50 and $15.

sphere, but that we can make it better if we try. I don't feel called on to do much about it either way, but it's fun to watch the thing spin around.

During the past week I went back twenty-five or thirty years to see how the superman was acting up at that time. I took two squints at the creature through exceedingly ordinary glasses and I found myself ashamed of his motives, but enjoying his capers.

One of the views I took was through the eyes of Jose Echegaray, a Spaniard, whose play, called "The Great Galeoto," was written in 1881. Under the encouragement of the Drama League it has just been translated into English, and it makes good reading. It is not better than the stuff we have been reading of late, but it is different from most of it, and is as entertaining as it is disagreeable.

Galeoto means the go-between. It is the person or force bringing two other people together or keeping them apart. In this play it stands for the gossip of society at large, and the picture it draws of society is not pleasant, but it is true. Spain is no worse in this respect than any other country. Envy and idleness set tongues wagging the world over, and people are misjudged and misinterpreted wherever there is a chance to be heard or misunderstood.

Good will to man hasn't gone very deep yet. Half the time when people are talked about what is said is untrue, and the other half the time it is nobody's business if it is true. The wrong people get talked about, anyway. The innocent are obvious because they have nothing to conceal and the guilty are generally too prudent to make a show of themselves. People can be careful without having something to hide, but those with something to hide are always careful.

Gossip is never so kind as murder because it tortures without the mercy of death.

There are three acts, innumerable scenes, and a prologue to "The Great Galeoto." The author denominates a new scene every time someone comes in or goes off the stage. This is amusing, but not damaging.

The prologue is something of a mystery. It leaves one in a fine doubt as to whether Ernest, a young playwright, living in the home of Don Julian, and his young wife, is dreaming all of this sad confusion in order to put it into a play, or whether these three good people really suffer the disasters which the play inflicts upon them.

Most of us believe what makes us most comfortable about anything. It pleases me to believe that none of this happened except the prologue, and that the play was only written to show that this very fanciful young man let his imagination run riot in order to guess what could happen where the evil tongue of gossip is set wagging. I reach this conclusion because the gossipers are not personalized in the prologue, as they are in the play, which follows:

Don Severo is Don Julian's brother. With his wife and their imp of a son they share Don Julian's home. The boy, Ernest, is 26. He is the only son of a father who died abroad, and who was Don Julian's warm friend and great benefactor. Out of gratitude Don Julian brings Ernest immediately to his own home and the boy appears everywhere with Don Julian's lovely young wife.

Gossip is immediately busy with the situation, but it comes to the ears of the three happy people only through Don Severo, his wife and his son.

The love of money is the root of all evil, and this seems to be the trouble here. Don Julian is rich, and Don Severo and his family do not enjoy the idea of a partnership with one whom they regard as an interloper. They are both jealous and envious, and are no doubt responsible for the invention of much of this gossip. They introduce it with the devil's own cunning and keep at it until the high mind of Don Julian is poisoned and his tender heart lacerated.

Ernest leaves the house in a huff, but is later provoked to blows at a cafe where he hears the names of his benefactors taken lightly, and a duel is arranged for the next day.

Both Don Julian and his lovely wife hear about it yet neither tells the other that they know. She hurries to Ernest's apartments to beg him to give up the enterprise, and also to say good-by, since he is to leave the country the next day. Don Julian learns where the duel is to be held and fights it himself while his wife is pleading with Ernest. He is mortally wounded and when they bring him to Ernest's quarters his pride and love receive a greater than mortal hurt on finding his wife at the place. Now, as at all times in the past, every action and word of the young wife and of Ernest are misinterpreted to Don Julian by his jealous relatives, and when he dies in ignorance of the love and innocence of the young people, Ernest clasps Teodora, the girl widow, in his arms and defies the rest, telling them that he will give their invention shelter and that what gossip has created shall be true. "She is mine," he exclaims. "The world has so desired it, and its decision I accept. It has driven her to my arms."

In this argument the play abounds. Somewhere Ernest says, "I have been taught that gossip whether inspired by malice or not, begins in a lie and generally ends in truth. Does gossip, as it grows, disclose the hidden sin? Is it a reflex of the past or does it invent evil and give it existence? Does it set its accursed seal upon an existent fault or merely breed that which was yet not and furnish the occasion for wrong?"

In one scene the play gives in words a good picture of the gossips at work. Severo's son is telling what happened at the cafe. He says, "A name mentioned meant a reputation blasted. Broad handed, ready tongued, every living soul passed in their review. In this asylum of charity, in the midst of more smoke than an express train emits, between lifted glass the dropped cigarette ashes, with here and there a lump of sugar, the marble was converted for the nonce into a dissecting table; each woman was dishonored. Another glass of the old tap, a shout of laughter for each tiplers cup. In four clippings these lads left reputations ragged and the ladies rent to tatters."

This article is too near a close in its natural space allowance to take much of a dip into another play of better humor, but just as keen in its insight, written some eight years later by A. W. Pinero, always a master of technique and ever imparting to force a deep purpose, and a broad vision.

In "The Cabinet Minister" Pinero, as long ago as 1889, gave us a most vivid satire on English society and politics as well as on the part which the money lender often plays in these high circles.

With the deftness of a caricaturist he outlines the characters of the ten principals, while the four acts clearly define as many states through which the characters are carried.

A woman has married an English lord. She was a country girl and he found her at the wash tub. Her ambition leads him to the city and to Parliament. It also plunges the family into debt. She borrows money from her dressmaker's brother, and this precious pair force themselves into society through this obligation.

In reality they force themselves on to society, but never into it, and Pinero makes them the subjects of rare comedy as well as the subjects of malice and design for the strength of the plot.

A fool of a Scotch youth, who isn't such a fool after all, and the daughter of the English lady, are forced into an engagement that neither wants, but the girl breaks to engage herself to a free lance cousin who hates shams until his own attitude is in itself a pose, and a source of mirth.

Her mother learns what she thinks is the government's plan about a certain canal bill and weakly betrays her secret to her persecutors in order to be rid of their presence. The speculative value of this information would have been tremendous had it not been disastrous to the pair.

The lady's husband laughs at her and tells her the truth. This time she uses her knowledge for herself and makes her family rich. Then she promises never to risk other people's money again as well as to end her own extravagance so everyone dances and is happy.

These two plays are good illustrations of stage possibilities centered around the weakness and folly of human nature and they are also fine examples of how modern the last century could sometimes be.

MEN AND EVENTS.

Sixty-two years of constant service for the city of Chicago, with never a reprimand, is the record of John Agnew, the first building inspector to work for the city. Building Commissioner Henry Ericsson and his fellow associates presented Agnew with a gold watch on the anniversary. Agnew murmured a few words of thanks and said: "I have work to do; I'm nearly late now." With a hurried "good-by" he darted out the door.

George Thompson of Atchison, Kan., has sworn off voting for presidents. He has voted at every election since 1848 and, with the exception of Franklin, has never yet "won his vote." He says that either his judgment is poor or he is a hoodoo.

Fulfilling a promise which he made to his wife at the time of their marriage, although she has been dead sixteen years, Matthew Eler wore at his fifty-ninth wedding anniversary last week the silk hat which he wore before he was married. He has worn it on every wedding anniversary.

Of the seventy-seven employees of all grades of the Pennsylvania Railroad recently retired from the servic and put upon its pension list, the champion long-time worker is Charles Dowell of Camden, N. J., who has served the company for fifty-three years and two months. On April 1 last he worked his final day for the company and now is free to do little but talk of the "good old times." There are only five other men recently pensioned who have served over a half a century.

Herman Gronniger, a farmer living near Atchison, Kan., has two automobiles, one for his family and the other to carry his hogs to market. He says the hogs paid for both of them and should have the use of one.

Apropos of eggs which are and are not fresh, one has been found in the tomb of an Egyptian child named Sextius Rufus, who lived about 1800 years ago, at Nikopolis.

CALIFORNIANS FIND QUICK RELIEF FROM THEIR STOMACH AILMENTS

Hundreds of California people are needlessly suffering from stomach trouble while relief is near at hand. Many have found swift relief and health by the use of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy.

The first dose convinces—no long treatment.

Here is what two Californians say:

L. C. JONES, Martinez, Cal.—"I took Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy with most pleasing and surprising results. My trouble has principally been gastritis, with gas around my heart at times so bad I thought I was going to die."

R. W. GRAY, 5878 Moneta avenue, Los Angeles, Cal.—"My wife and I have both taken Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy and both are well now. If I should get sick I would sure send for more."

These expressions are extracts from letters. Thousands of other letters like them show how this remedy has proven itself to thousands. It is quick and safe. It is known all over the nation.

Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy clears the digestive tract of mucoid accretions and poisonous matter. It brings swift relief to sufferers from stomach, liver and bowel ailments. Many declare it has saved them from dangerous operations and many are sure it has saved their lives.

Because of the remarkable success of this remedy there are many imitators; so be cautious. Be sure it's MAYR'S. Go to The Owl Drug Co.'s Stores and ask about the wonderful results it has been accomplishing—or send to Geo. H. Mayr, Mfg. Chemist, 154-156 Whiting st., Chicago, Ill., for free book on stomach ailments and many grateful letters from people who have been restored. Any druggist can tell you its wonderful results.

THE ADVENTURES OF KATHLYN.

BY HAROLD MAC GRATH.

SYNOPSIS.

Kathlyn Hare, believing her father, Col. Hare, in peril, has summoned her, leaves her home in California to go to him in Allaha, India. Umballah, pretender to the throne of that principality, has imprisoned the colonel, named by the late king as his heir, because he fears the American may insist on his royal rights. Upon her arrival in Allaha Kathlyn is informed by Umballah that, her father being dead, she is to be queen and must marry him forthwith. Because of her refusal she is sentenced to undergo two ordeals with wild beasts.

John Bruce, an American and fellow-passenger on the boat which brought Kathlyn to Allaha, saves her life. The elephant which carries her from the scene of her trials becomes frightened and runs way, separating her from Bruce and the rest of the party. After a ride filled with peril Kathlyn takes refuge in a ruined temple, but her haven is also the abode of a lion and she is forced to flee from it. She finds a retreat in the jungle, only to fall into the hands of a band of slave traders, who bring her to Allaha to the public mart. She is sold to Umballah, who, finding her still unsubmissive, throws her into the dungeons with her father.

Bruce and his friends effect the release of Kathlyn and the colonel, and the fugitives are given shelter in the palace of Bala Khan. Supplied with camels and servants by that hospitable prince, the party endeavors to reach the coast, but is overpowered by a band of brigands, and the encounter results in the colonel being delivered to Umballah. Kathlyn and Bruce escape from their captors and return to Allaha, where Kathlyn learns that her father, while nominally king, is in reality a prisoner. Kathlyn's resourcefulness and bravery are the means of rescuing him, and once more they steal away from Allaha, but return broken-hearted when they learn that Winnie, Kathlyn's young sister, has come to India. Umballah makes her a prisoner. She is forced to enter the palace and in turn is crowned queen of Allaha.

One attempt to get Winnie out of the closely-guarded palace almost costs Kathlyn her life, but the second plan succeeds, and Kathlyn and Winnie, their father and Bruce find a hiding place in the home of their Indian friend, Ramabai, and his wife, Pundita. The latter is the lawful queen of Allaha and public sentiment in her favor is growing. The people at last, weary of Umballah's misrule, rise against him, with Ramabai at their head and the colonel and Bruce fighting under him. Kathyn has been left at home, but when tidings that the revolutionists have been defeated reach her she rushes out and assumes command of the scattered forces. Her presence inspires them with fresh courage and under her leadership the tide is turned and the rebels are victorious.

The photodramas corresponding to the installments of "The Adventures of Kathlyn" may now be seen at a number of the leading moving picture theaters. By this unique arrangement with the Selig Polyscope Company, it is therefore possible not only to read "The Adventures of Kathlyn" in this paper, but also to keep pace with each installment of it at the moving picture theater.

CHAPTER XX.

THEY tell of it to this day in Allaha. To be sure, they will elaborate and prevaricate, twist and distort, as only the Asiatic knows how, having an innate horror of brevity and directness; but the basic truth of Kathlyn's exploit is held intact. The hoary old beggar who sits with his beggar's bowl near the steps of the mosque, loquacious, verbose, and flowery, for an 8-ana piece will tell you the tale, which happened all of thirty years ago.

"Thanks, Huzoor!" he will begin, carefully scrutinizing the coin and testing its solidity between two fine rows of teeth for a man of 70. "Ah, that was a day! It was like a day I knew in Delhi, when I was a child; for I saw the Great Mutiny. I saw the powder magazine. . . . Ah, yes, Huzoor; it is about the white goddess that you wish to know. But help me over to Ali's coffee house, for it is hot here, and it is a long story."

So you take the old rascal over to and seat him under the umbrellas of Ali, and you will buy him a sugar drink and a smoke from a water bottle, he having brought forth suggestively a cracked amber mouthpiece.

"Huzoor, she came out of nowhere, in a chain armor that shone like rippling water in the sunshine. She was tall and lithe and vigorous, and as beautiful as a dream of paradise.

"When we saw the Sahibs and Ramabai trapped by the cowardly soldiers of the palace we found ourselves without a head. The men who led us had vanished. We huddled like sheep, scattered, formed, fired aimlessly, began to run away. And brave old Lal Singh, with a bullet through his stomach, staggered off. We were without hope. We were brave enough, but bravery has to be directed. We knew only part of Ramabai's plans."

"And what about this man Ahmed?"

"As the kite flies, he ran back to the house of Ramabai when everything had apparently come to an end. For Ahmed loved the white goddess even as you and I love life. He was brave, but as the serpent is—wisely. Did not the white queen of all the English give him a bit of copper to wear on his breast because he was wise as well as brave?"

The old beggar tilted his cup without touching it with his lips and let the sweetened water trickle down his throat.

"When one is old, one is always thirsty," he observed. "To go on. So there we were, like sheep. The majority of us did not have sense enough to run away. Huzoor, Umballah had lined up the white men and Ramabai against the wall in the throne room and was about to send them to their gods, when suddenly I noticed a commotion in the rear of us. A pathway seemed to be hewn out among us. We were thrown about like sticks in a whirlpool.

"And then I saw her! Ah, Protector of the Poor, you white people rule the world because you always know what you want and when you want it. But it is not natural for us brown people to think and act quickly at the same time. I saw her; and I thought at first that the gates of paradise had opened and Allah himself had sent her down among us."

The water bubbles in the bowl of the pipe and a thin stream of smoke trickles from his bearded lips. You must have patience, for he will tell this tale only in his own fashion.

"Straight to the palace steps she ran, waving her arms. Behold! She spoke to us in her own tongue, but Allah is witness that we understood what she was saying. First we grew ashamed, then we stopped running, then we became men, Huzoor. The lead tubes began to speak again; and we too found our voices. With yells we followed. And there was battle, battle, battle, to the very foot of the throne.

"She threw herself between the leveled guns and her people. The soldiers could not fire. And Umballah, seeing that in truth he had lost this time—Umballah fled toward the corridors, and none was quick enough to prevent him.

"But we went shouting after him, through this corridor and that. We could not find him. It seems he escaped through one of the chambers in the zenana."

A shrilling of fifes and a rattling of drums distract you and break in upon the story. A company of trim, wiry Gurkhas tramp past, and you know by the flag they carry under whose rule Allaha works out its destiny today.

"What became of the captain of the guards?"

"He was ordered to the arena lions. But we saved him, loosing the arena lions to do so. Huzoor, I am thirsty again."

And you buy him another cup of sweetened water.

"But we cheered the white goddess that day! There are men who will swear that her feet never touched the earth as she walked. But I knew that she was the daughter of Colonel Sahib, and that she had red blood in her veins, like the rest of us. Women are mysteries. Here was one who fought like an ancient warrior; and yet she swooned in her father's arms! That is all today, Husoor. I am an old man, and my throat dries quickly. Come tomorrow and I will tell you more."

But tomorrow comes to find you interested in something else; and the old beggar juggles his bowl before the steps of the mosque, patiently waiting for another listener.

"Kit, Kit!" cried Kathlyn's father when she came to her senses. "My girl, my girl!"

"Dad!"

"How could you do it?"

"Do what?" vaguely.

"Lead a forlorn cause to victory; you, a girl!"

She brushed back the hair which tumbled about her eyes, glanced at the powder-stained faces grouped about her, glanced at the toppled throne, at Bruce, at Ramabai. She made an effort to explain, but the words would not come.

"I would not question her," said Bruce to the colonel. "For my part, I never so thoroughly believed in God as I do now. She does not realize what she has done."

The colonel bent his head reverently.

"We owe our lives to her," said Ramabai. "Somewhere in the dim ages there was a great mother, and today her soul entered the memsahib."

"Mine!" murmured Bruce. "This beautiful, strange woman is mine! God send the day quickly when I can take her in my arms and guard her! Ramabai," he said aloud, "go to the balcony and proclaim Pundita queen. Let us have done with this before there is any chance of Umballah recovering. What shall we do with the council?"

"Wait!" responded Ramabai. "It is for another to say." And he pointed to the marble flags at his feet.

And all understood what honor meant to this man of dark skin.

"Now," he continued, "I wish to go home at once. We will leave a sufficient guard here to watch over the palace. My wife waits; and the death of Lal Singh may have——"

The same thought flashed through Kathlyn's mind; the dagger. Dying, Lal Singh had declared that Ramabai was a prisoner; and well would Pundita comprehend what that meant.

"Yes, yes! let us go quickly!" Kathlyn cried. Pundita might be dead and Winnie crazed with grief.

They left the palace immediately.

The overthrow of Umballah seemed to be complete. Everywhere the soldiers surrendered, for it was better to have food in the stomach than lead. Tomorrow there would be many a pyre at the burning ghats, but today was a day of victory.

Every one began to hunt for Umballah. There was as yet no price on his head; it was the zest of hunting only that set the people to it. They ran in and out of Umballah's house, and were not above looting, though word had gone forth that Ramabai would have every looter shot if found in the act. But search as they would, they could find no trace of Umballah.

A woman who loved him—the only one loyal to him in all Allaha that day—had hidden him in a palanquin in the garden of brides. Crouched down in the narrow space shuddering at the sound of shots, whether near or far, dying a thousand deaths, wishing he had never been taken from the gutter, willing to give up his jewels, his plate, simply to live.

The woman of the zenana, when the tumult died away completely, found some slaves. She made them divest themselves of the royal turbans and assume ordinary white ones. Then she told them to carry the palanquin to a certain house in the fruit bazaar, to go by side streets, alleys, passages, to avoid all gatherings. Once in the house of her sister, the dancer, Umballah would be safe till he could secretly return to his own house and enter the secret chamber.

When Kathlyn left the palace a thunder of cheers greeted her. Kathlyn was forced to mount the durbar throne, much as she longed to be off. But Bruce anticipated her thought and dispatched one of the revolutionists to the house of Ramabai. Kathlyn held out her hands toward the excited populace, then turned to Ramabai expressively. Ramabai; calm and unruffled as ever, stepped forward and was about to address the people, when the disheveled captain of the guard, whom Umballah had sent to the arena lions, pushed his way to the foot of the platform.

"The arena lions have escaped!"

And there were a dozen lions in all, strong, cruel, and no doubt hungry!

Panic. Men who had been at each other's throat, bravely and hardily, turned and fled. It was a foolish panic, senseless, but, like all panics, uncontrollable. Those on the platform ran down the steps and at once were swallowed up by the pressing, trampling crowd.

Bruce and the colonel, believing that Kathlyn was behind them, fought their way to a clearing, determined to secure nets and take the lions alive. When they turned Kathlyn was gone. For a moment the two men stood as if paralyzed. Then Bruce relieved the tension by smiling. He laid his hand on the colonel's shoulder.

"She has lost us; but that will not matter. Ordinarily I should be wild with anxiety; but today Kathlyn may go where she will, and nothing but awe and reverence will follow her. Besides, she has her revolver."

"I believe you're right. She will miss us and start right off for Ramabai's. Boy, she is a goddess. She is supernatural."

"She was this morning. As God is judge, I do not believe she understands or ever will understand what she did. You noticed her eyes? They were like those of a person in a trance. Think of it. To turn the tide at the supreme moment! That coat of mail; her hair falling about her head. . . . Ah, colonel, what's the use of beating about the bush? You know I love her. Will you give her to me?"

Without a moment's hesitation the colonel said: "Yes, John. You have proved yourself a man. God bless you both! But we're not out of the woods yet. We've got to find Umballah and lock him up. When that's done I'll be able to breathe."

"I believe it is as Ahmed says: We'll all pull out of this safely in the end. Now, let's go and get the nets. There will not be a dozen men in the whole town who will have sense enough to shoot the lions as they appear. They'll howl and run for shelter. Ramabai's welcome to Allaha. Hi, there's one now; see, coming round the corner! I'll pot him."

But ere Bruce could level his weapon the lion turned back, perhaps frightened at the clamor.

Kathlyn was not alarmed upon finding herself separated from the two men she loved so well. Her only concern was to avoid being knocked down and trampled upon. She knew animals. If left quietly to themselves the lions would make for the jungle, but if harried or frightened they would maul any one within reach.

Kathlyn was packed in rather closely, and she was carried past the street which led to the house of Ramabai, though she struggled desperately to push through. She was presently carried into the bazaars. The people in their senseless flight tried to do what they could for her, but self-preservation was their first thought. And it wasn't the cleanest smelling crowd in the world, either.

At the same time Kathlyn was fighting vigorously to get free of the mob, Winnie was struggling with Pundita, striving to wrench the dagger from the grief-stricken wife's hand.

"No, no, Pundita!"

"Let me go. My lord is dead, and I wish to follow!"

"You are a Christian!"

"Ai, ai!"

"But he may not be dead. Help, help!"

"Is not Lal Singh there dead? Is that not proof?"

Hither and thither across the floor they fought. But Winnie soon realized that Pundita, being in a frenzy, was strongest. The struggle ended quickly, however, but not through Winnie's efforts. Pundita did something unoriental; she fainted, dragging Winnie to the floor with her. The young girl's head came into contact with the wall, and she was stunned for a moment. Upon sitting up she did not know exactly where she was. But the calm, high bred face of the dead Lal Singh recalled the situation clearly, and she went about the resuscitation of Pundita.

As the latter's eyes opened wildly Winnie heard a pounding at the door. She was pulled two ways. If she answered the summons Pundita might take advantage of her absence and kill herself. Again, it might be the help for which she had called.

Instinctively she snatched up the fallen dagger, ran to the door, peered out cautiously, and recognized one of the revolutionists who had left the house but an hour or two since. She flung open the door.

"Pundita?" cried the man.

Winnie caught him by the sleeve and dragged him into the chamber . . . just in time. The distracted Pundita had plucked another dagger from the wall, and the man stayed her arm even as she struck.

"Highness," he cried, "he lives!" And he recounted the startling events of the morning, the treachery of the palace troops, the coming of Kathlyn in chain armor, the turn of the tide.

"They live!" cried Pundita, and covered her face.

Winnie had not understood a word said, but the expression on Pundita's face was illuminative. She threw her arms around the native woman, and the two of them wept in common. All human beings have two faculties alike, that of weeping and laughing.

To return to Kathlyn; by and by she was able to slip into a doorway, and the bawling rabble passed on down the narrow street. The house was deserted, and the hallway and what had been a booth was filled with rubbish. Kathlyn, as she leaned breathlessly against the door, felt it give. And very glad she was of this knowledge a moment later, when two lions galloped into the street, their manes stiff, their tails arched. Doubtless, they were badly frightened.

Kathlyn reached for the revolver she carried and fired at the animals, not expecting to hit one of them, but hoping that the noise of the firearms would swerve them into the passage across the way. Instead, they came straight to where she stood.

She stepped inside and slammed the door, holding it and feeling about in vein for lock or bolt.

Evidently the lions had halted outside, undecided, for she could hear them sniffling at the doorsill. If they leaped she was lost, for she could not hope to hold the door against the onrush of beasts as heavy as these lions were.

Elsewhere in the bazaars the colonel, Bruce and Ahmed were setting nets for the recapture of the lions, quite confident that Kathlyn was by this time safe in the haven of Ramabai's house.

The girl glanced hurriedly over her shoulder toward the dim, rickety staircase. The moment the sniffling ceased she withdrew from the door and ran up the stairs to the first landing, to find all these doors lockless! A crash below announced that the lions had heard her and had entered. There was a second flight, and up this flew the girl. She might fire at the beasts, and even if she succeeded in hitting them it would serve only to madden them. One cannot kill lions with a toy.

Still lockless doors! No safety.

She then espied a ladder which gave to the roof top, and up this she climbed. They could not possibly follow her up the ladder, and as she reached the top and it turned back at her presence, she knew that for the present she had nothing to fear from the lions.

The interior of the house was of the flimsiest wood, slovenly put together. Along the roof was a parapet. She left the trap open so that she could see all that went on below. Almost as she looked the tawny bodies swept up to the foot of the ladder and there remained, snarling and spitting and reaching up as far as they could. Somewhere on the way Kathlyn knew that these lions had tasted blood.

It was in this street dwelt the sister of the woman in the zenana, the woman who loved Umballah.

Kathlyn leaned over the parapet, the street was totally deserted. All the doors of the shops were closed and the windows shut. She must fight it out alone. She drew a deep breath and squared her shoulders, a trick she had long ago learned from her father. She had fought battles alone ere this, so she was not without confidence. Perhaps the lions, finding their efforts futile, would depart. She must wait.

It grew to noon. The sun beat down upon her savagely. Here and there she could see fires in the city. Pillage. The muezzin's tower of the mosque was like a finger pointing to heaven. She could even glimpse a patch of white stucco which belonged to the palace.

And she had fought her way that morning to the steps of the palace, as the daughter of the Goth had scaled the steps of the Quirinal in Rome! It was unbelievable! She could not remember anything but the dead Lal Singh and the strong arms of her father as she came out of her swoon. And she had turned defeat into victory! She drew her hand across her eyes.

One of the lions sent up a nerve-shaking roar; but Kathlyn did not stir.

Silence.

Ten, around the passage she saw a palanquin, carried by slaves. She leaned far over.

"Help!" she cried. "Help!"

The bearers paused abruptly, and the curtain of the palanquin was swept back. The dark, sinister visage of Umballah was revealed.

"Thou?" he said. Then his laughter rose up to the girl, motionless through her terror. "Come down, O houri of Saadi! Come to the arms of Durga Ram, who loves you! Wilt not? Woe to thee?" dropping his mockery.

"Yes, Durga Ram, it is I!" replied Kathlyn, finding her voice. Insensate rage usurping the throne of terror. "Here I am; come and take me!"

Let him face the lions!

Umballah left the palanquin, opened the door of the house, espied the rubbish in the hall; was in the act of mounting the first steps when one of the lions roared again. Drunk as he was, filled with a drunkard's courage, Umballah started back. The lions! Out into the street he went. He turned to the bearers and ordered them to fire the inflammables in the hall. But they refused, for they recognized the chain armor. Mad with rage, Umballah struck at them, entered the hall again, and threw a lighted match into the rubbish.

He left the horrified bearers and staggered to the house, where he was to find shelter. He was admitted, the door closed and barred. From a window he watched the progress of the fire. At last! He would pass from Allaha, but not without his revenge. It was sweet! She could not escape; the lions would bar the way till it was too late. Let her God save her if he could!

The smoke rose quickly. It volleyed and poured out of the windows, thick and black. Flame tongues darted hither and yon. Higher, and higher, till at length the form on the parapet was no longer visible.

Umballah took from his cummerbund his last bottle of wine, broke the neck against the window sill and drank, cutting his lips as he did so.

SOCIETY.

who left this week for their home. Others who made up the party are Mr. and Mrs. William Cundell of Los Angeles, Miss Helen Transue and Barbara Hollingshead.

Brawley.

DELIGHTFUL in every way was the dinner party given Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Sweeney, when Mrs. Sweeney and Mrs. Leo Malan entertained a number of guests in honor of Miss Martha Malan. The dining-room was beautiful with its table of snowy linen decorated with deep red carnations and smilax. Each place was noted by a carnation bearing the name of the guest. During the dinner telegrams were received for the guests. Each one had a personal touch, most of them bearing news amusing to all, though a little embarassing to some. The last brought by the small messenger boy, Rowland Malan, was given to Mrs. Hurlburt, who read that Mr. and Mrs. R. Malan announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Martha Malan, to Leslie Lyall. As the announcement was read, Mr. Lyall appeared on the scene, and picking from the table a white rose, took from its fragrant petals the engagement ring, and placed it on Miss Malan's finger. Congratulations were then extended. Those enjoying the hospitality were Mrs. Sarah Hurlburt, Misses Hurlburt, Thornton, Lyall, Clippinger, Mahan, Longnecker, Hart, Ealton, Golberg, Young Malan and Wither.

The Five Hundred Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. H. L. Fulton, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Fulton was assisted by Mrs. Frank Long.

R. E. Wills has gone to Los Angeles to join his family for several weeks. Mrs. Wills and daughters have but recently returned from an extended European trip.

Miss Mollie Brand of San Pedro is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Curt Holland.

The Pastor's Aid of the First Presbyterian Church of Brawley was entertained at the home of Mrs. B. F. Newby, Thursday afternoon.

Ontario.

NEARLY 100 early settlers of the city enjoyed a social evening Tuesday when the Ontario Pioneer Society entertained at the home of Councilman and Mrs. J. Perry Ensley, No. 126 West D street. A musical programme was greatly enjoyed, among those taking part being Miss Constance Minter, Mrs. William P. Terrill and E. Stanton Smith. Mrs. Christine Locke, aged 90 years, as the oldest pioneer present, was the guest of honor.

Mrs. Frank Monroe Taylor was hostess Tuesday afternoon at her home, No. 425 West E street, to a number of her friends at a bridge luncheon. Dorothy Perkins roses were used effectively in decoration. The prize, a dainty piece of hand-painted China, was captured by Mrs. Charles Crombie Allen. Luncheon covers were arranged for Miss Ala Ballou, Miss Katheryn Salter, Miss Muriel Hamilton, Mrs. Lester Ray Kennedy, Mrs. William Starbuck Fenton, Mrs. Charles Crombie Allen, Mrs. John Stewart Ingalls and Mrs. Taylor.

Mrs. Charles Otis Goss entertained a few of her friends Wednesday afternoon with a Five Hundred party at her home, No. 945 North Euclid avenue. Rhea Reed roses were used in decoration. The games were followed by a tempting collation. Mrs. Goss's guests included Mrs. Wellington Arthur Freemire, Mrs. George Tillotson Barr, Mrs. Lewis Hugo Mertz, Mrs. Oliver D. Chapman, Mrs. Osman N. Steele, Mrs. Carleton Y. James, Mrs. E. P. Millard, Mrs. Herbert Isbell Ross, Mrs. Abraham Lewis Hill, Mrs. Jacob Jesson, Mrs. Frank C. Bell and Mrs. Edward B. Martin.

Miss Aileen Hatcher was hostess Saturday evening at her home, No. 425 West D street, at a charmingly informal dancing party. White roses, sweet peas and ferns added to the attractiveness of the rooms. Light refreshments were served throughout the evening by Miss Huldah Berger and Miss Winnifred Mitchell. Miss Hatcher's guests included Mr. and

A HUSBAND OR A CAREER.

VICTORY LAW. By Anne Warwick. John Lane Company, New York.

THE WOMEN WRITERS are giving much thought and energy to the question of a husband or a career. All of them seem to hold a brief for the career.

Victory Law is a young actress who has won success, distinctive success in Ibsenian roles, and who—just as her career is rising swiftly to the zenith—marries and leaves the stage. The man she marries is a politician of the "reform" type, whose heart, body, soul and the pocketbook of a young woman relative is in the work of benefiting humanity, and especially that portion of it where this aldermanic candidate makes his bid for support. Victory, who is somewhat vacillating, changes her mind frequently and once in a while acts on the newly-arrived-at decision. She decides to return to the stage, and does so.

The husband is sometimes culpable of ridiculous ideas and actions, and his mental anguish—from which he seems to suffer intensely—leaves us coldly unsympathetic.

However, the author has written her book with considerable skill, especially in delineating the characters (of whom there are more than the usual number) and chiefly by the process of dialogue, which is the most agreeable, but not the easiest way of telling a story.

The story itself seems superficial, veneered; frankly, the characters are insipid—all wonderfully polished and consistent, but seem to lack the stuff that real life is made of.

THE COST OF PRETENSE.

KEEPING UP APPEARANCES. By Maxillian Foster. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

When a clerk earning $35 per week, married and well established with a coal company in an Ohio city, rather peevishly throws up his job he believes that his impatience and decision has been rewarded because a broker in New York offers him a job at $5000 per year.

Unsuspicious and delighted, the clerk and his wife take up their affairs in Gotham. The broker expected his new "office manager" to swing the patronage of a rich uncle, and also to keep up appearances by traveling with a set that made pretensions at fashion and only succeeded in being extravagant.

Result: Rich uncle refuses to be swung, the $5000 salary fails to stretch to the dimensions required and debts are piled up. The broker, who is not at all burdened with scruples, summarily discharges the office manager.

But the coal company in the Ohio city has not forgotten that he was a good clerk, and he is taken back by a manager, humane enough to announce that the company requested him to return.

Jennie, the wife, shows true-blue at all critical periods, and the ease with which New York inveigles them into debt, the desperate efforts to keep up appearance, and the painful attempts to cut down expense are set forth in a brisk and interesting manner. Mr. Foster is skillfully satiric.

ON NAPOLEON'S TRAIL.

THE COMIC KINGDOM. By Rudolf Pickthall. John Lane Company, New York.

IT MUST have reached Mr. Pickthall's ears that the public has a jaded appetite for travel books. Therefore he gives us a cocktail with his, and a spicy cocktail it is, that makes us genial and interested.

"The Comic Kingdom" is Elba, where Napoleon was established much against his will as a titular King for a few brief months. The author and Cecilia make a pilgrimage to the island to view the scenes made historic by the presence—or rather the captivity of Napoleon. They see the sights under the guidance and direction of Orestes, the courier, whose comments are the ridiculous, reiterated observations of the guide desperately posing as a fund of information, at the same time trying hard to conceal his lack of knowledge. The author says "it was practically impossible to get any information out of Orestes unless he was in the mood, and then he generally invented to suit one's tastes and predilections."

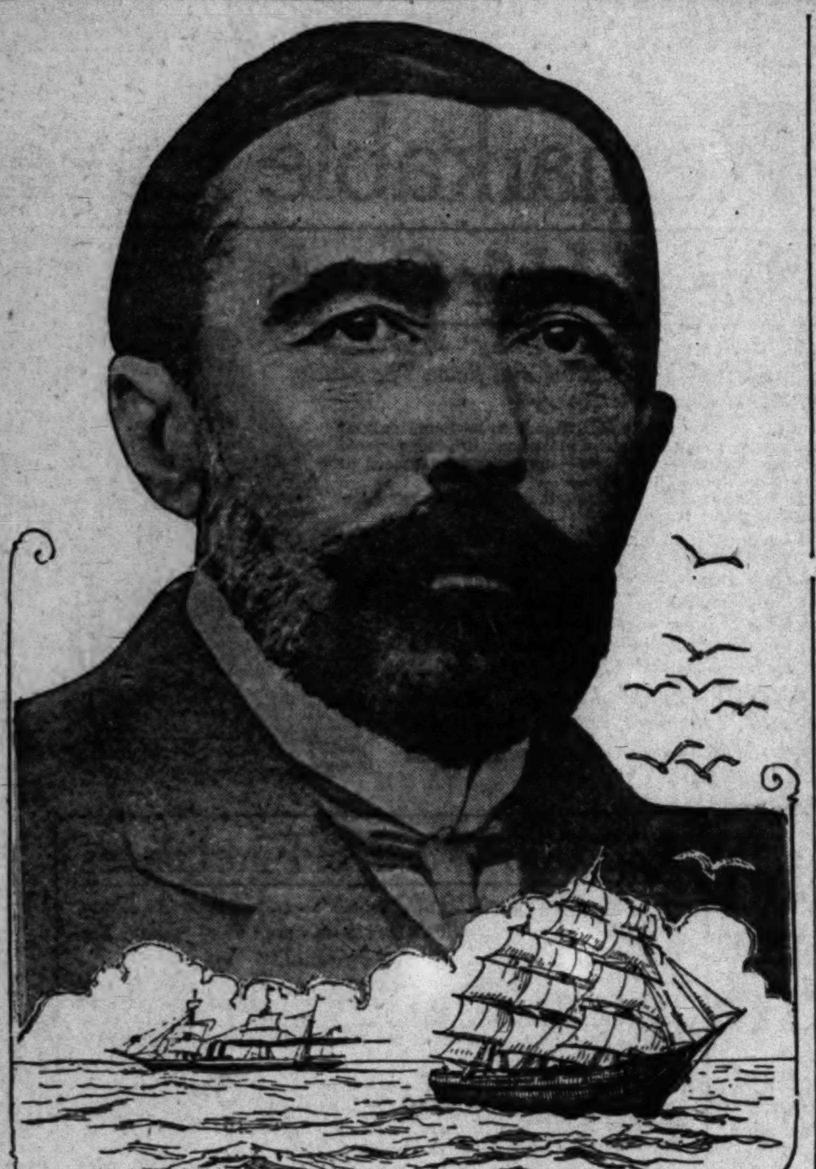
The Harrison family is also encountered on Elba, and joins forces with the author and Cecilia in awed veneration of the bed where Napoleon slept, the yard where Napoleon chased the chickens, and the poorly decorated rooms which Napoleon planned and had adorned.

But if there was anything on Elba that these tourists overlooked, neglected to discuss and forgot to describe it must be of minor importance, for "The Comic Kingdom" gives the impression of being thorough and is illuminating.

A BOHEMIAN MAID.

THE MILKY WAY. By F. Tennyson Jesse. George H. Doran Company, New York.

A GOOD and charming little waif and Bohemian, thrown upon her own resources, and having met with adversity in her work, decides that there is nothing else to do but to accept the offer of marriage from a nice, conventional young man, who is quite sure that he can "make her happy." The vagabond instinct causes the girl to board a steamer at Penzance quay. She, however, wires "Harry" to meet her at a certain landing. During the trip she listens to the pipes of Pan rendering Dvorak's "Humoresque." She meets "Pan," who is a steerage passenger, a wan, hungry, beautiful boy, to whom she carries food. When she meets Harry, she "cannot"—simply cannot. She must live her life. The pipes of Pan are calling. She and the piper join a company of "tall-grassers," together with a very young infant which has been dropped into "Viv's" arms during a collision on the voyage. This strange young couple and the baby remain the warmest and closest "platonics," and when the jealousy of the other females of the company bundle the new leading lady out bag and baggage, the piper follows her to London. There she joins some of her art student friends—all tremendously interesting types. After a series of unusual adventures, during which the two wrestle with poverty, good fortune arrives through an accident. They are given a commission, the piper to write a book on Provence, Viv to illustrate it. The two go hand in hand to the Continent like a pair of children. Then begins the really lovely part of the tale. The young man and the young woman, worldly wise, but with minds and bodies as fresh and clean as primrose buds, go into this country of magic, and look upon its wonders together. Viv takes up her abode in a sort of convent boarding house for women, and goes forth every day with the piper. A keen sensitiveness to phases and moods of nature, and her ravishing tricks of tone and atmosphere, is displayed by the author. Upon one occasion the two young geniuses lured back to the primeval, disrobe and plunge into a forest lake. It sounds shocking—but it is not in the least so in the mood of the book. When their shining bodies leap from the water, with the glow of the rising sun upon them, the black rot of modern prurient modesty does not touch them at all. To the young man's eyes the girl is beautiful spirit clothed in flesh. It is all refreshingly sweet and full of young fragrance, and it is not super-human.



Joseph Conrad.

His latest book is "Chance," and he is being hailed as a powerful influence in contemporary English literature. This is remarkable when it is considered that at the age of twenty he knew not one word of English. For many years he was a sailor, and the sea is a theme upon which he had drawn largely. H. G. Wells claims to have given Mr. Conrad the "first long, appreciative review" several years ago. "Chance" was written in nine months, or at the rate of about 450 words per day, and differs radically from the general type of fiction.

AN EFFICIENT HEROINE.

THE CELEBRITY'S DAUGHTER. By Violet Hunt. Brentano's, New York.

IF ONE wishes to read a clever, witty, and amusing story, without thinking very hard, "The Celebrity's Daughter" will fill the bill. But it is more than clever, witty and amusing, and contains ample food for thought if one is given to thinking. It is a close range photograph of social and home conditions of the upper middle class in England, on the crust of, and in some instances breaking through, into the strata of nobility. The celebrity is an author—a genius, in his way, who is taken up and lionized by society. The pretty little wife, unacknowledged, does the dirty work at home, and incidentally bears the celebrity's children. A fascinating baroness falls in love with him. The pretty wife, understanding the existence of the affair, prepares herself for the stage. She marries her eldest daughter to an English lord, the daughter at once becoming a vulgar snob in her attitude toward her family. The mother succeeds in her career, casts off her husband, and earns the living. With a fierce sort of pride she provides her husband and his mistress with £7 a week, clothing herself and her beautiful daughter Tempe inadequately in order to do so. But it is with Tempe that the story has principally to do. Tempe, a beautiful, blooming, magnetic young girl whom adversity and poverty cannot keep in obscurity. With an extraordinary devotion for her father, she carries him his weekly "screw" in an envelope from her mother, with whom she has little natural sympathy. The author makes no sort of apology for this sort of man, nor any justification for the warped ideals of the unfortunate little woman who elects to support her derelict husband and his mistress.

The older sister attempts to crush Tempe, by the splendor of her society friends. She tries to humiliate Tempe, and use her as a tool to further her own ends. But Tempe, with the friendship of the men and one noble duchess behind her, turns the tables. The strange and hapless denouement of a romance, the complication with a millionaire and a member of Parliament, the solution of the affairs of the celebrity and those of his wife in a most unexpected direction, the constant surprises bring about a totally unanticipated ending.

A RESERVATION TALE.

THE QUARTERBREED. By Robert Ames Bennet. Browne & Howell Company, Chicago.

The author of this story has furnished a lively, vivid plot, laying his scenes for the most part in the West, on a Montana Indian reservation. Incidents follow each other rapidly, so that there is no lack of action. There is trouble and unrest in the tribe, aggravated by the indiscretions of the agent who has been killed by the Indians, necessitating the installment of a new mediator. An unscrupulous but very attractive young person is superseded in this post by Capt. Hardy, an army man with strict sense of duty, but a strong feeling of justice and kindliness toward his charges. The impetuous Vandervyn resents his superior from the very first, being of an utterly different moral caliber. Both men woo the beautiful, educated young quarterbreed, who is dazzled and attracted by the more superficial of the two. At the same time Vendervyn is trying to win her regard he also makes love to another handsome young girl, a trifle more humble—a halfbreed, and takes her as common-law wife. This does not seem in the least to cool his ardor for the more cultured Marie. This Marie is very charming in many respects, but she is not at all convincing as a real woman. She is not drawn with a comprehending touch, and does not always reason and act in all circumstances as a girl of her intelligence and high moral standards would reason and act. She holds to Vandervyn after he has been shown up to her in all his abominableness, and takes chances with the other man after which no self-respecting man would return to a girl. There is much that is overdrawn, much that could not be said to represent the best class of fiction from a literary standpoint. And yet there are some strong, well colored pictures.

POETRY AND HISTORY.

DEFIANT VERSE.

CHALLENGE. By Louis Untermeyer. The Century Company, New York.

THERE is no appearance of artificiality in Mr. Untermeyer's verse; it rings with conviction, but not always harmoniously. And yet he is so superior to the dallying rhymesters who can scarcely be avoided in our magazines, that we are inclined to overestimate his merit as poet out of admiration for his courage as writer. He thinks first and lets the rhymes fall where they may; he doesn't babble of flowers and rusticity, but speaks of men, their sufferings, their hopes and struggles.

Of the many poems in this little volume, we consider those under the heading of "The Heretic" by far the best.

He says:

"I do not envy God!—
Forever He must watch the planets crawling
To flaming goals where sun and star are falling;
He cannot wander free.
For He must face, through centuries appalling,
A vast and infinite monotony."

And also:

"I do not envy God—
Nay more, I pity Him His lonely heaven;
I pity Him each lonely morn and even,
His splendid lonely throne:
For He must sit and wait till all is riven
Alone—through all eternity—alone."

The poem from which the volume takes the name of "Challenge" begins:

"The quiet and courageous night,
The keen vibration of the stars,
Call me, from morbid peace, to fight
The world's forlorn and desperate wars."

And the book is filled with strong expression of bold, and yet sympathetic, sentiments.

A CAREFUL POET.

THE FLIGHT AND OTHER POEMS. By George Edward Woodberry. Macmillan Company, New York.

We do not believe that many who read his verse would designate Mr. Woodberry as a "poet of passion." Not that he is decidedly cold, but rather he is reflective. It is easy to see that he has taken care in the forming of his lines. It may always be truthfully said of every poet—especially the great ones—that they wrote much that lacks the "fine frenzy" which winged their more remarkable efforts.

In this volume are many poems that should have no place with the one—"The White Bone"—from which this is taken:

"Alone that skeleton city stands,
By none remembered in lost lands,
And miles about are blown the sands
Like a red sea;
And in the night the stars that lean
Over that specterless pale scene,
Shudder at what there once had been Man's memory."

It is a pleasure to see that Mr. Woodberry has brought patience to his work, has tried to forge thought into his lines—not laboring under the impression that anything with measured feet and lines that tinkle at the ends makes poetry.

A HISTORY NOT THOROUGH.

VIOLENCE AND THE LABOR MOVEMENT. By Robert Hunter. Macmillan Company, New York.

BEGINNING with Michael Bakounin, the "father of terrorism," who never spoke of Satan without adoration and whose secret revolutionary society began to flourish about the middle of the last century, the author reviews the various struggles and crimes attending the development and purposes of organizations among workingmen of Europe and America.

Mr. Hunter is a very effective writer; he has a power of expression that is direct, illuminating and interesting. He has tried to appear as a historian and not as an advocate in this book, but he has not been thorough. Coming to the strike troubles in the United States, for instance, Mr. Hunter lays emphasis—decided emphasis—on the violence of guards hired by employers, and none at all on that done by strikers. He admits that the latter have been guilty at times; he does not defend or condone them—he ignores such instances.

It seems rather strange that a sincere work of this nature would pass the McNamaras' outrages by with but twice mentioning their name, and in no way referring to the depredations or wantonness of their crimes. And we must insist that a careful historian—who has taken as much pains as Mr. Hunter to appear fair—writing of "violence and the labor movement" is guilty of serious omission when he neglects to even touch upon the conspiracies and perfected organization for the commission of violence that have come to light during the past three years, and for which over two-score prominent labor-union officials are now under sentence to the penitentiary.

REVIEWS IN BRIEF.

DAYS IN ATTICA. By Mrs. R. G. Bosanquet. Macmillan Company, New York.

Greece of today is presented in this volume, in the light of her aspect to the modern tourist. It may be surprising to note the many changes that have taken place during the past hundred years in this land, and with it all to realize the remoteness of the country, because it is not approached by European railways. Civic and home life are pleasingly pictured, and historical and legendary stories told.

THE DEAF—THEIR POSITION IN SOCIETY. By Harry Best. Thomas Y. Crowell Company, New York.

A scientific study of the deaf in America. The aim of the author is to present the problem more in its social aspect than from the medical, legal, educational or humanitarian standpoint.

DUTCH PLAYS. By May Emery Hall. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York.

A pleasingly written account of a family's trip through Holland is given in this little volume. It is especially fitted to perusal by young readers, since it is told in simple, picturesque style, and is full of the enthusiasms of the boy and girl who accompany their parents through the land of windmills.

THE BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG. By Francis Marshal. Neale Publishing Company, New York.

This volume is written by a Union participant in the famous battle. While it may be said that enough has been written about our Civil War, there are always new and interesting facts to be uncovered, and new light to be thrown upon points which may hitherto have been obscure. The book is well written, contains thirty-four illustrations, portraits of Lincoln, and the prominent generals of North and South.

THE RED-HOUSE CHILDREN'S VACATION. By Amanda M. Douglas. Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Company, Boston.

A pretty story for children, the latest addition to the "Little Red House Series" by this author, full of the little familiar occurrences of everyday child life, its small labors, its many games, recreations, friendships, and lessons gleaned from the constantly broadening horizon of new experiences.

JOHN AND BETTY'S IRISH HISTORY VISIT. By Margaret Williamson. Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Company, Boston.

The "history visits" series furnishes another pleasant contribution, describing the travels of the American brother and sister, in the present volume. With "Philip" and "Barbara" as companions, and Mrs. Pitt, the intelligent mother of these English children, they revel in the beauties of the Emerald Isle. Wit, fairy tales and real history mingle through the pages.

RIGHT LIVING. By Homer H. Cooper. A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago.

The majority of the articles in this volume were written by men of weight and prominence for the students of Spiceland Academy, the remaining being extracts from lectures or books selected particularly as suitable to the purpose of the present work. There is nothing creed-bound in the get-up of the book, the aim of which is to give sound ethical guidance to young people.

REGULATION. By W. G. Barnard. Regulation Publishing Company, Seattle.

This volume aims to follow in the footsteps of "Progress and Poverty," offering an explanation of the causes of present economic conditions, and a remedy based on the author's diagnosis.

A TITANIC HERO, THOMAS ANDREWS, SHIPBUILDER. By Shan F. Bullock. Norman Remington & Co., Baltimore.

A little booklet containing a sketch of the life of a man who helped to build the great ocean liner Titanic, and who rendered efficient help in that awful disaster when the ship went to her doom. Many of those saved owe their lives to this brave Irishman, who elected to go down with those who were left on the sinking vessel.

LITERARY CHIT-CHAT.

BY GENEVIEVE FARNELL-BOND.

It is tremendously interesting to nose out things about artists and authors, their real life, and the lives of the men and women who serve them as models. Of course one ought not to become too interested, not so as to indulge curiosity to the extent of forgetting the said authors' and models' American citizen rights to privacy. It may be remembered how the original Mrs. Wiggs was offered all kinds of money to occupy a box at the performance of the play; and how curious visitors forced their way so impertinently into her house that she was obliged to do something—and she did it. The gentle baptism that descended upon the stylish hats of the intruders was neither calculated to encourage the growth of floral decorations, nor to improve the gloss of ribbons. But that shall not prevent us from devouring with delight the extracts from the note-book of Rodin, the first installment of which appears in the May Century. We who have stood before his wonderful sculptured conceptions, which teem with underlying subtleties of imagination and thought, shall love to press more closely into the intimacies of the great man's mind, grateful for what we may comprehend, and for whatever mental similarities may exist, giving that common tone, which, as in music, often makes it possible to modulate into unexpected and wonderful combinations which furnish new understandings.

Hugh Walpole avers that he invariably begins his novels on Christmas Eve. He has always done so, he says, because it brings him luck! No matter how well-laid his plans may be, no matter how he may be itching to get at a subject, he restrains himself until the proper time arrives. In the meantime, he thinks and perfects his plot and even the details of his style in his mind, so that by the time he begins to write, the whole thing is ready to spring as fully armored as Minerva from the mind of Jove. He says of the work which he purposes to begin next Christmas Eve, "I could tell it you now practically in the very words in which I shall write it."

Louis Untermeyer, the author of "Challenge," is a manufacturing jeweler, and one of the editors of "Masses." One would think that these two vocations would be enough to keep any man busy all the time; but not so. Mr. Untermeyer has his play time, too, his recreations being tennis and the piano. But writing poetry is, to him, the serious business of life. And sometimes it becomes a mighty serious business to those who have not an editorial position and a jewelry business to fall back upon. Hudson Maxim, after becoming a very intimate friend of Edwin Markham, not only wrote poetry, but also a book which dealt with the principles of the art itself. But then he has smokeless powder behind him, and is, withal, a delightful fellow. How do I know? Well, I visited him and knew his lovely little English wife well, in their summer home on Lake Hopatcong, New Jersey. On the bluff above him perched the home of Jovian Markham, and the two would call to each other through the morning with trumpeted hands like a pair of happy school boys.

The author of "Bedesman 4," a quaint, attractive story recently reviewed in our columns, is Mrs. Mary J. H. Skrine. She is the wife of the rector of a church reputed to be the oldest in England. No, she did not become an author after marrying a pastor. She has written all her life, which means, of course, from the pinafore age.

Mitchell Kennerley, who is always doing clever things—not excepting "The Lyric Year"—claims to have made a new find in the person of a young author of a novel as yet without a name—the novel, not the author. Authors as young as that may be making history, but they do not usually write fiction. The "find" is Vincent Howard O'Brion—we do not know whether it is pronounced like Orion or not. He is a native of Chicago. He is a Yale man of '10, of whom a professor declared, "Some day, if this young man acquires a style and learns how to construct a plot, he may become a writer!" This diluted prophecy evidently did not turn the young man's head, for he tried everything else first, and gained experience like a sensible youth. He wrote copy for ads, press-agented, and agented for "Vogue," with what success in the last-named venture may be guessed by an early resignation, and the parting words of the "boss," who told him he was non est as an agent, but an awfully nice fellow to go to lunch with. The novel was commenced in 1911, had a near-acceptance, was finally turned down, reconstructed, and swooped down upon as a prize by Mitchell Kennerley. Let us hope.

Prof. A. L. Guerard, author of "French Civilization in the Nineteenth Century," is an American citizen by naturalization, but a Frenchman by birth. He was connected with Leland Stanford University for six years, and has been lecturing this past winter at Rice Institute, Houston, Tex., on the subject of his book.

MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST., by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.
The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.
PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.
Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.
MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.
HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

WANTED—

YOU WANT TO BETTER YOUR POSITION

Or you would not be reading these columns. I want you to better your position; that's why I am spending good money to get your attention. If you are the man I am looking for; if you have a little better than average personality, appearance and good manners, and understand the importance of at all times sticking to the truth, I want to talk with you. I want to show you where other men who are following my instructions are making from $5000 to $10,000 a year. Men all of my own training, who had never sold real estate before, have sold on one subdivision over three hundred lots during the past three months. Connect with a real dynamo. Grab a "live wire." That's what means success. I have been paying both salary and commission for the past three months to the right men. If you are the right man, come in and see me any morning after 10 a.m.

WANTED—

Beginning June 1 or sooner we are going to send into the field a specially picked dozen men—men who have the quality necessary to the making of sales managers. Another essential requirement will be the ability to stand the strain of earning $50 to $150 per week without getting dizzy.

The article has more merit and quality to the inch than the consumer is rightfully entitled to in a mile. The price is more than right and the field is the world.

Leave your references at home. We'll do the judging—but if you do not match up with the article in quality you simply don't fit.

The plan of sale has retired a great many millionaires—the writer was associated with seven of them during a big end of their career. There is no guessing that it can be done—it WILL be done—and, strange to say, we will start right here in Los Angeles.

The above seems plain enough, and the right quality men will respond. We don't want the other kind. You must look the part—feel the part—and act the part.

Come in at your convenience during the present week—if you're the man.

See MR. ROWAN, 711 Story Bldg.

USED CARS

HAVE YOU EVER STOPPED TO CONSIDER JUST WHAT YOU WILL BE UP AGAINST WHEN YOU START OUT TO HUNT FOR THAT SECOND-HAND CAR YOU INTEND TO BUY THIS SPRING?

The longer you look the more confused you become. The more cars you ride in the less able you are to decide on any particular one. Let us help you in this quest. One visit to our Used Car Department will give you a line on just what to expect and just what you should have.

Don't be fooled into something that is "just as good." The satisfaction is not there. Let us prove to you our claims and show you what a really satisfactory buy you can get in one of our rebuilt automobiles. These are right, not only mechanically, but in appearance and equipment.

If you cannot call personally phone us and we will be glad to send out any model that you may be interested in.

Liberal terms are extended to all responsible people.

MORMONS HOLD PRISON SERVICE.

Inmates at Florence Hear Choir of Fifty-four.

Former Mesa Man Escapes from Mexican Bandits.

Phoenix Ships Butter Daily to Los Angeles.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX, May 11.—Sunday at the State prison at Florence was held a most unique religious service. It was conducted by President James W. Lesueur of the Mormon church at Mesa. With him were 125 members of his congregation, including a choir of fifty-four. On the platform were President Lesueur, Gov. Hunt and Land Commissioner W. A. Moody. The principal address was by Prof. O. A. Greer of Mesa. The music was led by T. V. Lee. Interested auditors were 450 prisoners, only two of them women. The visitors were guests of the Governor at luncheon in the main dining-room of the institution, where they were served by convicts with an excellent meal. In the afternoon, following inspection of the prison, the visitors were treated to an excellent concert by the prison orchestra.

MORMON'S NARROW ESCAPE.

A. T. Spilsbury, a Mormon who left Mesa in 1890 and who, securing a high degree of prosperity in Mexico, became a citizen of that country, has returned to Mesa from his adopted home in the State of Chihuahua. He was taken prisoner by bandits several weeks ago and held for ransom. Twice he was stood up and threatened with summary execution, his captors hoping thus to extract money from him. He finally escaped and lost no time in departing for El Paso.

THREE-CENT FARES.

The hearing of the Arizona Corporation Commission on the 3-cent fare proposed has been delayed until June 1, the commission's clerks being unable to classify a vast amount of evidence submitted by the time of the hearing date first announced.

TRAIN BULLETINS.

At all Arizona railroad stations having agents, information is now being bulletined concerning the hour of arrival of passenger trains. This action is in pursuance to an act of the last Legislature, which also provides that drinking water shall be available for the use of prospective passengers and that the stations shall be kept clean, comfortable and properly heated.

BUTTER TO LOS ANGELES.

The wet winter in California has served to materially abridge the hay market of the Salt River Valley. New markets have been found to the eastward, however, and shipments are now being made of more than thirty carloads a day of alfalfa hay to Texas points. Large quantities of butter are being shipped from Phoenix to Los Angeles, and for this and other valley produce a daily refrigerator car is now being run between the two cities.

"DRYS" AT WORK.

The Prohibition party has started work particularly in the mining camps. Its campaign has been begun at Winkelman, which probably has more saloons than any other place of equal size in the Southwest. It is believed that the mining companies will support the prohibition movement, as the Employers' Liability Act fails to protect the mine operators in cases of injured workmen who possibly had too freely spent the proceeds of pay day around saloons. The Prohibitionists state their fullest confidence that they will succeed in carrying Cochise county, including Bisbee and Douglas.

HALL MADE SHERIFF.

Deputy Sheriff Henry Hall of Ray has been appointed Sheriff of Pinal county, to succeed the late James E. McGee. There had been a deadlock for the office, each of the three Supervisors having a different candidate. The trouble finally was settled by having a disinterested person draw one of the three names from a hat.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS.

A camp of the United Spanish War Veterans, the only one in Arizona, has been established in Phoenix, with F. C. Struckmeyer as commander and M. A. Frazier as adjutant.

SUES FOR DIVORCE.

Anna M. Bloom has sued for divorce in the Phoenix courts from Charles C. Bloom, the complaint alleging that Bloom brought an affinity to the home of the couple in San Diego and told the wife she was at liberty to leave if she disapproved of the arrangement.

Inexhaustible Rome.

[New York Herald:] Skeffington S. Norton of a large shipping firm said at a dinner at Pelham Manor, apropos of a recent visit to Rome:

"Rome is wonderful. Rome is inexhaustible. There is a story that describes Rome well.

"The pope was giving audience. He said to a lady in black:

" 'How long have you been in Rome?'

" 'Three weeks,' the lady answered.

" 'Ah,' said the pope, 'then you have seen Rome.'

"And he turned to an American merchant and asked:

" 'And you, sir, how long have you been in Rome?'

" 'Three months,' the American replied.

" 'You, then have begun to see Rome,' said the pope. And he next accosted an elegant wiman with gray hair.

" 'How long, madam,' he asked, "have you been here?"

" 'Three years,' the woman answered.

"The pope smiled faintly.

" 'You,' he said,' have not yet begun to see rome." '

Shaping.

FOR SEVENTH STREET SITE.

Modern Block Projected for Corner at Grand.

Building to Be Opposite New Robinson Store.

Architects Now Working on Preliminary Plans.

Following closely upon the completion of arrangements for the removal of the J. W. Robinson Company from its present Broadway location to a magnificent new department store building to be erected at the southwest corner of Seventh street and Grand avenue, comes the announcement that a second modern improvement is being projected for the northwest corner of the same two thoroughfares.

Shirley C. Ward, prime mover in the successful negotiations involved in the contemplated move of the big Broadway concern, is also the promoter in chief of the newest West Seventh-street building enterprise. The site of the proposed structure, fronting 100 feet on Seventh by 108 feet on Grand, was recently purchased by Ward and certain associates from Byron Erkenbrecher for a given consideration of approximately $500,000, and it is understood that about $350,000 will be expended on the new building. A number of one-story brick buildings of only nominal value now occupy the ground.

Plans for the projected improvement are being prepared by John C. Austin and W. C. Pennell, associated architects, and these call for a building six stories in height to cover the entire ground area of the property. The structure will have a steel frame and will be faced with terra cotta tile in polychrome effect. The top floor will be set off with ornamental balconies. The equipment will include three passenger elevators and a freight elevator.

The building will embody a construction feature new to Los Angeles in that the first story columns will be recessed to a depth of several feet on both street fronts, the upper walls being carried on cantilever supports. The arrangement will permit an unobstructed show-window space.

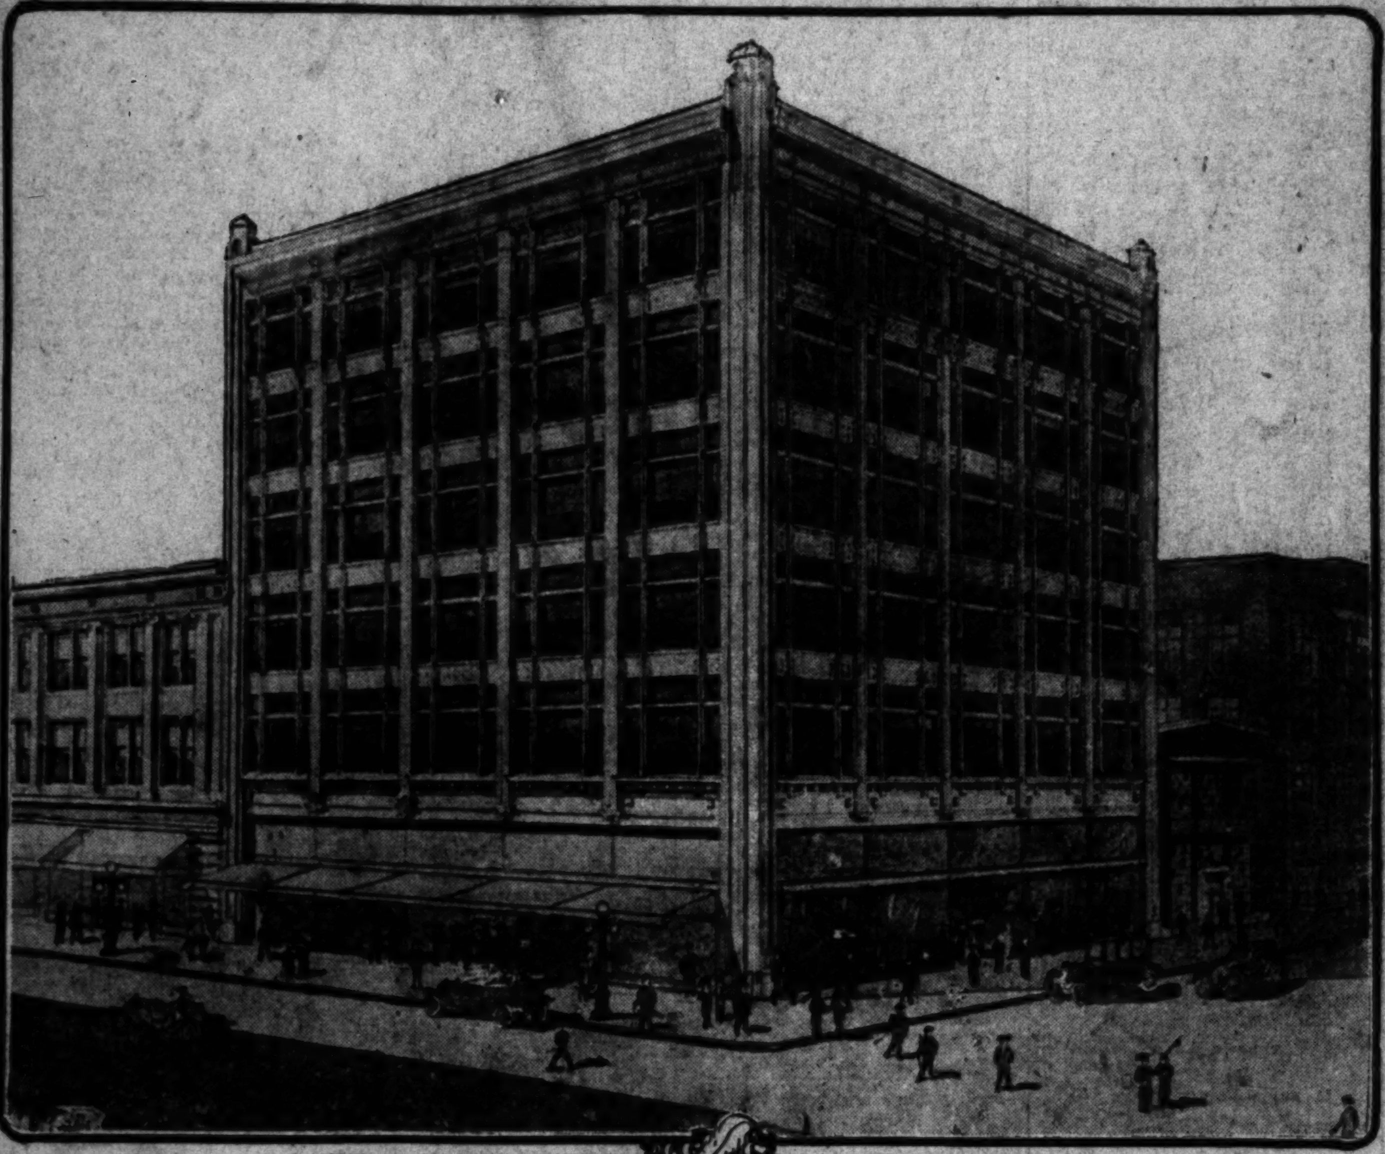
Ward stated yesterday that negotiations for a tenant had progressed to a point where a definite public announcement might be expected within a few days. One concern, it is reported on good authority from another source, will probably occupy the entire structure.

Ward and others hold a long-term lease on the northeast corner of Seventh and Grand and here also, it is stated, will rise a modern building, not less than eight stories in height, as soon as the present short-time leases expire. This site immediately adjoins on the west the thirteen-story Bronson block, a structure erected by the Standard Fireproof Building Company, a corporation of which Ward is the head, and which was the first of the metropolitan improvements of the new and greater West Seventh-street. This building, like the Knickerbocker block near it on the west side of Olive, just north of Seventh, another Ward project, was planned by the architects who are now engaged in designing the projected new building at Seventh and Grand.

The recently completed Brockman building at the southeast corner of Seventh and Grand will, with the new Robinson store, the projected building at the northwest corner of Seventh and Grand and the future improvement at the northeast corner, make the intersection of these two important thoroughfares one of the most imposing from an architectural point of view in the city. Other projects in the same vicinity are now reported to be shaping.

The Whiting-Mead Company is now engaged in wrecking the old one-story brick postoffice building and when the last of the debris has been removed, excavations will be begun for the foundations of the new J. W. Robinson Company building. William Richards, of the firm of Frederick Noonan and William Richards, architects of the big department store, has gone East with a representative of the Robinson interests to make a study of the great stores of the Atlantic seaboard, with the view to incorporating the latest ideas of construction and appointment into the new Seventh-street structure.

Improvement for Northwest Corner of Seventh and Grand.



Handsome downtown block projected by Shirley C. Ward, John C. Austin and W. C. Pennell, architects.

TRADE FOR RANCH.

Owners of Los Angeles Apartment-House Exchange Property for Acreage Holding in Perris Valley.

The exchange of the Lola apartments at the corner of San Marino and Arapahoe streets for a ranch in the Perris Valley is reported by V. J. Dawson and H. L. Edwards of this city, who acted as agents for Dorsey & Wright, owners of the former holding. Greenleaf & Harford of Perris represented Martin, Walker & Hobson, owners of the ranch.

The apartment-house is an eighty-room structure, three stories in height. It is of frame construction with stucco exterior. The site is 80x140 feet in size. The valuation set upon the apartment-house is stated by Edwards to have been $90,000 and that on the ranch $75,000, the difference having been adjusted in cash and by mortgage.

SELL BUNGALOWS.

The Ramey Investment Company reports that it has recently built and sold the following houses: To E. F. May, Gardena, five-room bungalow, $2750; five-room chalet at Gardena to Milton B. Clark, $2000; double bungalow of eight rooms to E. C. Young, No. 1530 West Fifty-second street, $4000; to J. Edward Brown, No. 202 West Ellenwood drive, Eagle Rock, seven-room chalet, $4000; six-room bungalow, New Vermont-avenue Square, to Frank Miller, $4000; six-room chalet to W. S. Greene, No. 622 West Thirty-fifth street, $3850.

WALNUT PARK.

Kleinberger-Edwards, subdividers, report the following sales in Walnut Park the past week: Walter E. Hall, two lots on California street, $2050; S. R. Gerber, two lots on California street, $2050; Charles E. Biby, house on Live Oak street, $3500; Bertha Thorpe, lot on Grand avenue, $775; J. S. O'Connor, lot on Walnut street, $1025, and C. W. Hay, lot on Santa Ana street, $650.

OPEN NEW SECTION.

The first section of the Municipal Harbor Acres tract of the Guy M. Rush Company, having been practically sold out, a second section will be opened this week. The new addition will be sold in half-acre parcels.

LEASES WHOLE FLOOR.

Pioneer Firm of Jewelry Wholesalers to Move from Present Broadway Location.

The F. W. Reynolds Company, engaged in the wholesaling and jobbing of jewelry, optical goods and watchmakers' supplies, has closed a ten-year lease on the entire third floor and a portion of the basement of the new Metropolitan Building at the northwest corner of Fifth street and Broadway and will remove there from its present location at No. 342 South Broadway on June 15. The deal, which involves a given total rental consideration of $130,000, was concluded through the agency of Wells & Magor.

The wholesale jewelry house will have a total floor space of nearly 15,000 square feet in its new place of business and has made extensive plans for expansion. The company has been in existence since 1888, having opened in the Wilcox block, where it remained for eighteen years. The concern has been in its present Broadway location for about eikht years.

APARTMENTS LEASED.

Hundred-Room Westlake Property Secured by Local Hotel Woman—Will Be Opened in Two Weeks.

Involving a given total rental of $78,966, a new apartment-house at Orange and Bonnie Brae streets, in the Westlake district, was yesterday leased through Robert Marsh & Co. for Dr. T. J. Rush to Mrs. Catherine Loveland, an experienced hotel woman of this city. Negotiations were conducted by General Sales Manager Cooper of the Marsh Company.

The apartment is one of the most attractive in the Westlake district and contains 107 rooms, each apartment adjoining and opening to an individual balcony large enough for outdoor sleeping purposes. Both tub and shower baths are provided for each suite.

Mrs. Loveland plans to open what shall henceworth be known as the Loveland Apartments not later than June 1.

MANY NEW HOMES.

Building Activity in South Pasadena Fully on Par With that of Last Year.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, May 16.—Building activity is practically on a par with that of last year, a most comforting situation from the business point of view.

A feature of the permits these days is that they are all for residences or repairs. The largest permit issued last week was for a $10,000 nine-room house, to be erected at No. 1532 Ramona avenue, by John Garrigues. R. J. Roth took out a permit to build a six-room house at No. 1717 Bank street, estimated to cost $2500. C. S. Maynard secured a permit for a $3000, eight-room, two-story house at No. 1805 Bushnell avenue.

Other recent permits follow: A. F. Brown, six-room bungalow at No. 1101 Marengo avenue, $2100; Judge John W. Shenk, two-story, eight-room house, No. 1425 Laurel street, $4500; E. C. Chamberlain, six-room bungalow, No. 839 Milan avenue, $2200; Andrew Knell, six-room bungalow, No. 2025 Marengo avenue, $2750; George Doty, a five-room cottage, No. 2046 Alphia street, $1600; Anna M. Chisam, seven-room, two-story residence, No. 2079 Meridian avenue, $3022; Lawrence Kick, six-room bungalow, No. 625 Milan avenue, $2200; W. A. Geller, five-room cottage, No. 355 El Centro street, $1600; H. L. Chapman, eight-room residence, No. 1845 Wilson avenue, $3600; Charles McClure, six-room cottage, No. 1127 Magnolia avenue, $1600; J. G. Pierce, six-room bungalow, No. 1522 Ramona avenue, $2500; Paul F. Mahoney, six-room bungalow, No. 519 Mission street, $2800; O. A. Blake, four-room cottage, No. 1407 Osmun court, $1000;

Thirty-six additional permits were taken out for repairs or for buildings for less than $1000, making a total of about $50,000 in the last few weeks.

OUR idea of a home is one both PRACTICAL and ARTISTIC. By careful thought we manage to instill certain INDIVIDUALITY into each home.

It quite frequently happens that the PROSPECTIVE BUILDER'S IDEAS and PURSE do not correspond. In such cases our PRACTICAL knowledge comes to the rescue, and often where others have hopelessly FAILED, WE SUCCEED.

We build homes from the modest five-room cottage, at $800, to the most elaborate dwelling. It rests with the INDIVIDUAL, entirely, what his home will cost. By concentrating our PURCHASING POWER, combined with our PRACTICAL knowledge, and being in a position to DISCOUNT our BILLS, we can, for a given quality of work, discount our competitors' prices.

We build either by contracts on a fixed fee of 10 per cent. of estimated cost of work, or on our own lots in Los Angeles, Hermosa Beach and San Pedro, on easy terms.

We make no additional charge for our Architectural services if we build, or if we fail to satisfy you both as to price and design.

Situated on St. Andrews Place, among some of the finest homes in the city. On an east-front lot, 60x150, English design, with 10 large rooms, with lots of sunshine. The living-room and library are finished in the Tobacco mahogany; great care has been taken in matching the woodwork, which has been rubbed down to a piano finish. The dining-room in oak, also has a very fine finish. Walls are canvased and done in oil, with rich, artistic effects. Very finest lighting system, with elegant fixtures. The second floor consists of four large, sunny bedrooms, one with sun parlor and sleeping porch, two tile bathrooms, finish white enamel, six-coat work. Basement, furnace, Ruud hot-water heater; garage for two machines. If any one would ask you $17,500 for this place, you would think it the right price. Think of it, a large 10-room house in the exclusive Wilshire district at only $14,500. It will pay you to see this at once, as it must be sold immediately. Don't delay. No trade considered.

Too much cannot be said in praise of this house. It is well built from the foundation up, on artistic, broad line effects. It will attract you the minute you step on the wide cement porch. The entire house is built of white plaster. This residence has beautifully laid out grounds, with shrubs and flowers; ornamental trees and plants on the cement porch that runs across entire house. Garage in rear for two machines. The house has hardwood floors throughout, downstairs rooms finished in hardwoods with most exquisite hand finish. In the reception hall is Peruvian mahogany paneled as high as the doors, and beamed ceilings. In the living-room is Tobacco mahogany, with heavy silk wall decorations above that cost $7.50 a yard; ceilings are beamed and the mahogany and Grueby tile mantel are in exquisite taste. In the dining-room is beautifully grained oak paneled to the plate rail; entire front of room is windows, giving a beautiful outlook, the built-in buffet with plate glass mirror and leaded doors is very handsome; a wonderful room in which to entertain. The breakfast-room is exquisitely dainty, paneled in white to a high plate rail; the casement windows give much air and sunshine; the buffet, white enameled kitchen has the linoleum on the floor, and roomy woodstone sink; the large screen porch has two laundry tubs; there is a large basement with furnace and automatic water heater, servants' room with bath off kitchen. Upstairs the house is just as complete as it is downstairs, bedrooms are very large and the rooms are lined with windows; very dainty wall decorations in exquisite taste; such roomy closets with drawers and a place for everything; such beautiful dressing-rooms off the bedrooms, with dainty dressing tables and the long mirror in the door, and the many handy drawers. But you should see the two beautiful baths, pure white, tile floors, the most expensive, elegant plumbing, and two mirrors, one very large, one behind the tub. The white enamel and tile mantels are something entirely new in bedrooms, and most effective. Four very large bedrooms in all; a large solarium with windows two sides, or may be used as a bedroom, and a large sleeping porch. These with large upstairs hall make the house complete.

FOR SALE—

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST.
NORTH WHITTIER HEIGHTS.
ORANGE, LEMON, GRAPEFRUIT, WALNUT AND AVOCADO LAND SUBDIVISION.
IS BEING SOLD MORE RAPIDLY THAN ANY CITRUS SUBDIVISION ON THE MARKET IN ALL CALIFORNIA.

Experienced orchardists and nurserymen are investing in this high-class subdivision because it has the soil, water and climatic conditions necessary for the greatest commercial success and in addition to which it is without a peer in all California as a desirable location for a suburban home.

If you are in the market for an investment in a choice orchard property, you owe to to yourself to see North Whittier Heights before investing elsewhere.

The property is being sold in unplanted tracts of 5 to 50 acres or in 5, 10, 15 and 20-acre tracts set to orange, lemon, grapefruit or walnut trees, and on easy terms if desired.

We will also contract to care for groves for nonresident purchasers if they wish to have us do so. We shall be pleased to have you call, phone or write for full information concerning the property and descriptive folder, containing map of Southern California, or, better still, to have you go out with us by auto to see the property and district. We know that if you once see the property you will desire a portion for yourself.

FOR SALE—IT'S EASY TO HANDLE A LAND PURchase on Southern Pacific terms. A whole section 640 acres at $10 per acre means $6400, one-tenth cash payment means just $640 cash, the next year only interest on deferred payments is required, being $345.60. After that nine annual payments are required, giving ten years' time in all. A quarter section of $10 land only requires $160 cash. These easy terms give the purchaser a chance to use most of his capital for clearing land, building his house, etc., if he wants to go to farming promptly.

Southern Pacific lands in Southern California are now selling in the Antelope Valley, in Los Angeles and Kern counties; Kramer district, San Bernardino and Kern counties, and Coachella Valley, Riverside county.

SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY—

FOR SALE—

DOS PALOS RANCHO,
ALFALFA AND FRUIT LANDS are the
CREAM OF THE SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY.

We offer in parcels to suit, 15,000 acres of the finest lands for the growing of alfalfa, dairying, fruit trees, grapes, olives, nuts and vegetables that can be found in the State of California.

It is located in Fresno county, about 55 miles west and a little north of the city of Fresno, being but three miles south of the station of Dos Palos on the Southern Pacific Railroad, and connected by excellent roads, giving good transportation, freight, passenger and express facilities.

The soil of this tract is ideal in texture, being easily worked at practically any season of the year. It is a rich, deep, productive silt about 45 feet in depth and of great fertility, as evidenced by the native growth, and further proved by the crops we are raising there, and the splendid growth of our planted fruit trees.

There is absolutely NO ALKALI, NO HARDPAN, NO ADOBE, on this tract. It lies as level as a floor with a fall of ten feet to the north and 6 feet to the south, making it ideal for irrigation. The cost of preparing for irrigation is thus nominal. The soil takes water easily, retains it a long time and the water table is low though to insure its never becoming water-logged or sour.

We have a banner stand of alfalfa, planted last April 2, 1913, yielding 7½ tons to date, with another heavy cutting on the way.

Fruit trees of all varieties planted about the same time last year have made a strong, healthy growth.

We have fully demonstrated the water supply as ample as to quantity and excellent as to quality, developed by wells and pumped by electricity.

Experts who have but recently examined our tract report it as one of the finest they have ever examined in California or elsewhere.

We will sell tracts in any size, with or without water development, at very low prices compared with real values.

Call at our office for full information and to see soil and crop samples, or write for descriptive circulars and information.

This property will stand right up to our every representation, and will bear the strictest investigation.

If you are looking for the VERY BEST at today's low prices, on liberal terms, do not fail to look into our offer on this property. We will consider offers for large acreage on a basis that will be satisfactory to you.

INVESTIGATE THIS WITHOUT FAIL.
IT WILL PAY YOU.

WANTED — APARTMENT-HOUSE AND HOTEL owners, here is something for you to consider. One of the most successful salesmen, and who has owned several apartment-houses and homes in Los Angeles, will contract to handle your lease and furniture exclusively, reside in it during progress of sale and devote his entire attention to the sale of it—(will handle only one place at a time)—on a regular commission basis, adopting his modern and successful methods of selling. Agents know that 90 per cent. of sales are lost through the incompetence and inexperience of the owners, or the indifference of the housekeepers. Advertiser has sold at a profit every house he has handled. Have no objection to co-operate with agents. Address P, box 312, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

PICTURE THEATERS.
if you get in right.

Just think of it, hundreds of towns in Central America with population of 5000 to 100,000 each that haven't got a picture theater and the world knows that they are all amusement-loving people. There are no film exchanges, consequently no picture theaters.

We are organizing a company here to establish a chain of moving-picture theaters
CENTRAL AMERICA.
We will carry our own film machines and paraphernalia.

We expect to have four shows running inside of thirty days after our arrival.

Panama prices are 25c, 50c, 75c, $1, gold. We are now about to incorporate and can use a few good men as managers, operators, and film men with some capital.

Get in on the ground floor.

The outlook of this will be one of the biggest money-makers you ever had a chance to get in on. Just think if you had a chance at the State of California without any opposition, could you make money in the picture show business. Well, this is just what we will have in Central America. No opposition.

We will be the first in the field to reap the harvest.

Here is a chance of a lifetime for sober, industrious men to get in on the ground floor of what looks to be one of the largest and best paying propositions ever offered for small investment.

SAFETY FIRST. OPPORTUNITY FOR EXPANSION next. Sell for cash always. Then the results. I started in business with $300 and in 8 years made $200,000. I can now start you in a cash business that earns over 200 per cent. profit. Is suitable for man or woman, boy or girl. You can hold your present position and hire some one to run the business for you. You can start one place or five places. The entire cost of each place fully equipped and ready for business is $550, part cash and the balance on terms to suit. The business will earn enough so that you can start a new place every sixty days. It's the newest and best thing ever brought to the Coast, wonderfully successful in Chicago the past year, a crowd around your place all the time. Get your old Saturday Evening Post of May 2 and read about it on page 68, then let me show you a place running right here in Los Angeles. This opportunity will come to you but once, as the good locations will all be taken soon. One each day is the record for the first week in Los Angeles. Every man, woman and child in the world uses the article, occupies only five square feet. Sells for 5c. I am talking about that wonderful automatic "Butter Kist" corn popping machine for which I am the exclusive agent in this territory. Send for a catalogue to A. L. UTZ, address the care of Los Angeles Athletic Club.

MILLION-DOLLAR ENTERPRISE—
Toilet without sewer or water system. Absolutely sanitary, odorless, clean, neat and practical. No emptying. Economical to buy and operate. Godsend to country and suburban homes, where 75 per cent. of people are obliged to use old-fashioned, nauseating and disease-breeding privies. This is without competition and biggest thing in the country today. Covered by strong patent rights in the United States and Canada. We are doing business now but want more money to put this on a larger scale. If you investigate this carefully you will concede the possibility of 1000 per cent. on your investment. Quick. SUPERINTENDENT, 1840 South Figueroa.

FOR SALE—GROCERY AND MEAT MARKET IN new brick building. Have stock about $1000, fixtures $400. I will divide to suit. Will give purchaser choice of fixtures and as much stock as he would want. Have a good proposition to a good man that you can investigate. Reason for selling is that after I got located discovered I haven't the personality to draw new trade. If you mean business and are actually looking for a No. 1 location we can soon get together. Have no extra money to pay agents. Will give the discount to buyer. Address X, box 260, TIMES OFFICE.

EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY TO INVEST $1000 TO $10,000 in a well established soap manufacturing business in this city; manufacturing several well-known brands which are big sellers in this territory; a thorough investigation solicited from persons who are anxious to establish themselves in a steady, growing business; more money necessary to install additional machinery in order to take care of the large volume of business that is already booked ahead; the stock that will be sold is treasury stock and will be used to promote the business, get in on the ground floor and grow up with this young concern. Write at once for particulars, address Y, box 19, TIMES OFFICE.

ESSIAN FLY IN KANSAS.

LOSS THREATENED THIS YEAR'S CROP.

Report from Interior Has Considerable to Do With Swift Rally in Wheat, May Delivery Showing Cents Advance—Provisions With Hogs and Corn.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, May 16.—The addition of Kansas to the region threatened with serious crop losses from the Hessian fly had considerable to do today with a swift rally in wheat. At one time May delivery showed 2 cents advance above last night. The market closed unsettled. Other speculative articles all made a net gain—corn ⅛@⅜c to ⅝c, oats ⅜@½c to [illegible] and provisions 2½ to 7½. Shorts in May wheat received the hardest [illegible] during the general advance in [illegible]. Profit taking, however, gave that option the widest reaction at the [illegible]. Although favorable weather [illegible] acted as a check on bulls [illegible] that cereal responded to the NORTHWEST TRANSFERS.

H. N. Mabery, owner of Mabery Heights, reports the following recent sales, made through his office: J. L. Gulley, lot on east side of Elza avenue, $900; Miss G. Arnold, lot north side of Sunset boulevard, adjoining northwest corner of Elza, $2000; George R. Thomas, two lots with double frontage, facing both Sunset and Elza, $2000 each; Mrs. Eva Woodburn, lot on Elevado street, $900; Arthur W. McNelly, lot with frontage on both Sunset and Elza, $1050; Carl Schwartz, two lots facing the proposed Silver Lake Park and boulevard, $1700 each; Mrs. Mary C. Shaw, lot on Elevado street, $1000; Henry T. Miller, lot on Angelus avenue, $1200; W. W. Carpentier, two lots on Angelus avenue, $1100 each. Mabery also reports three new homes under course of construction in Mabery Heights, and that plans are now being drawn for three more, work on which will begin in the near future.

Business: Money, Stocks and Bonds—Trade—The Citrus Market

Local Stock Market Activities

BY JNO. O. KNIGHT.

Some improvement in the market was noted during the week. While trading was far from brisk, several securities, including both bonds and stocks, were in considerably better demand with quite a sprinkling of gains in quoted prices.

Oil stocks attracted most attention. Union advanced two dollars per share to closing sales yesterday at $74.37, and Associated Oil also moved upward two points. Mexican Petroleum gained five dollars per share on the week's trading, and among the minor issues, Palmer Annex registered an advance of five points to 35. Standard Oil of California was stronger, selling up from $300 to $310.

Following upon the closing of the Union Oil deal by the British Syndicate come reports of negotiations for the purchase of several other California properties, and there is now keener inquiry than ever before for producing properties. Many well-informed oil men believe that the Union deal is only one of a series of big deals in which the investment of foreign capital will figure. The Royal Dutch Shell Combine was the first large foreign company to enter the State. With the large consumption of this company added to the demands of the English company, it is not at all improbable that the surplus production which has held development in check for several years may soon be a thing of the past. There are now scores of small companies struggling to make ends meet that would be placed on easy street by even a slight increase in the price of oil.

Quotations on local bank stocks now average almost the same as of January 1st this year. First National is up about 15 points and most of the others are practically unchanged.

The bond market is again showing some improvement after the recent lull. The fashion for municipals, owing to their tax exempt features, shows some indications of abatement and the demand is now better for many industrial and public utility issues.

Production of the Tom Reed gold mine for eleven months ending March 31st, amounted to $1,068,403.24. The smallest month's production was in July, when the output amounted to $79,126.83, and the largest month was December, which reached $107,601.73. This property, which is largely owned in Pasadena and little traded in except locally, is rapidly assuming its place as one of the country's famous gold producers.

Subject to confirmation and acceptance, we offer the following:

LONDON MARKET AFFECTS STOCKS.

SPECULATION LIFELESS ON NEW YORK EXCHANGE.

Decline Is Quickly Cancelled, but Movement Is Narrow and Variable, With Majority of Slight Losses at the End—Trading in Bonds Is Quiet.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, May 16.—The most direct influence brought to bear on the stock market today was from abroad. London reported selling tthere by Paris, which, in turn was attributed to unsatisfactory financial conditions in Russia. American stocks were depressed sharply in London. Speculation here was lifeless and at the opening the list followed the line of least resistance by easing off to about the level reached in the English market. At the lower range a better demand arose, and the decline was quickly cancelled. The movement thereafter was narrow and variable, with a majority of slight losses at the end. The bank statement did not come up to expectations. Large cash gain had been predicted, but the amount shown in the actual table was less than $3,000,000. Trading in bonds was quiet. The course of prices was irregular. Some strength appeared in Rock Island collaterals. Total sales of bonds $910,000. U. S. 2's registered advanced 1-2 on call on the week.

New York Cotton Market.

[Furnished by E. F. Hutton & Co., Members New York Stock Exchange, 118 West Fourth street, Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, May 16.—Another strong Liverpool market in conjunction with poor crop advices and the Galveston fire, was responsible for the sharp upturn in prices at opening in New York today. The demand for new crop months was insistent all through the session. Trade interests who operate for continental firms were principally responsible for it. While weather in the western belt has been quite too cool for young cotton, the precipitation has not been very heavy and conditions could easily have improved; nevertheless, mail advices from Texas in particular are decidedly unfavorable and tell of a serious condition in that State. The market is becoming very sensitive to all bad crop news and just now is listening to complaints of dry weather in South Carolina and Georgia. On the whole the entire crop cannot be said to have a good start and this fact has alarmed the trade, as it is recognized in all quarters that a large yield is absolutely necessary.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET

The cocos nut is the latest nut that has been added to the list of this edible in Los Angeles and is selling on the local markets. It is one of the hardest shelled nuts in existence in all probability, and received its name from the fact that it is very similar to the cocoa nut in flavor, not having a milk, but a solid kernel on the interior. The shell also is covered with a hairy fiber. Much of the demand for the cocos is caused by its oily nature and this oil is used extensively in the manufacture of fine soap. The first shipment received here came from Central America.

Speaking of nuts calls to attention the condition in the walnut industry. Crop prospects, according to present reports being received, are not very good and there is considerable anxiety as to the harvest possibilities. Prices will certainly range as high as last season if not higher, and there will be a more careful grading on the part of the producers in order to avoid any further damage to the reputation of the California product, caused last year by some of the packers showing much carelessness and allowing many second-grade walnuts to be sold under a first-grade label.

There were no changes in the market of staples yesterday morning. The egg market was fairly steady and the quotation ruled at 23 cents, where it remained on all but one day of the past week. Receipts were 663 cases. The arrival of the eastern and northern product has been fair, but there are not as many shipments coming this way as expected, at least not from the East, on account of the uncertainty of the winter market, owing to the importation of eggs from the Orient.

Butter receipts were 76,410 pounds. Eastern shipments of butter will begin next month and are not expected to be a great factor in the market. Cheese arrivals were 7090 pounds. There was a better feeling in the market of this product during the week and northern fresh showed an advance.

There is a gradual decline in receipts of northern stock and the next month will see very small arrivals, owing to the fact that the local spuds are supplying the majority of the trade. The harvest is light and many of the farmers report failure, owing to the heavy rains which clotted the ground and destroyed the potato growth at the time. Receipts yesterday were only 685 sacks. Receipts of onions were 318 sacks and of sweet potatoes, 113 sacks.

Cherries are expected to reach a low level this week and a 5-cent market is not unlooked for. Peaches and apricots will be more plentiful and shipments of cantaloupes will be regular.

Local Grain Receipts.

Reported receipts yesterday at the Grain Exchange were as follows (in cars:) Barley, 10; flour, 1; cereal, 1; hay, 12.

LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

Union Holds Up Fairly—Belief that There Is Slight Hitch in Deal Is Strengthened.

The belief that there is a slight hitch in relation to some of the details of the Union Oil deal was strengthened yesterday by the fact that it was discovered that J. T. Currie, attorney for the Weir syndicate, is still in the city. Currie will remain here for some little time in the interest of Andrew Weir, it is stated. It is thought that the hitch will not affect, in any serious degree, the deal. The fact that there is a hitch would also explain the delay in sending out the letter regarding the details of the deal. Union Oil stock, although slightly easier, maintained its position quite well. The closing trades were at $74.37½. Associated locally did not completely follow the advance in San Francisco, selling up to only $40.62½, while in the northern city the stock was above $41. Olinda Land was bid up, and a thousand shares changed hands at 20½ cents, this being the first trade in the issue for some time. National Pacific was firm. The United Oil Company received a check for $27,810 for its April production. The output thus far this month is about the same as for the same time in April, the daily average being over 1850 barrels.

ANAL OPENING MEANS MORE CONSULS HERE.

Many Countries Already Strongly Represented, and Others Looking This Way Through the Ocean-to-Ocean Ditch, the Great World-Traffic Lane—Interesting Figures in the Personnel of the Local Corps.

BY M'CALLUM CRAWFORD.

[illegible] why and what is a consul? With the opening for traffic of the Panama Canal, and with the [illegible] and improvements under [illegible] at Los Angeles Harbor, this [illegible] is of special interest, not [illegible] shippers and business men, [illegible] the general public. [illegible] are in Los Angeles nearly a [illegible] of men who represent foreign

[illegible] These men have certain [illegible] certain immunities, obvi[illegible] specific duties to perform, and [illegible] exemptions in matters of taxa[illegible] and other affairs that set them [illegible] apart from the ordinary [illegible] residents of the community. [illegible] exempt from jury service, military service, even though [illegible] of the country in which they [illegible] in this connection their [illegible] of foreign sovereignty [illegible] immunity. Consuls are not [illegible] any special taxes. An amus[illegible] of this fact was made [illegible] when a certain consul on [illegible] Coast refused to pay a dog [illegible]. And in court he was sus[illegible]

[illegible] have been designated and [illegible] as far back as the days [illegible] during the Roman [illegible] down through the ages [illegible] importance to the present. The original meaning of the [illegible] to have been akin to our [illegible] and the office was a [illegible] judicial position. Later the [illegible] utilized more broadly to [illegible] who was sponsor for [illegible], so it was in this meaning [illegible] achieved his first real [illegible] by being called the "First [illegible]

[illegible] practical meaning of the [illegible] changed as the world has [illegible] civilized, and trade has [illegible] widely distributed, so [illegible] now is a business agent [illegible] stationed away [illegible] home land. The diplomatic [illegible] country is utilized for po[illegible] in its relation with [illegible] and therefore the [illegible] service has more and more [illegible] to the establishment and [illegible] of trade relations.

[illegible] AND BUSINESS.

[illegible] not be understood by this [illegible] a consul loses any of [illegible] and privileges heretofore [illegible] for in those foreign cities [illegible] where there are no diplo[illegible] the consul is expected to [illegible] the dignity of his own country, and inasmuch as the Consulate flies over it the flag of the country that he represents, it is a place of sanctuary in time of war, or in those periods when ill feeling exists between the two countries. Therefore it is the duty of a consul none the less to assist his fellow-countrymen in every official way within his power, but also in a personal way. For this reason an insult to a consul or a sacrilege of his person or his flag, is regarded by his country as a far graver offense than the same act committed against a citizen of the foreign country residing abroad, whether permanently or temporarily.

Now, in regard to the actual duties of consuls laid upon them by the governments, they are diverse and in many cases intricate. Of course, consuls are busiest in the large ports where shipping is heaviest, since it is necessary for them to clear ships of their own flag, also to certify bills of lading of goods going to their own countries, no matter under what flag the goods may be shipped.

In the large ports naturally they meet more of their own countrymen who are traveling, and to the consul falls the duty of attesting all legal documents, such as contracts, wills, mortgages and powers of attorney, which are to have effect in the country they represent.

There are other duties, official and semi-official, some of which do not strictly fall to them as directly as those mentioned above. While they are supposed to look after their countrymen in distress, there are few countries which provide any fund for financial relief in such cases. Also, they have certain obligations. Recently in Los Angeles, French Consul Sentous entertained Rear-Admiral Huguet and his fellow-officers of his flagship, the Montcalm. So it may be seen that while a consul is not without honor in a far country, yet there are honors that he must discharge in behalf of others.

LARGELY HONORARY.

By no means the least important of the duties of consuls of those countries which require military service from their sons at a certain age is the following: The representatives of Italy, France, Germany and other countries having a similar military system are called on by those young men who arrive at the military age and who desire to make an attestation of their disability for service, or who for some other reason cannot immediately return to their native countries, for the countries mentioned do not recognize the naturalization of their sons in foreign lands unless the military service has been performed or they have some legal reason for exemption.

In large ports and capitals, and even in the cities of the interior, where the consuls are required not only to give their entire time to the service, but also in many cases to have assistants, they are paid by the home governments according to the importance of their posts, but in smaller places, where there is not much trade relationship, the offices are mainly honorary, except for fees, as in the cases aforementioned. At the present time in Los Angeles there is only one consul on a strict salary basis—the representative of Mexico.

In Los Angeles are now representatives of France, Panama, Great Britain, Peru, the Netherlands, Germany, Costa Rica, Chile, Cuba, Norway, Mexico, Spain, Sweden, Colombia and Italy.

MANY MORE TO COME.

Belgium, which until recently was represented by the late Victor Ponet, is to appoint a representative soon, and Japan, which has no Consul here at present, but has a large number of subjects in Southern California, will very likely appoint a Vice-Consul soon. It is understood that A. Oyema, now Vice-Consul in San Francisco, will be here at an early date to make a selection of some one to be recommended for appointment.

Further the Chamber of Commerce has written to a number of foreign governments which the idea of having at least as full a representation in Los Angeles as in San Francisco. This has been done in expectation of the increased shipping at this harbor after the canal opens, so that any consular matter may be handled in this city. To that end the Chamber of Commerce is in correspondence with Greece, Russia, Bolivia, Siam, the Argentine Republic, Brazil, China, Denmark, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Persia, Portugal, Salvador, Switzerland, Turkey, Uruguay and Venezuela, and has had favorable responses from a number of them.

Taking the consuls personally, the first one to be spoken of is Thomas L. Duque, as he is the dean of the consular corps, having held the title of full Consul here longer than any other.

INTERESTING DEAN.

He has been a resident of Los Angeles more than a quarter of a century, and has been active in the financial world here until recently, when he retired from the strenuous life. Duque was Consul for Nicaragua fifteen or sixteen years ago. He has also been Consul-General for Ecuador and later was Consul of the greater republic of Central America, and after the dissolution of that union, represented Honduras. At present it is interesting to note that he represents only the young republic of Panama.

Duque was born in Cuba and but lately returned from a three-month visit to his native isle. From Cuba he emigrated to Panama, and lived there for several years. He has a brother, Senor Don J. Gabriel Duque, who is the owner of the Star and Herald of Panama, an up-to-date newspaper printed in both English and Spanish. This journalist visited Los Angeles last year.

Mr. Duque stated yesterday that as dean of the corps he expects to call a meeting in the near future, as there has not been a general assembly since early last fall, when a dinner was given at which all of the local consular representatives were present, and a number of invited guests.

ENGLAND'S VICE-CONSUL.

In point of length of service as consular agent, C. White Mortimer, who represents Great Britain in Los Angeles, holds the record. He has held an exequatur from the President of this country for about thirty years; and it may be said in passing, that this is the official recognition of a representative of a foreign nation.

Mortimer, a Canadian by birth, has lived in Los Angeles and has practiced law here since 1882. For the greater part of the time he has been a Vice-Consul, but recently was commissioned as Consul.

The agents of the British government, as well as of certain other nations, are not permitted to talk for publication, except of matters of public record.

The British shipping being so large, it may be interesting to know that from Port Los Angeles Mortimer cleared in 1913 twenty-seven ships flying the British flag. All were steam vessels, and of about 4000 tons each. In 1912 twenty-nine vessels put into port and out again, but the tonnage was smaller.

Some years ago he held courts of inquiry in cases of wreck, and at one time achieved a unique record for Southern California in holding a naval court on account of a mutiny on a coaling vessel from Australia. One very interesting inquiry held by Mortimer was over a vessel that grounded near this harbor. The captain's naive explanation was that he had purposely run the vessel close inshore to clear her hull of barnacles in the kelp beds. His master's certificate was suspended for six months, and thereafter when he was reinstated the insurance company refused to take the risk on his vessel with him as commander. In despair he killed himself.

FULL GERMAN CONSULATE.

The imperial government of the Kaiser maintains a full Consulate here, and Perry Weidner is the head.

The German government has two classes of consuls. The first are provisional and called by the Latin term consules missi. They are educated for the service and destined eventually to enter the diplomatic service, and for that purpose those young men are sent to important posts for a period of several years to gain experience.

The second class are called consules electi. They are non-salaried appointees, but entitled to fees and allowances.

The secretary of the Consulate here is Emil Roedel, who was recently elected secretary of Der Deutscher Klub.

FRANCE'S AGENCY.

At the present time, France, always America's friend, maintains only a consular agency in this city, the post being held by Louis Sentous.

Sentous has been identified with commercial and industrial activities in Los Angeles ever since he returned from a college in Southern France, where his family originally came from. He has figured, not only in many different kinds of business accomplishments, but has also been prominent in the several French societies of a social, fraternal and charitable nature.

He is honorary president of the Ligue Francaise, and president of the French benevolent society which maintains a hospital for the relief of sick or injured of French people or those of French descent.

It has been hinted that a full Consulate, or at least a Vice-Consulate, will be established here in the near future. It is needless to say who will receive that honor, for Sentous has been decorated by the French government with the order of the Palms Academique. This decoration was given for faithful performance of consular duties, and its award is limited to those who have achieved credit along the lines of diplomacy, science, arts or letters.

There are in Southern California 6000 Frenchmen and those acquainted with their natural characteristics are aware that the French are not, as a rule, happy emigrants. "Les fils de la patrie," are probably the most clannish people away from home in spite of their graciousness, politeness and democratic feeling. For this reason it is doubtful if there should be a great increase of emigration from France to this country.

A noted American writer wrote a story with the title, "A Man Without a Country." Sentous, on the other hand, is a man with two countries. He is a native son of California, and yet a Frenchman, as well as an American.

REPRESENTING ITALY.

Italy is represented by a consular agent in the person of Giovanni Piuma, and as there are more than 20,000 Italians in Southern California, it will be seen that his post is important.

Piuma is a well-known merchant and active in all the Italian movements. A native of Genoa, he came here in 1885, and was married in the church at the Plaza twenty-six years ago. He is a member of the Societa Italiana d' Mutua Benificenza, also of the Societa Dante Alighieri, and of the Comitato Socorso.

Piuma believes that with the opening of the canal there will be a natural increase both in imports and exports. At the present time Southern California is sending to Italy such articles as hides, tallow and dried fruits, and importing canned fish, cheeses, macaroni, spaghetti and other pastes, and a considerable amount of olive oil and wine.

Above the Consulate, which is just north of the Plaza, the beautiful tricolored flag of Italy with the royal arms may be seen floating on the breeze on all American holidays, and on the following days, commemorative of Italy: First Sunday of June, the Festa dello Statuo; January 8, to celebrate the birthday of Queen Elena; September 20, the natal day of Victor Emanuel, the conqueror of Rome; September 15, the Crown Prince Umberto's birthday, and finally, November 11, the birthday of Italy's reigning sovereign.

FROM MEXICO.

Senor Don Juan Reynaldo Orci represents Mexico in Los Angeles, as an appointee of the Huerta administration. He is a salaried Consul. Orsi is a native of Sonora, a licentiate of law, and under the Diaz government he was the consulting attorney of the Minister of the Interior, Senor Ramon Corral. He was also a member of the Chamber of Deputies in the capital in the last Congress under Gen. Porfirio Diaz, as a representative from Zacatecas, and figured in the reforming of the mining laws, and those laws which placed all rivers of the republic under the control of the Federal government.

REPUBLIC OF COLOMBIA.

The United States of Colombia is represented by James Moorkens and maintains a vice-consulate. Moorkens is engaged as a shipping agent and factor, and is well equipped to represent his country, as his daily duties have made him familiar with every demand in that line. In fact, one of his brother officers of the corps went so far as to say that, in his opinion, Moorkens is the best-equipped Consul in Los Angeles, from the shipping standpoint.

Moorkens has been prominently mentioned as a successor to the late Victor Ponet, who was vice-consul for Belgium. Moorkens is a native of that country. His appointment, if made, would be pleasing to his associates on the corps, and appropriate, considering his nationality and fitness. Moorkens is Vice-Consul for Panama, and acts in the absence of the Consul, Duque.

PERU'S CONSULATE.

Elmer F. Mackusick is the Consul for Peru here. After spending several years in that country, he returned to New York, but ill health forced him to seek a balmier climate, so he came to this city about eight years ago, and lives very quietly at his home in the southwestern part of town.

E. J. Louis is Vice-Consul, and attends to much of the details for Mackusick. He is secretary of the corps, and therefore acts as a sort of adjutant and secretary to Dean Duque.

Mackusick and Louis look for an increase in trade with Peru in the near future, and feel that with the shipping facilities improving, Los Angeles will get a big share. From California the principal exports to Peru are machinery, drugs, workmen's clothing and wines and other liquors.

A few weeks ago the manager of the Peruvian Steamship and Dock Company of Lima made a trip to California and farther north to investigate fully the possibilities of increased exchange of commerce, and it appears probable that the line he represents may extend its sailings from Panama, the present terminus, to one of our ports.

CHILE HAS A CONSUL.

Gen. Frank C. Prescott is the Consul for Chile. He speaks highly of the southernmost republic on this hemisphere. Referring to the trade relations between Chile and the United States, he called attention to the fact that last year this country imported $22,000,000 worth of nitrates, and carried back in the same bottoms just about equal value in crude petroleum. Gen. Prescott predicts that this exchange will steadily increase.

"Chile has the most stable government in the western hemisphere with the exception of the United States," he said yesterday. "Its people are intelligent, progressive and well-to-do."

Chile's representative in Los Angeles ranks as Consul the same as the representative in San Francisco. The traits of character of the Chileans are in some respects those of Americans, and as the United States controls the Arctic regions of the North Pacific, and Chile the Antarctic of the South Pacific, it may be that the commercial extremes will very profitably meet.

OF COSTA RICA.

Charles E. Bobertz, Consul of Costa Rica, is an American citizen, but lived in the Central American country which he represents for over twenty years. He was engaged in general merchandise business and the raising of bananas, which is one of the great exports of that country to our gulf ports.

From both coasts of Costa Rica an immense amount of coffee is shipped to this country, and among other exports are mother of pearl, tortoise shell and such fruits as will stand the voyage across the gulf. The United States sends to Costa Rica about 50 per cent. of her imports, and in this part of the country preparations are under way to increase the exportation of canned and dried fruit, walnuts, Lima beans, hay, flour, deciduous fruits, raisins and grapes. Bobertz stated, with a twinkle in his eye, that as far as he knows he has the honor to have but one native of Costa Rica in his consular district—the wife of former Mayor Windham of Long Beach. Bobertz has made his home in Los Angeles in order to educate his children in American schools.

CUBAN FIGHTER HERE.

Cuba maintains an honorary consulate in Los Angeles, the incumbent being James Pennie. Probably no one is more entitled to represent the "Pearl of the Antilles" than he who holds the office, for he spent several of the best years of his life in fighting under Garcia for its independence, and still carries with him wounds received at the fierce battles in the province of Santiago, where the insurrectionists were strongest.

Pennie is a Pennsylvanian, but went to the assistance of the Cubans as captain of artillery several years before the Spanish-American War, and after peace was declared and independence established, he was in the civil service in Havana for several years. His duties as Consul for Cuba are not onerous, but he believes that by direct shipping by water the trade between California and Cuba will be greatly increased.

As he is the only Cuban Consul on the Pacific Coast he attends to the business that is shipped from northern ports, and in addition, keeps in touch with many consignments that come into San Francisco from the Orient and are transshipped to Cuba. The exports from California to Cuba are lima beans, canned and dried salmon from the north, and a considerable amount of machinery designed for the sorting and packing of oranges and lemons.

Pennie is about to take an extended vacation in the East, and James H. Le Noir will act as Vice-Consul.

SWEDISH VICE-CONSUL.

Gottlieb Eckdahl is Vice-Consul for Sweden, having been appointed December 31, 1912.

Mr. Eckdahl is a native of Sweden and came to the United States in 1888, and removed to Los Angeles in 1895.

He was formerly president of the Swedish-American National League; is a member of the North Star Society, and is president of the Swedish-American World's Fair Commission in Los Angeles. Eckdahl stated that there are 7000 Swedes in Los Angeles proper, and approximately 5000 more in the vicinity.

With the opening of the canal there seems to be no question that there will be a decided increase in the number of Swedes who will emmigrate to the Pacific Coast.

Heretofore, those who left their home settled, as a rule, in the Middle Northwest, but with a direct water communication there is no reason why large numbers of them should not be attracted by the opportunity, especially along agricultural lines, offered by Southern California.

MARITIME NORWAY.

Norway is represented in Los Angeles by George M. Ottis. The chief products imported from Norway to this city are matches, iron, and various kinds of fish, and when the canal is opened, nitrates and potash, also Norway pine will come in in large quantities.

Norway, ranking among the first three or four merchant maritime nations, is bound to show her flag at this harbor in increasing number.

SPAIN'S HERE, TOO.

Spain's representative is Dr. Fernando Carrera y Diaz. He has held the office for about a year and a half. He is known locally as a teacher of languages. At present he is in his native land for an indefinite stay and is represented by Dr. Luis F. Alvares.

There is not a great amount of trade between this part of the country and Spain, although there are a number of native-born Spaniards who live in Los Angeles and the surrounding country engaged principally in industrial and viticultural pursuits.

THE NETHERLANDS.

The Netherlands is represented by F. J. Zeehandelaar, a native of The Hague, Holland. He was appointed Vice-Consul for Southern California and Arizona by the Queen of The Netherlands in 1907.

His activities in the upbuilding of industrial and manufacturing enterprises in Southern California are well known. He is, and has long been, secretary of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association.

Representing Foreign Countries in Los Angeles.

Charles E. Bobertz, consul, Costa Rica
James Moorkens, vice-consul, Republic of Colombia and Republic of Panama
James Pennie, consul, Cuba
Juan R. Orci, consul, Mexico
[illegible] consul, Great Britain
T. L. Duque, consul, Republic of Panama
Perry Weidner, consul, Germany
Elmer F. Mackusick, consul, Peru
George M. Ottis, consul, Norway
Frank C. Prescott, consul, Chile
Gottlieb Eckdahl, vice-consul, Sweden
E J Louis, vice-consul Peru
Fernando Carrera y Diaz, vice-consul, Spain
Louis Sentous, consular agent, France
G Piuma, consular agent, Italy
Dr. L. F. Alvarez, acting vice-consul, Spain
F J Zeehandelaar, vice-consul, The Netherlands

Members of the large and active consular corps.

Duque is dean of the corps, and Mr. Louis secretary. The dean is expected to call a meeting soon.

An Appreciation.

UNCLE'S MULE IS THE NABOB.

Railroad and Ocean Too Big for Real War.

Indian Writes of Importance of Pack Trains.

Genius Who Put "Maud" in the "Middle of Fight."

BY ANTONIO APACHE.

When we think, nowadays, of transportation, our minds revert to fast freight, palatial limited passenger trains, sumptuous Pullman cars. It is a far cry from the camel train and the fastidious burro pack train of the ancient, to the modern mode of transportation; indeed, so dim is the recollection of the usefulness of the latter, because of modern convenience in time of peace, that but few realize the tremendous value of the "beast" for burden bearing, and his importance in the migration, industry, commerce, politics and social evolution of man, especially in time of war.

Water navigation, in a limited sense, is as old as history, and as a medium of transportation in war times is probably the most important. The railroad has not the strategic importance in war that many imagine. Railroads were intended in most cases for commerce, which is right and proper. To illustrate: should there be war with Mexico—may fate forefend!—the railroads of that country would be of relatively small value to that of the mule pack train. To traverse deserts and mountainous country, the army must depend wholly on the pack train. Mexico is both desert and mountainous. Although at the present time it is a mightily impoverished country, yet a beast can forage for itself in time of stress—an important fact from a military view. No machine invented by man can do this. The importance of this fact is not easily overestimated. There are, of course, pack trains and pack trains, but the highly-developed outfit of the United States army is a machine of the highest efficiency, and worthy of a few paragraphs to describe.

UNCLE'S MULES.

The packtrain service of the United States army is one of the most important and least-heard-of adjuncts. It has met imperative needs in the military movements in the West during the past twenty-five years, and without it the army would have been useless in the Cuban and Philippine campaigns.

The central depot and training grounds for the pack-train service are at Camp Carlin, near Cheyenne, Wyo., formerly the supply depot for the department of the Platte. Here the men and mules designed for the service are trained, and pack trains are organized and equipped, and sent to the various army commands in the West, Southwest and our insular possessions, when required.

The service was organized by Col. Thomas Moore, chief packer of the United States army, a grizzled veteran with over thirty-five years of army service, who can at six hours' notice put a pack train, equipped for a year's field work, at the disposal of any command requiring it.

Nine men, about fifty mules and one horse constitute a pack train for active service. The men are the packmaster, two "cargadores" or supper-cargoes, and six packers. Of the mules, nine are for riding, thirty-seven for packs, with one and sometimes two extra for emergencies. The horse wears the bell and shares with the packmaster the honor of leadership of the train. One of the packers must be a blacksmith and one a cook. Usually all of the men are qualified for the duties of both positions.

A STIFF TEST.

The packers are civilians, and are not required to enlist in the army. They are paid $50 a month. It requires six months' training to make a fairly good packer of a green hand, and seven years to make him an expert. Only able-bodied men are hired. None weighing under 175 pounds are taken, and every applicant must be able to lift 200 pounds to the level of his chin.

No uniform is required and most of the men wear a modification of a cowboy's costume. On a campaign they are armed with cavalry carbines and revolvers and carry hunting knives. In camp and at the Camp Carlin depot the men feed and groom the mules, train green animals to the use of the packs, and every alternate day take the train for a practice march of from twenty to thirty miles.

For drilling purposes and practice the animals carry loads of 300 pounds. In active service 275 pounds is the maximum load. This is made up of tenting, bedding, cooking utensils, rations and ammunition. One mule can carry 100 field rations. Ordinarily half the train carries rations, the other half tenting, ammunition and miscellaneous supplies.

The bell horse is the nabob of the train. He carries no load nor rider. A soft-toned, tinkling bell, hung to a strap around his neck, announces every move he makes, and the pack mules follow him when he walks or crowd around him when he stands. On the march the bell horse is never ridden, but is led by one of the packers. When the mules are grazing the bell horse is hobbled, except when an attack is feared, and then a man holds him by the halter. Bridles are never used on the animals. A "tie-up" is made with the bell horse at the right of the line, mule No. 1 tied to the bell horse's halter, and each of the other mules tied to the rigging of his predecessor in the line. A "tie-up" can be made by an expert train in two minutes.

With a nucleus of twenty well-trained mules, enough green mules to make up a full train can be trained in six or eight weeks. It requires six months to break in a full train of all green mules. Since 1885 over 1000 mules have been broken into service at Camp Carlin and sent out to work with the various commands. The mules are bought at St. Louis and in the South. None over 6 or under 5 years of age are taken and none under 850 pounds in weight. Animals found to be vicious are not kept in the service, but are turned over to the tender mercies of the mule skinners of the wagon trains.

A LIFE PACKER.

The pack service has always been used by the army, but it was put into its present efficient state by Col. Moore, who, in 1867, under orders of Gen. Crook, organized the service as it is now conducted, and established a central depot for training and drilling men and mules. Col. Moore has been in all the important Indian campaigns in the West. From 1867 to 1871 he was with Gen. Crook in Idaho, California and Oregon; also taking part in the subjugation of the Piutes. From 1871 to 1875 he was with Crook in the Apache campaign, and in 1875 and 1876 in the big campaign against the Sioux nation in Wyoming, Montana and in the Dakotas. In 1877, Col. Moore and his pack train were with Gen. Merritt and Col. Hart, in the memorable chase across Idaho, Wyoming and Montana after the celebrated Chief Joseph and his band of Nes Perces. In 1885 he put several pack trains in the field for the Apache campaign and his trains were in the famous marches in Arizona, which ended with Geronimo's capture. Col. Moore's last field service was in the winter of 1890 and 1891, in the Pine Ridge outbreak. Eight hours after the outbreak, in response to a telegram from Gen. Crook, he had the train ready for the field.

Col. Moore and his trains have shared with the troops almost every battle fought in the various campaigns of the past thirty-five years. On the march the position of the train is alongside the cavalry, giving the troops the right of way. In a fight the pack train with all superfluous horses and baggage, is usually placed in the center of the command.

"The first big fight I went into with Crook," said Col. Moore, "was at Rosebud. The fight was in the Bad Lands, so rough that the men had to do most of the fighting dismounted. Before the fight the general said to me, 'Now, Moore, when we get into this fight, what do you propose to do?' 'Keep in the middle of it,' I said, 'so you can defend your supplies while you are defending yourselves.' 'Thats' all right,' said Crook, and we went into the fight just that way and adopted the same tactics always afterwards."

BUILDING PLANS TAKING SHAPE.

ARCHITECTS REPORT SEVERAL APARTMENT AND FLAT PROJECTS IN PARTS OF CITY.

Architects Oliver P. Dennis and Henry Harwood Hewitt have drawn plans for an attractive two-story brick flat building to be erected by the former at No. 1628 Hudson avenue, Hollywood. The building will contain four flats of five rooms each. Every apartment will have a sleeping porch. The property will embody the latest and most up-to-date ideas in flat construction and appointment as developed in the larger eastern cities. It will be faced with ruffled brick.

A contract is to be let this week for a four-story hotel to be erected by John Orth at No. 516 San Julian street. The building will contain about 190 rooms. A. Reif is the architect.

Plans have been completed by Architects A. R. Walker and John T. Vawter for a four-story brick hotel to be erected by J. F. Hill at Sixth and Wall streets. The building will contain 122 rooms and will be 80x120 feet in size. The Milwaukee Building Company has the contract for the construction.

Plans have been drawn for a four-story reinforced concrete apartment-house to be erected by W. I. Wilson at No. 153 West Twenty-first street. The structure will contain about seventy-five rooms in two and three-room suites.

The contract has been let for the construction of a three-story frame apartment-house planned by A. Burnside Sturges for F. F. Ruben and to be built on Bonnie Brae between Twelfth and Pico. The building will contain thirty apartments.

POMONA DEALS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, May 16.—The firm of Niebel & Bangle reports the exchange for H. E. Bacon of seventy-nine acres of land at Wineville for a residence block in Pasadena, the property of John Anderson, the total consideration involved being given at over $56,000. J. W. Fulton has exchanged a residence here for a five-acre orange grove owned by W. E. Burke, the consideration totaling $11,850. W. T. Gibson has sold his alfalfa ranch south of here to Mrs. M. Martin of Los Angeles, taking a property here in part payment. The total consideration is given at $26,200. E. A. Morgan has exchanged a house in Monrovia and two Pomona lots for a residence in Pasadena.

SECURES BEACH HOTEL.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OCEAN PARK, May 16.—The entire control of the Merritt-Jones hotel at Ocean Park was taken over today by Ward McFadden from W. W. Canon. McFadden formerly was the proprietor of the Ship Cafe at Venice. A year ago he sold that place to Rudy Fischbeck of San Francisco to begin plans for the new Merritt-Jones. The Merritt-Jones is a five-story structure of fire-proof construction, built in three wings with 150 guest rooms and baths, a dining salon and a Bohemian grill. A roof-garden, a children's playground, a ladies' reception hall and a tango room are among the features.

TO MEET AT DINNER.

Seventy-five members of the sales force of Robert Marsh & Co. will partake of an informal dinner tomorrow night at Hotel Mt. Washington, as guests of General Sales Manager Cooper of that concern. The dinner will supplement the regular monthly "get-together" meeting of the Marsh company and will be attended by the managers of all departments and their salesmen. Jack Wilson, president of the Los Angeles Advertising Club, and J. C. Purdy, field secretary of the California State Realty Federation, will address the salesmen, as will also Cooper, C. E. Jordan, O. Ray Rule and Roy Manker of the company's forces.

Fact and Comment.

of the street, as ordinarily. Poles are to be removed and war has been declared on unsightliness generally. The property owners pledge themselves to care each for his own parking frontage and to put it into a condition of harmony with the whole scheme.

Such a boulevard, as far as it goes, is Occidental boulevard, in the Westlake-Wilshire district. Here, the property owners have already done, in a limited way, what the West Adams owners expect to accomplish. The beauty of the street fully justifies all the expense incurred. Unfortunately, however, Occidental boulevard, starting at Sixth street, comes to an abrupt and inglorious stop at First street. Arrangements should be made at once to carry it at its present width and in an unbroken line to Sunset boulevard. When it is considered that there is no such thing as a continuous and serviceable north-and-south travel artery between Figueroa street and Vermont avenue, the benefit to be derived from the project will be plainly evident. A boulevard of this character would be a tremendous asset to a part of Northwest Los Angeles that, largely because of streets that get nowhere, has long been hampered in its development. As a show street, it would be an asset to the entire city. For the very reason that so good a beginning has been made, the extension of Occidental would naturally suggest itself as a logical early step in the carrying out of a city boulevard plan. A similar opportunity is open to the property owners along and near Andrew's boulevard. Will they seize it?

Now the Time.

In attempting to devise anything like a comprehensive street-and-boulevard plan, Los Angeles would be brought face to face with serious municipal mistakes of other years. Throughout the past there has been too much laxity upon the part of the city in permitting the platting of new subdivisions. As the result, inadequate provision has been made for the continuation on straight lines of established streets. Behold the crookedness of almost every principal street in the city as a direct consequence.

What is needed is a most careful study of the street situation. There are possibilities undreamed of, if it were but known. It is true that it will cost more to straighten out streets, where this is desirable, than it would have cost had the various plats been made to conform to proper restrictions in the first place, but the expense now would be infinitely less than it will be ten years from now, when such straightening out may have become imperative. It is said that if Washington street were laid out on a straight line instead of in a series of jogs, it would open directly into the plaza at the front of the Southern Pacific depot. Think of the possibilities of a boulevard from the very gate of Los Angeles, straight across the city and on to the shores of the Crescent Bay that were neglected when the municipality permitted the haphazard extension of the street.

There are obvious first steps in such a practical city-planning campaign as would be involved in an attempt to give Los Angeles a sane street and boulevard system, however, and these should not be overlooked. Opportunities such as that represented by the West First-street-boulevard project, the contemplated opening of valuable traffic arteries through Bunker Hill, should not be put off a moment longer than is necessary. The kickers against such enterprises are their own worst enemies for the most part and are hampering city progress and development.

OF COLONIAL TYPE.

Attractive Fifteen-Room Residence Started on Ardmore Between Third and Fourth—Rooms in Mahogany.

Work has been begun on a two-story house of the colonial type planned by architects Eisen & Son for Dr. Albert W. Moore and the site of which is on Ardmore street, between Third and Fourth. The place, which will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000, will contain fifteen rooms. W. W. Dorn has the contract.

The exterior of the dwelling will be sheathed with wide rough rustic and will be painted white. The trim and detail throughout will be colonial.

The first floor will contain dining-room, living-room, library, breakfast-room, reception hall, laundry, servants' rooms and kitchen, while on the second story will be four bedrooms and three baths. The living and dining-rooms will be finished in mahogany, the library in redwood and the rest of the house in white enamel.

Originality in Begging Letters.

[Baltimore American:] "Nowhere is the ingenuity of the present age more apparent than in the begging letters received by rich men," was the remark of a private secretary.

"I have been reading letters of that kind by the hundred for the last fifteen years. Formerly all begging letters sounded alike. They had such a stereotyped air that they might have been copied verbatim from a ready letter writer. Now the writers display originality. They may want the same old things that their predecessors wanted, but they ask for them in a different way.

"People in need have acquired the art of expressing themselves forcibly. That is to their advantage. It may be unjust, but usually it is the letter that hits the rich man hardest that brings a favorable reply. The writer may not really need assistance nearly so badly as some timid person who can't get away from commonplace phrases, but he can get the relief asked much more readily."

CUTTING HAIR GIRL'S OFFENSE.

But Justice Fails to Find Law to Cover It.

Bartender Who Shot Mexican Released from Custody.

Land for Many Families Is to Be Developed.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) May 11.—At Seligman last week before the local justice of the peace was brought a remarkable case, in which Miss Grace Miller, a pretty and notably efficient school teacher, was charged with assault upon a pupil, Carl Draper. Her offense, specifically, consisted in cutting Draper's hair, after long efforts to induce the lad to appear in the classroom in a tidy condition, without long and unkempt locks falling over his eyes. Finally, losing patience, the schoolma'am seized her scissors and, despite the lad's struggles, cut the hair from his forehead. Complaint was made by the boy's parents forthwith.

The larger part of the population of Seligman is said to have attended the trial and to have shown satisfaction with the magistrate's verdict freeing the defendant from blame. The judge said he could find nothing in the Arizona statutes covering such an offense. He also refused to entertain a complaint of Seligman barbers that the teacher had been practicing the tonsorial art without taking out a county license.

BARKEEPER RELEASED.

Mainly because the prosecution failed to obtain evidence of value from nine witnesses examined, Burrel Horigan, a barkeeper, charged with deadly assault upon Ray Fierro, a Mexican, at Ash Fork, has been released from custody. Horigan claimed to have acted in self-defense when he shot Fierro in the shoulder.

STOP MEXICAN "WAR."

The Sheriff and a couple of deputies made a hurried automobile trip to Jerome Junction yesterday on telephonic advice that drunken Mexican section hands had started to annex the village to their native land. A dozen Mexicans were found to have been "shooting up the town," but hostilities promptly ceased when the officers appeared on the scene.

MORE LAND FOR SETTLERS.

The Alamos Land and Irrigation Company, a local corporation with A. J. Head as its president, proposes to conserve the storm flow of Date Creek, in the southern part of this county and expects to develop water for the irrigation of a large tract of land, on which to place about 300 families. The land to be covered once was embraced in the Camp Date Creek Military Reservation, celebrated in the writings of Capt. Charles King.

BIG ALFALFA TRACT.

Steam plows are turning over 100 acres of land a day on a 7000-acre tract north of Prescott, owned by the Arizona Land and Irrigation Company in preparation for planting to alfalfa. It is expected that an ample supply of water for irrigation will be afforded by storage of Granite and Willow Creek flows by means of a dam now two feet above the level of the Granite Creek bed.

MONEY IN BEEF.

James Bishop, a Yavapai county cattleman, lately received from a California buyer the highest prices ever locally known for range steers, namely $49 a head for 3-year-olds, $39 for twos, and $30 for yearlings. Other growers failed to sell at even these figures, believing that the fall market will be still higher.

WAREHOUSE BURNED.

Damage amounting to $5000 was done Sunday in the destruction of a warehouse owned by the Bashford-Burmister Company. The building, over thirty-five years old, was built to be a frontier dance hall.

AMERICA'S BILLIONAIRE PERIOD.

The Opportunity for Such Accumulation of Riches Is Passing With the Development of Country.

[Philadelphia Ledger:] Two gifts amounting to millions of dollars to the medical colleges, were announced within three days. The munificence of American giving has reached such colossal proportions that all other countries and all other periods of the world's history are completely overshadowed by them.

Stephen Girard's endowment of Girard College with about $7,000,000 remained for over half a century the wonder of all mankind, as it was by far the greatest gift ever made. Girard was America's richest man when he died, in 1831, but his fortune of $8,000,000 seems trifling when compared with the mountainous fortunes of the Rockefellers and Carnegies.

Yet, though the world never witnessed such lavish bestowal of endowments as we are having today, neither did it ever present a comparison with the amazing accumulation of money. In this land of unmatched opportunity, men took advantage of crude conditions and placed mortgages upon the very wealth produced by mother earth.

No limits were set upon the profits that might be wrung from a nation of thrifty people in selling them the necessities of life. No restrictions bounded the ever-widening circle of corporate influence and corporate gain, so that men rode these mighty instruments of money-making to heights never dreamed of by a Croesus.

Now we have come to the time of distribution of these huge masses of wealth. While the use made of such gifts as those just recorded is unquestionably good, it is equally certain the system which made them possible was unhealthy. It ought not to be in the power of any person to gather from the rest of mankind half a billion dollars. What is more, it never will be done again in this country.

Suspicious of Bankers.

[London Daily Citizen:] In a romantic farming district in which I once passed a few days, I was told of a wealthy farmer whose friends, fearing he would be murdered, succeeded after an infinity of trouble in persuading him to take his money to a bank. When he interviewed the manager he asked how much the bank would charge for taking care of his cash. The manager replied that it would charge nothing, but would pay him something. "I always knew you were rascals!" he retorted, and marched off, money and all.

REASON FOR ALL THINGS.

Everyone Preaches Efficiency and Competition Causes Formation of Smaller Units.

[Leslie's Weekly:] There is reason for all things. The unreasonable man is a disturber, the unreasonable woman a nuisance, and the unreasonable child a sorrow. We should be reasonable with each other. Let us stop and think a moment.

In the competition for business and in the struggle to secure the highest efficiency, great corporations were organized by combining smaller units. An outcry was raised against these combinations. They were stigmatized as trusts that were restraining trade. The government interfered and the Supreme Court of the United States was finally called to pass upon the questions of law involved.

That court decided that the corporations should be dissolved, but that the dissolution should not be destructive, that the work should be done in the light of reason. The highest court in the United States insisted that the voice of reason should be listened to. Reason is always right. Some are finding fault with the work of the court and wanting to undo it all again. Is this reason?

The reduction in the tariff will undoubtedly affect some of our industries. It has always done so and will do so again. But manufacturers are warned by the government that if they reduce working hours or wages to meet increased competition from abroad, they must stand an investigation. It is absurd to believe that any manufacturer would close his shop to spite the government. There is no reason in this.

Everybody is preaching efficiency in business methods. Efficiency means larger profits, larger business and greater incomes. Now we are having legislation that taxes efficiency, that places the heaviest burden on the largest enterprise and the largest income. Is this reason?

The regulation of the railroads by the government and by the respective States is accepted as long as it is reasonable. Now it is proposed not only to regulate but to run the railroads by governmental authority. The railroads belong to the stockholders. If governmental control should lead to a loss, the burden must be borne by the shareholders. The government will not help to bear it. Is this reason?

The national banks are owned by their shareholders. It is now proposed to force every bank to contribute of its capital to a scheme for governmental control of a banking system. This is the force-bill pure and simple. If the new scheme should prove to be a failure, the shareholders and not the government would suffer. Is this reason?

The people of this country were prosperous and happy. Under the blessings of a benign Providence they were enjoying more comforts than are vouchsafed the working man in any other land. The demagogue appeared preaching a doctrine of unrest, disquiet and dissatisfaction; the black hand followed. Coercion and dynamite took the place of reason. Experience must teach its lesson. The voice of conscience cannot be stilled and reason cannot forever be dethroned.

Let reason rule!

The Times is the only newspaper in Los Angeles that does not make a practice of permitting agents, newsboys and dealers to return unsold copies of its issue. Neither does it misbrand or predate its editions, or inflate its circulation by printing more copies than are actually necessary to supply its patrons.

The Times' entire circulation is practically net, and it is more genuine and superior in every respect to that of any other newspaper.

There will be numerous private dining rooms in addition to the main dining-room. An immense living-room will open from the lobby. Provision is made for cardrooms, reading-rooms, writing-rooms and locker rooms. One of the features planned is an open-air swimming pool 60x120 feet in dimensions directly in front of the building and within easy access of dressing-rooms. Everything that wealthy lovers of outdoor sports could desire will be included in the appointments.

The building will crown a knoll adjacent to and overlooking a golf links, polo grounds and tennis courts. At the foot of the bluff and just back of the surf line a yacht club is planned, this building to have its own concrete pier out into a sheltered inlet.

The architects have also drawn up tentative ground plans for the three model villages the colony is planning to establish in different parts of the property. These places will follow the true "town planning" idea, their streets radiating in orderly arrangement from business and civic centers. In each village the architecture of every building, from the business blocks to the humblest cottages, will be regulated, it being the intention of the syndicate to create towns having all the charm of some of the places that so delight tourists traveling in certain rural districts of Germany and England. These villages will constitute the shopping points for the colonists, making their domain a small principality to itself.

BREAKS ALL RECORDS.

Working under the direction of Frederick Law Olmstead, the world-famous landscape architect who is in charge of the laying out of the ranch property, the Los Angeles engineering firm of Koebig & Koebig has just completed on the former Bixby holding the most extensive survey ever made on five-foot contour lines. The engineers in question have platted every foot of the ranch and have mapped it on the scale of an inch to 200 feet, with every variation of five feet in altitude above sea level indicated. The resulting map is twenty-one feet long and seventeen feet wide and is said to exceed in minuteness of detail any other contour map ever made in this country.

Within ninety days, according to the syndicate representatives, Olmstead himself, with a number of assistants, will come to Los Angeles to take charge of the landscaping of the property. More than 100 miles of contour roads will be laid out in the tract, and these are to be lined with trees. A wide, paved highway, extending from the northern line of the property, at the edge of Clifton-by-the-Sea, to the southern edge of the ranch, just above San Pedro, will be thrown open to public use by the syndicate. This magnificent highway, which will follow the brink of the rugged Palos Verdes ocean bluffs for more than fourteen miles, will be the most scenically-beautiful automobile route in Southern California, overlooking at every turn a new panorama of sea and rugged coast and inland hills.

The earliest colony development will probably be confined to the 6000 acres comprising the first and second benches back of the shore line bluffs. Here, in a strip of land fourteen miles long and from half to three-quarters of a mile in width, will be platted the individual estates of the colonists, each place being laid out in such a way as to give it an interesting marine and land view of its own. The various places will range in size from a few acres to a hundred or more acres in extent. Palatial homes with elaborate grounds will be the rule, as the restrictions will be such as to bar all others.

"STILL EXPERIMENTING."

The syndicate members still refer to their plans as "tentative" and to the extensive surveying, and planting operations already witnessed on the ranch as "experimental." They admit, however, that the so-called "experiments" have been entirely satisfactory and that no change from the plan of establishing their projected multi-millionaire residence colony has even been considered thus far.

One of the first things done under the direction of Olmstead was the establishment at various points on the Palos Verdes property of weather-testing stations, where for some months the most careful record has been kept of changes of temperature, rainfall and the like. These tests, it is stated, have demonstrated convincingly that the tract possesses all the climatic advantages for which the wealthy men interested in the colony project have been seeking in different parts of the continent. The report in this respect, it is said, will be entirely favorable.

Scarcely to be classed as merely "experimental," to the understanding of the average layman, at least, is the extensive planting that is being done in the syndicate nurseries in one portion of the holding. Here more than 100,000 infant trees of countless variety are now being cared for by expert horticulturalists, while thousands of others are being set out weekly. In all, it is estimated that fully 500,000 trees and shrubs will be required for the general planting scheme, these not including the stock to be set out for the beautification of individual estates.

MONUMENTAL EDIFICE.

New Episcopal Church at Santa Barbara Characterized by Substantiality of Construction.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA BARBARA, May 16.—Of the buildings recently completed in this city the new Trinity Episcopal Church at the corner of State and Micheltorena streets is probably the most noteworthy. The edifice, which was planned by Architects Hubert Frohman and Harold H. Martin of Pasadena, is Gothic in type and of monumental and enduring construction. The church cost in excess of $50,000.

The building is seventy-three feet in width and has a depth of 123 feet. The height within the nave is forty-five feet. A tower eighty feet high is a striking feature. The foundation and walls are of reinforced concrete. The exterior is faced with Santa Barbara sandstone and the interior with cement plaster and cement stone. Substantiality is the keynote of the construction and in this respect the structure is strictly in keeping with its medieval design.

BUY FRUIT LAND.

Harry Marshall of Colegrove has purchased twenty acres of land in the Nuevo Rancho subdivision of the James R. H. Wagner Company in the Lakeview-Hemet-Perris Valley section. The acreage is unimproved, but Marshall intends to have it cleared and leveled during the summer in preparation for planting deciduous fruit trees next fall. C. G. Edmonds of Los Angeles has bought ten acres of the same property, which will be set out to apricots at the next planting season.

WORK BEGUN ON TORRANCE BRIDGE.

NEW SPAN WILL FACILITATE FREIGHT SHIPMENTS TO AND FROM INDUSTRIAL CITY.

Construction work on the concrete bridge connecting with the union terminal at Torrance began yesterday. A gang of nearly 100, under the direction of the Pacific Electric contractors, was put to work, and from now on until the completion of the structure dirt will fly. The new bridge is intended to separate the freight from passenger traffic hereafter in Torrance to enable shippers to handle their freight through a union terminal plan which will be connected with the transcontinental railroads.

Of classical mission design, the bridge will be an important and ornate addition to the improvements of Torrance. The plan was prepared by Ralph Bennett, consulting engineer of the Dominguez Land Corporation. It will be of solid concrete, forty-two feet high by thirty-nine feet wide, and will accommodate main-line loading.

The work will be rushed in order that the rolled steel for the new Llewellyn Iron Works shops at Torrance may be hauled directly to the site of the plant. The presence of this bridge will enable the Llewellyn company to bring its materials directly from the harbor to its Torrance site.

CHURCH CONTRACT LET.

New Roman Catholic House of Worship at Redondo Beach to Be Started at Once.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, May 16.—J. I. Lechner of this city has been awarded the contract for the construction of the new St. James Roman Catholic Church of this place. The structure, which was planned by Architect Frank T. Kegley, Jr., of Los Angeles, will cost about $15,000.

The edifice will be 106x40 feet in size and will be faced with blue brick, the roof being of tile. The auditorium will have a seating capacity of 360. Construction is to be begun at once.

HOLLYWOOD ACTIVITIES.

Several Houses Recently Started on Kenmore Avenue in Holmby Tract. Easterner Buys Large Frontage.

A. T. Hays is improving six lots on Kenmore avenue, north of Hollywood boulevard, with two-story houses. Hays recently purchased the sites, which are in the Holmby tract, through Ralph E. Ford, manager of the house-and-lot department of the Janss Investment Company, for a reported consideration of $11,100.

Arthur Letts, Jr., has a fine home under construction on a 100-foot lot on the same street. On Alexandria street, in the same tract, L. M. Bartlett of New York City has purchased for a given price of $3200 two lots with a total frontage of 110 feet, and has announced his intention to build this summer.

BRENTWOOD PARK SALES REPORTED.

BUYERS OF SITES IN FASHIONABLE SEAWARD TRACT ANNOUNCE NEW BUILDINGS.

Wilhelmena Anderson, formerly of Minneapolis, has purchased a lot in Brentwood Park on the corner of Golden Gate avenue and Canyon drive.

The site has a frontage of 152 feet and is 205 feet deep. It faces west into Santa Monica Canyon and to the ocean. Plans for a Spanish bungalow of ten rooms are being drawn by W. S. Freeman, an architect of Santa Monica, and work on this place, it is said, will be started within thirty days.

V. A. Sagno has purchased another Brentwood Park lot at the corner of Lincoln drive and Grand boulevard, with a frontage of 100 feet and a depth of 348 feet. Sagno expects to build an eleven-room craftsman bungalow next fall. E. Charles Hamilton is preparing plans for this place.

The sales are reported by J. Albert Campbell of the Braly-Janss Company. Another transaction in the same residence subdivision, within the week, was the purchase by T. P. Burns from A. J. Warner of the latter's lot on Lincoln drive, between Euclid and Delaware avenues. The lot is 100x200 feet. Burns, it is stated, contemplates building during the summer.

EAGLE ROCK SALES.

Several Transfers Reported in Attractive Valley District—Local Firm Building Many Homes in Region.

The Edwards & Wildey Company reports recent sales of lots in Eagle Rock as follows: To Paul Haygood, lot in Harvard Park, with five-room bungalow, $2750; Fred H. Schauer of Santa Barbara, lot in Campus Park tract, $1200; B. Rey Schauer, 50x150 feet in Campus Park, $1200; Mrs. C. A. Hibbard, 50x150 feet in Campus Park, $1000; G. W. Strange, 100x125 feet in Douglas tract, $1000.

The construction department of the Edwards & Wildey Company is now building six houses under contract in various parts of Eagle Rock, and is preparing plans for the erection of the second series of ten bungalows to be built at once in Harvard Park, a bungalow subdivision adjacent to the new Occidental College grounds.

EXPECT BUSY SEASON.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BALBOA, May 16.—Two of the recent purchasers of real estate at this place were W. G. Lane of Los Angeles, who bought on Montera avenue for a bungalow site, and Mrs. Vida Baer, who bought a house and lot on Ocean Front at East Newport. The sales were made through the agency of W. A. Roberts. The people of Balboa are expecting a busy summer season. Many cottages and apartments have already been leased for the entire season.

Record of Development in Valley Oil Fields.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

M'KITTRICK, May 15.—That the "safety first" movement has gained a good foothold in the oil fields, is revealed by the fact that a system to provide greater protection against accidents, as well as to promote efficiency and to obtain suggestions as to the improvement in the operation of leases, is now in effect on the properties of the Kern Trading and Oil Company.

Some time ago the company conceived the idea of appointing a "committee of safety," composed of employees, the term of service to be three months, at the expiration of which time another committee would take up the work, thus having four committees each year. The duties of the committee are to inspect property, consider means for the betterment of the work carried on, and to submit reports to the local superintendent, accompanied by such suggestions as may be deemed requisite.

The superintendent and the members of the committee then discuss in detail the improvements recommended.

The plan has worked quite satisfactorily so far, and the men employed in the different fields appear to be much pleased with it and with the results.

In the McKittrick district, as well as elsewhere, the men in the service of the company have had regular drills to attain thorough efficiency in the conduct of a fire department, which on various occasions has rendered excellent service.

The Hondo Oil Company, on section 15, 31-22, in the North Midway district, is increasing steadily its operations in a territory notable for development during recent months. The company has nine wells finished and Nos. 10, 11 and 12 are ready for drilling, the rigs having been completed and all preparations made for starting active work. Well No. 8, one of the newest on the section, is producing daily about 100 barrels. The equipment of the lease is to be increased within a day or two by a 2000-barrel tank from the property of the Whittier Oil Company, in the Belridge district.

Supt. Charles G. Whittier of the Hondo is quite optimistic, not only as to the future of the Hondo, but also as to other properties in the vicinity.

The Jackson Oil Company is preparing to rig up a new well on its lease in the north end of the McKittrick field. The company will also perforate a well this week.

Well No. 7, on the lease of the San Francisco and McKittrick Oil Company is to be perforated this week. The company maintains its usual production.

The Jewett Oil Company, which has eight gas engines in operation on its lease in the McKittrick district, has decided to install three more.

The Kern Trading and Oil Company will soon drill three new wells, two on the Davis lease and one on the Buena Vista property.

PHENOMENAL FLOW INCREASES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TAFT, May 15.—The Lakeview gusher No. 2, which came in last Sunday with a phenomenal flow, has increased little by little till it now averages 35,000 barrels of 23 to 25 gravity oil per day. The oil is spouting 200 feet over the derrick and the entire neighborhood is covered with a fine petroleum spray. Hastily-constructed sumps are catching as much of the product as possible, but a great deal of the gasoline is lost. Rapidly as the pumps are working to carry off what oil is caught in the sumps, a large quantity is going to waste, spreading over the property.

The Lakeview No. 2 is the old No. 1 well of the Metropolitan Oil Company, deepened to 3012 feet. An effort will be made to cap the gusher.

Work on the Standard's million-barrel tank farm on section sixteen, between the Elk and Buena Vista Hills, is being rushed, and nearly half the tanks are now building. Ten of the twenty-nine holders are finished and foundations are now in place for three more. The company employs 200 men on the tank farm and the construction contract will necessitate the expenditure of over $1,000,000.

Much gas is in evidence and some oil is showing in well No. 1 of the Comstock Crude Oil Company, on section 34-12-23, on the Maricopa flat, which is down 3800 feet.

Officials of the Dominion Oil Company are much elated at the success in redrilling the No. 2 well, which, on the pump, now produces 200 barrels a day.

Most of the thirty miles of 8¼-inch pipe has been distributed along the route of the pipe line of the Producers' Transportation Company and over seven miles are underground. The new line runs between Olig and Junction, connecting with the main pipe line from Coalinga, to Port Harford. Over a hundred men are laying the pipe.

The proposed construction of the Royal Dutch-Shell pipe line is arousing much interest. Estimates place the amount of pipe necessary for the undertaking at 259,000 tons. Work on the tank farm is progressing rapidly.

Well No. 4 of the Midway Consolidated Oil Company, Ltd., on section 4-32-23, is to be cemented. Well No. 3 of the same company has finally been cleaned and will be cemented in a day or two.

Well No. 8 of the Security Oil Company, on section 15-31-22, was spudded in Tuesday and is now down about 400 feet.

For the fourth time the No. 26 well of the C.C.M.O. Company, on section 6-32-23, is to be cemented.

The Good Roads Oil Company, operating on section 12-11-24, has completed well No. 6. It is producing 250 barrels of heavy oil daily. No. 7 is being rigged up.

Encouraged by the success of well No. 2, which was drilled into the big sand last week, the Consolidated Midway Chief Oil Company will start to drill another well immediately on section 15-32-23.

A new rig is to be built next week for the Indian and Colonial Development Company on section 22-32-23.

GAINING GROUND IN ARGENTINA.

PETROLEUM INDUSTRY IS MAKING STEADY PROGRESS IN REPUBLIC.

"While the crude oil discovered is not what might be termed first class, new wells are being opened up almost every day in the Argentine Republic, and the output is steadily improving in quality," according to a statement made by Dr. A. Pardo, Consul-General of Argentina at New York. "Reports from Argentina show that the recent discoveries of petroleum in the republic are rapidly being developed, and the output is increasing," he said.

"Some time ago my government appointed a committee of engineers to operate the petroleum springs at Comodoro Rivadavia in the extreme southeast of the republic. The report concerning the future supply at that point was very optimistic. The government has installed modern machinery and appliances for operating the twelve wells now in existence, which average in depth 1690 feet, and which have an aggregate yield estimated at nearly 30,000 barrels per month.

"The government has reserved about 12,500 acres of oil lands, about 870 of which are now being exploited. A refinery is being installed, the principal business of which will be to eliminate from the crude oil the light essential oils in order to make the product adaptable for battleships. Eight private companies are also engaged in the petroleum industry in this section.

"The existence of petroleum in the northwest regions of Argentina, below the western slopes of the cordillera of the Andes, running between Chile and Argentina—more especially in the province of Mendoza and Jujuy, in the extreme north—has been demonstrated by recent investigations."

Menace.

WATER PROBLEM IS SERIOUS ONE.

PROPERTY WORTH MILLIONS MAY BE ENDANGERED.

That Carelessness in Handling Trouble Would Menace Twelve Million Dollars Oil Resources in Midway-Sunset Field Is Indicated by Bureau' Report.

That carelessness in handling the water problem in the oil fields of the Midway-Sunset district is likely to endanger some $12,000,000 of the oil resources of the State, is indicated by figures given in a bulletin recently issued by the State Mining Bureau.

"The great importance of systematic control of underground water is well illustrated in one particular portion of the Midway-Sunset field, where several operators are being injured and the oil resources of the State ruthlessly wasted. There are two known oil sands in this particular locality, both productive. There are water-bearing sands above the upper oil sand. When a well is drilled into the lower sand two extra strings of casing (about 2000 feet of eight-inch and 2500 feet of six-inch) should be inserted to keep the water out of the upper sand. The extra casing and labor may amount to $10,000 per well. Some operators have neglected or refused to drill their wells in this manner and have seriously damaged others whose wells are dependent upon the upper sand, because they are of too small diameter to allow deeper drilling.

"An approximate idea of the ultimate loss that will ensue, unless the top sand is protected may be gained from the following figures: A single well, at present producing, has, during the last three and a half years, produced almost 300,000 barrels of oil. Other wells, though not so large, should produce for a much longer time than three and a half years, and the figure is not an unreasonable one in assuming their total production. The upper sand extends over some 400 acres, and at five acres per well should supply eighty wells, or a total of not less than 24,000,000 barrels, or $12,000,000."

The water problem in the California oil fields has been one of the most serious of the physical character which has faced the operator, and a great deal of energy has been brought to bear upon its solution, with the result that remarkable advances have lately been made toward success.

There are sections of the fields which are badly water-logged, and which give producers no end of trouble in separating the oil from the water, or even in securing any oil at all. A large company which has had considerable difficulty with water in its wells is one of the California Petroleum Corporation subsidiaries. Last year this trouble was largely responsible for the cutting of the company's common dividend. These wells are in the Coalinga district.

TEST GETS SHOWING.

Currier Well at Pomona Encounters Oil Indications—Delayed by Repair Operations.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, May 15.—Former State Senator A. T. Currier, who is drilling for oil on his ranch property, is much encouraged over prospects. The well has been put down now to a depth of about 3100 feet and has a showing of oil.

Operations have been suspended temporarily by Supt. Collins, who is in charge of the work, because of two lengths of defective well casing which crumpled up at the bottom of the well and impeded progress. The casing has been removed and replaced by new string. Collins predicts that within a short time the Currier well will be producing oil in profitable quantities.

The well is located southeast of the Walnut station and Currier is financing the entire work. Many local people are keenly curious as to the results, for if oil is struck in paying quantities a boom will follow.

"Irish" Dividends.

Among the oil company assessments which will be delinquent this week are the following: Kramer Consolidated, ½ cent, Monday; Pure Oil, 1 cent, Monday; Newhall Mountain, 2 cents, Saturday; Midway Pacific, 1 cent, Monday; New Light, ½ cent, Wednesday.

VIEWS DIFFER ON MINING TAX.

State Commission Disagrees on Copper Queen.

Old Dominion Yield May Be Larger This Month.

Record of Development in Ore Districts.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) May 15.—It is reported that there is a difference among the members of the State Tax Commission, which has been making a personal inspection of the principal mines of Arizona, with a view to their proper assessment.

Chairman C. M. Zander and Commissioner C. R. Howe are of the opinion that 64,000 tons of ore on the Copper Queen dump at Bisbee should be assessed for $10 a ton; but Commissioner P. J. Miller is of the opinion that since the Copper Queen has already been assessed as a producing property, assessment of the dump ore would be double taxation. There is also a divergence of opinion concerning the assessment for the cost of engineering and construction of the new United Verde smelter at Jerome, which is nearly completed.

Last month's production at the Old Dominion plant was 2,757,000 pounds. Three furnaces have been running since the 1st of May and a material increase in yield is expected this month. The now famous basic converter shell at the Old Dominion works, that has been handling all the matte from the blast furnaces for about a year, thus far has turned out 27,000,000 pounds of copper without any repairs and still is in fine condition. This undoubtedly is the converter record in the Southwest. In the company's mill 500 tons of ore a day being handled.

At the new concentrator site, concrete foundations are being poured and installation of the machinery will start very soon. Fountains also are being poured for the oil flotation machinery. At the mine electric motors now are handling all ore on the 1200 level. A new big skip pocket is being placed on the 1600 level and a pump station being excavated on the 1800 level.

The Iron Cap Copper Company has doubled its holdings by the purchase of the Bird group of eleven claims, six of them patented. The group adjoins about all the good mines of the Globe section, and locally is considered very promising. This month the shipments of commercial ore from the Iron Cap are to be raised to one carload a day, because of a large deposit opened up on the 800 level.

It is believed that the lowest cost record for low-grade mining in Arizona was achieved last month by the Miami Copper Company, which laid its copper down in New York at an average of 8.6 cents per pound, a decrease of an even 2 cents from the average 1913 cost. Last year's high cost, however, is to be charged very largely to the cave-in that hampered production during the spring months. Improvements in the No. 6 unit of the Miami concentrating mill have resulted in a net saving of two pounds of copper per ton of ore, and the remaining units are to be remodelled with the same end in view.

The Miami Company mined 17,378 tons of ore in April, with a gross production of 3,375,000 pounds. New work underground totalled nearly 5000 feet, mainly in the Captain ore body. A new underground ventilating system is being installed.

In the Inspiration property, development of the main ore body above the 600 level has been begun, twelve vertical raises having been started. Ore bodies are being blocked out, for furnishing the immense tonnage that will be required this fall to feed the concentrator now under construction.

Some very rich chalcocite and carbonate ore in shattered formation has been developed in the Independence mine, at the edge of the Miami district, in the course of tunnelling into a hill which hitherto has been very inadequately explored.

BISBEE RESOURCES. MANY YEARS WORK.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BISBEE (Ariz.) May 15.—A local mining engineer has figured out that south of the main business section of Bisbee ore bodies have been developed on no less than 11,000 feet of mining claims, and it is estimated that not less than fifty years of active work is assured underground. Further, there is not the slightest doubt that the ore bodies continue southward, and some persons express the belief that the deposits at Cananea, fifty miles away, are on the same ore strike as that of Bisbee.

While ore of value has been discovered to the northward, the real mineralized zone of the district starts on the hillside above the city, where silver carbonate ores even now are being extracted after more than twenty years of exploration. Below these are the original open workings of the Copper Queen and then at the depth of only a few hundred feet, in the old Czar shaft, start the sulphides that have given the district such wonderful riches. These sulphides go deeper, step by step, in masses, rather than in veins, until they are being worked at more than 1600 feet of depth down in the Warren section.

It is not improbable that mining operations in Bisbee before many years will reach even the depths known in the Calumet and Hecla field of Michigan.

The Bisbee district is remarkable for the relatively high grade of its ores, no concentration having been done in the district, though the Copper Queen now is starting to build a large plant for working chalcocite that has been found outside of the sulphide ore bodies, in what used to be considered barren ground. The quantity of concentrate ore cannot be estimated, but it is not improbable that it will last fully as long as the smelting ore. So the permanency of Bisbee as a mining camp would seem well assured.

April was the best production month for the smelters at Douglas, the yield amounting to about 20,000,000 pounds of copper. While there was some decrease in the concentrates brought up from Nacozari, the increase came from the diversion to the Copper Queen smelter, of the Miami concentrates from the Cananea smelter, closed down on account of political conditions. It is understood that the Cananea furnaces will not resume handling the Miami output until some sort of settlement of the Mexican trouble.

Rich ore is being hauled to San Simon for shipment to El Paso from the Willie Rose mine, thirteen miles distant.

In Paradise camp, a rich lead-silver strike has been made on the Leadville property by G. A. Walker. A pay streak thirty inches wide, running over 50 per cent. lead has been found off the surface, about 100 feet northwest of the main shaft.

In the past, the Leadville has been the shipper of a large amount of rich ore, but has been doing little since 1910, when the California and Paradise Mining Company took a bond on the property and thereafter failed to find any ore of consequence.

FIND TALC AT EXETER.

Product of Exceptionally High-Grade Discovered in Tulare County. May Be Used in Manufacturing.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EXETER, May 15.—Exeter may have a valuable resource in the ledges of talc which have been found in the foothills near this city, and which are now under investigation by several manufacturing concerns.

While talc deposits are comparatively common in California it is stated that the local deposit is exceptionally pure and that it can be manufactured into the various toilet articles, for which the rock is used, without any chemical treatment.

Several sample shipments have been made during the past few weeks.

NEW MINING COMPANY.

IMPERIAL, May 15.—A gold mining company, known as the Monitor Queen Gold Mining Company has been formed, chiefly of men from Imperial. The company is capitalized at $250,000, and will begin immediately to open up mines close to the Arizona border. It is understood that only a limited amount of the stock of the company is to be sold.

New Era.

WORLD MARKET FOR OIL SOON TO BE REALITY.

Petroleum Trade and Pric es Soon to Assume Universal Aspect, as Result of Capital Investments, Opening of Canal, and Other Significant Developments. Business Is Still Largely Localized.

AS A DIRECT result of the concentration of the business into more powerful corporations' hands, the completion of the Panama Canal, and above all as a result of the remarkable increase in the extent and development of the industry, oil is soon to enter the class of products having a world market. Although in the matter of production area, the petroleum business is of world-wide extent, it has needed the added impetus of recent happenings to point the way for the industry to become a globe-circling one from the marketing standpoint.

The industry still to a great extent is localized in the matter of prices, but there is no doubt that with the enormously better facilities for ocean transportation, afforded by the opening of the canal, as well as because of the present vast investments of capital in the business, a more immediate relation will be established between the values, not only of California and Mexico and the eastern and southern portions of the United States, for instance, but with Europe and the Orient as well. A certain relation exists between the prices in different eastern sections, but the California market is unaffected by price changes which now take place east of the Rockies or in Mexico. They would have to be very remarkable indeed to make themselves felt.

Such is not the case for instance with a world-product like sugar, or copper, or steel, or many other commodities that are in widespread demand, and that are produced in many sections. The market for sugar in Los Angeles is dependent on the price in New York. The same is true of the relation between the New York and London markets for copper, or other metals. Coffee and cotton are in the ranks of world-products from a marketing standpoint.

One of the chief objections to a closer relationship between the eastern and the western oil-producing sections has been the long railroad haul across the Rocky Mountains, which has forbidden an interchange of products. Oil essentially is a product which is handled best over seas, in the broader field of the export trade. With Mexico, for instance, sea-transportation is now absolutely necessary for the marketing of the output, which total over 25,000,000 barrels last year.

California, of course, has had the benefit of a large demand along this coast, but the localized market has retarded price advances. With a larger field for export and better transportation facilities made available, as will be the case when the canal is completed, the ultimate future of the business from a standpoint of the oil man in this State takes on a promising aspect.

TO BE BENEFIT.

It may thus be seen that the transformation of oil into a world-product, as far as marketing is concerned, should react to the benefit of this State, provided, of course, Oklahoma and Mexico do not become menacing factors in the world trade on account of their over-production. For the present the latter is not to be feared, and the former is not sufficient of itself now to exercise a damaging influence on the world trade.

The chief reason for optimism in relation to the world market for oil, is the increasing uses to which the product is being put. "The oil industry throughout the world is attracting more attention than ever before," says the Wall Street Journal in a recent special article. "Reports of new oil concessions and discoveries are occurring almost daily. As one expert oil writer has remarked, this is the 'age of oil.'

"Oil is replacing coal. Locomotives are to an increasing extent using liquid fuel. The demand for oil as motor fuel has increased by leaps and bounds. Automobiles, once a luxury, now are a necessity. The internal combustion engine is gaining in favor for use by the merchant marine. And last, but by no means of least importance, is the cry for oil by the navies of the world."

The coming change will necessitate adjustments in the methods of doing business. The man who sets about selling a cargo of California oil will have to take note of what a cargo of similar oil is bringing in the New York market, or perhaps the London market, if he desires to obtain the best price for his product. The knowledge of the business which will be demanded from oil men in charge, will be more thorough in character, and they will need broader experience.

If California were the only large producing section in the world, the coming change would not make such a great difference on this coast, as it will now that the State has growing rivals in Mexico and Oklahoma, which may, one day in the near future, make the race close for the leading place in production totals.

NEARLY FIVE PER CENT.

Mexico's Importance in Relation to World's Petroleum Production Is Growing Steadily.

With the Mexican Eagle Company and the Mexican Petroleum Company again contributing near 90 per cent. of the total output, Mexican oil fields last year produced 4.71 per cent. of the world's production, according to figures given in the Year Book for 1914. The total output is estimated at 26,000,000 barrels, compared with 16,588,215 barrels in 1912.

From 1900 to 1906 the output averaged 1,000,000 barrels, so some idea of the remarkable increase in the product during the past few years may be gained from the figures given in the foregoing.

During 1913 development work in the oil fields was remarkable considering the unsettled co the country. It resulted in the ing in of several large wells in neighborhood of the Mexican Oil Company's great gusher at del Llano. Another interesting opment was that of the near Tampico.

Some idea of the advance have been made may be gained a comparison of the lands held or lease in the [illegible] region with those held in the States for oil purposes.

The entire area held in the States for oil and gas purposes was 5,322,363 acres. The ing area in the Tampico of Mexico at the present time proximately 5,000,000. individual companies Tampico region each hold a acreage than that owned by State of California.

WORK IN PLUMAS TO BE PUSHED.

[illegible] Not Deterred by Farmers' Objections.

[illegible] for Development in Copper Field.

London Syndicate Takes a Bond on Eureka.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, May 14.—Operators in the Plumas copper field are making arrangements for extensive work at their mines, despite transportation drawbacks and opposition on the part of the farmers to smelting. A movement has been launched to extend a branch railroad from the Western Pacific main line into the Lights Canyon and Genesee districts, and operating plans include concentration of the ore at the mines and shipment of concentrates to a smelter to be erected in Nevada. The Engel, [illegible], and several other companies have developed extensive reserves of rich copper ore, and operators are prepared to pledge to the railroad builders steady large shipments.

Some years ago the Engels Copper Company developed a large body of copper ore near Lights Canyon and built a small smelter. Immediately the farmers were stirred into action, and the company was prevented from operating its plant on the ground that the smoke would destroy vegetation. Undismayed by this trouble, the companies in the field prosecuted work with satisfactory results and are now determined to work the mines despite the handicaps imposed by the warring grangers.

The celebrated Union gold mine, [illegible] miles south of Placerville, has been taken under bond and option by [illegible] interests of San Francisco. The Union was one of the earliest properties developed on the mother lode, and contributed lavishly to the fortunes of Hayward, Hobart, Lane and other pioneer California mining magnates.

Fully $4,000,000 was yielded by the mine before its sale to Philadelphia parties, to whom it also contributed [illegible] gold. Litigation forced closing of the mine about seven years ago. It is developed to a depth of 1600 feet and is equipped with a sixty-stamp mill, air compressor and other machinery. In the old workings much ore is exposed, and the new operators are preparing to open the property to greater depth.

LONDON SYNDICATE.

Representing the Courvis & Co., Ltd., [illegible], of London, W. J. Neale, formerly a prominent operator in Mexico, has bonded the Eureka quartz mine near El Dorado, for $80,000. The mine yielded much rich ore in the upper workings, but was closed when the 750 level was [illegible] because of the low-grade character of ore. Large bodies of low-grade quartz are exposed, and the English capitalists are confident of their ability to work the mine on a [illegible] basis.

Neale for eight years had charge of the mining interests of Gen. Porfirio Diaz when the latter was President of Mexico. The Mexican revolution has caused many English companies to retire temporarily from the country and to turn their attention to the mining resources of California. About [illegible] big California mines have changed hands in the past four [illegible] as a direct result of the Mexican trouble, and the revolution is unquestionably benefiting California.

[illegible] A. Perdue & Co. of Boston have acquired the Royal Consolidated mine in western Calaveras county, for a reported price of $500,000. The property is one of the big mines of the state and is well equipped, the property including a large mill and cyanide plant. Formerly a large producer, it has lain idle many years because of trouble among the English owners. It is stated that comprehensive work will start within thirty days. The new operators are heavily interested in Utah properties.

The Alleghany-Forest district, Sierra county, is manifesting greater activity with the advent of good weather. [illegible] Bros. of Los Angeles, recently secured a renewal of their lease on the El Dorado, and a few days ago uncovered a pocket of gold quartz which yielded $6000. Some good ore is being mined in course of development and the small mill will be started shortly. A new compressor has been installed at the [illegible], and the twenty-stamp mill is ready for commission.

The North Fork Mining Company has uncovered a ledge in its Uncle Sam mine, and it is believed the long-lost Uncle Sam vein has been intersected. The ledge is three feet wide and the shoot twelve inches wide, bounded by schist. All development has been concentrated at this point and work is going forward at [illegible].

Work has been resumed at the Hardy mine and the new three-stamp mill placed in commission. On the [illegible] level the ore body is fifteen feet wide, with the pay shoot showing a width of six feet. The Hardy Kate Mining Company, composed of Visalia people, is arranging to resume [illegible] work. The property adjoins the Hardy.

Los Angeles capitalists are interested in the development of a promising [illegible] deposit at Iowa Hill, and are considering building an asbestos factory at Colfax. Numerous tests of the product have demonstrated it to be of very high grade, and especially suitable for the manufacture of fireproof material. Clarence Cunningham has perfected a process for economical treatment of the ore, and experiments are being made preparatory to the erection of a [illegible] plant.

[illegible] RESUME WORK.

Work has been resumed at the [illegible] mine, with W. L. Williamson in charge of operations. The property is located near Nevada City and is owned by San Francisco and Los Angeles people. It was formerly a big producer and is well equipped, and the owners are confident of again placing it on a dividend-earning basis. It has been developed principally by means of [illegible] workings.

The [illegible] Mining Company, operating the deepest incline mine in [illegible], has decided to erect a [illegible] near the mine at [illegible]. The ore will be crushed, [illegible] and concentrated, and the tailings stored in a gulch, where [illegible] is available to impound the tailings for twenty-five years.

The [illegible] Mining Company, partly controlled by Los Angeles people, has resumed work near Weitchpec, Siskiyou county. A small force is employed and the hill of gravel is being worked.

A 100-ton cyanide plant has been erected at the Waterman mine, near Barstow, and is proving its ability to handle the ore at a good profit. The company has developed large quantities of ore, but inability to effect a satisfactory gold recovery by usual means militated against success. It is now believed there will be no further trouble in this respect.

PLATINUM NEAR REEDLEY.

Showing of Valuable Metal in Ledge—Exploring in Hope of Finding Rich Deposit at Depth.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REEDLEY, May 15.—On the A. I. Powell ranch, near Reedley, there has been discovered a ledge of mineral deposit which may prove to be of large value. Assays of the mineral from the ledge show that it contains platinum. It may be that at depth the ledge will prove rich.

Tests which have been made of the samples thus far taken out show that it runs about $5 to the ton in values. A small drill is being sunk in the ledge to determine the extent of the deposit, and if the ore can be handled in large quantities, even the values thus far encountered may be made to pay handsomely.

CONSOLIDATED'S PRODUCTION IS HOLDING UP.

Jumbo Extension Profits Reveal Decline for April, as Company Did Not Go After Rich Stuff—Developments at Other Leading Properties in Camp.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) May 15.—Figures contained in the final reports for March and preliminary estimates for April, recently issued by the three foremost local companies, make it evident that the Goldfield district today has as promising a future as ever.

A. H. Howe, secretary and treasurer of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company, has just made public the preliminary estimate of the production and earnings of that corporation in April. It shows that the mines produced 28,215 tons of ore, from which a gross extraction of $324,000 was made. The operating expenses amounted to $171,000, leaving net profits of $155,000, which were approximately the same as during the previous month of March.

Jumbo Extension.

Vice-President Charles S. Sprague made public Tuesday the final report of the production of the Jumbo Extension Company for March and the preliminary estimate of earnings in April simultaneously. In March the gross profits amounted to $33,189.20, and the operating expenses to $10,851.67, leaving net profits of $22,337.53. Net profits for April, according to the estimate of Vice-President Sprague, will exceed $18,000.

The decline in the April profits, as compared with those of March, is explained by the fact that shipments from the mine during last month were made up entirely from ore extracted in development work, mostly in the newly-acquired Velvet claim, no stoping operations having been prosecuted.

The Jumbo Extension management recently paid the Goldfield Merger Mines Company the second installment, amounting to $20,000, on the purchase price of the Velvet claim, and under the terms of the deal the former is now permitted to proceed with the stoping of the ore bodies opened in the new territory.

Florence Goldfield.

Net profits of the Florence Goldfield Mining Company for March amounted to $22,776.77, according to a statement just issued by President A. D. Parker from his office in Denver, Colo. The mine produced during March 579.54 tons of ore of an average value of $59.27, or a gross value of $34,351.62. Miscellaneous earnings totaled $272.81, while the operating expenses amounted to $11,847.66.

According to General Superintendent Harry B. Clapp, the mine produced 915.7 tons of ore during April. To this tonnage can be added one carload of fifty tons of ore taken from an old dump.

The first ten carloads of ore extracted from the mine yielded an average value of $38.75 a ton. Settlement for the remainder of the shipments has thus far not been obtained.

Sandstorm-Kendall.

An idea of the potentialities of the property of the Sandstorm-Kendall Consolidated Mining Company is gleaned from a statement made Thursday by General Manager K. M. Simpson as to recent shipments from the property. He is authority for the statement that a carload of thirty dry tons of ore shipped two weeks ago yielded an average of $76 per ton. Since then two more carload shipments of thirty-five tons each have been dispatched from the mine. Manager Simpson stated that settlements for these two shipments, when obtained, will probably show an average value per ton of better than $100.

Atlanta Mines.

Unofficial reports are to the effect that highly pleasing results continue to be obtained in the exploration of the big vein revealed some time ago on the 1750-foot level of the property of the Atlanta Mines Company, in the long cross-cut from the St. Ives or main shaft of the Goldfield Merger Mines Company. This work is being watched with the keenest interest by Goldfield investors and the results being accomplished are demonstrating in no uncertain manner the possibilities of the district at depth.

Goldfield Oro.

The Goldfield Oro Mining Company is apparently nearing its goal. The work of cutting a stump cross-cut five feet above the bottom of the 825-foot shaft is nearing completion and it will be followed by the cutting of a station at the 810-foot point and the inauguration of drifting north and south to explore the vein that has been revealed. Conditions prevailing at present at the property are the most encouraging thus far encountered and the management is seemingly confident of an early discovery of importance.

NEW ANGLE IN APEX TANGLE.

Monarch Pittsburgh Company Is Reorganized.

President Buys Out the Vice-President.

Victor May Soon Enter Roster of Shippers.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TONOPAH (Nev.) May 15.—An outgrowth of the Jim Butler-West End apex litigation has been reorganization of the Monarch, Pittsburgh Mining Company, at the instigation of H. C. Brougher, president of the Monarch, who bought out the holdings of S. H. Brady, vice-president of the company, and installed Edward Erickson in the position of secretary and manager.

Thirty days ago, when the West End apex proceedings were under sharp discussion between Brady and Brougher, the latter, who is one of the largest stockholders in Butler, suggested to Brady that he would give him an option to buy or sell and clear the way for a change in the Monarch. This option was for fifteen days, and Brady did not choose to exercise it; as a consequence Brougher took over the Brady interests and placed his own men in the directorate. This is said to portend an aggressive campaign for active development, as it is understood that Brougher has taken in others who will see that money is forthcoming to place Monarch in the place where Brougher thinks it rightfully belongs as a promising prospect.

Brougher is one of the chief stockholders of the Butler, and his brother, who also owns 50,000 shares of Butler stock, will be vice-president of the Monarch. The change comes as a distinct surprise to the local public, as it was not dreamed that any serious fracture of business relations would occur between Brady and Brougher, even though they were on opposite sides in the litigation.

The Victor Mining Company has completed its deep shaft to the 1500-foot level and a crosscut was started for the purpose of disclosing the Murray ledge found in both Merger and Extension. It is estimated that within a week the ledge will be uncovered in this property.

The Victor is controlled by what is known as the "Kirchen crowd," with headquarters in Pittsburgh. There is scarcely a doubt but that the Victor will be the next to report, as another shipper, added to the roster of the camp.

Tonopah Extension has the Murray vein for a distance of 6000 feet, and the richness of this ore body can be estimated from the fact that the company has arranged to double the mill capacity, raising it to 200 tons daily as fast as the machinery can be delivered on the ground. The mill heads have been raised from $13 to $19, and the bullion shipments show the company is doing better than at any time in its history.

PROMISING MINE.

Rescue Eula has become another sensational mine of the promising kind, after having been worked for ten years without yielding anything or disclosing a pound of ore. Manager Chandler had his own ideas about the formation and when he took charge a year ago he said he would develop ore or quit the job. It is a singular coincidence that he opened ore just a week before his contract expired, and the ore is staying with the property.

The upshot of this also was a radical change in the plans of the company, by which James J. McQuillan was superseded as manager and Chandler installed as superintendent and manager. He thus gained absolute charge of the property, with instructions to operate it with the idea of placing it upon a self-sustaining basis and eliminating the assessments which have been coming pretty regularly every month. These have paid for exploration, but now it is hoped that Rescue will be enabled to turn out enough pay ore to meet all expense of developing it into a shipping property.

The ledge has widened out to seven feet, with values running all the way from $11 to $35, and giving an average of $25 for the entire width. If this is sustained the Rescue will rank with the best producers in the district, and there is every promise of maintaining the record. The ore will be sent to the MacNamara mill, which can handle a good deal more than has been passing under the stamps.

SECURE EXTENSION. FOR THOROUGH TEST.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) May 15.—It is reported that the Calumet and Arizona Company has secured an extension of two years on property now being worked by the corporation at Superior. While a number of rich ore kidneys have been cut, it is understood that nothing really important has been found, although there is every evidence of richness at depth, except the ore itself.

The company has been spending about $15,000 a month and will continue to spend at least that much, under the lease extension. Its main shaft is down 800 feet and drifting has been extended on several levels for hundreds of feet. Preparations—including the installation of a big pump station on the 800 level—are being made for sinking to a depth of 1500 feet.

Twenty stamps now are being operated on the ore of the Young Gold Mines Company at Goldfield, Ariz., about twenty miles east of Mesa, and the management intends to double the mill capacity in the near future. Most of the ores are coming from a quartz vein, five feet wide, on the 240 level although exploration in good ore is progressing on the 400 level. The cyanide plant is doing effective work and is saving most of the values missed in the mill.

J. J. Ormsbee of El Paso has taken charge of the Hayden smelter of the American Smelting and Refining Company.

A Los Angeles company has purchased of H. E. Woods the Bullion group near Bouse, for a cash consideration of $25,000. Another Coast company has purchased of Thomas Boyer for $20,000 a number of nearby copper claims. Josiah Winchester, in the same locality has sold his Desert Gold group, with a large cash payment. The Planet mines during the last three weeks have shipped five carloads of high-grade copper ore to the Hayden smelter.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

INQUIRIES FROM AND ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[SPECIAL CONTRIBUTION.]

Not Meteorite.

SOLDIERS' HOME (Cal.) April 22.—Q.: Herewith please find a stick pin containing a cabochon of an unknown and unnamed mineral. Perhaps you can tell me what it is. You seem to have a knack of finding out things. I found the bit of meteorite, out of which this cabochon was cut, on Long Mountain, not far from Alamogordo, N. M., while in the employ of the General Land Office, as special agent, about fifteen years ago. I supposed it to be some form of iron and sent it to my lapidary in Denver, Colo., to have it cut and mounted. The piece originally measured about three-eighths by five-eighths by one-quarter inches, with smoothly melted edges, and the entire surface covered with fine fissures such as is shown on some oriental crackle-ware; much finer, perhaps, and showing surface incandescence while passing through our atmosphere. The lapidary could not name the mineral, but some years ago while in Washington, D. C., I called at the Smithsonian Institution and Mr. Wirt Tassin, the mineralogist, though not certain as to its real nature, which he said could not be determined except by analysis, which might ruin the gem, gave it a scientific name which I have forgotten. When I ased him as to its value, he said that could not be fixed because it would be sentimental largely, but had I offered it to him before it was spoiled by cutting, he would have got me at least $500 for it as a rare cabinet specimen.

M. P.

A.: It is a very great pleasure to hear from you. While, perhaps, you cannot recall the name of the writer it may be stated that each and both of us are members of the "Society of the Oregon," Washington, D. C., and members of a certain lodge; at which lodge we have fraternized often.

Naturally the gem cannot be given a positive mineralogical name without an analysis (chemical.) It is not meteoric iron, for the reason that it has no effect on the magnetic needle. It is not pyroelectic; and from the under side of the gem a very strong microscope shows evidence that the sample is probably of meteoric origin.

The meteorite from which you obtained the substance was composed chiefly of iron, and it was malleable.

Exclusive of meteoric iron there are well-known meteoric minerals, such as apatoid, chantonnite, chladnite, dyslytite, iodilite, howardite, olivinoid, partschite, schreibersite or shepardite and sphenomite.

Many of these minerals we have personally obtained from the locality of the Canyon Diablo meteorite, Arizona, and from the locality where the Howell meteorite landed in earth between Littletown and Gettysburg, both towns of and in the State of Pennsylvania.

A remarkable detail about this Howell meteorite is the fact that its earthly resting place carried quite a percentage of limonite (hydrous iron oxide,) and this oxide mingled with the molten mass of the meteorite and formed quite a number of impure iron oxide scales in which nickel is present. We have many of these scales in our collection, and there is not a trace of nickel in the low grade iron oxide at the Pennsylvania locality stated.

Concluding on this stick pin: It is more than probable that the stone is a mixture of olivinoid and of schreibersite: "Prof. Lawrence Smith states that all of the meteoric stones found in America contain schreibersite," and we have detected olivinoid in the sample.

Quartz.

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—Q.: Enclosed sample is from a vein about three feet wide, and located in San Diego county. Approximately, what per cent. silica will it show? What is it worth per ton on cars? F. T.

A.: The sample carries 94.50 per cent. silica. It is probably worth $1.75 per short ton f.o.b. cars.

Iron Oxides.

SANTA ANA, April 24.—Q.: I send to you today by parcel post a mineral specimen which I wish you to test for molybrenite. There is a big ledge of it in Bullion range, San Bernardino county. Whatever it may be, what commercial value has it, if any? The sample is marked with my initials. F. A. M.

A.: There is no molybdenite present in the sample. The specimen carries iron oxides chiefly limonite and hematite,) with manganese. Hematite (variety micaceous iron ore) is probably the substance that is taken by you to be molybdenite.

It is not possible to place a value on this ore. Value it undoubtedly has, but a smelter near at hand is the only means by which the ore could be utilized.

Rocks.

SANTA BARBARA, April 26.—Q.: Am sending you in separate package a few rocks from one ledge found in this county. Kindly inform me through the "In the Earth" column what the samples contain.

Your readers, K. I.

A.: Glad to hear from you. In some of the samples pyomorphite occurs very sparingly, indeed. The rocks are chiefly aluminum silicate, and the smalt-blue color (stains) on the rock is occasioned by one other aluminum silicate known as dumortierite.

Platinum a Trace.

PORTLAND (Or.) April 26.—Q.: Herewith sample from near Cle Elum, Wash. Does the sample react for platinum? G. C. W.

A.: Platinum trace is in the specimen.

By-Product.

NATIONAL SOLDIERS' HOME (Cal.) April 27.—Q.: I recently saw your report on oil shale (paraffine base,) from Colorado. For several years I have been working and experimenting with a large deposit of it situated on a trunk line railroad in Utah. Do you know that the residue makes a first-grade cement? The 457 volatile matters contained in the shale will furnish the requisite heat for roasting. At the deposit, with which I am so familiar, there are many thousands of tons lying near the railroad, above water line, and but one cement works in a radius of 300 miles. What more is needed for a good industry? The deposit is on government land. There is also, near the locality, a large field of marine formations, shells of many kinds, and including many fishes; you cannot put a pick in the deposit without hitting shells. In part the formation is almost solid, and most of the shells are quite friable. In your opinion could a phosphate industry be opened? I am an old miner since 1864, and mostly operating in the fields of the West. In closing, I may add that I had bricks made from this paraffine residue; had them made in Los Angeles, and they stand, in textile strength, 2,000. Any information you can give me in this matter will be most thankfully received.

W. H. H.

A.: Glad to hear from you, and we are glad to bear witness to the truth of your statements, from personal visits to the localities of paraffine shale, in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming.

There are immense deposits of this shale, and the chief one of all is in the De Beque locality, a station on the Colorado Midland Railroad, in Colorado.

The knowledge that this shale was located on government land, in the States referred to, was probably the main cause why the late David H. Moffatt built the "Moffatt Railroad," in the face of threats from certain Napoleons of finance who hail "N' Yawk," as their domicile and field of operations.

There is not a place in the world that can compare with the many hydrocarbons that are now nesting at the localities stated. Phosphate rock is near at hand. The ores of radium and of vanadium are there situate, with here and there good mining deposits of iron, gold, lead, silver, copper, zinc, bismuth, tungsten ores, coal and oil.

Some of the owners are not working the deposits, and they are after "more land." They were using their "infloocence" with Congress in the hope of creating a corner in the market relating to the ores of radium and of phosphate rock. The foundation of radium salts rested on the flimsy theory that they would be a specific for certain malign tumors (cancer) and the theory, having been scientifically proven false and untrue, these benignant and charitable Napoleons not desiring to corner the cancer cure (?) at this time, will naturally permit the radium ores to rest in peace.

Your point on cement is correct; cement can be made from the residue of paraffine shale, and no notice taken of the many other by-products.

Ores of Lead.

GILA BEND (Ariz.) April 27.—Q.: Under separate cover I am sending you three samples of ore. I wish to learn something about these ores which occur at a locality within forty-five miles of Gila Bend. I am an assayer and have recently returned from the locality. From the gray rock I can obtain lead, but there is no observable galena in the samples. What (mineralogically) do the yellow spots consist of observable in No. 1? No. 2 also carries lead, and what? No. 3 would astonish any one making a fire assay, and notwithstanding its copper color, all I can get from it is lead. Thanking you for your expected help in advance, etc.

"ASSAYER."

A.: Glad to hear from you. Sample No. 1 is a handsome variety of pyromorphite, and the "yellow spots" you refer to are those of chlorophosphate of lead.

Pyromorphite is a somewhat rare mineral, and it is, at times, thrown on the mining dumps as "no good, sulphur spots only." The mineral in the samples is crystallized in regular six-sided prisms, and some of the forms are botryoidal; it is of resinous luster, streak white, (some samples show streak of yellow,) fracture somewhat conchoidal; hardness 3.7, sp. gr. 6.60. In this pyromorphite over 80 per cent. lead oxide is present.

No. 2 is a compound of barium sulphate and cerussite (massive) lead carbonate is present. No. 3 is a typical specimen of smalt-blue aluminum silicate (dumortierite.)

Black Marble.

MOJAVE, April 30.—Q.: I found a thin ledge of rock like sample. Will you please tell me about this. I never run into ore like it. It may be a rare mineral. H. K.

A.: Black calcite (lime carbonate,) is a somewhat rare substance. If the ledge were big enough there would be a ready sale for the output in Los Angeles and elsewhere.

Radium Mines.

MAN'S POCKET WOULD HOLD ANNUAL OUTPUT.

Price Ranges from $120,000 to $160,000 Per Gram. But Four Mines in the World, Two in the United States—Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, Director of Bureau of Mines, Thinks There Is Already a Monopoly.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Forty-three carloads, or 2140 tons, of radium ore were mined in the United States during the year 1913. From that large mass of incrusted sandstone about fifteen grams of radium bromide were manufactured.

A gram of radium bromide is the size of a garden pea. So the two trainloads of mustard-colored ore, the richer half of which was loaded on ships at Galveston and sent to Europe, contained no more radium in bulk than easily could have been carried in a corner of one's watch pocket.

The radium was instantly sold for $120,000 a gram, which means something like $3,720,000 an ounce. A troy pound of radium, at the present quotation, would bring $45,785,000. The purchase of seven pounds—if there were that much in the world—by Andrew Carnegie would probably take his whole fortune.

Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, the eminent geologist and the director of the National Bureau of Mines, says there are no more than fifty grams, or one ounce, of radium in use by American and European physicians and surgeons. Two grams of radium bromide are in the hands of a few surgeons in the United States. The remaining twenty-eight grams are in England, France, Germany and Austria. Practically all of it was extracted from ores mined in this country.

Army and navy doctors here have asked for ten grams. The Public Health Service has asked that twenty grams be distributed among its twenty-one national hospitals. Every large hospital in every city, it is declared, ought to have a supply of radium. But where can it be obtained? Europe is an active and persevering bidder in the radium market. Physicians and governments alike are energetically attempting to procure quantities of this strange new chemical element.

THE RICHEST MINES OF ALL.

The greatest known fields of radium-bearing ores are in Colorado and Utah. It has been estimated by private mineralogists that the deposits in those two States will yield 900 grams. Scientific men connected with the Bureau of Mines have said, however, that the total production in the entire American field will not exceed 180 grams, or, approximately, six ounces.

Meanwhile the price of radium remains at $120,000 a gram, and offers of $160,000 have been made though the cost of production, Dr. Holmes thinks, is hardly more than $30,000 a gram. Will the value of radium go up or will it come down? And have men and corporations organized a monopoly, hoping to grow rich through human suffering and the sacrifice of many human lives?

The figures of Dr. Holmes show that 75,000 persons die annually in this country from cancer and that there are 200,000 cases of cancer every day in the year. "And radium," he added, "is the best cure for certain types of the disease."

But this article is not to deal with the uses of radium, except incidentally. Instead, the unique history of the metal as an American industry will be related. Radium, as all persons know, perhaps, throws off energy. Electric energy is continuous, that is, its radiations are in unbroken flashes. Radium energy, however, is emanated in short, unattached dashes as though it were jumping up and out into the atmosphere. Strange to say, the energy so emitted can be gathered and stored. It is claimed by scientific men that this regular flow of energy from a tiny piece of radium will continue at least for 2000 years.

"Radium," Dr. Holmes said in the interview he gave me, "is found principally in carnotite ore. Thirty-three years ago Andrew J. Talbot found some of the ore in Colorado. Nothing was then known, you understand, about radium, which was not to be discovered until 1898 and then by Madam Curie, the Polish chemist and physicist. Talbot shipped samples of the ore to Leadville and was notified that it carried $5 a ton in gold. The carnotite ore now mined, let me say, does not show any trace of gold.

HOW CARNOTITE GOT ITS NAME.

"In 1896 two men, Gordon Kimball and Thomas Logan, sent specimens of the ore to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington and were informed that it contained uranium. For a ten-ton shipment to Denver they received $2700 because of its uranium content. The following year, 1897, Mr. Kimball gave samples of the ore to Charles Poulot, a French chemist residing in Colorado. In 1899, Mr. Poulot shipped a small quantity of the new and mysterious ore to France, where it was examined by Friedal and Commong. The Paris chemists, recognizing the existence of a strange metal, named the ore carnotite, in honor of Adolph Carnot, a famous French mineralogist.

"The first published notice that carnotite contained radium appears to be an article in the Engineering and Mining Journal of the issue of September 29, 1902. Stephen L. Lockwood of Buffalo, N. Y., was the author of the article. He had found that a photograph could be obtained with carnotite without the aid of a camera.

"A glass photographic plate, covered with two sheets of black paper can be laid on a table in the evening," Dr. Holmes went on to say, "and if a key or a coin is placed on the paper, directly under a chunk of carnotite or pitchblende, which may be kept off the key or coin by matches, there will be a photograph on the plate the next morning. Such, in brief, was Mr. Lockwood's discovery. It was not long before quantities of carnotite were being shipped from Colorado and Utah to Europe.

"The earliest shipments of carnotite abroad, however, were because of the uranium they contained. Exportations continued—even after the ores were desired for radium, as well as for uranium and vanadium—until 1913, when radium in commercial quantities was first produced in the United States. Vanadium, I might say, is employed principally as an alloy in steel to increase its toughness. Steel so treated is manufactured into piston rods, automobile

RADIUM BATHS IN AUSTRIA.

"Uranium salts have long been used to give the beautiful color known as 'opalescent' and to give pottery brilliant fireproof tints of yellow, orange and black. Radium, as every one knows, is used in scientific research and in medicine. The Austrian government has established baths in connection with its radium mines at St. Joachimstall, the water from the mines, so it is claimed, being especially efficacious in the treatment of subacute and chronic rheumatism of the joints and muscles, and for gout, diabetes and neuralgia. I am not a physician, however, and give no opinions of my own concerning the curative properties of radium.

"It is my opinion nevertheless that enough has been done to show that radium should have the fullest investigation by our highest scientific and medical men. Physicians and surgeons in this country who have had the largest personal experience in the use of radium are the most enthusiastic over its future application. But I would warn the public against exploited nostrums, some of which do not contain any radium whatever. At $120,000 a gram, radium, it should be understood, is the dearest thing in the world.

"But we were talking about carnotite," Dr. Holmes continued. "Radium is found with uranium minerals only, and wherever uranium exists radium will be discovered in association. If ore contains no uranium, it is useless to look for radium. Carnotite and pitchblende are the only substances which yield radium. Carnotite is a lemon-colored mineral and ordinarily lies in pockets of sandstone deposits. It may be in the form of light yellow powder lying between or attached to the grains of sandstone, or in the form of yellow incrustations in the cracks and joints of the sandstone. Pitchblende is a hard blue-black ore. It is found in pockets and veins, but is not nearly so widely distributed as carnotite.

RADIUM BROMIDE, CHLORIDE.

"There is a small deposit of pitchblende in the northwest corner of Bohemia, the property, by purchase, of the Austrian government. Four grams of radium bromide, it is said, will be extracted from these ores during the year 1914. Radium bromide, I should explain, contains 58.6 per cent. radium metal and radium chloride 76 per cent. Radium, as an article of commerce, is usually sold in combination with bromide and chlorine because in such forms it is more readily reduced and transported.

"Radium bromide and radium chloride are sold on the basis of the radium metal they contain. The prices, therefore, are approximately $120,000 per gram of radium metal as contained in radium bromide or radium chloride. The quotation of $120,000 a gram for radium metal is equivalent to $91,000 a gram for radium chloride, or $70,000 a gram for radium bromide.

"There is also a small supply of low-grade pitchblende in Cornwall, Eng," Dr. Holmes continued. "It is found in mines producing tin. These deposits, it is thought, will yield six grams of radium bromide in 1914. The carnotite ores of Australia will probably yield one and one-tenth grams of radium bromide. Then Portugal may produce one and a half grams. The total possible production of radium bromide from European and Australian fields will amount, therefore, to twelve and six-tenths grams. American ores sent to France will produce about twenty-four and six-tenths grams during the present year, as against a total production of fifteen grams in 1912.

"The supply will be only a small fraction of the quantity in demand. Our own army and navy surgeons, as I have said, want ten grams, and the Public Health Service has asked for twenty grams. Our large hospitals ought to have 200 grams.

"Obviously, the world must depend on the United States for its main supply of radium. The richest deposits of carnotite ore, as I have stated, are in Colorado and Utah. About 1000 claims have been staked off so far. A claim is 1500 feet long by 300 feet wide, being ten acres in area. Perhaps no more than 150 of the claims are reasonably good. Many of them were bought by a few corporations at prices ranging from $50 to $200 each.

IS RADIUM MONOPOLIZED?

"The Standard Chemical Company of Pittsburgh owns 140 claims, Thomas F. Curran and associates own seventy-eight claims, the International Vanadium Company of Liverpool, Eng., owns sixty claims; the Colorado Carnotite Company owns twenty-three claims, the Radium Company of America and W. L. Cummings each own from twenty to twenty-five claims, and the Crucible Steel Company and the National Radium Institute each own sixteen claims. Engineers employed by the Denver Chamber of Commerce, experts in the Bureau of Mines, and members of the Geological Survey say that all of our deposits of carnotite have been located.

"The carnotite districts in Colorado and Utah are about 480,000 acres in extent. They are the regions where pockets, often having no more than fifty tons of marketable ore apiece, are likely to be uncovered. The pockets are not connected by stringers, and there is no evidence of vein formation. One pocket does not mean that other pockets are in the same vicinity. A committee of experienced Colorado engineers has reported that carnotite 'is mined in small and erratic pockets and should be carefully sorted by hand, so that approximately five to ten tons must be mined for every ton shipped.'

"Ore from the claims of the Standard Chemical Company, the Radium Company of America, and the Crucible Steel Company is being treated in the United States, while the ore from 200 other claims is being shipped to Europe. There have been no unusual profits so far to the producers of carnotite. Detailed accounts have not been kept showing the cost of production, but our experts estimate that getting the ore out and sorting it by hand ranges from $20 to $30 a ton, to which must be added $2 for powder and wear of tools, $4 for bags, $20 for hauling, and $14.50 for freight from the railway station to Galveston and thence to Hamburg, Germany, or Liverpool, Eng.

"I would say that the cost of ore to the miner on the docks of Hamburg or Liverpool is $70.50 a ton. If the miner prefers he can sell his 2 per cent. ore for $80 a ton, loaded on cars, at Placerville, Colo. Prices for radium ores depend on the amount of uranium they contain. Two per cent. carnotite means that the ore will yield that quantity of uranium. Four per cent. ore would bring a little more than twice the price of 2 per cent. ore.

THE MINER DOES NOT GET RICH.

"It is impossible to tell what high grade ores will fetch in a market filled with bidders. A recent sale of 13 per cent. carnotite was at the rate of $819 a ton. But even at $80 a ton at the point of shipment in Colorado the miner will fall far short of becoming a millionaire. His ore, as I have described, is found in small quantities. It must be slowly sorted by hand. Often it is sent by pack train to the nearest wagon road. Most of the carnotite deposits are from ten to eighty miles from a railroad and the ore must be hauled the whole distance by mules. The profit is not in finding and digging the ore, but in extracting the radium contained in the ore.

"A producer of carnotite may obtain $95 a ton for his ore when it reaches Hamburg. I have shown that the ore stands him $70.50 a ton laid down on the docks of that city. A margin of $25 looks big. And it would be large were the miner enabled to load a vessel. But his shipments are small and his supply is always uncertain. We have found that $95 a ton for Colorado ore in the market of Germany or England amounts to only one-sixth of the actual value of the radium contained in the ore. In other words, the manufacturer pays $95 for $510 worth of radium.

"Will the price of radium fall? you ask. No one can answer that question. The future demand for radium will depend very largely on the successful use of the mineral for medical purposes. If it can be demonstrated to the satisfaction of the medical profession as a whole that radium has a decided value in any one disease, the demand will not only equal the present supply, but will equal any supply that is likely to come into the markets of the world.

CAN RADIUM CURE RHEUMATISM?

"Should it be proved, for example, that treatment with the radium emanation—with the energy thrown off by the mineral—is the best for rheumatism—since one gram of radium chloride is enough for treating only 170 persons continuously—it can be seen that no likely supply in the immediate future could equal the demand. Radium, of course, is not consumed. It does not wear out. A gram extracted this year, therefore, is a permanent addition to the stock on hand.

"American hospitals have been trying to buy radium in Europe—radium manufactured from our own ores—and have failed to obtain any, although offers of $160,000 a gram have been made in some instances. A large hospital should have five grams. So far, American hospitals and surgeons have only succeeded in purchasing two grams. The indications are that a radium monopoly has the market pretty well in hand. I will go further and say that it seems to me, with the information I possess, that monopolistic control of the radium industry actually exists.

"There are four radium extracting plants in the world—one in England, one in France, and two in the United States. The English company, which began work in 1910, has a plant in Liverpool and expects to manufacture three grams of radium bromide this year. It owns sixty carnotite claims in Colorado and Utah. Ores for this concern are purchased in the open markets of the United States and the American agent of the company has said that he has enough under contract to run the plant for fifty years.

The two American radium extracting works are located in Pennsylvania. Neither of the companies had produced so much as two grams of radium up to January 1, this year. Their managers say, however, that their joint production in 1914 will be from thirty-two to thirty-six grams of radium bromide. They are treating, as I have said, their own ores. Thirty-six grams of radium bromide, at the present quotation of $70,000 per gram, would amount to $5,520,000, a very large part of which sum would be clear profit.

WOULD STOP ALL SPECULATION.

"I have thought that the national government should control the radium situation in the United States. The best known carnotite claims are now in private hands. Many of the claims are owned by corporations; many more are owned by individuals. I have believed that ore now offered in the open market should be purchased by the government and the radium extracted at a national manufacturing plant. If radium is the best and perhaps only cure for certain diseases it should not be made an article of private exploitation and speculation. Its tremendous cost puts it out of the reach of nearly all our people.

"National governments in Europe, rich radium institutes, municipalities, as in Germany; radium banks, wealthy hospitals and speculators are buying what little manufactured radium there is in the world and are holding on to it. The Austrian government has spent $600,000 for the purchase and development of the radium-bearing ore deposits in Bohemia. Everywhere men and countries are scrambling for all the radium in sight. The United States, with the richest carnotite resources on earth, ought to do all that is possible to prevent a monopolization of radium and to break up any monopoly that may happen to exist.

"The processes for extracting radium from carnotite and pitchblende are supposed to be secret. The public, at all events, is not permitted to enter to the two American plants. Yet the fundamental principles for extracting radium are known to all experienced chemists. Mr. Lockwood of Buffalo received 500 pounds of rich, hand-sorted ore from Utah in June, 1902. His experiments with the ore caused him to organize the first American company for the production of radium. The carnotite deposits where he obtained his raw material were so lean in radium, however, that he abandoned the enterprise.

"Chemists and mineralogists in the Bureau of Mines have worked out a process for extracting radium at our little laboratory in Denver. We can produce radium bromide or radium chloride and can supply hospitals with either at prices far below present quotations. The only difficulty we can see is a scarcity of the raw material."

To The Readers of the Times

Dear Readers:

We wish to have a heart to heart talk with you in regard to a proposition of interest to both you and the writer.

The new Normal School of Los Angeles, costing some $750,000, is located at Vermont and Melrose Avenues. There will be several hundred teachers and many hundreds of families who will send their children to the Normal School. It is also proposed by the School Board of Los Angeles to build a new High School at Vermont and First Avenues.

Located at the corner of Melrose and Normandie, and within four blocks of these two important institutions, we have platted the most beautifully located tract called ''Ardmore Heights.'' We are not giving away free lunches, free carfares or souvenirs in order to sell this tract, but we are selling the most beautiful lots in the North Wilshire District at prices which are right and terms to suit the purchaser.

We are interested in having you see the property, and if you are interested in this location, we can convince you that the property we are selling is worth the money and that the location is such that you and your families will enjoy living there. To reach this property take the Heliotrope Drive car going South on Broadway and West on Seventh Street, and get off on Normandie. These cars run every four minutes during the busy part of the day.

Come out Sunday and have a talk with us. Bring as many of your friends as you can, and see the most beautiful view that there is in Los Angeles. If you prefer we will take you out in our automobiles, if you will telephone to our office--Telephones Home 10695 and Main 695--and we will arrange to take you out and show you the property.

Hoping that we will see you at Ardmore Heights next Sunday, we remain,

Respectfully yours,

MILITARY RULE IS UNDISPUTED.

Troops Part of Daily Life in Southern Colorado.

Operators and Strikers Seek Col. Lockett's Advice.

Soldiers' Camp Made as If for Lengthy Stay.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TRINIDAD (Colo.) May 16.—Little by little the Southern Colorado strike district is accustoming itself to the rule of United States troops. With general military headquarters at Trinidad and with detachments, large or small, scattered through Los Animas and Huerfano counties, the soldier has become a part of the daily life of the citizen. Martial law has not been proclaimed, but in affairs relating to the industrial war the will of the military is undisputed.

The army officers, whose training has made them expert in dealing with unusual and difficult situations, have set to work vigorously to restore the strike district to normal conditions. In this, they often find themselves in positions widely different from the accepted life of a military man.

Col. James Lockett, at his headquarters in the Trinidad City Hall, is the man to whom coal operators, strikers and citizens look for guidance, advice and if need be, commands. Similarly, each captain or lieutenant in charge of some remote post becomes the adviser and confidant of the community.

Dozens of times a day the officers are approached with every manner of request. The man who wants protection from real or imaginary enemies; the striker, who has a complaint against a coal company employee or a militiaman; the high official of a big corporation—each seeks out the army officer and tells his story.

A corpulent and important business man in an outlying district held a conference with the officers in charge of the nearest military camp. At the conclusion of the visit, at which the civilian had talked much of the enemies, who had sworn vengeance upon him, the officer said:

"Do you need any protection? I will send a soldier over to your house tonight if you are afraid."

"Afraid," thundered the fat man. "Me afraid? Why, I don't know what fear is. You could put ten of these fellows together and I could lick them with my bare fists."

Late that night the telephone in the officers' tent tinkled. A small, mild voice, still recognizable as that of the visitor of the afternoon, came from the other end of the wire:

"Is this Lieut. Blank? Say, I wish you would send a soldier—or two or three or a dozen—over to my house right away. I'm afraid to go to sleep."

A trooper was routed out of his tent and sent over to protect the man who could whip ten bloodthirsty enemies with his bare fists.

Numerous odd incidents were connected with the disarmament of civilians in the disturbed districts. When a strapping countryman toiled into a military camp, lugging a tiny .22 caliber target gun, he usually was sharply questioned. A little detective work frequently brought out the fact that he possessed a business-like high-powered rifle or a couple of six-shooters.

Uncertain as to the length of their stay at Colorado, the soldiers have made their camps in the thorough-going manner for which the army is noted. At one place a young mountain goat has been adopted as a mascot and has free run of everything, even the tent of the commanding officers. The soldiers at a camp north of Trinidad have built a pavilion, the roof thatched with pine branches.

REPORTS ON WAGES AND CONDITIONS.

Timely Bulletins from All Parts of the World.

The money wages of American farm labor increased 2.5 per cent. during the past year and 11 per cent. during the past four years. In the twelve years since 1902 the increase has been 26 per cent. These figures are based upon reports made to the Bureau of Statistics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Wages of farm labor tended upward during the decade of the seventies, they were almost stationary during the eighties, and declined from 1892 to 1894, since which time they have steadily tended upward. Farm wages now, compared with such wages during the eighties, are 55 per cent. higher; compared with the low year of 1894, they are now 67 per cent. higher.

The current average rate of farm wages in the United States, when board is included, is by the month, $21.38; by the day, other than harvest, $1.16; at harvest, $1.57. When board is not included the average rate is by the month, $30.31; by the day, other than harvest, $1.50; by the day at harvest, $1.94.

The premium of harvest wages over ordinary day wages on the farm is gradually lessening. Thirty years ago wages at harvest averaged nearly 60 per cent. higher than wages at other than harvest time; twenty years ago the premium was 42 per cent.; ten years ago, 35 per cent.; and last year, 33 per cent. Perhaps this is due in part to improved labor-saving harvest machinery and in part to an improved system of farming by which the labor demand is more evenly distributed through the year.

The money wages, when board is furnished, is 30 per cent. less than when board is not included; that is, nearly one-third of what a farm hand earns is charged to board. This ratio has not changed materially in the past thirty years, though wages have measurably increased. In the farm hand's case increased wages have kept pace with increased cost of living.

Farm wages in different sections of the United States vary widely, averaging highest in California and the other far western States, and lowest in the South Atlantic States. For instance:

Highest State average, $56.50, is thus seen to be 3.2 times higher than the lowest rate, $17.90.

This wide difference in the wage rates in different sections of the United States is gradually lessening. In seven investigations made between 1866 and 1881 the average of wages of farm day labor (without board) in California and the other far western States (where wages were highest,) was 160 per cent. higher than in the South Atlantic States (where wages were lowest;) whereas in seven investigations made since 1898 the western States averaged 110 per cent. higher than the South Atlantic, and in the past year they were only 90 per cent. higher.

Farm Wages Increased Faster Than Factory Wages.

The money wages of farm labor have increased relatively more than wages for labor in factories during the past twenty to thirty years. A comparison of the average of wages per employee in manufacturing industries, as reported by the censuses of 1910, 1900 and 1890, indicates that the wages of such employees increased 22 per cent. in ten years (1900 to 1910,) and increased only 28 per cent. in the twenty years (1890 to 1910;) the increase in farm labor wages were 37 per cent. in the ten years and 55 per cent. in the twenty years. This relative gain of rural upon urban wages tends to check automatically the movement from the country to city.

Farm Wages Abroad.

Wages of farm labor have been increasing rapidly, not only in the United States, but in most, if not all, other countries of the world. In the central agricultural region of Russia the wage per day paid to male labor for the years 1901-1905 averaged 34 kopecks (17.5 cents) at sowing time, 50 kopecks (25.7 cents) at hay harvest, and 54 kopecks (27.7 cents) at wheat harvest. By 1910 these wages had increased to 55 kopecks (27.8 cents,) 73 kopecks (37.6 cents,) and 87 kopecks (44.8 cents,) respectively.

In Hungary the wages of agricultural laborers increased 60 per cent. in the ten years from 1897 to 1907.

In Denmark, from 1892 to 1905, wages of farm labor, with board, increased 30 per cent., and without board, 22 per cent.

In Sweden wages of agricultural laborers increased 38 per cent. in the ten years, from 1898 to 1908.

For Norway we have data of the wages in country and in towns, wherein is shown that wages with board increased 19 per cent. in country and 15 per cent. in towns during the ten years, 1895 to 1905, thus showing a greater gain in country than in towns.

In Japan, where economic conditions have been changing rapidly, the yearly money wages of agricultural labor more than doubled in the fourteen years from 1894 to 1908 and increased 43 per cent. from 1898 to 1908.

Hours of Farm Hired Labor.

The average length of time per day required of hired labor on American farms during the spring season is 9 hours, 54 minutes; during the summer season, 10 hours, 54 minutes; fall season, 9 hours, 52 minutes; winter season, 8 hours, 33 minutes. The average for the four seasons is 9 hours, 48 minutes.

Wages in British Columbia.

The British Columbia Labor Gazette gives the following "fair wages" schedule for mechanics and laborers employed on public works in the Province this season:

	Cents per hour.
Stonecutters	70
Bricklayers	75
Masons	75
Carpenters	56¼
Plasterers	75
Lathers	68¾
Joiners	53⅛
Painters and glaziers	50¾
Plumbers and steamfitters	62½
Sheet metal workers	56¼
Structural iron workers	62½
Electrical workers	62½
Steam hoist engineers	56¼
Plasterers' laborers	50
Ordinary laborers	37½
	Wages per ten-hour day.
Foreman carpenter	$5.00
Foreman mixing concrete	4.00
Foreman laying concrete	4.00
Foreman stone crusher	4.00
Bridge carpenters	4.50
Blacksmiths	4.50
Blacksmiths' helpers	3.25
Steam derrick engineer	5.00
Steam derrick firemen	3.00
Steam rock drillers	3.50
Hand rock drillers	3.00
Powder men	3.50
Scow men	3.00
Laborers	3.00
	Per month, with board.
Tug captain	$100.00
Tug firemen	60.00
Tug deck hands	45.00
Timekeepers	90.00
Diver, with outfit, per hour	1.50
Diver, outfit supplied, per hour	1.00
Structural steel worker, per day of 8 hours	5.00
Driver, two horses and wagon, per day of 9 hours	7.00
Driver, one horse and cart, per day of 9 hours	5.00

The foregoing schedules evidence the high standard of wages prevailing in the Province, in spite of the fact that there is a surplus of labor and a large number of unemployed in British Columbia at present. It also furnishes an idea of the cost of construction work, where not only the wage scale but also the cost of material is generally very high.

MINIMUM WAGES.

Movement for a New Law in California That Will Injure the State's Industrial Conditions.

[The Square Deal:] An initiative petition is being circulated in Southern California for a place on the November ballot. A copy of the proposed law has been received at the Secretary of State's office. It will make it criminal for any employer to pay any person more than 18 years of age less than $2.50 a day, while for all children under 18 years $1.50 is made the minimum. It is not at all unlikely that the bill will carry, but it will be an example of the old saying: "You can drive a horse to water but you cannot make him drink." There may be some merit in a minimum wage law, but to set the rate so high will naturally be detrimental to the interest of the people in California, more especially in the great farming and fruit industries. It is well enough to establish a rate of pay, but some consideration must be given to the capacity of the person to earn it. There are thousands of cases in every State where, if a high minimum wage is established, there will be no employment for the inefficient, then the State will have to support them. While fixing the minimum wage, would it not be a wise amendment to this law to also fix the rate of efficiency that a person must have to entitle him to this rate of wage? Of course, no one ever thinks of that or if they do think of it do not care to give it deep consideration. The only way that a minimum wage may be adopted, in our estimation, is in the way it has been established in Great Britain—by industries rather than as a whole in the State.

This radical move in California will be watched and will be a test of the sanity of the people of that State as to whether it carries or not. If it is looking for credit as a State where high wages prevail, why not make it $5 a day, as in the Ford plant in Detroit, and see how it will work out.

TIME SAVES UNIONISTS.

Supreme Court Sets Aside Sentences of Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison Under Statute of Limitation.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The contempt sentences imposed by the District Supreme Court on Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, labor leaders, were set aside today by the Supreme Court for the second time as barred by the statute of limitations.

Justice Holmes said the case turned on the point that the contempt proceedings should have been started within three years from the date of the committing of the offenses. He said proceedings for contempt should be speedy and thus come within the purpose of the statute of limitations, which require prosecutions within three years.

Justices Pitney and Vandevanter dissented.

The contempts charged against the labor leaders occurred in 1907 and early in 1908, about the time the District of Columbia Supreme Court issued an injunction prohibiting the federation officials from boycotting the Bucks Stove and Range Company of St. Louis, then in a labor war with organized labor.

The labor leaders were sentenced to jail, but the Supreme Court of the United States in 1911 set the conviction aside because the labor leaders had been proceeded against as if the proceedings were a part of the boycott suit. The District Court the day after the reversal, then began separate proceedings against the leaders for the same offense.

In concluding his decision Justice Holmes said in part:

"Even if the statute does not cover the case by its express words as we think it does, still in dealing with the punishment of crime a rule should be laid down, if not by Congress, by this court. The power to punish for contempt must have some limit in time and in defining that limit we should have regard to what has been the policy of the law, from the foundation of the government. By analogy if not by enactment the limit is three years. In a country where not even treason can be prosecuted after a lapse of three years, it could scarcely be supposed an individual would remain forever liable to a pecuniary forfeiture.

"The result is that the judgments, based, as they are, mainly on offenses that could not be taken into consideration, must be reversed."

The decision settled the point that contempts of court are crimes. The point has been raised in contempt cases throughout the country.

Justice Holmes said that contempts are infractions of the law, visited with punishment as such, and if they were not crimes the court was in error as to the most fundamental characteristics of crimes as that word has been understood in speech.

OPEN SHOP IN OMAHA.

Business Men's Association Denounces the Deplorable Conditions in Colorado as Result of Unionism.

The following circular letter has been issued by the Business Men's Association of Omaha:

"The question involved in the deplorable Colorado situation is, Can 1500 union men voluntarily quit their employment and then by acts of intimidation and violence, amounting to actual warfare, prevent 10,000 non-union miners from continuing at their work when they desire to do so? Would any employer of labor be justified in not making an effort to protect the 10,000 loyal employees in their inalienable right to work against the unlawful interference of these strikers?

"The mine operators in Colorado are taking a stand that should be commended by every thoughtful man. It is nothing more than the principle of the open shop, the right of every man to labor when, for whom, and at what wages he pleases, without interference, and the right of every employer to employ whomsoever he will, at such wages as are mutually agreeable between the employer and employee, without regard to whether or not the workman belongs to any organization.

"Can any man justify the demand of these strikers that the mine operators discharge the 10,000 loyal employees because they do not belong to the miners' union and employ strikers and only such others as will first become members of their union? If, as is reported in the press, Mr. Rockefeller is in any way responsible for the open shop stand taken by the coal operators in Colorado, then he should have the unstinted praise of the entire country, instead of the false rperesentations and contemptuous caricature of the yellow press. Business men of this country, if they expect to preserve a semblance of industrial peace, must support the open shop principle.

"The cartoon in yesterday's World-Herald, labelled 'Nothing to Arbitrate,' depicting John D. Rockefeller and his son in saintly posture, amidst the bodies of murdered men, was an unwarranted assault upon the right of every free American citizen to labor without interference. Even Mr. Rockefeller can at times do a commendable act. If it had not been for the spineless conduct of the Governor and State officials of Colorado all these lives would not have been sacrificed in the protection of non-union miners against the armed assaults of the strikers.

"Fortunately Omaha has never been a union or closed shop city, and so long as it continues to enforce the open shop principle it will not be confronted with strikes and industrial turmoil."

ORGANIZED VS. OPEN SHOPS.

Union Labor Does Not Favor Doing the Square Thing by the Employer, but Seeks to Squeeze Him.

[J. B. Mansfield, M.E., in the Square Deal:] Organized labor as it stands today is contrary to the American Constitution, organized labor denies the man who does not belong to the union the right to earn an honest living. Organized labor refuses to work with a man who does not belong to an organization and if an owner insists that his work be done on American principles he is immediately confronted with a strike and a tie-up of his entire plant irrespective of how much or how little the union may be used in reference to his plant. For instance, if the foreman of a non-union shop that employs organized labor in outside erection work attempts to put in a nut or a bolt, or lay out work for a union man, they immediately walk off the job and declare a strike if this foreman is not removed. It matters not whether he owns half or three-quarters of the plant, a general strike is declared, then a boycott and the shop is picketed. If you place a non-union man on the job he generally goes away with a broken head or he is yelled at constantly as a "scab" and called other vile names. If a man is an American citizen and a taxpayer why should he not be entitled to work in any establishment no matter whether he be union or non-union? The question is being seriously agitated at this time as to whether if a man is discharged because he does not belong to a union he should not have legal redress against the owner or organization that caused his dismissal.

The writer of this article had an opportunity recently to visit one of the large buildings in a metropolitan city where a man was using a special device for drilling holes in concrete. He had been in correspondence with a manufacturer regarding the purchase of one of these devices and was advised to call at this building where he would find three of the machines in use. He did so and after going up to the sixth floor of the building found a workingman who was a union man drilling holes with the machine. This man was taking the machine apart and rubbing it with a piece of cloth. He was asked if the machine was all right and said yes, that it was all right and it would drill more holes than any ten men could, but he wound up by saying that the machine was no good for the simple fact that it drilled holes too fast and if he worked it as it should be worked he would be out of a job drilling holes in no time. "And," he added, "the weather is too cold—I do not care to go outside this morning."

Organized labor as a whole does not favor doing the square thing by the employer. Their whole interest centers on what they can squeeze out of their employer through the rule of might instead of the rule of intelligence and faithfulness. We can now understand why public opinion is changing in regard to the labor organizations. They are so radical in their demands they have driven the people who have fostered them into bankruptcy in a number of instances and killed the union game, whereas if they had only been faithful to their employers and given them a "square deal" organized labor might have been in control over the entire land, while uniformity would exist in practically all shops.

THE TIRED BUSINESS MAN.

And What It Is Perhaps That Tires Him — As Burdette Sees It.

I had heard so much about him that I began to be interested in him. I began to wonder what made him tired. I never went into the merry throng that he was not among those also present. I never attended a circus at which he did not respond to my airy salutation. He was an unfailing first-nighter at the theater, from grand opera to vaudeville. Managers catered to his taste. He was held responsible for the decline of the drama. Playwrights wrote the trash and managers polluted the stage with the vile stuff which the papers condemned and praised, because they said they had to present something which would rest "the tired business man." Books were published which could not be read aloud in the family circle because they had to be seasoned to suit the depraved and morbid taste of "the tired business man." I began to wonder much at the sort of taste which commercial weariness developed. I didn't believe "the tired business man" was really responsible for half the profanity and nastiness in play and novel that was charged against him.

WEARINESS OR DISGUST?

The business men with whom I was personally acquainted were gentlemen. If there were exceptions, they were as a rule in lines of business with which I had no dealings. They went to see these plays because there was no other kind staged for them. And they read the books because they were the only sort sent out by the publishers, and they were listed as "the best sellers." If I attended a convention of the State bankers, or the National Manufacturers' Association, or the Wholesalers' Association, I did not hear resolutions demanding spicier books or racier plays for their especial benefit. Nevertheless, novelists and playwrights and publishers and managers continued to hold "the tired business man" responsible for the output of the press and theater. The more I saw of the business man, the more I didn't believe he was the silliest and foulest-minded man in the community. I believed that out of the abundance of the heart of the novelist and the mind of the dramatist poured forth the novel and the play, and that they wrote nasty things because they thought nastiness. And by and by I began to wonder if the business man wasn't tired, not because he wanted these things, but largely because he got them?

They made all the rest of us tired. Why should the business man be immune? They nearly killed some of us.

And then came the question, why "the tired business man?" Why should he be any more a-wearied than the rest of us? Is business any more fatiguing than other sorts of work? What makes the business man tired?

THE PACE THAT KILLS.

I got to haunting the abodes of business. As I have mentioned, I met the "tired business man" at all the centers of amusement. I saw him at the theater. He seemed to have leisure for the ball game. He thronged the bleachers. He shouted to the player by his first name. The golf links knew the sound of his voice, the tread of his foot, and eke the thud of his clubs. Are these the things that make him tired?

Not his office boy, but the boss went away for week-end trips in his new automobile. Saturday, Sunday, Monday—were these the wearing days that broke him down with the strain of every week? Was it the long summer vacation in Europe—was that the pitiless drive of business? The banquet to the Secretary of the War; the banquet to the Secretary of the Navy; the places of revelry where he meets only other business men like himself, hosts to distinguished citizens in places of power and great influence; luncheons in places and among great people where his clerks and the common people can't get near him, are these the functions that make the business man tired? Then, why does he attend them? Why not be satisfied with "lunch" and cut out the luncheon and the wearisome orators and the "We have here with us Wun Hoo" toastmaster.

EASILY TIRED.

The reputation of the American business man for veracity (see advertisement) is such as to assure us that he certainly is tired when everybody says he is. Once upon a time when President Lincoln was trying, either again or yet, I do not remember—to compel or induce Gen. McClellan to move his army forward, McClellan refused to obey, claiming that his horses were tired and must have prolonged rest. And this is the reply of Lincoln:

"I have just read your dispatch about sore-tongue and fatigued horses. Will you pardon me for asking what the horses of your army have done since the battle of Antietam that fatigues anything?"

We admit that "the business man is tired." What we want explained is, what tires him? I reckon the porter gets tired, also. And "the hired girl." Doctors get tired. And preachers. Everything that earns a living gets tired. But weariness isn't the normal condition of man. He gets rested at intervals. Unless he chooses to sit up longer than he has any business to do, he has one-third of his life for repose—not counting the time he spends at his meals. He is not compelled to spend his winters in the mountains and his summers in Europe. But occasionally he does. He swarms out here to California for months at a time, and if he sweats anywhere it is on the golf links. What makes him so constitutionally and continuously tired, then?

"LABORARE EST ORARE."

How comes it that the business man and the laboring man alike must eat their daily bread in the sweat of the face? Was it the weariness of the daily struggle for daily bread that wrought this sentence of hard labor? Not one bead of sweat was primarily drawn from the face of "the tired business man" by reason of his exertions in his little agricultural business. That came upon him when he was neglecting his business, paltering with the devil, and trying to find a short-cut, under Satanic direction and suggestion, to a new kind of breakfast food, and a tabloid culture. He was having a good time against orders and in bad fast company, attending to anything but business. And when he came back his cotton was in the grass; the weeds were higher than his corn, and that sweat order was posted in the shops.

Maybe it is today as it was then—much of the weariness of the race of men—business men, laboring men, paymaster and wage-earner alike, comes of the life outside of business hours. The law prescribes an eight-hour day. The office closes at 5 p.m., and the employees return to work at 8 a.m. Good enough. Now, how is a man going to work hard enough in eight hours to make him tired twenty-four? He can't do it.

I'll take that back; I mean he doesn't do it.

From eight to five we know mighty well he isn't killing himself. But from five to eight we don't know what he is doing, or who goes with him to help him do it. That's when the weeds get their big start.

"Laborare est orare," the old monks used to chant—"Labor is worship." Men don't often worship till they are weary. Or else they get tired mighty quick. Men are born to work. Men do kill themselves by overwork sometimes. But it is because they work overtime. It is because they quit at 5 o'clock and don't get to bed until 3 a.m. It is the intervals that kill. It is the "rest" destroys. The world builds up. Weariness is wholesome. I have known men who couldn't find enough work to tire them who went into gymnasiums and worked for nothing, just to bring on a healthy sweat.

POOR CREDIT ABROAD.

Uncertainties of Legislation Is Making Foreign Banking Houses Shy About American Securities.

[New York Times:] An international banking-house, having a considerable amount of a good issue of railroad securities to place recently, decided to offer part of the bonds abroad. It took the matter up with a large banking-house in Berlin, with whom it had done business on occasion. The German bankers declined to handle any part of the issue, not because they distrusted the bonds, but because the long-continued unrest in the United States has begun to get on Europe's nerves. With the declination of the offer came the following explanation, in German:

"For three years Europeans, through dealings in American securities, have not only been unsuccessful, but have suffered quite considerable losses. The action of the administration, especially the suit against the Union Pacific to divorce the Southern Pacific, and then again the action against the Southern Pacific to give up the Central Pacific, the hesitation in granting the absolutely necessary increase in freight rates, and demagogic actions against the steel corporation have created such unfavorable impression that everybody is prepared for any thinkable and unthinkable fight against capital, and I state that the former great confidence in American securities has been transformed into general distrust, and venture to say that sentiment in Europe is not far from accusing Columbus, because he discovered America. Everybody knows that some abuses had to be stamped out, but the everlasting tormenting of good corporations has a very depressing effect, and I do not go far amiss in stating that people here are directly afraid of American securities. It seems that the same feeling is prevailing on your side, because every little bit of a rally is followed by another still deeper depression. I am wondering that the Democratic administration cannot see that with all their measures they only have accomplished a great disadvantage to the general welfare of the American people, and that the population in the long run will not tolerate such, to a certain extent, artificially created depression, and in time certainly will elect a Republican Legislature again, eliminating the Democrats for good.

"About the Mexican politics, which are also very depressing, I do not care to speak, because I am not in a position to look into the situation. But it is a foregone conclusion that Mr. Wilson has not harvested many laurels, and I am really anxious to know whether he will have the courage to put his hands into this wasp nest, and, 'coute qu'il coute,' will create peace and order in the same way as America has done in Cuba. It certainly will cost much money and many lives, but such action of the most powerful republic would live in the world's history forever."

LEGITIMATE LABOR UNIONISM.

Workmen Have the Right to Organize to Make Bargains Collectively but Not to Use Coercion.

[New York Journal of Commerce:] So far as workmen choose to organize or to join any organization to present demands or make bargains collectively, the right is not disputed. But it is equally their right not to do this, and it is the attempt to coerce them into it that is objected to. On the other hand, it is the right of an employer to make a bargain with his workmen collectively or as members of a union, if he chooses to do so, and it is equally his right to employ men without that recognition of their union if he and they prefer.

The right to work is inherent, and the right not to work for any particular employer or on the terms that he offers, is equally inherent. This refusal may be collective as well as individual. That is, the men have a right to refuse employment except on their own terms, agreed upon collectively, or to leave an employment with the terms of which they are not satisfied; but they have not the right by combination to force others to refuse or abandon it, or to force employers to take or retain union men and reject or discharge non-union men, and resort to violent attacks upon person or property to accomplish their object. In this Colorado case it is not the right to act unitedly or the principle of collective bargaining that is in question, but the right to use the power of organization or combination to force either workmen or employers to a course which they are not willing to adopt, or resort to violence, disregard of law and resistance to public authority to carry out any "principle" or practice. There is no dispute or question of veracity regarding the conduct of the Colorado strike in this regard.

Labor unionism is in itself entirely legitimate, like other forms of association, and under proper direction it may be made not only beneficial to working men but advantageous to employers. The trouble which it causes and the opposition which it encounters are almost always due to bad methods and mistaken leadership. If it endeavored to make labor efficient and faithful and to get for it only fair treatment and just compensation, it would generally be met half way. It could make organized labor preferable to unorganized because worth more to the employer; but it should be willing to have its value determined as other value is, by a fair competition in the demand and supply. In the competition of superiority it might win. In lowering the standard and trying to suppress competition in the labor market, they can only win for some at the expense of others, while working injury and loss to industry and trade generally. One thing is essential to be recognized at all times, and that is that labor has no more right than capital to destroy value, to interfere with the rights of others, to attack person or property or to violate law and defy public authority.

SPIRIT OF THE TIMES.

Desire for Efficiency Leading Architects and Engineers to Careful Study of Present-day Buildings.

Efficiency is the catch-word expressing the most dominant characteristic of the times. The desire for greater efficiency—the elimination of waste occasioned by inefficient methods—is felt in all classes of business, private, corporation and public, in manufacturing, handling or jobbing, and salesmanship or retail selling, as well as in the professions. An appreciation of the great loss of profits occasioned by waste effort, whether of the individual or of methods, has grown more powerful since the catch-word of the meat-packing industry—"Everything saved but the squeal"—first called public attention to the value of turning to good account what had previously been wasted. It has given rise to a comparatively new profession, that of efficiency engineering. Today big business employs an efficiency engineer to eliminate waste in its manufacturing methods or misspent efforts in its selling organization. Even municipalities have learned that a good student of organization and direct method in getting results can save the taxpayers money by introducing into the various municipal departments the principles which have built up big and powerful private businesses.

In the various branches of the building business, from the architect and general contractor down, there is much to be gained from a study of efficiency methods. Especially is the average contractor in need of the elimination of waste in the methods by which he conducts his work, organizes his forces, selects and utilizes his equipment and directs the energies of his workmen. By getting the greatest possible efficiency out of his equipment and his working organization he determines the sum total of the actual cost of the job, or in other words his profits. It is too common a failing with contractors that they lose through the use of wrong equipment, the wrong use of the proper equipment or the inefficient organization of the gangs of workmen, where they should have made a profit. And efficiency applies to the conduct of office work as well as to the execution of field work.

PLAN BUSINESS CENTER.

Ramona Acres, a suburban property in the San Gabriel Valley, where a large number of homes have been built within the last few years, and which has been increased in area from time to time by annexes, is to have its first business section. With a development of the subdivision, stores have been established from time to time in different locations, but it is now proposed to centralize these business houses at Garvey avenue and Delmar boulevard. Both of these streets are seventy feet wide and are paved with asphalt. The new business district is being fostered by the Janss Investment Company, subdividors of Ramona Acres.

Shame.

COLORADO'S DISGRACE.

TOO WEAK TO KEEP PEACE IN THINLY-SETTLED DISTRICT.

Calling of Federal Troops Is a Surrender of State Sovereignty and Admission That the People Are Incapable of Self-Government and Protection of Invested Interests.

[New York Commercial:] It is a disgrace that a great State like Colorado should be so weak as to be forced to call upon the Federal government for help to restore peace in a thinly populated mining district, which has been in a chronic state of disorder for several years. Had the State authorities shown a determination to make everybody without distinction keep the peace from the beginning and had they not permitted the warring factions to fight out their own little war in defiance of the law of the State and of the country more than a hundred lives would have been saved and the district would have been thrifty and prosperous.

If the State of Colorado and its executive officials have been unable to handle this difficulty in the past, the chances for their doing any better in the future are slim. The people of the State should be brought to realize the disgrace that such a surrender of State sovereignty involves. The Governor has been forced to admit that the people of his State are incapable of self-government. That is the real meaning of the appeal for help he addressed to the President of the United States.

He was not confronted by a sudden emergency. The conditions with which he was unable to cope were the logical and inevitable outcome of a series of events happening during the past ten years. Whenever the officers of the law temporize with persistent disturbers of the peace, conditions always tend to grow worse. The striking miners and the lawless elements of the population, which flocked into the mining camps were permitted to arm themselves and to commit outrages. The State and the local authorities did not afford the mine owners and peaceable citizens protection for life and property, but left them to defend themselves. The mine owners then engaged the service of a detective agency and imported armed guards, winding up with the importation of machine guns and artillery.

None of these things should have been permitted. The State officials should have given the property owners all necessary protection and should have confined themselves to maintaining the peace and punishing rioters without taking any part in the actual dispute, regarding wages and working conditions. It is entirely due to this failure of the State authorities to do their plain duty that both parties to the quarrel finally occupied positions not in accordance with the law of the land.

Because the wealthiest man in the country had invested some of his money in mining property in this region, this unfortunate state of anarchy has gained notoriety throughout the world. It is so easy for demagogues and muckrakers to throw stones at such a man, and last Wednesday we had a taste of it in New York when the police were forced to disperse a mob making a demonstration in front of No. 26 Broadway, which completely blocked traffic and interrupted business. This demonstration was apparently organized by professional muckrakers, who at one time made a good living out of the magazines, as an answer to a statement issued by the mine operators. The operators say that they have already granted to their workmen the eight-hour day, semi-monthly pay, check weighmen and increased wages and that they never have compelled workmen to trade in the company's store. The Colorado Fuel & Iron Co., which operates these mines, has paid no dividends on its common stock for more than ten years and the preferred stockholders have received only intermittent payments on account of dividends that accrued long ago. Last year the company paid its miners more than $300,000 in increased wages and the employees in its steel mills received an addition of more than $250,000.

It seems to be generally conceded that the only dispute is regarding the unionizing of the mines. The mine owners say that they do not question the right of any workmen freely to associate themselves in unions, for the furtherance of their common and legitimate interests, but they do assert the equal right of an individual to work independently of a union if he so elects. They are contending against the right of unions to impose themselvesupon an industry by force assault and murder, and not against the right of men to organize for their common benefit.

Union labor forms only a small part of the population of this or any other country. If labor unions are permitted to exclude all persons outside their ranks from gainful employment, we will have class distinctions of a more objectionable character than those which existed in Europe under feudal law in the middle ages. If lawyers and doctors were able to combine in unions and exclude the sons of the poor from their ranks, just as union labor tries to do in many cases, union labor itself would make the loudest protest against limiting the opportunities of the common people. No Democratic government can recognize or permit class distinctions of this kind. If the mine owners do not interfere with the liberty of their employees to associate themselves in unions for legitimate purposes they have conceded to unionism all that can fairly be asked and more than the law can demand. This being so all excuse for the quarrel between the mine owners and the miners disappears.

Pennsylvania Federation of Labor Asks All Unionists Not to Join the National Guard.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

ERIE (Pa.) May 14.—After a sharp battle the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor yesterday adopted a resolution asking all union men not to join the National Guard. Delegates David Williams of Allentown, Pa., opposed the resolution, declaring union men should join such organizations and refuse to serve when called for duty against striking workmen.

Another resolution adopted instructed the members of the federation not to patronize Federal League baseball parks, because, the resolution charged, the Brooklyn team of this league is owned by a company that manufactures and advertises a non union product.

CROP REPORTS BOOST TRADE.

Porterville Dealers Expect Lively Summer.

Both Raw and Improved Lands Find Ready Sale.

Southland Buyers, as Usual, in Evidence.

PORTERVILLE, May 16.—Accurate figures which are coming in as returns from early navel orchards and which show that excellent profits were made has had a stimulating effect on trade in both young groves and raw orange land during the past month. Realty dealers report that several important orchard deals are in escrow and the brokers generally anticipate that future business in this line will be excellent.

Another was added to the long list of San Joseans who own orchard property in this district when Samuel Appleby, a wealthy San Jose business man, purchased twenty acres of raw land in the Alta Vista district from E. G. Leaf. Appleby will set the entire property out to early navels.

W. G. Hall of Glendora has sold to H. D. Ward of the same place, eighty acres of alfalfa land north of the Westfield small-farm district. Although the price is not given out it is stated that Hall doubled his money on the tract after an ownership of less than three years. Ward expects to put the entire holding into alfalfa.

H. C. Erwin, a former business man of Portland, Or., has purchased from J. R. Hines twenty acres near the Tule River bottoms. Erwin will put the tract out to canning varieties of peaches.

R. H. Bess is setting out twelve acres of early navels on recently-purchased property in the Ducor district. F. M. Singleton, the Supervisor of the Fifth District, has out 100,000 seed-bed stock, most of which will be used in setting property which Singleton owns in company with B. F. Braly. They are at work on the development of forty acres of their land at the present time.

G. A. Hart, a Los Angeles business man, has let the contracts for the delivery of early navel trees and has a force of men at work preparing for development sixty acres of land in the Thermal Heights section. It is Hart's plan to put out the entire holding to early navels.

J. E. McFarland, the founder of the townsite in the oil district which bears his name, has closed a deal for the purchase of the Ridgway alfalfa ranch, one of the best-known properties in the dairy district west of Porterville. The property includes 480 acres, practically all of which is in a high state of cultivation. The consideration is rumored to have approximated $100,000.

Ranking as the largest orange orchard deal of the past month was the sale of the N. G. Hastings orange orchard in the Lindsay district to W. G. Adams of Portland, Or. The property includes about thirty-seven acres of trees and brought approximately $40,000.

A. M. Lumley, one of the pioneer orange growers of this district, has exchanged his fourteen-acre early navel grove in the Zante district with C. H. Kegley of Los Angeles, for flat property of the latter situated on Thirty-seventh street in Los Angeles. The Lumley orchard is fourteen years old and was one of the first planted in this section.

Fred Hepner of Los Angeles has purchased twenty acres of the Potter lands in the Ducor section and was here this week to arrange for the development of the holding. Hepner will put a portion of the tract in to olives and the rest will be set to early navels.

AT THIRD AND WESTERN.

Store and Lodge Building Nearing Completion in Northwest Los Angeles for Wilshire Masonic Lodge.

The Ramey Investment Company is putting the finishing touches to the construction of an attractive two-story brick building at the southwest corner of Third street and Western avenue. The structure is the property of Herrin & Warren and will be known as the "Herrin & Warren Masonic Block." W. S. Greene is the architect.

The building is 70x80 feet in size and is costing about $12,000. The ground floor contains storerooms. The whole of the upper story will be occupied by the Wilshire Masonic Lodge, F. & A. M. U. D. The interior of this part of the building is attractively finished.

ONE PLANT FOR BOTH.

Sales of Delano farms land in the San Joaquin Valley are reported by the Janss Investment Company to E. J. Yesser and Miss Katherine Ash, both of Los Angeles. Each bought ten acres of unimproved ground at a given price of $200 an acre. The two pieces adjoin and a mutual pumping plant will provide water service for both. The land it is announced will be planted to fruit.

NEW ROAD STARTED.

Highway from Niland to Brawley Expected Eventually to Extend to Calipatria.

NILAND, May 16.—A new road from Niland south to Brawley is being built by a large force of teams and men under the direction of the County Supervisor. This highway will bring Brawley to within less than an hour's distance from Niland. It is believed to be a question of but a short time before a good roadway will extend all the way from Niland to Calexico.

The store building for C. W. Anderson at Niland avenue and International boulevard has just been completed. J. R. Rochelt has just finished a restaurant. Rapid progress is being made on the Quinn Block on Niland avenue.

William Fraeedorf, who was recently appointed supervisor of paving, has forty-seven men on his pay roll and has completed the first curbing along Niland avenue. He shipped in, this week, two carloads of road machinery and will continue work on Niland avenue until it has been paved and curbed from the site of the proposed new Niland depot to the new Niland Hotel.

The Niland Water Company, incorporated some weeks ago for the purpose of providing an adequate supply of water for domestic purposes, is providing for a large pressure tank and 4000 feet of extra pipe.

PIER DAY PLANS.

Entertainment Committee in Charge of Huntington Beach Celebration Names Two Days in June for Event.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 16.—The Entertainment Committee in charge of the pier celebration has decided to make it cover two entire days, Saturday and Sunday, June 20 and 21. The committee feels that there are enough events scheduled to furnish first-class amusement on both days. Experienced decorators will be retained to properly adorn the more important streets of the city and the pier itself, the completion of which is the reason for the celebration, will receive a few extra touches.

The Springfield Improvement Association held its meeting Monday of this week. This is the associaton whch covers the district which is planning to pave Westminster avenue from the city limits of Huntington Beach north to the Long Beach-Santa Ana boulevard. It was reported that practically every property owner in the district was signed up in favor of this great improvement, and that only the preliminaries were necessary before actual work begins.

Eighteen building permits were issued during the month of April at Huntington Beach, these aggregating $17,000. So far in the month of May there has been an average of one permit a day.

Dr. A. L. Smith of Monrovia has purchased ten acres of choice mesa land close to the city limits here and this he will plant to Avocado pears.

NEARLY COMPLETED.

New Meredith Building on South Spring to Be Ready for Occupancy Early in June.

The new Meredith building, on Spring street, south of Sixth, will be opened, it is announced, on June 1. The building, which is five stories high, has an eighty-foot front. Frank R. Strong and others hold the property under a long-term lease.

George Goldsmith, tailor, will move into the building on the opening day, having closed a lease through Burton E. Newcomb of Strong, Dickinson & McGrath. A lease has also been closed with Nichol the Tailor for a room to be occupied at about the same time.

Leases in other buildings reported by Newcomb includes one by which George E. Hart & Co. will move to the Marsh-Strong building and another involving the removal of the T. M. Miller Company to the Van Nuys building.

TO OPEN NEXT WEEK.

Culver City's new cyclecar factory will be in operation next week. The plant is owned by the Pendleton Manufacturing Company, and will have a present capacity of four cars per day. The factory is being equipped with the most modern type of automobile machinery, and four different models of cars will be turned out.

BANK COMPLETED.

Redlands Financial House Preparing to Move Into New Structure. Vault Weighs Thirty Tons.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, May 16.—The First National Bank of this city is preparing to remove from its temporary quarters on West State street, into its splendid new building on the corner of State and Orange. The new structure has been in course of construction since July 1, 1913. The exterior of the building is complete and the upper floors are ready for occupancy.

The bank offices on the lower floors are almost complete, only the finishing details being needed. The vault is up-to-date, and weighs about 63,000 pounds. The doors weigh six tons each. The interior of the building is beautiful and costly in finish, and the whole is a credit of the city.

—What You Can Make on a Nile-Land Farm

47,000 Acres of Imperial Valley's North End Land

Figuring conservatively, the new settler on a Nile-Land Farm should net 10 per cent. from his investment the second year he works his land. From that time on a regular 10 per cent. can be netted and in addition a 10 per cent. increase in the value of your farm.

To put your Nile-Land Farm into condition for alfalfa requires about the following expenditure per acre: cost of land, say $80; water stock, $12.50; leveling and checking, about $10; plowing and seeding, $2.50; seed, 20 lbs. at 20 cents, $4; irrigation, one year, 3 acre-feet at 50c per foot, $1.50; making a total of $110.50 per acre. Two acres of alfalfa on a Nile-Land Farm will easily pasture 3 head of cattle or 16 hogs. You can LEASE your Nile-Land Farm, when it has a stand of alfalfa on it, for from $10 to $15 per acre, or $2 per head per month where cattle are pastured on it. This will give you a net return of approximately $30 an acre, and you do none of the work yourself.

If you work a Nile-Land Farm YOURSELF you can net from $250 to $500 an acre from good alfalfa land where dairy cows, hogs or a bee-keeping industry are worked in conjunction. Other products will net you about the following: $40 to $55 an acre from cotton; $500 to $750 an acre from grape fruit; $200 to $300 an acre from olives; $250 to $500 an acre from apricots; $500 to $800 an acre from dates; grapes net up as high as $500 an acre; asparagus $75 to $150 an acre, and cantaloupes $75 to $450 an acre.

A 40-acre Nile-Land Farm means independence! It puts you on the road to prosperity. It offers you the same water right that the older sections of Imperial Valley have made their millions with. It holds out to you the big pioneer's profits that this great North-End tract is certain to produce for every one of its owners. It puts you on the same footing with the shrewd Brawley, Imperial, El Centro and Holtville farmers who made this American Nile what it is today. Yet YOU will take none of the chances they took in the early days.

10, 20 and 40-acre Nile-Land Farms now $100 an acre. Larger tracts $65 to $125 an acre. 20 per cent. down, balance 4 equal annual payments, 7 per cent. You will have to hurry if you want to take advantage of our two liberal bonus offers, now open to all purchasers. They expire June 1st.

OORE LOSES ANGEL GAME.

w in Eleventh Gives Wolves Needed Run.

hnson Is Out of Contest Before He Starts.

Jack Ryan's First Defeat of Season.

(BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

SACRAMENTO, May 16.—Tommy ant talked Jack Ryan into giv the Sacramento Wolves a chance in their first game of the series m Los Angeles today and then, en both teams were running along ck and neck in extra innings, rley Moore, playing the utility in the short patch, booted the me over on the Wolves' side of the ; his bobble on Pinch Hitter Van 's grounder with two gone in venth inning letting in the ning run of a 3 to 2 score. It s Sacramento's first win of the es, the Angels having won the first straight.

Rising as it did around Charley re's eleventh inning error, the of the game—which, by the way, marked Ryan's first defeat of the season—goes back to Ernie Johnson, who was in the game and yet not in it. In the first inning Harry Wolter drew a walk and made second on a boot at first. Klawitter snapped the ball to Mohler, and Umpire Held made his decision that Wolter had been caught off second. But Mohler dropped the ball and the decision reversed.

EST JOHNSON.

Ernie Johnson, sitting on the Angel bench, did not approve of Held's haste in making the decision before waiting to see whether or not Mohler held the ball. And Johnson expressed his disapproval in such forcible manner that he paid the league for the privilege of going out to pick up his glove and leave the field.

Moore, unaccustomed to the short patch, filled the gap and contributed to the errors with which the Angels were charged. But not until the eleventh inning did one of his errors lead to the run-making.

But it was Tommy Tennant who kept the Wolves in the running in the fifth inning, when they tied the score. And Tennant did not go to bat in that fifth inning. From the coaching line he had been riding Ryan since the second inning. Manager walked and as he never did before in of throwing out Tennant's before it reached Ryan's ears. The Angels started in the third inning when Wolter cracked one against the right-field fence for a single and stole second. Bill Page, who is cracking the ball hard these days, poled a double down the left-field line that scored Wolter. In the fifth inning, the same inning that the Angels found Klawitter for seven runs Wednesday, three singles in a row by Ryan, Wolter and Page netted one more run.

The Wolves had men on bases in each of the first four innings, but not until the fifth did they accomplish anything. With one gone Mohler was hit by a pitched ball and made second on Hannah's easy grounder to Page. Klawitter worked

INTEREST SPREADS IN LANDMARK COMPETITION.

First Numbers in Identification Series Bring Answers from Hundreds of Automobile Enthusiasts and Requests for Scenes in Various Sections Along the Coast, in Arizona and Imperial Valley.

BY AD G. WADDELL.

MOTORISTS throughout Southern California and Arizona are showing great interest in the landmark identification contest. The third photograph of the series appears in The Times today; yet hundreds of answers have been received, identifying the locations of the first two cars used in the contest.

Not only has the contest committee at the Auto Club been overstocked with mail. Answers have come to the automobile editor of The Times through the mail, over the telephone and by messenger. These have all been turned over to the contest committee and placed on file at the headquarters of the Auto Club.

USE COUPON.

The coupon which appears in The Times each Sunday should be used by the contestants and all answers should be mailed to the Landmark Contest Committee, at the Automobile Club of Southern California.

The club has made preparations to classify and file the returns each week. Once every four weeks, the names of all contestants who have sent in correct answers, will appear in the automobile section of The Times.

Twenty-five pictures are to be run during the contest and as the Howard "Six" shown today is but the third photo of the series, it is not too late for contestants to enter now.

Copies of The Times showing the first pictures in the series are on file at the Auto Club and at The Times office. Anyone wishing to enter the contest may look up these first numbers in the landmark identification contest and mail answers to the contest committee.

EASY TODAY.

The picture which appears today is one of the easiest in the series. Contestants should take advantage of this and send in their answers early. Later on, places are to be shown that will rack the memories of the most experienced motorists in this section.

Automobile dealers are not eligible to compete for the prizes. This gives the motor car owners the field to themselves. Many landmarks have been suggested by motorists who have sent in answers and many contestants have requested that pictures taken in certain sections be run.

A number of requests have come in asking the automobile editor to run

Yale-Harvard-Princeton.

COLLEGE ALUMNI BATTLE RECALLS STUDENT DAYS.

THE old-timers came back yesterday at the Hotel Raymond in the annual reunion of the Yale-Princeton-Harvard graduates. They came back in great style, too. Most of them breezed up to the Raymond in their big machines. Prosperity, eighteen carat fine, has followed these veterans of athletic battles on the college campus in days gone by.

The younger and more skilled played ball and ran relay races, while the older men and former yell leaders sat in the stands and cheered with a vim and patriotism that took many of the alumni back to the Yale-Harvard-Princeton battles of their day.

Good-fellowship and friendly rivalry pervaded the stands and it was good to see the dignified lawyers, judges and doctors with wilted collars cheering their teams on to victory. Hardly a minute of the games passed without a song or cheer floating from the stands. The men of the different universities organized into rooting sections that would have made many a yell leader and his undergraduates gaze with envy.

The Yale team beat Princeton in the first game of the afternoon, doing the trick 5 to 4. It was a good, scrappy game all the way, and looked like a Princeton victory until Yale scored four runs in the last inning on a great rally, winning by one run. The Princeton rooters were glum, but better things were in store for them.

The second game, between Harvard and Princeton, was another close fight and a splendid pitchers' battle. Boyd Comstock pitched for the Crimson and lost a hard-luck game when his teammates faltered badly behind him. They were absolutely helpless before the slants of Dunbar, the Tiger heaver, and he fanned a young army of John Harvard's men. Score, 3 to 0.

Then came the big game of the afternoon between Harvard and Yale. If Yale won they would cinch the championship for another year, but if the Harvard nine came out on top the three teams would stand tie. Some one in the stands had just announced the sweeping victory of the Yale track team over Harvard in the East, and the Crimson horde was desperate. Boyd Comstock pitched like a fiend and the Yale sluggers never had a chance against his fast ones. He held them to four hits and two runs, while his team drove out eight hits and five runs off Bennett, the old Yale baseball star who was in the box for his alumni. The triumph put the teams on an even basis and every one was satisfied.

The relay race ended in a Princeton victory, after the Harvard four had been touted as the champs all afternoon. It was a hot race and a desperate affair down to the last spurt for the tape. Seward Simon, Jr., the old Harvard 440 man, and Comstock could not make up the big lead that Princeton set up in the first two laps.

MORE BAD LUCK FOR POLO TEAM.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, May 16.—Capt. H. A. Tompkinson, No. 1 of the British polo team selected to play the American team at Meadow Brook for the international trophy, dislocated a shoulder while playing at Hurlingham today. His injuries were at first thought to be grave, but after a short time he resumed play with his right arm strapped above the elbow. The British representative team eventually won the match, beating the Buckmaster's combination, 4 to 3.

MUCH SPEED TO PREP TENNIS.

PLAY THROUGH TO SEMI-FINAL MATCHES.

Barber and McCormick of Hilltop Squad Look Like Sure Winners in Both Singles and Doubles—Miss Morse of Pasadena Shows Up Well.

To Messrs. Foley, Oliver, Martin et al., who are in charge of the High School tennis tournament for the championships of Southern California, all honor be given.

Yesterday, at Lincoln High, in the morning and at Y.M.C.A. courts on Stevenson avenue in the afternoon, these gentlemen gave the south a tournament in which there were no waits and no delays, and they accomplished the almost impossible by running the tournament clear through to the semi-finals in one day.

The tennis, of course, was not of the highest class, as it was largely a question of the elimination of the weaker players by those of the Barber and McCormick type, but nevertheless there were some bitter battles waged.

Harriman, a temperamental youngster from Alhambra, succeeded in downing Seager of Hollywood after a terrific struggle, the final score being 8-6, 6-8, 11-6. Harriman won, but wasn't worth a whoop afterward, being scarcely able to drag himself around the court in the men's doubles later in the day.

McCormick and Barber, the Los Angeles High wonders, were easily the class of the tournament and they promise to put up a terrific battle in the finals next Saturday, with the odds slightly in favor of McCormick.

They should also capture the men's doubles without much trouble, as they make a great pair.

Miss Morse of Pasadena looks like a champion in the ladies' singles. She played a good, heady game, and went into the semi-finals by beating Miss Lowell of Alhambra in straight sets.

The semi-finals and final matches will be played off next Saturday at the Y.M.C.A. courts.

The results:

Men's singles—Hush (Anaheim) beat Andrews (L. B.,) 7-5, 3-6, 7-5; Egbert (Pasadena) beat Randen (Poly,) 6-1, 6-2; McCabe (M. A.) Beat Standard (South Pasadena,) 6-4, 6-2; McCabe (M. A.) beat Egbert (Pasadena) 6-8, 6-3, 6-4; McCabe (M. A.) beat Hush (Anaheim,) 6-1, 6-0; Kinney (Lincoln) beat Hatch (S. A.,) 4-6, 7-5, 7-5; Jones (Harvard) beat Johnson (Alhambra,) 6-4, 6-1; Jones (Harvard) beat Kinney (Lincoln,) 6-4, 6-3; Barber (L. A.) beat Pruitt (Orange,) 6-1, 6-1; Barber (L. A.) beat Sindorf (Holly,) 6-1, 6-4; Barber (L. A.) beat Jones (Harvard,) 6-1, 6-0; Winnie (M. A.) beat Jayne (S. A.) 2-6, 9-7, 6-4; Quarton (Anaheim) beat Thurston (Orange,) 6-2, 6-1; Winnie (M. A.) beat Quarton (Anaheim,) 6-1, 6-3; Harriman (Alhambra) beat Seager (Holly,) 8-6, 6-8, 11-9; Allden (L. B.) beat Ritchie (South Pasadena,) 6-3, 7-5; Allden (L. B.) beat Harriman (Alhambra,) 7-5, 2-6, 6-4; Hauk (Poly) beat Speas (Harvard,) 4-6, 6-3, 6-4; McCormick (L. A.) beat Somerville (Y.M.C.A.,) 6-3, 6-3; Hawks (Pasadena) beat Kline (Lincoln,) 6-3, 7-5; McCormick (L. A.) beat Hawks (Pasadena,) 6-0, 6-1.

OXNARD TENNIS.

An all-comers tennis tournament will be held May 30 under the auspices of the Oxnard Union High School, on the courts in Athletic Park. There will be five events: Ladies' singles, men's singles, ladies' doubles, men's doubles, and mixed doubles. Invitations have been sent to tennis players in this section of the State to participate.

WAYNE BALL WINS FOR OXY.

Wayne Ball pitched a wonderful game for the Oxy Tigers at Redlands yesterday and held the university team of that city helpless. The Tigers hit the ball hard and timely, driving in five runs, while the foothill boys were gathering two.

The victory yesterday put Occidental so far in the lead in the conference race that it is almost impossible to catch them.

Some Pitcher.

DECANNIERE BEATS 'EM.

Holds Portland Sluggers to Five Blows.

Yantz Makes His Opening Bow Behind Bat.

Game Gives Series to the Venice Club.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Walter McCredie sought to terrify us yesterday by playing Mister Yantz, formerly of Ypsilanti, Mich., more recently a catcher for Cleveland and currently a Portland chattel.

There is something alarming about a name like that, especially before you have become familiar-like with it.

Hogan, however, foiled the plot by sending in Julius Napoleon Decanniere. By resorting to this strategy, Hap was able to pocket the one game necessary to give him a hammerlock on the series. Score: Venice, 5; Portland, 2.

Decanniere pitched just like he meant it. And to think that he didn't cost Hap a peso! For seven innings he yielded but two hits. In the eighth he grudgingly gave up two, for an earned run. All told, Portland was able to wrench but five hits off him. Two Venice errors bracketed in the second for a gift tally. How these Portland batters do love a southpaw—not.

For five innings Portland led by the hairline margin of one run. This was totally obliterated in the sixth, when the Tigers rose up as natural as life and smote Harry Krause for a batch of three. Then in the seventh they took a strong liking to a strange party by the name of Brown, and declined to desist until the bell had been rung a couple of times.

It was a fine day for piracy. Both sides stole the home plate. Bill Rodgers stole it in the second. A new one was put in, only to be stolen by Litschi in the sixth. This greatly distressed Dad, who has just about run out of home plates. In fact, everything about the place was stolen, with the exception of first base.

Portland caught and threw the ball perfectly, the work of the infielders being particularly highbrow and unpolluted.

Ryan hit the ball in the second inning so far that it was a mere speck on the eastern horizon, Hoep loping it in after a long run. Right after that, Rodgers drove a slow one to Litschi, beating Lou's throw, which led McDonnell a hasty pursuit to the bleachers. Bill took second on the error, and eased over to third while Leard was disposing of Lober in a manner to establish himself as the best kind of a little second baseman.

Its Chance.

BEST PLACE FOR MACHINE.

Hospital Corps Makes Motor Car Do Service.

Little Chance in Action on the Firing Line.

Troops at Calexico Try Out Modern Automobile.

BY AD G. WADDELL.

Enough chitter has been written about the motor car in the military service to fill several volumes.

Motor trucks and pleasure cars have been tried out by the armies of England, Germany, France and Italy as well as the United States. The rival forces in Mexico have been reported as owning enough machines for every bugler, marksman and general on both sides to own a private car, but the one place where the automobile has the best chance to show has been overlooked.

Carrying the Red Cross flag of the hospital corps, a field ambulance is comparatively safe in modern warfare. Civilized forces all recognize the insignia of the hospital service and with the Red Cross in view, an automobile would be allowed to cover the field unmolested, picking up the wounded and rushing them to the field hospital which is attached to each brigade.

REAL SERVICE.

Machines would be of great service to an army while on the march through a hostile country, if the roads were at all passable. This was proved during the war game of 1912, but it is doubtful that automobiles would be practical on the firing line, except for service in the hospital corps.

Motor trucks would serve on the firing line as well as escort wagons. In the modern fighting regulations, preparations are made to care for the rolling stock in rear of the column. It would be much easier to protect a motor truck than a wagon and a string of horses or mules.

Attractive pictures have been printed throughout the country showing automobiles filled with officers and enlisted men, supposedly in the thick of battle. These have meant nothing to the automobile industry and have brought criticism from officers and men who make a business of matters military.

SILLY STUFF.

Imagine a shining black touring car packed with expert riflemen, dashing bravely to the top of a hill where the sharpshooters while away the hours of peaceful day, peppering the enemy. That's all right for moving-picture warfare, but it don't go where men are taught to play the game right.

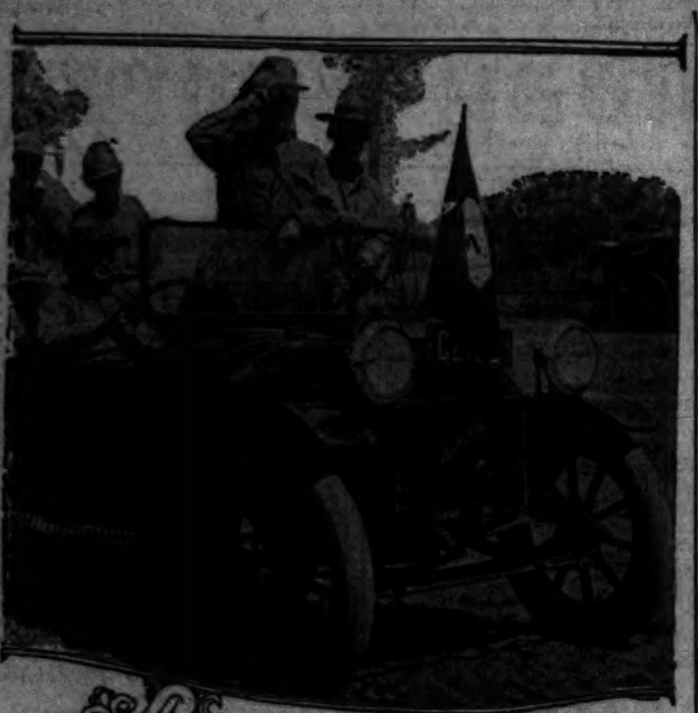
In every branch of the military service except the hospital corps the automobile would have to be kept under cover in time of action. Machines might be used to transport small bodies of troops. Officers might use cars for general transportation purposes about the camp, but on the field of action, never.

HUP THERE.

While the First Battalion of the Seventh California Infantry was stationed at Calexico, two weeks ago, Greer-Robbins Company, Southern California Hupmobile distributors, sent a Hupmobile touring car to the border camp for a series of military experiments.

It came in handy for those who wanted to go into town and were too lazy to walk and during the signal drill indulged in by the buglers each afternoon, the cushions of the Hupmobile were found much softer than all the fence rails along the Cholo border line.

While the little Hupmobile was a handy thing to have about the camp, it was agreed by the officers that the only chance it had to get on the firing line was in the hospital service.



Automobile's chance in warfare.

Above is illustration of overloaded machine that would not be practical for service on the firing line. Below, Hupmobile touring car is shown in use by hospital corps men at drill. The Hupmobile used for these pictures was sent to the Mexican border by the Greer-Robbins Co., during the stay of the Los Angeles battalion at Calexico.

MOTOR CAR ORDER ENLISTS MEMBERS.

One hundred automobile owners of Visalia have already joined the local auxiliary of the California State Automobile Association, organized at a meeting of enthusiastic motorists last night.

Harry T. Hays is president of the auxiliary, with W. R. Spalding, vice-president, and Harry Kuhn, secretary-treasurer. Vice-President H. S. Basford and Secretary D. E. Watkins of the State Association addressed the meeting.

It is believed that within a few weeks several hundred owners of machines in Tulare county will be affiliated with the local auxiliary, which takes in the entire county.

ROAD REPORT FROM TOURIST.

William Suppe, the Los Angeles motorist who is touring across the continent in a Chalmers with his brother and two other local men, reports the roads to Needles in good condition.

The party made the run to Needles in fifteen hours. From Needles to Kingman the going is reported good with very little sand.

Some League.

TIRE CONCERNS PLAY BASEBALL.

EIGHT CLUB ASSOCIATION IS ORGANIZED HERE.

Fourteen-Game Series to Be Played Off for Championship Pennant and Trophies Offered by Boosters—Series to Start as Soon as Equipment Is Secured.

An eight-team baseball league has been organized in Los Angeles, composed of clubs representing automobile tire concerns of the city.

The league was promoted by Carl Mueller and Ed Julian. Trophies have been offered by the Dyas-Cline Co., and the local Overland agency.

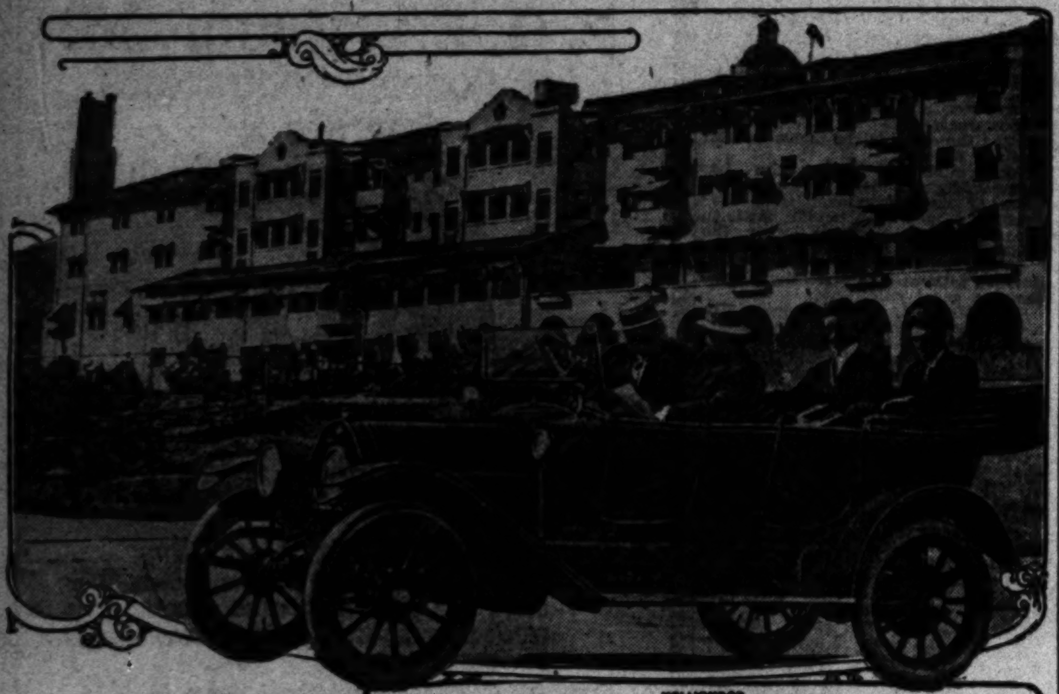
A series of fourteen games is to be played for the league championship.

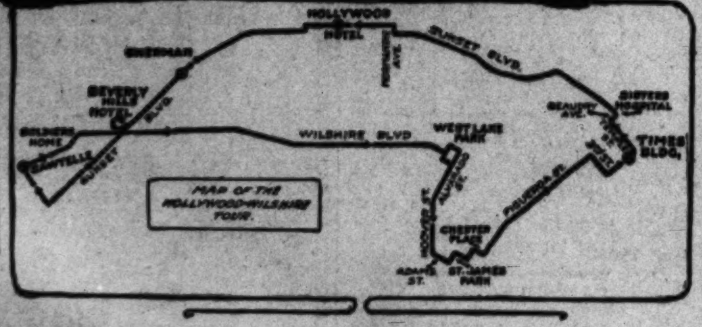
Each team has been equipped with attractive uniforms and the regular season is to start next Sunday.

Clubs are entered representing the Goodrich Tire Company, Lee Tires, handled by Chanslor and Lyon, United States Tires Company, the Hendrie Tire Company, Firestone tires, Goodyear Tire Company, Nelson & Price Tire Company, and the Panama Rubber Company.

SERVICE MAN.

Frank Hansen, former welterweight wrestling champion of the Northwest, is now service superintendent of the Studebaker branch at Omaha, Neb.





The Overland at Beverly.

F. I. Willey of J. W. Leavitt and Company with party of friends in Overland touring car on Hollywood-Wilshire tour. On seat with Willey is F. L. Crain of Phoenix. In tonneau, Thomas Anderson of San Francisco and Bert Haigh.

HUP WINS RELIABILITY RUN.

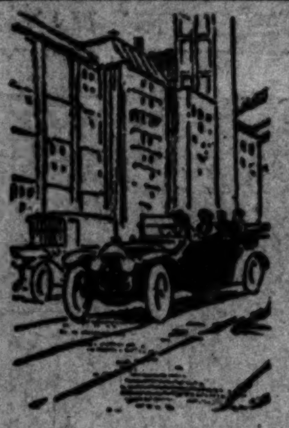
Senor Sanchez, in a Hupmobile, won a recent reliability run at Buenos Aires over a field of fifteen entries, many of which were high-powered French cars. The run over bad roads, rivers and other unsatisfactory conditions made the contest one of exceptional severity.

DORN NOW EAST.

C. I. Dorn, sales manager for the California Moline Plow Company, Pacific Coast distributors for the Cartercar, is now in the East. He left last Wednesday and will remain over for the Indianapolis 500-mile race, if his business at the Cartercar factory can be completed by Memorial Day.

GRANT CAR SUCCESS.

Grant cars, selling at about $500, are now shipped in carload lots to all quarters of the globe, filling orders which had been placed ahead for the year's output, according to Leon T. Shettler, local agent, who recognizes the success of light and economical cars for personal uses.



THE man, woman or younger members of the family who pause long enough to compare the PAIGE with other four-cylinder cars will vote in favor of the PAIGE every time.

It has every up-to-date feature found in the most expensive cars, and also the style, comfort, and finish.

THE PAIGE is the one car which really stands in a class by itself. It is the one car which gives the purchaser the satisfied feeling which comes only to the man who has pride in his car. If you are ashamed of the car you own, your investment is a poor one. If you feel that you do not want to invest $2000 in a car, and and don't want something which sounds "cheap" and looks "cheap," buy a PAIGE, which carries with it the stamp of refinement.

It is the car that is big enough, little enough, heavy enough and light enough—with power enough and style enough to enable you to make a quick and lasting decision that the PAIGE is the car to own.

Cadillac
STANDARD OF THE WORLD.

A New Element of Economy

Three Million Less Engine Revolutions

Twenty four Million Less Piston Strokes.

Six Million Less Engine Explosions

Six Million Less Sparkings of Plugs.

One Million and a Half less revolutions of the cam Shaft.

Six Million Less Valve Openings and Closings.

The statements that constitute the border of this advertisement are a few of the economies resulting from the use of the 2-speed axle in Cadillac cars.

Read each statement, consider each.

Think of the saving in wear and tear on the car.

Think of the oil saved in twenty-four million less strokes of the piston.

Think of the saving in gasoline, not to mention the absence of vibration and the added comfort and luxury.

The figures are arrived at on a basis of 7000 miles running in a year, 5000 miles on the 2.5 to 1 gear (two and a half revolutions of the engine to one revolution of the rear wheels) and 2000 miles on the 3.66 to 1 ratio. The figures can easily be verified.

Considering the everlasting, reliable and efficient car the Cadillac has always been there is every reason for saying the new model with the 2-speed axle eclipses any car ever produced, anywhere.—The Royal Automobile Club of Great Britain took this view when it awarded to the 1914 Cadillac the Dewar trophy as being the car demonstrating the greatest advance in the industry.

The Cadillac is a safe car for any man to buy—it is a car with a wonderful past, a substantial and confidence-holding present and a brilliant future.

It is the car to buy AND KEEP—not for one year or two years but for five, eight or ten years. In fact, you have never yet heard of a wornout Cadillac.

Mr. Buyer, consider these simply stated facts. And remember a car's past is the best criterion as to its future.

ROAD NORTH OPEN DURING REPAIRS.

Motorists who are contemplating a tour to San Francisco were assured yesterday at the headquarters of the Automobile Club of Southern California that the Rincon highway along the coast between Ventura and Santa Barbara will be kept open during the repairs.

It had been reported that this road would be closed, and with the present condition of Casitas Pass, all traffic on the coast road would thus have been suspended.

According to Highway Commissioner Darlington, the Rincon road will be put in first-class condition without an inconvenience to the hundreds of automobile owners who wish to reach San Francisco in the near future. The Coast road will be open, then, probably throughout the summer.

Overland Tour.

HOW TO SEE CITY ON SHORT AFTERNOON RUN.

FOR the benefit of visitors to the city and residents who are interested in motoring, The Times will publish a series of short tours, covering the entire city and much of the outlying country.

Just how to see Los Angeles with an automobile is a question that many motor car owners cannot answer. The short run mapped out by F. I. Willey of the local Overland agency should be of interest to every motor car owner in Southern California.

This is primarily an afternoon tour. The distance is just thirty-four miles and the run can be made with ease in two hours, as the roads are in excellent condition for the entire distance.

For an evening tour this trip should be as popular as for a Sunday-afternoon ride. There are a great many points of interest covered, and at night the lights of the city take the place of the buildings which loom up in the day time.

The start is from The Times building. The course is up Broadway to Temple, out Temple to Beaudry avenue and over Beaudry to Sunset boulevard. The Sisters' Hospital is passed at this point.

Sunset boulevard is followed to Normandie, then the course is north to Hollywood boulevard. This paved street is followed through the business section of Hollywood, past the Hollywood Hotel, out through the beautiful homes of West Hollywood, along the foot of the hills overlooking Sherman, Crescent City and the west end of Los Angeles.

The road runs into Beverly. There is a circle through the grounds of the Beverly Hills Hotel, then Rodeo drive is followed back to the boulevard. Motorists should take the boulevard straight into Sawtelle and continue to Eighth street. Then turn to the right to the Soldiers' Home grounds, then out onto Wilshire, which is followed into the city.

At Westlake Park switch over to Seventh or Sixth street as far as Alvarado, then turn south over Alvarado and Hoover to Adams street. At this point the Girls' Collegiate School and the Second Church of Christ Scientist are passed.

Two blocks west the course turns through Chester place, then out on Twenty-third street to Figueroa, north on Figueroa to Third street and through the tunnel to Hill street, north on hill to First and east on First to The Times Building at First and Broadway.

PUBLIC BENEFIT IN GARAGE ASSO.

Members of the Garage and Repair Men's Association announce that they will appreciate notices of any overcharge or unsatisfactory treatment received from any of their forty-seven concerns if sent to their secretary, No. 534 Wilcox building, Los Angeles.

The object of the association is to guarantee to the public the very best of service and the highest quality of supplies.

CAR STYLE CHANGES.

Improvement in style without sacrifice of utility must be the line of future automobile refinement, says George A. Kissel, who sees an opportunity for development along such lines that should attract favor.

THREE ROADS TO SAN BERNARDINO

There are three ways of avoiding the State highway work on the Foothill boulevard to San Bernardino, according to the touring information department of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

While the foothill road is closed, it is possible for the motorist to reach San Bernardino by the valley route to Ontario, continue straight through Ontario to Bloomington, and thence by way of Colton.

Otherwise, it is possible to reach San Bernardino via Riverside. There is another possible detour by way of the Foothill boulevard, and then taking the base road. During the highway work the Foothill boulevard will be closed, and is now between Rialto and Uplands.

Another One.

WELL-KNOWN MOTORIST PLANS LONG AUTO TOUR.

ALBERT SYDNEY JOHNSON, a well-known autoist of this city, is planning a trip across the continent in his 1911 KisselKar. This is the Kissel Fifty, with which Johnson recently toured Arizona.

It is significant that Johnson has so planned his route that he will tour through the country made famous by the Civil War. He will visit the land where the name of Gen. Albert Sydney Johnson is so familiar.

Though loth to talk on the subject, Johnson is willing to admit that he would like to see the fields where the triumphs came to his namesake. His tour will take him to Gettysburg and through Frederickstown.

When the trip was made to Globe, Ariz., and up into the hills of the White River, Indian country, Johnson made no special preparation. His greatest concern was to keep the mileage recorded on this journey He not only kept the mileage but also the record of the fuel consumption.

He found places where the gasoline was more than 14½ cents a gallon. He says the motor troubles of the trip were a joke, however, and he expects the same good fortune on his journey across the continent. The car is now being overhauled at the Pacific KisselKar branch in preparation for the journey that will require about two months.

BUSH GOES TO THE SPEEDWAY EVENT.

W. E. Bush, the local Pierce-Arrow agent, leaves next week for a brief trip to the factory, and the big race at Indianapolis. His trip to the factory is necessary to hurry forward shipments, as the Pierce-Arrow is in great demand this season.

Several of these cars have been ordered for local people who will take their machines with them on European trips this summer.

TIRE MAKERS IN PHYSICAL TESTS.

Employees of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company are given physical examinations before listing upon the pay roll, with a result showing much increase of efficiency on the part of the force.

This system was commenced January 1, 1914, when men were assigned to duties to which their personal peculiarities best adapted them. Nearly double the product is now turned out of the factory by a force little larger than of old.

ADJUSTABLE SPRINGS.

Save that in practice it is absolutely new and untried, there is nothing particularly hard to master in the in the idea of the adjustable spring. In fact, an approximation to it already has been employed by truck makers in the form of supplementary springs that come into action only when the body is loaded down beyond a certain point. The particular advantage of an adjustable suspension that could be easily regulated, however, would be that the setting could be changed to suit road surface and speed conditions, as well as load.

ECONOMY RUN DRAWS WELL.

Contest Invades More Than Fifty Cities.

Non-Stop Ramble Proves the Machine's Gait.

Local Entrant May Win the Factory Trophy.

An automobile economy contest and non-stop run was held yesterday in more than fifty cities of the United States. The contest was for the prizes offered by the Saxon factory to dealers throughout the country, who made the best showing with their cars.

The distance covered was 200 miles. In each city the contest was under the supervision of the automobile editors of the leading daily papers, who appointed the official observer for the run.

Glen Phillips drove the Saxon entered in the local contest and was accompanied by the official observer. The official records were sealed and sent to the factory after the run. The winners are to be announced next week.

The Los Angeles car started out at 7 o'clock in the morning. The route selected covered city streets and paved highways exclusively. The excellent roads of this section made an extra good showing possible and the official observer announced that the local car should have a splendid chance for first honors.

The amount of gasoline, oil and other supplies used, were a part of the sealed report sent to the factory. The non-stop feature showed the amount of mileage to be expected from a Saxon in this territory.

Isn't it a fact that your next-door neighbor has had two or three or four Hups?
If they change at all—and scores of them drive the same Hup year after year—isn't it a fact that they simply change to another Hup?
If this is a fact—and you can satisfy yourself it is—isn't it a mighty important fact?
Why are so many owners of other cars merely negative in their loyalty to these cars—while Hupmobile owners are uniformly enthusiastic?
Why does the Hupmobile owner go out of his way to expatiate about the joys of his ownership?
Why does he take it upon himself to urge others to buy the Hupmobile?
You must know why it is, without being told.

MOTOR WAGONS FOR EXHIBIT.

Watt Moreland First to Get Space at Fair.

Eastern Truck Makers Come in on Exhibition.

Exposition Building Is Now Being Planned.

Space has been engaged at the Panama-California Exposition for a Moreland motor truck exhibit.

Watt Moreland, general manager of the local truck building company, is anxious to place the product of the Los Angeles factory before the public for inspection and he is the first motor truck manufacturer to contract for floor space at the San Francisco exposition.

The exposition directors are now engaged in drawing up plans for a transportation building. The cost of the building is to be governed by the amount of floor space required, but it is possible that visitors to the exposition will see the greatest motor wagon exhibit ever held in this country.

Eastern manufacturers have been holding off for a long time, against exhibiting trucks at the exposition. It is claimed that they had planned a number of eastern motor shows. But it was impossible for the eastern truck makers to stand by and allow the Moreland company to be the only exhibit at the world's fair, so several of the large eastern truck makers have engaged floor space.

The distillate-burning features of the California-built Moreland truck will no doubt prove of great interest to foreign visitors at the fair. This is the only exclusive distillate-burning truck in the world.

Motor trucks are shipped from the Pacific Coast to South America, China, Japan, Australia and the Philippines, and it seems that eastern manufacturers should see the advantage of exhibiting on the Pacific Coast. The coast has never had a motor truck exhibit of any consequence, and [illegible] the exhibits will arouse much enthusiasm, and the benefits will be far-reaching.

"I am not engaging space at the fair solely for the purpose of advertising the sales of Moreland trucks. I have the interest of the exposition at heart," says Moreland.

"The sale of trucks is the least of our troubles. The main difficulty has been in manufacturing trucks fast enough to supply the demand.

"The Moreland factory has been doubled in size three different times, and in each instance the demand for trucks has increased accordingly. At the present time there are no less than forty-three back orders on the books."

GAS CONTROL LATE DEVICE.

NEW MODEL COLE SPRINGS IN WITH FEATURE.

Old Racing Driver Invents Accessory Which Is Expected to Revolutionize the Fuel Feed of Modern Motor Cars and Reduce Cost of Operation on Different Makes.

Another new automobile feature that promises to reduce running cost and add simplicity to motor-car operation, is found on the new Cole Six-Four model. This device is a gravity vacuum gasoline control.

Webb Jay, well known as a veteran of the automobile racing profession, is the inventor of the device. His patents are well protected and he has the financial backing of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation.

The first appearance of the new invention in Los Angeles was as a part of the regular equipment of the first of the new 1915 Cole models to arrive at the local Cole agency. It is believed that this gravity vacuum fuel control will revolutionize the method of gasoline control and consumption on motor cars.

The device is extremely simple, however. It does away with the mechanical air pumps on motors, eliminates hand pumps on cowl boards and increases motor efficiency and mileage to the gallon of gasoline.

Although the Cole Motor Car Company's standardization engineers have selected the new control for regular Cole equipment, and it has been given the name of the Cole-Stewart-Warner Gravity Vacuum Gas Control, and the Cole is the only make of car using it at present, practically every car on the market is to make it regular equipment.

According to the inventor, orders have been received for 42,000 vacuum tanks by the makers.

Engineers for the Cole and other automobile factories found in their tests that a great increase in efficiency was obtainable by the use of the vacuum tank.

TEDDY'S MAXWELL TO WEAR MILLERS.

Teddy Tetzlaff's mount in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis, May 30, one of the Maxwell racers designed by Ray Harroun, is to be equipped with Miller tires.

This tire was put on the racing car by Tetzlaff, and when word was received at the Lord Motor Car Company, the local Maxwell agency, to the effect that the racers to be driven by Billy Carlson and Teddy Tetzlaff, in the long grind, were to be equipped with Miller tires, there was little surprise shown.

Spokane has opened a municipal golf course. It has nine holes, with a number of good natural hazards and artificial ones. Within the main course is a beginner's course of six holes. The course borders on the Spokane River and is accessible to the city car lines. The Spokane park board is working on another municipal undertaking in the shape of a swimming and wading pool within one mile of the business district. By July 1 the bath-houses will

RACERS MODELED AFTER STUTZ AND MERCER CARS.

THE elimination trials for the Junior sweepstakes auto races to be held at Ascot Park on the afternoon of May 30, will begin at the Ascot track tomorrow. The fifty-six entries for this baby racing classic will be given their try-outs against time.

There will be a small racing car in the Junior sweepstakes for everyone entered in the big race at Indianapolis. They will be named after the big cars and their drivers will dress in the same manner as the drivers in the big race.

One big feature of the junior races at Ascot Park will be the big score board.

By special arrangement with the Indianapolis Speedway, direct returns will be flashed, lap for lap, and the position of each car in the big race shown on this score board.

This feature is being met with enthusiasm by thousands of Southern California race fans, who are taking an unprecedented interest in the big Indianapolis race this year.

LIVE ONES.

There will be a number of Los Angeles racing heroes in the Indianapolis race. Barney Oldfield, Earl Cooper, Billy Carlson and Teddy Tetzlaff. Their cars are to be reproduced in the baby racing class in the contest at Ascot Park.

One of the most entertaining features of the junior races will be the appearance of the Baby Peugeot cars. Jules Goux of France won the Indianapolis last year in a Peugeot and this year is again entered together with Boilliot and Duryat in Peugeot cars.

At the elimination trials a number of these little cars will be taken out because of the lack of speed.

In the recent Junior Grand Prix and Vanderbilt races held at Ascot Park, Alex Pabst, a 15-year-old schoolboy of Los Angeles, won both events with a Baby Stutz in remarkable time.

STUTZ AND MERCER.

Young Pabst has rebuilt his Stutz car and is hopeful of winning the Junior Indianapolis. This Baby Stutz was capable of sixty miles an hour on the straightaway in the last races and is expected to do much better than that in the Junior Indianapolis.

Mott Haines, who led the last races for nearly the entire distance in a Baby Mercer and who was forced through accident to his car to leave the race at a time when he seemed a sure winner, has rebuilt his car and those who have timed it, state that it is the fastest baby car that has ever been in this part of the country.

There will be a Sunbeam entry, a Delage and a number of Mercers, Fiats, Maxwells and other speedy baby racers, besides a long list of entries that are new to the junior racing game her, but from appearance and performance should prove dangerous contenders.

A perfect patrol of the track is being arranged and the dangerous curves wil be made an safe as possible for spectators and drivers.

ADAIR STARTER.

George Adair, the famous starter, will send the little racers away on their long grind.

The first race is to be a fifteen-mile event for two-cylinder cars, to be followed by a ten-mile race for single-cylinder cars and a one-mile exhibition, which it is hoped will break the one-mile junior record.

The Junior sweepstakes will follow. It will be for a distance of forty miles, the longest race ever held for baby cars.

The prizes will be seven silver trophies and purses aggregating $500.

The races will be held under the auspices of the Junior Racing Association and E. H. Pendleton and Gurnsey Frazer will be in charge of the track and the races.

Harvard University stadium will be the scene of the annual eastern intercollegiate track and field championships on May 29 and 30, and in order to meet the new point-scoring arrangements which will call for a fifth place in each event, the track has been widened to permit of an additional hurdle.

PEOPLE'S FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION UP IN ARMS.

THE People's Fish and Game Protective Association is up in arms against the present fish and game laws. F. M. Bailey, secretary of the organization, claims that the present laws are unfair to many of the people and not enforced. He is circulating a petition with the following proposed changes to better the fish and game situation:

Abolish hunting and fishing license for citizens to hunt and fish in the county in which they reside.

Forbid the baiting of ponds for luring wild ducks and other water fowl and use of nets and traps for hunting game.

Permit transportation companies, dealers, hotels and restaurants to have in their possession any game legally killed.

Closed season for five years for elk, antelope, female deer, spotted fawn, mountain sheep, rail, grouse, sage hens.

Reduce bag limit on desert and mountain quail, snipe, plover, curlew, from twenty per day to fifteen on quail, and ten on others.

At least one Federal forest reserve in each game district to be made a State game preserve for refuge and propagation.

Remove restrictions as to use of nets for fishing in the ocean within three miles of shore.

Stringent regulations regarding the polluting of bays and rivers by means of escaping coal tar, petroleum and like substances.

Hold County Supervisors responsible for protection of fish and game and for the enforcement of laws regarding bag limits.

Permit the sale of game under rigid regulations, so that those whose circumstances do not permit of their killing the game themselves will be able to get a share of it by purchase.

Landmark Contest.

pictures taken in the Imperial Valley. Phoenix, Ariz., has been heard from. An automobile owner of Phoenix suggests that a picture be used which shows a car in some spot well known to Salt River Valley motorists. The Arizona man argues that it will be as fair for the Southern California contestants to have Arizona scenes depicted as for the Arizona contestants to have only Southern California tours to work on.

Arizona will not be overlooked. Arrangements have already been made which will give the new State a place in the series.

IMPERIAL TOO.

The Imperial Valley automobile colony will also be given scenes near home. San Diego is to get two scenes during the series.

A special run to San Francisco is to be made by a local automobile man for one of the scenes and two scenes have been planned for Santa Barbara.

With this great amount of territory covered, the contest should develop into a keen fight for the prizes and the motorists who win out will be well posted on all the automobile roads of the State.

One Extra Tire

You Can Get Four Goodyears, with All-Weather Treads, for What Some Charge for Three Today's great question among tire users is—

What is the proper price?

Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires used to cost one-fifth more than others. Yet they gained top place because of extra merit.

Now 16 makes cost more—up to one-half more. Of several makes, three tires will cost as much as four No-Rim-Cuts.

Are They Worth It?

Are they better tires?

They can't be. We have tried for years to improve these tires—have spent $100,000 yearly on research and experiment. Yet we've found no way—nor has anyone else—to show lower cost per mile.

Do they lessen trouble?

That is unthinkable. Not one contains our No-Rim-Cut feature, which has ended rim-cutting entirely. Not one gets, as ours do, the "On-Air" cure. This extra process costs us $1,500 daily—to prevent wrinkled fabric, the main cause of blow-outs.

Not one does what we do to prevent loose treads. Our method is patented.

All-Weather Treads

And no other maker offers anti-skids which compare with All-Weather treads. You can see this at a glance. The All-Weather tread is double-thick, tough and enduring. The blocks are deep—the edges are sharp. Wet roads are grasped with resistless grip. Yet the tread is flat and smooth and regular. It runs like a plain tread on dry roads.

Vast output has brought Goodyear prices down. We make as high as 10,000 motor tires daily. We have modern factories, new equipment. Our experts are efficient. And we sold tires last year at an average profit of 6½ per cent.

We are giving you the benefit of Goodyear popularity. When we made fewer tires, it was Goodyears that cost the extra price.

Get the best tires made, but get them at Goodyear prices. Skimped tires are costly at any price. But it also is wasteful to pay $5 to $15 per tire more than we now ask you.

Any dealer will supply you with Goodyear tires.

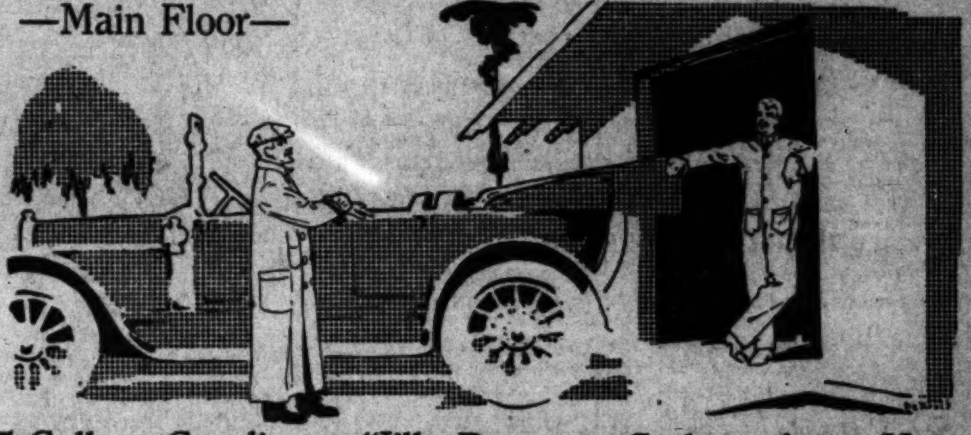
The Proper Equipment for a Home Garage

—Will save you money by keeping down repair expenses.

—There are dozens of little things about a car that constantly need attention. You can attend to them yourself. And you can save money by so doing. There are many men in Los Angeles who are keeping a savings account that way.

Here are some of the things you'll need in a home garage—

—Main Floor—



5-Gallon Gasoline Cans at $1.50

—Heavy galvanized sheet iron; large pouring spout; graduated in gallons.

Oils and Greases

—Best brands; prices moderate.

Oil Tanned Chamois 25c to $1.50

—All sizes. Fine for washing or polishing. Genuine imported oil tanned chamois that will not harden in water.

Genuine Rock Island Sponges $1.00 to $1.50

—Sheep's wool sponges; large and well shaped, soft, but tough. Free from sand and grit—they will not scratch the highest finish.

Jumper Overalls $1.90 to $2.50

Like the man in the picture above is wearing. HIS clothes are kept clean because they are entirely covered.

Nickel Trouble Lamps at 70c

—In the garage or on the road, these lamps are indispensable. Heavily nickeled with bulb and ten feet of wire.

Tire Tools at 65c

—To make the removal of stubborn tires an easy matter.

5 Pounds Waste, 75c

—Clean white waste with tube bag free.

Carbon Scrapers, 45c

—Octagon steel, highly tempered, 75c usually.

"I'll Remove Carbon from Your Cylinders," Says Carbon Nit

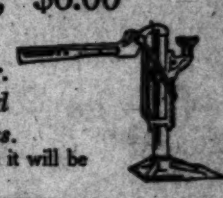
—"For 75c I'll take all the carbon away. I'll do it with one application, and there will be enough of me left for many other occasions."

—Carbon-Nit is a powerful eradicator of carbon. It is endorsed by some of the biggest racing drivers in the world.

—Once you use Carbon-Nit you'll never be without it.

Set of Storage Jacks, $6.00

—Four In a Set



—To keep your tires off the floor.

—You'll be pleasantly surprised with the increased life of your tires.

—May seem a little expenditure at first but it will be a saving in the long run.

Let Auto-Gloss Shine Your Car, 50c

—Auto-Gloss kills two birds with one stone—it cleans as well as polishes—pint size, 50c.

—The preserving qualities are good, too—quart size, $1.00.

Flat Wrench Set of 5 at $2.50

—For general all 'round purposes—⅜-inch to 1-inch.

—Drop forged, milled openings; case hardened, beautifully finished; mounted on a wall board; guaranteed.

—What more could be desired?

Handy Nickeled Pliers for 20c

—Very unusual value; case hardened and oil tempered.

—Be sure you buy pliers at Hamburger's and save tomorrow.

Lifting Jacks at 75c each —Strong, durable jacks for small cars.

—May be easily carried in your tool box if desired.

Coppered Steel Oil Cans for 25c

—Heavily coppered; large full-size; 9-inch spout.

Save Your Back; Skinner Compound Pumps Fill An Empty Tire In Half the Time —And $2.15 is all we ask, though the regular price is $3.50.

—Many times, you'll be glad to have a pump that does the work so easily.

—We have Prest-O Air Bottles which eliminate pumping of tires at all.

Adamson Vulcanizers $2.00 —Expense Eradicators

—Save the money you would spend for vulcanizing.

—You can repair your own tubes in 20 minutes' time—and successfully.

KISSELKAR

EVERY INCH A CAR
Kissel 40 "Four"

The Comfort Car of Perfectly Balanced Construction

The KisselKar is notable for its poise and balance, a logical result of KisselKar designing. Study the clean, straight lines of the KisselKar—the low hanging body—running board without boxes or brackets—wide doors—rakish rounding fenders—big roomy tonneau with its spacious, well proportioned seats—the distribution of weight—then examine into the engine and its capabilities, silence, power, flexibility, and you cannot fail to be impressed with its harmony of design and perfectly balanced construction.

KisselKar riding comfort is unequalled and is due to the liberal wheel base—big wheels—big tires—springs especially constructed according to weight—unusually commodious tonneau—deep, luxurious seats, and almost entire absence of engine vibration. You recline at ease undisturbed by the lurches and sideways incident to motoring in an ordinary car.

There are three striking models—the 60 "Six" at $3300, 48 "Six" at $2500 and "40 Four" at $2000—each a leader in its class.

KisselKar Service is service defined, a specific and positive service written into the sale and supplied by a thoroughly equipped organization to look to the wants of KisselKar owners.

SUB-CASING HOLDS MOTOR.

Apperson Model Driven Long Distance in Test.

Discarded Tire Is Used and Blow-Out Fails.

The Accessory Is Made Here in Los Angeles.

Leon T. Shettler tried out the Fisher sub-casing last week, on an Apperson model, with real success.

F. B. Kimball of the Fisher Manufacturing Company, invited the Apperson dealer to try out one of the sub-casings and for the test, one of the oldest casings to be found at Shettler's place was used. The tire had blown out in three places and had been thrown on the discard.

This antique tire was reinforced with the Los Angeles product, the sub-casing and the tube pumped up. The tire held like new and the Apperson was driven out to Pomona and back on the casing that had been considered of no worth.

The Fisher sub-casing is not a reliner, but an inner casing that grips the rim and can be used inside a new casing as well as a worn tire, to prevent the outer casing from blowing out.

Hair Auburn, Too.

STAGES MOTOR FASHION SHOW ON CITY STREETS.

W. J. BURT, Southern California Auburn distributor, staged a motor-car fashion show on the streets of Los Angeles last week.

Monday afternoon a white Auburn, driven by a man with auburn locks and carrying six girls with auburn hair, rolled down Broadway. It was really a live stunt and attracted almost as much attention as Burt's runaway car did during the last race carnival at Santa Monica.

All afternoon the car was driven up and down the busy streets. It was hard to tell what made the greatest hit, the white Auburn or the girls with the auburn hair.

The show went over so well that it was continued all week. One man was so taken with the exhibit that he went down to Burt's place of business and wanted to buy the exhibit car. Burt had prepared for just such an emergency and had four cars of the same model in stock with more on the way, so he delivered a car that same afternoon.

White body with purple trimmings and wire wheels is the combination that went with the auburn hair.

Double Demonstration.

DRIVES CAR OVER BANK WHEN ROAD IS BLOCKED.

BERT DAVIS of the local Cartercar agency made a demonstration last week that not only satisfied the prospective buyer, A. H. Reunigal, an Arizona cattle man, but interested a number of spectators.

The Arizona man was driven out to the west end of the city, where Davis had a difficult demonstrating course mapped out. Upon arriving near the steep grade, the road was found closed. The street was being paved and the way was blocked by a force of men at work.

Davis asked permission to drive through the sand and plowed street, but was denied.

"Alright," he said. "We will go another way."

He turned the Cartercar up the bank and drove out around through a rough field, where they hay had just been raked up in small stacks. At the end of the block he drove down over the bank, through a dry wash and out on to the road, where the real demonstration was staged.

After it was over, the prospect told the automobile man that the last efforts had been a waste of time. The first was enough.

TOPANGA ROAD NOW PASSABLE.

CANYON DRIVE INVITES MOTOR TRAFFIC AGAIN.

Auto Club of Southern California Road Signs Point Way Into Pass Which May Be Reached from Malibu Road or from Calabasas and Is Attractive One-Day Tour.

Announcement was made yesterday at the headquarters of the Automobile Club of Southern California that Topanga Canyon has been opened to motorists.

Today it is possible for motorists to penetrate the canyon from either side, and many auto parties should take advantage of the ideal Sunday trip.

Two routes for reaching the canyon are suggested at the auto club. One of these is to tour to Santa Monica either by the Wilshire-boulevard route or by Washington street to Venice and thence to the Santa Monica coast road, which has recently been put in excellent condition to the Malibu. Signs point the way into Topanga. The mouth of the canyon is easily distinguished.

Another route is by touring to Calabasas through Owensmouth and Sherman way, entering the canyon from the northern end and emerging on the coast.

Although the route is not in the shape of the boulevards leading to it, it is very passable and should make a pleasant Sunday tour.

Orphans in New York City will have their tenth annual automobile outing on June 4. A campaign has been started to obtain the use of the necessary cars.

RETURNS FROM GRAND CANYON.

Touring Record Made by Man from Pasadena.

Preparing to Motor Across Continent Next.

Tells of Roads Along Route from Los Angeles.

F. E. Hose of Pasadena, who has just returned from an interesting trip to the Grand Canyon, is planning to leave on a 10,000-mile cross-country tour in his 1914 Cadillac, about June 15.

On the trip to the Grand Canyon the Pasadena man covered about 1200 miles. His machine has covered more than 8000 miles in less than six months.

A. E. Shultz, Mrs. Hose and a son were also members of the motoring party. They suggest that parties making the trip to the Grand Canyon arrange to stop over night at Barstow on the way out, as accommodations there are much better than at Ludlow.

From Ludlow to the Grand Canyon the route is marked by the signs of the National Highway Association. Between Ludlow and Needles the road is reported very rough at present.

The second night was spent by the Cadillac party at Needles and the third at Kingman, Ariz. Between Kingman and Ash Fork, where the fourth night was spent, much sand was encountered. From there to Seligman the going was good, but between Seligman and Williams the roads are said to be poor.

Just six quarts of oil were used on the round trip to the Grand Canyon and an average of twelve miles to the gallon of gas was made for the entire tour.

In preparation for the 10,000-mile tour, the Cadillac is being equipped with a complete camping outfit and the members of the party intend to spend practically all of their time in the open.

TECH STUDENTS STUDY MOTOR CAR.

J. H. McDuffie lectured before about 200 students of the Y.M.C.A. automobile department, Thursday night. The instruction proved so popular that McDuffie, who is the western representative for the F. B. Stearns Company, was asked to repeat his talk in the near future.

The operation of the Stearns-Knight engine was explained. The oiling system was shown by means of a motor run by electricity with sections of the cylinders cut away to show the different parts in action.

ANOTHER LINE FOR LOCAL AUTO FIELD.

The latest automobile to invade the Southern California field is the Glide. This machine is manufactured at Peoria, Ill., and is represented in California and Arizona by R. A. Whitney, one of the veterans of the motor-car industry.

While the factory representative for the Glide will cover the entire States of California and Arizona, he will make his home and headquarters in Los Angeles. An office has been opened in the H. W. Hellman building, and a string of agencies are now being established.

While this car is practically unknown here, it is one of the oldest on the market, the factory having been in operation for the past twelve years, and Whitney has been connected with the concern for eleven years in the capacity of general sales representative.

W[illegible] become of ex-Coast Leaguers?

This question is asked boldly and without fear of contradiction. [illegible], an attempt will be made to answer it. Although it is not generally known, many people are ex-Coast Leaguing in various parts of the country.

[illegible] heroes of a decade ago are to be found almost every place outside of the penitentiary, leading the [illegible] lives of well-meaning [illegible] citizens.

[illegible] by the able Hap Hogan, [illegible] a veritable reservoir of ancient and honorable baseball lore and [illegible]. I have been camping on the trail of men who once divided [illegible] time between batting and booting the ball in this league.

"[illegible]" Spies is a building contractor in this city. "Heinie's specialty when with the Angels was [illegible] foul balls that no backstop [illegible] to catch.

"[illegible] a got it," is the rebuke [illegible] at the local ball yard even to [illegible] when an unhappy backstop [illegible].

[illegible], the old Angel second baseman, wound up his career as a [illegible] in Sacramento about three [illegible] ago. After that, he conducted a rooming-house in this city, until [illegible], when he became the lord [illegible] acres in Imperial Valley.

"[illegible]" [illegible], he of the rare [illegible] talent, played his last engagement in fast company with the [illegible] in 1906. For a number of [illegible] "Truck" divided his time between [illegible] and "bush" league [illegible].

[illegible] has been installed as groundkeeper at San Francisco within the [illegible] weeks, and it will be his [illegible] to manicure Cal Ewing's palatial [illegible] place. "Truck" hopes [illegible] to rival "Dad" McVickers, [illegible] peerless landscape gardener.

[illegible] the one-time home-run [illegible] pushing a lawn mower! How [illegible] do fall.

[illegible], the famous pitcher of the old Sacramento Gilt Edges, is [illegible] in that city. The same [illegible] of Charley Graham. [illegible] specialty is electrically-[illegible] wagons.

[illegible], former Sacramento [illegible] and Coast League umpire, is growing up with the Imperial [illegible].

[illegible], also a member of the [illegible] celebrated Sacramento team, transferred to Tacoma, is a low-[illegible] in the Northwestern [illegible]. Tommy Sheehan, third baseman of the same club, is the proud [illegible] of a smoke shack in San [illegible]. George Hildebrand, who [illegible] the outfield in Sacramento, [illegible] good as an umpire, as attested [illegible] fact that he is now manipulating [illegible] indicator in the American [illegible].

[illegible] SPITBALL.

[illegible], who is responsible for the "spitball" being introduced [illegible], is selling beds, bureaus, [illegible] couches and others household [illegible] in Mountain View, this [illegible]. George McLoughlin, Sacramento [illegible], is a cement contractor [illegible] San Francisco.

[illegible] Charley Doyle, Sacramento [illegible] and outfielder, is dis[illegible] wares in that city. [illegible] is the only member of that [illegible] ball team, meaning the [illegible] still actively identified [illegible].

[illegible]-OLOGY.

[illegible] now switch to some of the [illegible] days.

[illegible] has retired from baseball [illegible] shouldn't he, having be[illegible] owner of con[illegible] property in Calgary, Can. [illegible] of Tommy Leahy, [illegible] in Connecticut, and [illegible].

[illegible] club have been counted [illegible] Umpire-in-Chief. These [illegible] Krug, shortstop, and Ed [illegible]. Krug was one [illegible] best cards at that time. [illegible], second baseman, is [illegible] and the proprietor of an [illegible].

[illegible] third baseman—and he [illegible] earning an honest [illegible] member of President [illegible] umpires. Pat Meany, [illegible] in the shoe business in [illegible].

[illegible] ANGELS.

[illegible] old-time bunch of Los [illegible] have scattered! Ed [illegible] first baseman of [illegible], is conducting a fishery [illegible] Second Baseman Brockoff [illegible] business in San [illegible] Bernard, according [illegible] and belief, is in Portland [illegible] practicing osteopathy at [illegible].

[illegible] is in the cement business here. Charley Reilly also continues as a citizen of this section. Charley entered the laundry business and today finds himself literally bloated with wealth.

Jack Lawlor, the outfielder, is in San Francisco.

"Rusty" Warren Hall, pitcher, has a billiard bazaar in Victoria.

Russ Hall, the shortstop, conducts a hall in Tacoma, where the tango and other varieties of the light fantastic are tripped.

Henry Reitz, one of the famous Baltimore Orioles, and the most scientific bunter in the history of the game, played his last important engagement in Los Angeles under Jim Morley. Reitz is now in Sacramento and not doing anything in particular.

Hurlburt, the mammoth catcher, fell heir to a fortune, and this caused him to lose interest in baseball.

"Kid" Hulen is in the lumber business in Canada, and gives every indication of having waxed wealthy. Hogan met Hulen in San Francisco two weeks ago and they dined somewhat royally.

Roy Hale, the old Angel pitcher, and who made his debut here with Oscar Jones, has quit the diamond.

Bill Thomas, who pitched Sacramento to a nineteen-inning draw against Oakland in 1902, is dead. Virgil Garvin, former Portland pitcher, and one of the greatest characters in the history of the league, succumbed to consumption in Fresno several years ago.

Charley Shields is in business in Memphis. Phil Nadeau is doing the same thing in Portland. Lou Castro, who came to the Coast League heralded as the nephew of the gentleman of the same name who was then President of Venezuela, made famous by Bolivar, is managing a club in the South Atlantic League. What became of his illustrious uncle, I do not know.

Larry Schlafly and Jakey Atz, traded to Los Angeles by Portland for Tim Flood and Jud Smith in 1905, have both blossomed out as managers. Schlafly is handling the reins for Buffalo in the Federal League, and Atz is a boss in the Texas League.

This deal was made ostensibly as a bona fide swap, but many have maintained that it was put through for the express purpose of enabling Los Angeles to beat Tacoma for the pennant. Anyhow, it worked out that way. That year the season was divided into two parts. Tacoma won the first half and Los Angeles the second. In the play-off the Angels won and with that triumph went the pennant.

How time does fly! A few more years and all of us will be "has-beens," providing we ain't, already so soon.

NEW RECORD, MORE DOUGH.

BOSCH PRIZES CLIMB AS RACE DATE DRAWS NEAR.

Accessory Concern Puts Up Largest Amount Ever Offered as Special Prize for American Automobile Race and Sum Is to Be Split Among Three First-Place Men.

A broken record will mean $500 to the winner of the 500-mile race at Indianapolis, Memorial Day, if his car is equipped with Bosch magneto and Bosch plugs. The present record is an average of 78.72 miles an hour, made by Joe Dawson in 1912.

This prize of $500 is to be awarded in addition to the $600 offered by the concern. Thus, if the winner breaks the record and is using Bosch equipment, he will receive $1100, in addition to the regular purse cut, trophies and special prizes.

The prizes offered by the Bosch company, as they stand now, are the largest ever offered by an accessory concern. The money is to be divided among the three first-place men, with the $500 addition to the winner in case the record is broken. In other words, the sum of $13,000 has been put up for the drivers who win at Indianapolis, with Bosch equipment.

POLO MEN PENALIZED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, May 16.—After being penalized 1⅓ points for fouls due to rough riding, the American four defeated the second team yesterday by 9¼ to 4½ goals in a fast polo match at Westbury, Long Island. The Big Four rode over their opponents and their violations of the rules made the penalizing imperative. George Miller, the English polo expert, refereed the match.

Tigers in Front.

Davis walked. Bobby then lit out for second on the next pitch. Elliott, being a man of nerve, buzzed the ball right down to McArdle. This was the signal for Rodgers to set out for the Promised Land. McArdle's return was too high for Elliott to get it on Rodgers at the plate. A severe jar was felt in that vicinity as Rodgers roared home, and the ball was see to bounce from "Rowdy's" mitt. Davis, being one of the first to see this, legged it right along to third. Bobby was still in sight of home and friends, when Yantz ended the act with a grounder to McArdle.

For a long time after that the Beavers were as mild and loving as could be.

The next hit off Decanniere happened in the sixth, Krause blasting open that inning with a hit past Leard. Bancroft walked, and Derrick's sacrifice put the men on third and second, respectively.

Doane drove spitefully to McArdle. With Krause coming down the line for home, Mac juggled the ball, and all seemed lost until he made a razzle-dazzle recovery and throw to Elliott. Krause came across the plate standing stright up like a giraffe eating dates off the top of a palm tree in darked Africa, and was easily tagged. Doane stole second. The rambunctious Mr. Ryan was calmed on a grounder to McArdle. [Vast applause.]

The Tigers did not begin filling the place with wreckage until Leard and Meloan had been retired in the sixth on sensational plays by Robert Davis. Bayless, who was due to place the horsehide in brine, did not hesitate to do so, plunking a single to right. Litschi shot the ball to left, and Bayless found himself on second.

"Speed" McDonnell here proved his worth as a citizen, scoring Bayless with a clean shot to center. By bouncing along on his stomach, Litschi managed to reach third ahead of Krause's throw, Harry having hauled down Ryan's shot from the outfield with one hand. Mac sneaked down to second while this was taking place.

As Krause served up a fourth ball to McArdle, walking him, Litschi struck out for the plate and McDonnell for third. Yantz, for some reason best known to himself, shot the ball through to Bancroft, and Litschi very readily beat the return. Elliott singled infield, and MacDonnell scored. Decanniere, perfectly satisfied with the clean-up, grounded mildly to Rodgers.

Hosp singled off Brown in the seventh, and stole second. Leard walked, and Meloan sacrificed. With the infield drawn in, Bayless bounced the ball over Rodgers, scoring both men. Dick was flagged stealing.

Brown proved his batting worth with a double in the eighth, and was singled across by Derrick. Brashear, batting for Lober in the ninth, sought to disrupt his former mates with a single that severely shook up Litschi. This had no appreciable effect on the result, Kores flying to Hosp for the third out. Guess we'll take a couple today.

FIVE WEEKS ON COAST DIAMONDS.

Bayless of Venice Leads in Number of Runs Brought in on Hits—Batting Averages Sometimes Deceptive—Valiant Base Stealers Nipped on Average of Twice a Week.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

DICK BAYLESS of Hap Hogan's Tigers led the league in the number of runs driven in for the first five weeks of the 1914 Coast League race. Bayless drove twenty-five runs across the plate by hits, sacrifices, or infield outs, the latter being included in the count because of the fact that there is more or less skill required to place the ball so that there will be no play possible at the plate even though the batter may not be able to fatten his own batting average with a safe hit.

Second to Bayless with his twenty-five runs driven in came Jerry Downs of the San Francisco Seals with twenty-three runs pounded in. Tommy Tennant of the Sacramento Wolves came third on the list with twenty-one runs driven in, and Dutch Kores of the Portland Beavers, who drove in twenty runs in the first five weeks, was the only other player to reach the twenty mark.

Following are the players classified by clubs who are credited with driving in ten or more runs in the first five weeks:

Venice: Bayless, 25; Leard, 16; Borton, 14; Elliott, 14; Kane, 13; Meloan, 10; McArdle, 10.

San Francisco: Downs, 23; Schaller, 19; Mundorff, 18; Corhan, 16; Howard, 11; Tobin, 10.

Sacramento: Tennant, 21 (no other players above the ten mark, although Moran, Shinn, Hallinan, Coy and Mohler were closely bunched, the first two with nine each and the last three with eight each.)

Portland: Kores, 20; Ryan, 17.

Los Angeles: Ellis, 19; Page, 13; Maggert, 11; Abstein, 11.

Oakland: Ness, 12; Hetling, 11; Cook, 11.

AVERAGES DECEPTIVE.

That a batting average of .300 or better does not necessarily mean that the player in question is of any particular value in driving in runs is shown by the following list of players who boasted a batting average in the .300 class for ten or more games in the first five weeks, together with the number of runs they have driven in. Some of the players in the above list are repeated, but there are several with better batting averages who have not driven in ten runs:

Fitzgerald, San Francisco, batting, .390, drove in only 2 runs; Elliott, Venice, .386, 14 runs; Tobin, San Francisco, .380; 10 runs; Lober, Portland, .367, 5 runs; Howard, San Francisco, .366, 11 runs; Shinn, Sacramento, .357, 9 runs; Alexander, Oakland, .356, 2 runs; Corhan, San Francisco, .353, 16 runs; Ryan, Portland, .344, 17 runs; Quinlan, Oakland, .336, 9 runs; Bayless, Venice, .336, 25 runs; Schaller, San Francisco, .333, 19 runs; Kane, Venice, .329, 13 runs; Page, Los Angeles, .316, 13 runs; Tennant, Sacramento, .314, 21 runs; Ness, Oakland, .312, 12 runs; Kaylor, Oakland, .308, 8 runs; Bliss, Venice, .308, 3 runs; Kores, Portland, .304, 20 runs; Abstein, Los Angeles, .300, 11 runs.

POOR THIEVES.

Of the base stealers with five or more stolen bases to their credit in the first five weeks, Lober of Portland and Page of Los Angeles have each been thrown out stealing eight times; Carlisle of Venice has been thrown out seven times; Moran of Sacramento and Leard of Venice have each been thrown out six times; Shinn of Sacramento, thrown out five times, is the only other player with five or more stolen bases who has been trapped more than four times. Schmidt of San Francisco with eleven steals, and the runners-up, Young of Sacramento and Schaller of San Francisco, each with nine stolen bases, have each been thrown out two times.

Boles of Los Angeles and Elliott of Venice in the first five weeks of the season each threw out twenty men trying to steal, more than the records of any other catcher show. But Elliott was the victim of more stolen bases than any other catcher, twenty-seven thefts being recorded against him. Brooks of Los Angeles with twenty-two stolen bases charged to him, is the only other catcher against whom more than twenty bases have been stolen. Of the regular catchers, Boles of Los Angeles, Hannah of Sacramento and Sepulveda of San Francisco are the only catchers who have thrown out more men than have stolen against them. Boles has thrown out twenty men and allowed only seventeen steals; Hannah in the first five weeks threw out eleven men and allowed only ten steals.

More Sacramento players have been thrown out stealing than any other club and yet Sacramento ranks only fourth in the total number of stolen bases. Portland, fifth in the total number of steals, has had the smallest number of men thrown out by opposing catchers. Los Angeles shows the best base-stealing record with a total of forty-nine stolen bases and only twenty-five men thrown out.

Taking the total starts, the number of stolen bases, plus the number of times thrown out, the club, individual, and catchers' base-stealing percentages follow. In the case of the club records, the percentage is found by dividing the total number of steals by the total number of starts; the same process gives the percentage for individual base-stealers, only those players with five or more stolen bases being included; in the case of the catchers, the object of that player is to prevent men stealing, so the process is changed and the percentage is found by dividing the number of men thrown out by the total starts made against each catcher.

37X5 FEDERAL QUICK DETACHABLE CLINCHER
"RUGGED" TREAD

Scientific Protection Against Skidding

combined with the heaviest construction gives the Federal Rugged Tread Tire a value far greater than its selling price. You cannot buy more safety at any price, and the ordinary "non-skid" treads that sell for less than Rugged give less.

FEDERAL RUGGED TREAD TIRES

are double thick, and they give extra service. The large round projections, set in parallel rows, are the only scientifically correct skidding protection. No matter in what direction the wheel tends to slip, the same required number of big thick studs are on the job to stop it—gripping the road tenaciously.

Double-Cable Base

The exclusive Federal Double-Cable-Base construction gives extra service value to Federal Tires. It positively does away with rim cutting, side-wall blowouts just above the rim, tube pinching and the danger of a tire slipping off its rim.

Made in straight wall and quick detachable clincher styles. Plain and Rugged Treads

GOLF GOSSIP.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

A. A. FRENCH of the Annandale Country Club was the bright particular twinkle in yesterday's golf at the Midwick Country Club. He won best gross prize with 79 in the supplementary event to the Southern California championship—18-hole medal play.

But Will Bacon of San Gabriel tied that gross score of 79, losing in the play-off. He therefore acquired the trophy that went for best handicap—net 77.

Three gentlemen tied for the next two handicap cups and will play off one day this week—W. W. Campbell of the Virginia, with 81-2-79; Rev. C. T. Murphy, with 93-14-79, and S. S. Parsons of the Los Angeles Country Club, with 87-8-79.

Mr. Campbell had the star hole of the day, with 2 at the Drop, and made a 38 going out. Mr. Murphy and Mr. Darsie, "the parson couplet," as some one irreverently called them, both made excellent scores, Mr. Darsie a net 76, which should, by all the ethics, have won the day. But alas! The rules of golf are rigid and unsympathetic and ignorance is no plea. So when he drove a ball from No. 4, which vanished from mortal ken, he just cheerfully dropped another where he thought the first ought to be and played on. Of course, he should have returned to the tee. And yet they will tell you that ignorance is bliss! And Bill Bacon now owns that cup.

Mr. Murphy likewise had a narrow escape and one sees a pair of earnest clerical students for the rules of golf henceforth. Murphy had to dig his ball out of a hayrick and touched it accidentally, but President Tufts ordained that that touch was equivalent to a tread—and when you accidentally tread on your ball in long grass it is no sin.

All the other scores were quite outre—rank outsiders. Class was bashful and playing modest—and there never were so many varieties of interesting excuses offered for our delectation. The course was in good condition, so that wouldn't do. Just why E. S. Armstrong had an 83, Jack Jevne an 81, Conde Jones an 86, H. G. Pattee 89, E. B. Tufts 90, Morris Phillips 87 and H. N. H. Woodcock a 97 is attributed to novel reasons. For instance, Phillips had been fishing all the week and kept thinking he had a ten-pounder on the end of his line. Pattee, of course, had been poloing and kept thinking he was defending goal. Conde Jones thought he was playing golf. Woodcock had been playing bridge all the week and thought he had to double on no trumps.

There were sixty entries, twenty of whom are represented by "no cards," people like W. F. Jewett, Dr. Foote, R. E. Hunter, W. H. Cornett, E. R. Williams, Arthur Braly and stylish names like that.

But there were several 80 nets which should be highly commended on a day of dismal stars—Lincoln Clark, who went out in 39, with gross 84; Capt. Wharton, 92-12-80; J. C. Lewis, 90-10-80; F. O. Wood, 90-10-80; Thomas McCall, 90-10-80.

The 81's net were C. W. Pendleton, 97-16-81; E. B. Washburn, 88-7-81; L. A. Wolters, 85-4-81, and the 82's were Page Warden, 90-8-82; Conde Jones, 86-4-82; N. M. Murray, 94-12-82; Capt. Poole, 94-8-82, and C. F. Atkinson, 90-8-82.

The baseball which Mayor Mitchel of New York threw out at the opening game between the Giants and the Phillies at the Polo Grounds, New York, has been offered as a trophy to the teams of the elementary schools in the Public School Athletic League championship games of that city. The ball has been autographed by Manager John J. McGraw, Christy Mathewson and Chief Meyers of the Giants, and the Mayor will have it mounted on an ebony stand. Seventy teams have already entered the series of interborough games and the ball will be given the champion nine, after a series of elimination games.

WHEN are You Going to Begin Treatment

Are you going to master your ailment, or are you going to let your ailment master you. Common sense calls for QUICK ACTION. Neglect only makes a bad matter worse and the time comes when Nature will stand for neglect no longer. There is no doubt as to what you SHOULD DO. The question is WHEN are you going to DO IT.

There Is No Excuse for Neglect.

I have PROVED my ability to cure Recent and Chronic Disorders of the Nerves, Blood, Skin, Rectum and Vital Organs. I do not mean "Printer's ink" cures. I mean REAL CURES that have enabled me to satisfy thousands of patients during the ten years I have MADE GOOD in this city. Ten years of EXPERIENCE, and the "experiments" of less competent doctors mean the difference between success and failure. If you come to me first, when the symptoms first appear, so much the better.

Let Me Know What Terms You Want.

To extend a REAL, HELPING HAND to the largest number of those handicapped and unfitted for work, business or pleasure by weakness and disease, I make low fees that can be easily met, even by those of limited means. So again I say there is no excuse for delay. Free examination. Call 9 to 4, evenings, 7 to 8. Sundays, 9 to 12 noon, only.

BLUE ROCK MEN TAKING TRIBUTE.

SECOND DAY OF LOS ANGELES CLUB TOURNEY.

Dick Reed High Gun, Lee Couts Best of Amateurs, Ralph Arnold and One-Armed W. A. Julian Taking Handicap Trophies—Handicap Championship Closes Meet Today.

Dick Reed carried off the individual honors of the Los Angeles Gun Club blue-rock tournament in the second day's shoot at Venice yesterday, making high gun with 175 out of 180 targets in the professional squad. Second place among professionals was taken by Guy Holloran, with 169, and third by Ed Mitchell on his total of 168. The latter continued his unfinished run of the day before, bringing up the total to 135 straight, a record likely to stand for many years as the club's high mark.

Lee Couts made high gun among the amateurs, 172; while C. H. Julian and C. H. Miller tied for second with 170, and a quartette tie for third at 169, occurred between F. B. Mills, R. H. Bungay, C. Gillmore and H. Ogilvie.

Ralph Arnold captured the handicap trophy, a silver loving cup, by taking twenty-five straight targets from the twenty-yard line. Competitors in this event were posted at distances varying from sixteen to twenty-two yards, the professionals shooting for the competition only, without rights to the cup.

W. A. Julian won the handicap trophy for the first day by beating C. A. Box and C. L. Nichol in the shoot-off of their tie on perfect scores. Julian (16) made twenty-four; Nichol (19) secured twenty-three, and Box (20) stopped at twenty-one.

Entries were fewer than on the first day by half a dozen, a total of seventy-two facing the targets during the day. This number will probably be exceeded today, when eight events of fifteen targets each precede the Los Angeles handicap championship tournament for the trophy and $100 added money at 100 targets.

Conditions were fine as a whole, though the light was rather high at times. Most marksmen used either Cook or King shooting glasses, and suffered no inconvenience.

Mrs. C. P. Thomas joined Mrs. C. E. Groat on the lines, using a Smith double-barrel, 28-inch, twelve-bore gun so effectively as to destroy 131 targets.

Many ladies appeared among the visitors, assuring their friends that they would be on hand today to see the crucial finish.

It is probable that the Rose system of division will be used today, a vote of competitors taken yesterday showing such preference.

Harvard is to build a $1,000,000 gymnasium.

BUSINESS MAN COMES DOWN IN SHORT TIME.

Engagement at Riverside Interferes With Auto Trip, but He Came Down in Nineteen Hours—Roads Were Good All the Way and He Had No Trouble.

One of the fastest automobile trips made from San Francisco to Los Angeles in many a day was the run of Bert Colby in a Chalmers Light Six last week. He left the St. Francis Hotel which is in the heart of the business section and just nineteen hours and twenty minutes later he was at First and Broadway. This is the fastest recorded trip that has been made for several years.

The occasion of the fast trip was to get to Riverside to close an important real estate deal. A telegram was sent to Colby notifying him that his presence was needed without delay. When the wire was received he was preparing to leave with a party of friends for a four days' tour down the coast, stopping at Del Monte and Santa Barbara.

The good condition of the roads out of San Francisco enabled him to hurry up the roads and it took him seven hours and twenty minutes to drive to Paso Robles. The run from there down in twelve hours was a slow jaunt, as it was necessary to make a number of detours.

Not a thing happened to mar the trip. There was only one tire change and that was caused by trying to take a corner too fast. There was not a minute's delay from mechanical trouble.

SANDWICH (Eng.) May 16.—[illegible] Jerome D. Travers, amateur golf champion of the United States, has an excellent chance of carrying off the British amateur honors, according to spectators who today followed a foursome in which Travers was the star. Travers and Francis Ouimet, the open champion of the United States, played with Harold H. Hilton and Michael Scott, and lost by 3 and 2.

Their defeat, however, was declared to have been due to the extremely poor showing made by Ouimet. Travers never made a mistake throughout the game. He drove long and putted admirably. Enormous interest is displayed in the forthcoming championship contest.

A Shipment of Brand-New Overlands

$950 Completely Equipped f. o. b. Toledo, O.

$1075 With electric starter and generator f. o. b. Toledo, O.

Just arrived. Yours is here. Act today.

WE want to publicly apologize to the thousands of patient people who have been unable to get their Overland on the specified delivery date.

The situation has simply been beyond our control. Never before, during the entire history of our ever-expanding business, have orders exceeded our production program to such an astonishing extent as they have this season.

Shipping orders have poured into the factory on the average of from 500 to 600 cars a day—often running as high as 1000 cars a day.

However, this congestion is now relieved for we have been able to increase our factory production—and Overlands are now being shipped at the rate of 50 to 60 carloads a day.

Therefore, if you act promptly—by getting in touch with our dealer without further loss of time—you can be assured of an immediate delivery. Your Overland is ready to deliver to you right now.

We earnestly advise you not to wait until the demand again gets ahead of our increased production. Quick action means that tomorrow you can be enjoying your new Overland. And, what is more, you will know that you have secured the most economical and efficient popular priced car ever manufactured.

Make your arrangements today for a demonstration.

Remember, this is America's greatest motor car value. The Overland is a big, powerful, snappy, beautiful, comfortable, large, roomy car. And it is priced at 30% less than any other similar car made.

REDS THIRD TIME BLANK BOSTON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CINCINNATI, May 16.—A triple by Hoblitzel, after one man was out in the eighth inning of today's game with Boston, closely followed by a single by Von Kolnitz, which scored the Cincinnati first baseman, allowed the local team to score their third shut-out of the series and defeat the visitors 1 to 0.

Error Costly.

Ryan for a pass, and then came Jimmy Shinn with the second Wolf hit of the game, a double to right that scored the two runners.

In the eleventh, with one gone, Coy slammed a single to right; Tennant singled through Moore; Young hit to Moore, who forced Tennant at second, Coy making third. Deacon Van Buren went to bat for Kid Mohler and when for the third time in succession the ball was hit in Moore's direction he was found lacking, Coy scoring the winning run and Van spiking first on his way to the clubhouse.

POMONA TRIMS ALL-STAR TEAM.

The Pomona College varsity simply slaughtered the College All-Star team of Los Angeles at Claremont yesterday. Three of the visitor's pitchers could not hold the slugging Sage Hens who smashed out nineteen hits for thirteen runs.

Capt. Becker twirled the first part of the game until his team had a big lead and then let Daniels finish the game. Three runs was the only consolation the visitors received.

OAKLAND LANDS ON FANNING IN FATAL SEVENTH.

Nearly Twenty Thousand People See Daughter of Former Coast League President Shatter Champagne Bottle on Home Plate—Box of Records Buried Under Slab.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16.—Oakland helped to dedicate Ewing Park, San Francisco's new baseball grounds, with a baptism of fire today, shutting out the Seals by a score of 3 to 0. Fanning, Seal pitcher, was driven from the box in the seventh inning with a bombardment of five hits that produced the only three runs.

Until the fatal seventh, Fanning allowed only one hit. Toser finished the game. Geyer, pitching for Oakland, was touched for nine hits, but never more than two in one inning.

A big luncheon of baseball fans, an automobile parade to the park, and the breaking of a bottle of champagne on the new home plate by Miss Ethel Graham, daughter of Judge Graham, former president of the Pacific Coast League, preceded the game. Under the plate was buried a copper box containing newspapers and pictures of officials and players. The capacity of the park is 20,000. It was nearly filled today.

OREGON BEAT U. V.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) May 16.—University of Oregon won the track meet from University of Washington by 67 to 64 points.

Ruess says:

"Pope Hartford Model 35 The Best Automobile The Pope Company Has Ever Turned Out."

Every once in awhile it is brought to my attention that there are people who think that the Pope Manufacturing Company has gone out of business. On account of the great number of Pope automobiles I have sold in Southern California and the way it has dominated its class for the last three or four years, competitors took considerable delight and not a little satisfaction out of matters when the Pope Manufacturing Company, through internal strife, etc., went into the Receiver's hands. They thought they saw the end of some real hard competition they had to put up with for the last several years and statements are still made by salesmen of competitors that the Pope Manufacturing Company is bankrupt and has gone out of business.

These are deliberate lies and my only regret is that it isn't possible for me to meet the parties who say this face to face and tell them so. The Pope Manufacturing Company is in the Receiver's hands and there is no doubt about it whatsoever nor do we deny it, but they are turning out automobiles at the rate of three and one-half per day at the factory now and are turning out in the Model 35 forty-horsepower car the best automobile that they have ever made.

It does not require such a wonderful stretch of memory to go back to 1909 and recollect the fearful trimming I administered to a couple of high-priced, high-powered, specially built automobiles in the then celebrated "Baldy Race." It was done with a Pope Hartford automobile and our present Model 35 is the identical power plant, etc., brought up-to-date. This is the power plant that the Pope Company should have always used. I am very glad, indeed, that they have decided to go back to this. Everybody knows that the Pope Company manufactured a 50 horsepower four-cylinder automobile and everybody knows, who has ever met one of them on the road, that these Pope cars could pan the everlasting daylights out of anything that came along. That is one reason why the Pope owner feels that he is a sort of a "king of the road," that he don't have to eat dirt. The Pope Company made this automobile too good. In other words they lost money on these big cars. This car that they sold for $3250 and $3400 should have sold for $4500 and still would have been in a class with cars selling for $5000.

We never claimed that the Pope was the most quiet automobile in the world, but we did claim and still claim that it is the "king of automobiles" for good hard, rugged rough service. The Pope Company are not going to build large cars any more, but are going to confine themselves to making and specializing on 40 horse-power models for $2400 F.O.B. Los Angeles. This car is completely equipped and is a real automobile. If you have any doubts come down and I'll take you out and show you a mile-a-minute car. If after reading this statement you are still dubious about it, I'll show you some hill-climbing that you never dreamed of for a car of this size and price. Besides it is a very, very easy riding automobile. I can't say it is the easiest riding automobile in the world because I haven't ridden in all of them, but I have not had the pleasure of riding in any that rides any easier.

Now, just another word or too about the Pope Company. The Pope Company, as everyone knows, has had financial troubles, but their reorganization is practically completed and they will be in the automobile business for many, many moons to come. On top of that I am going to handle Pope automobiles for many, many moons to come or just as long as the factory and I agree and as we have agreed for a considerable length of time, I think we will still continue to agree. I know that the above statement was not necessary to Pope owners but as my competitors take delight in spreading malicious reports about the Pope Company, I take this method of correcting same and request any one who is figuring on an automobile under $3000 to ring me up and let me show them a "real" automobile for the money. I know you won't regret it and it won't cost you anything anyhow.

BIG LEAGUE BATTERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, May 16.—Ty Cobb's steady advance to the front among the American League batters was the feature of the race for hitting honors this week. Latest records show him in eighth place with an average of .315, an increase of eight points and an advance of five places since last week. Two weeks ago he ranked thirty-eighth with an average of .240. Jackson of Cleveland leads the batters with .407. Then comes Crawford, Detroit, .375; Leilvelt, Cleveland, .346; E. Foster, Washington, .337; Milan, Washington, .329; Barry, Philadelphia, .325; Williams St. Louis, .320; Cobb, Detroit, .315; Oldring, Philadelphia, .308; Hartzell, New York, .306. Club honors for the week go to Philadelphia with .264, with Detroit next with .260. Blackburn, Chicago, leads the base stealers with ten.

Byrne of Philadelphia leads the National with .428. In the first ten come Daubert, Brooklyn, .417; Cathers, St. Louis, .400; Meyers, New York, .367; S. Magee, Philadelphia, .365; Paskert, Philadelphia, .344; Lobert, Philadelphia, .344; Gowdy, Boston, .341; Cravath, Philadelphia, .338; Dalton, Brooklyn, .333. Philadelphia leads the clubs with .294 and Brooklyn is next with .289. Moran of Cincinnati heads the base stealers with eight.

Evans of Brooklyn leads the Federal batters with .442. St. Louis and Indianapolis rank first and second with .277 and .276, and McKechnie leads the base stealers with seven.

John Titus's average of .500 keeps him on top in the American Association. Kansas City is at the top among the clubs with .288. Barbeau of Milwaukee retains base-stealing honors with ten.

One-Sided Meet.

YALE TRACK STARS GET DOUBLE CRIMSON SCORE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) May 16.—Yale was twice as strong as Harvard in their twenty-third dual track and field meet today. The unusually well-balanced Blue team of runners, leapers and weight-throwers scored 66⅓ points to 37⅔ for the Crimson. Three meet records established last year in the half-mile, mile and two-mile runs were broken, while the high-hurdle time of 15 4-5 seconds, made in 1899, was equaled for the sixth year.

From the time that Jackson, the Harvard timber topper, faltered and was shut out in the first heat of the high hurdles, which opened the afternoon sport, Yale's ascendancy was never in doubt, and the only question was the size of the Blue score.

Poucher of Yale, in the mile run, was the first to make new figures, cutting the time made last year by Norris of Yale by three seconds. The new record is 4 minutes and 23 seconds.

Then Capt. Clark of the Yale team ran the 880 yards in 1 minute and 54 seconds flat, three-fifths of a second faster than his time last year. A few minutes later R. St.B. Boyd of Harvard clipped three full seconds off his time of 9 minutes, 45 seconds in the two-mile event last year.

Potter of Yale, who won both hurdles, was forced to equal the old time in the trial heat of the high hurdles in which Jackson was shut out. Capt. Barron of Harvard won both the sprints in fine style. Wilkie of Yale surprised the benches by running Bingham off his feet in the 440, winning by nearly four yards. In the two-mile Clark and Wilbur of Yale made the running until the last quarter, when Boyd of Harvard sprinted into first place with Southworth of Harvard coming in a strong third.

The 440-yard—Wilkie (Yale,) Bingham (Harvard,) Rook (Harvard;) time, 49 1-5s.

The 120-yard hurdles—Potter (Yale,) Shedden (Yale,) Willets (Yale;) time 16s.

The 100-yard dash—Barron (Harvard;) Cornell (Yale,) Ricketts (Yale;) time, 10 1-5s.

CORNELL TRACK MEN DEFEAT QUAKERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ITHACA (N. Y.) May 16.—Sensational performances marked the decisive defeat of Pennsylvania by Cornell in the annual dual track meet here today. The score was: Cornell, 71; Pennsylvania, 46.

Among the features were the victories of Reller and Van Winkle in the sprints, the brilliant triumph of Speiden over Madeira in the mile, in which the winner set up a new track record of 4:19 4-5, Meredith's running in the 880 yards, the upsetting of the Red and White pole vault stars and the high jump of Cady of Cornell.

Cornell took seven firsts to Pennsylvania's six.

The Dorval Park Jockey Club of Montreal will give an international derby for a purse of $20,000 on Saturday, June 13. It will be for 3-year-olds and the distance will be one and a quarter miles.

The announcement of a new Stevens-Duryea model is of importance to every owner and prospective owner of a high-grade motor car.

It means another step in all that is best in motor cars.

The beauty of form is throughout consistent with its luxurious use, and is neither the result of embellishment nor of shallow ornamentation.

Just as, years ago, the Stevens-Duryea originated those principles of mechanical construction which are now generally accepted, so, in recent years, it has established a new form of exterior design, bringing all elements together in one artistic unit, which is now recognized as correct and permanent.

No other car expresses so completely the purpose for which a fine motor car is built.

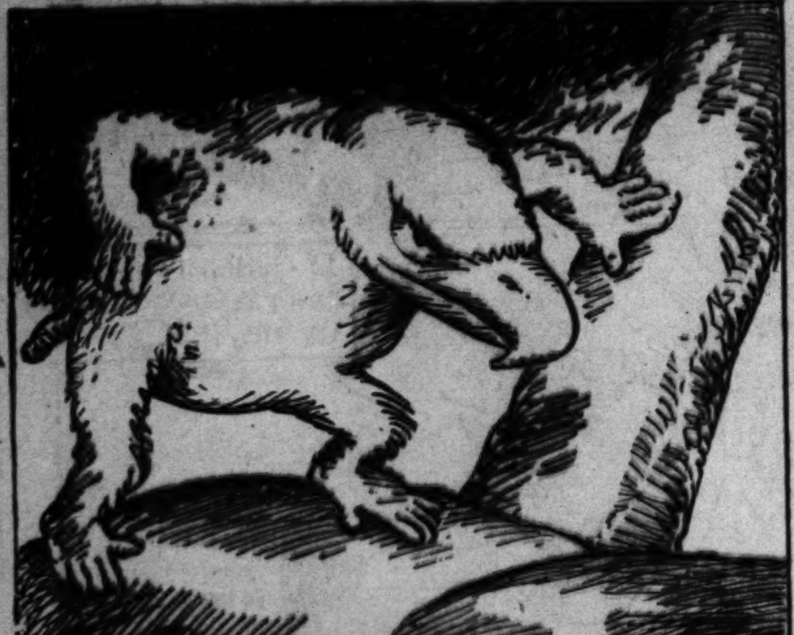
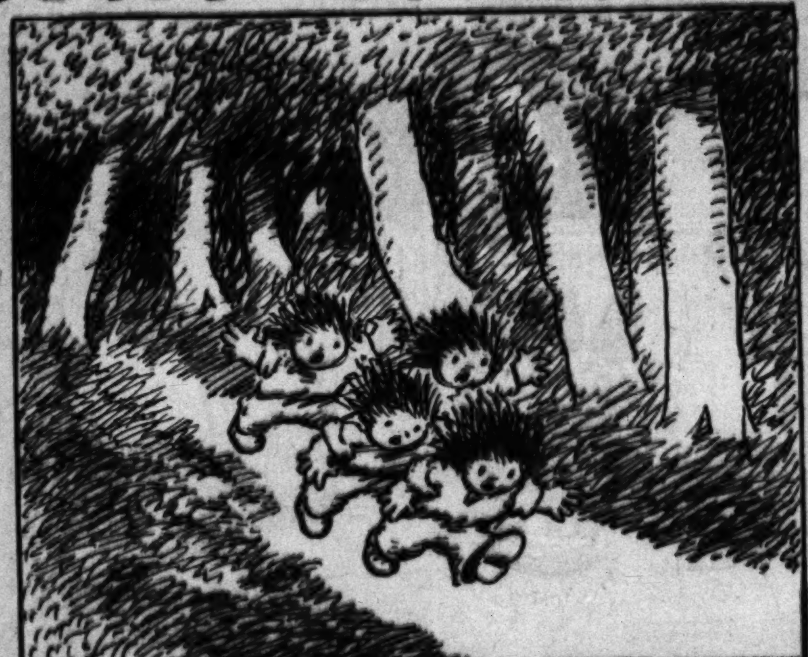
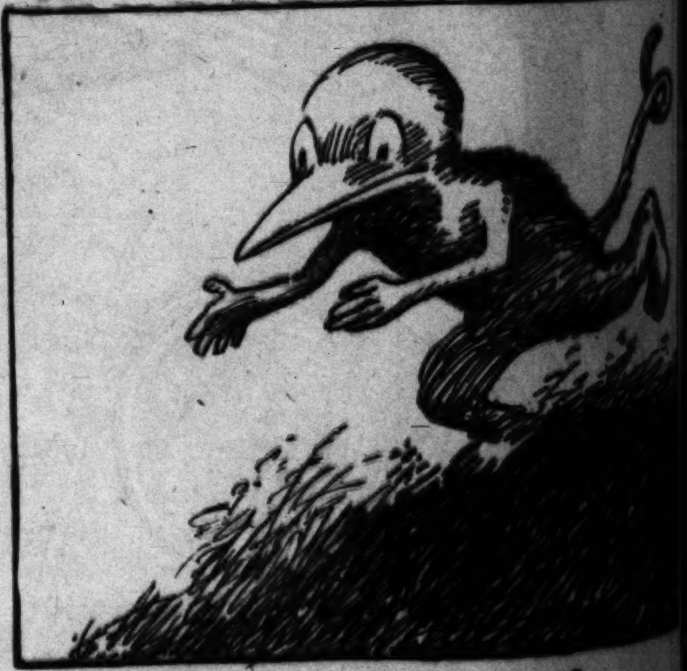
THE TERRORS OF THE TINY TADS



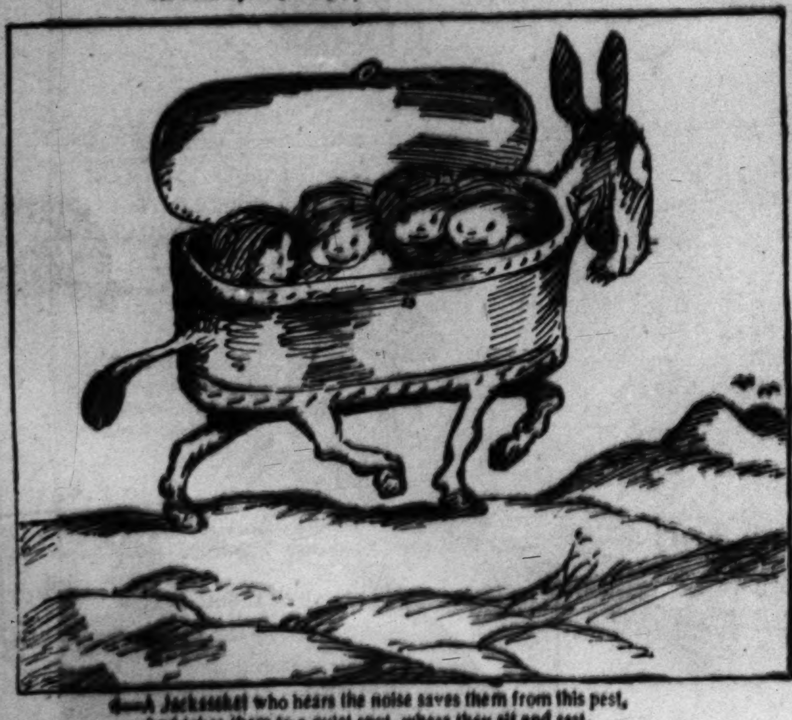
1—The Chimpanzeagle looks around to see what he can get;
He woke up very hungry, and he hasn't eaten yet.



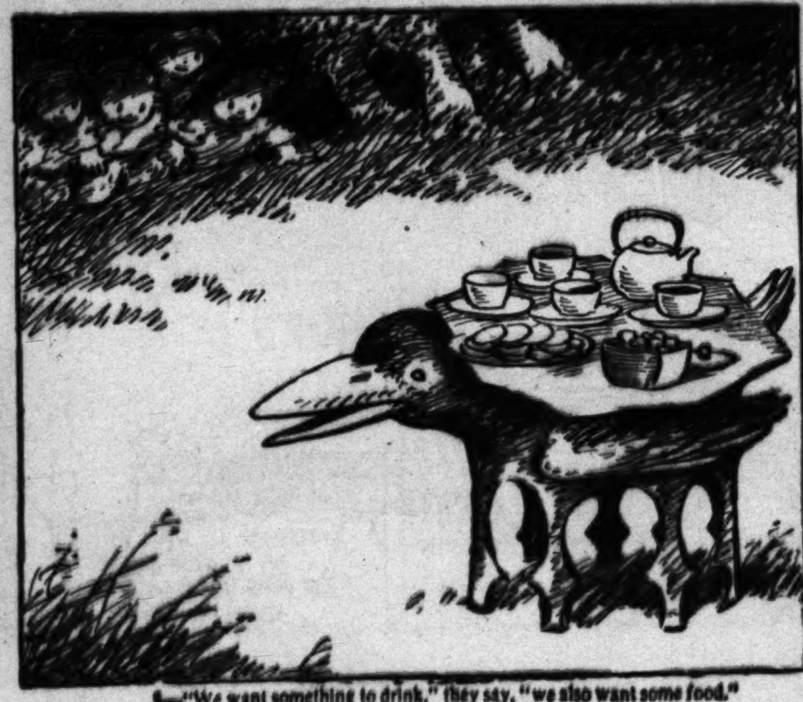
2—The Tiny Tads have seen him, though; that's why they run away.
"We want no horrid demonkey to swallow us," they say.



3—Then suddenly a Gorillark comes prancing down a hill;
"I'm going to chase you all around," he cries in accents shrill.



4—A Jackasskel who hears the noise saves them from this pest,
And takes them to a quiet spot, where they sit and rest.



5—"We want something to drink," they say, "we also want some food."
And then there comes a sort of crow, who's partly made of wood.

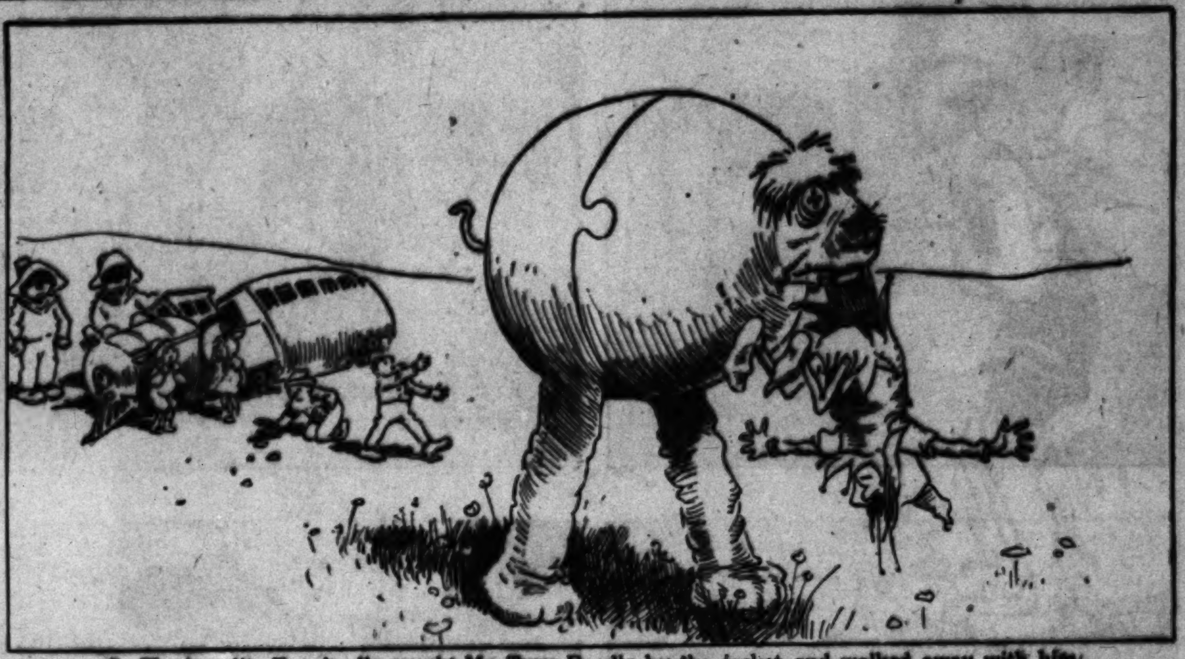
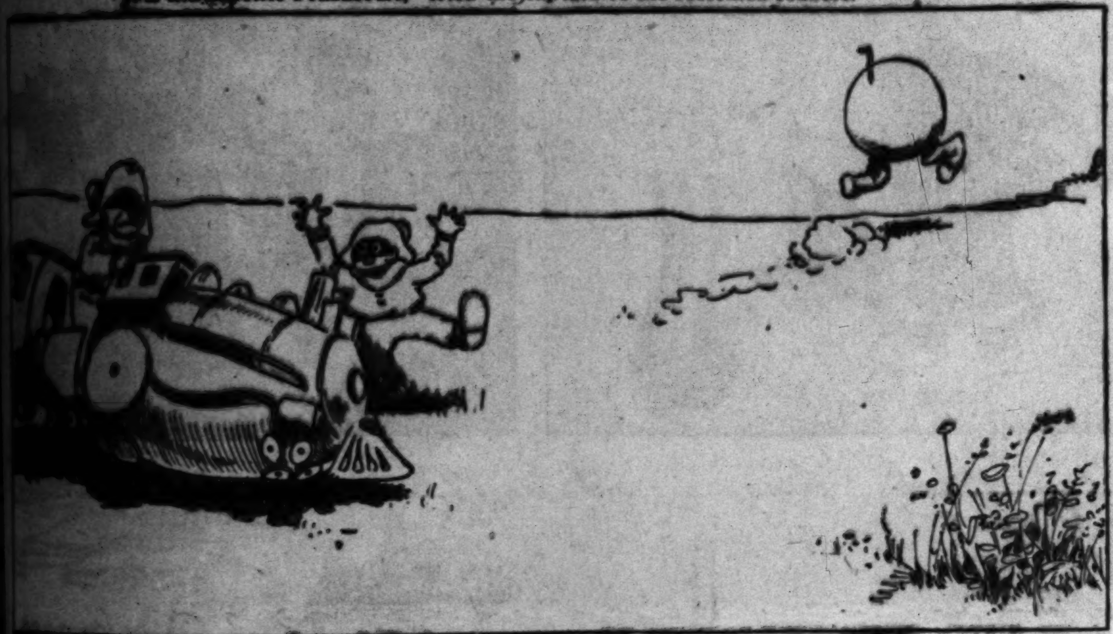
"It is the impolite Frazdoodle," cried the captain of the reformed robbers.



2—The impolite Frazdoodle caught Mr. Twee Deedle by the jacket and walked away with him. The Methuselah boys threw stones at the Frazdoodle, but they bounced off his wooden back.



"Let's get in the train and follow them," said Dickie.

ZOTWOTS
A DARING RESCUE

STORY AND PICTURES By Bob Dean

MUCH as I disapproved of many things the Jay-fowl had done, I was indeed grieved to learn of fearful fate, which affected me far more than I care to admit. Yet so eager was I for more news of the Zotwots that I welcomed my little friend with such a volley of questions she hardly knew how to answer. So when I suggested she tell me in her own way she felt more at ease, and finally said:—

"The Zotwots expected the Jay-fowl to pop in any minute and sat just waiting for him with smiling faces. But as time passed and he didn't return they began to feel worried. Finally two got up and went to look for him, and not far from the Spakrum found one of his tail feathers.

"They stopped and stared anxiously at each other, feeling sure something terrible had happened to their pet. But before either could speak the sound of voices reached their ears, coming from the direction of the Spakrum. Without a word they crept softly forward and crouched behind a large rock, quite close to two Slinks who stood in the entrance of the Spakrum, snickering and gleefully boasting of their cute tricks.

"The listening Zotwots could hardly contain themselves as the Slinks bragged about dragging the Jay-fowl before the Wot, but when they learned that their pet had been swallowed by the Blubberingboo they leaped at the Slinks with such a yell that they tumbled back in the entrance with chattering squeals and frantically barred the door.

"The Zotwots, finding they could not reach the Slinks, drew back and talked in excited whispers. Suddenly one clutched the other's arm and said, 'I have it! I have a scheme!'

"When the other heard what it was he smacked his fist in his hand and said in a voice choked with tears, 'Come on; we'll try it at any cost!'

"Turning, they dashed home at full speed and, calling two other Zotwots aside, hurriedly told them all that had happened and what they intended to do. They said at first it could not be done. But when they finally agreed to help the leader hurried away and quickly returned with the things they would need. Handing one a pair of shears, another a ladder and the third a stick of peppermint candy, he took up a large needle and spool of thread and led them on with careful steps till they reached the den of the Blubberingboo. Crawling to the gate, they listened and peered all around, but as everything was perfectly quiet the leader softly unfastened the gate and at a nod of his head the Zotwot with the stick of candy crept nervously inside and scrambled to the top of a large rock just in time to escape the nettled Blubberingboo, who snortled toward him with angry sobs.

"But the Zotwot never flinched. He raised his arm and waved the candy to and fro before his bulging eyes. Scenting the candy, the Blubberingboo sniffed and eyed it greedily and whimpered and whined, as the little Zotwot managed to keep it temptingly just out of reach.

"As soon as the Blubberingboo's attention was fixed upon the candy the other two crept after their leader into the [illegible], raised the ladder and held it steady [illegible] the one with the shears climbed up [illegible] ripping off one of the patches on the Blubberingboo's side, quickly reached in and seized the Jay-fowl. But he squawked and flopped around with such terror, trying to get free, that the Zotwot suddenly lost his balance and pitched head first inside on top of him.

"This so startled the Blubberingboo he squalled and kicked, knocking the two Zotwots who held the ladder sprawling. But his feet got caught in the rungs and he fell to the ground with a hollow thud.

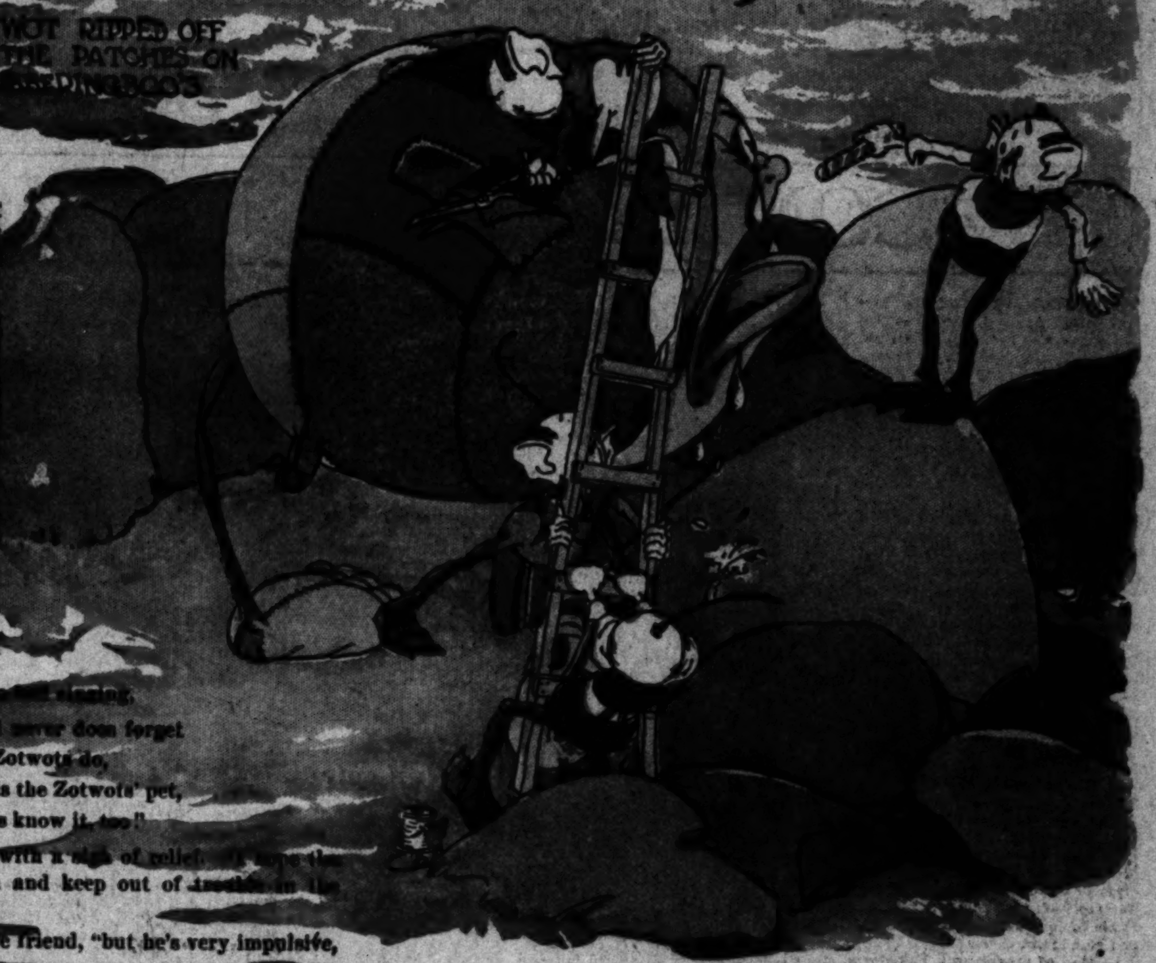
"Scrambling to their feet, the two Zotwots frantically pushed and rolled him over on his back and before he could get up the Zotwot who was inside tumbled out, clutching the Jay-fowl in his arms. The poor little Jay was so frightened he failed to recognize his friends and squawked louder than ever. His cries aroused the whole Spakrum, and the Slinks came scurrying out with angry [illegible] just as the Zotwots [illegible] through the gate with the Jay-fowl, followed by the Blubberingboo, bellowing with rage.

"The Slinks leaped and [illegible] their arms to head him off, and in the excitement of driving him back into the den the Zotwots escaped. By the time they reached home the Jay-fowl had fully recovered from his fright and was as chipper as ever, if not more so, and went off to bed singing.

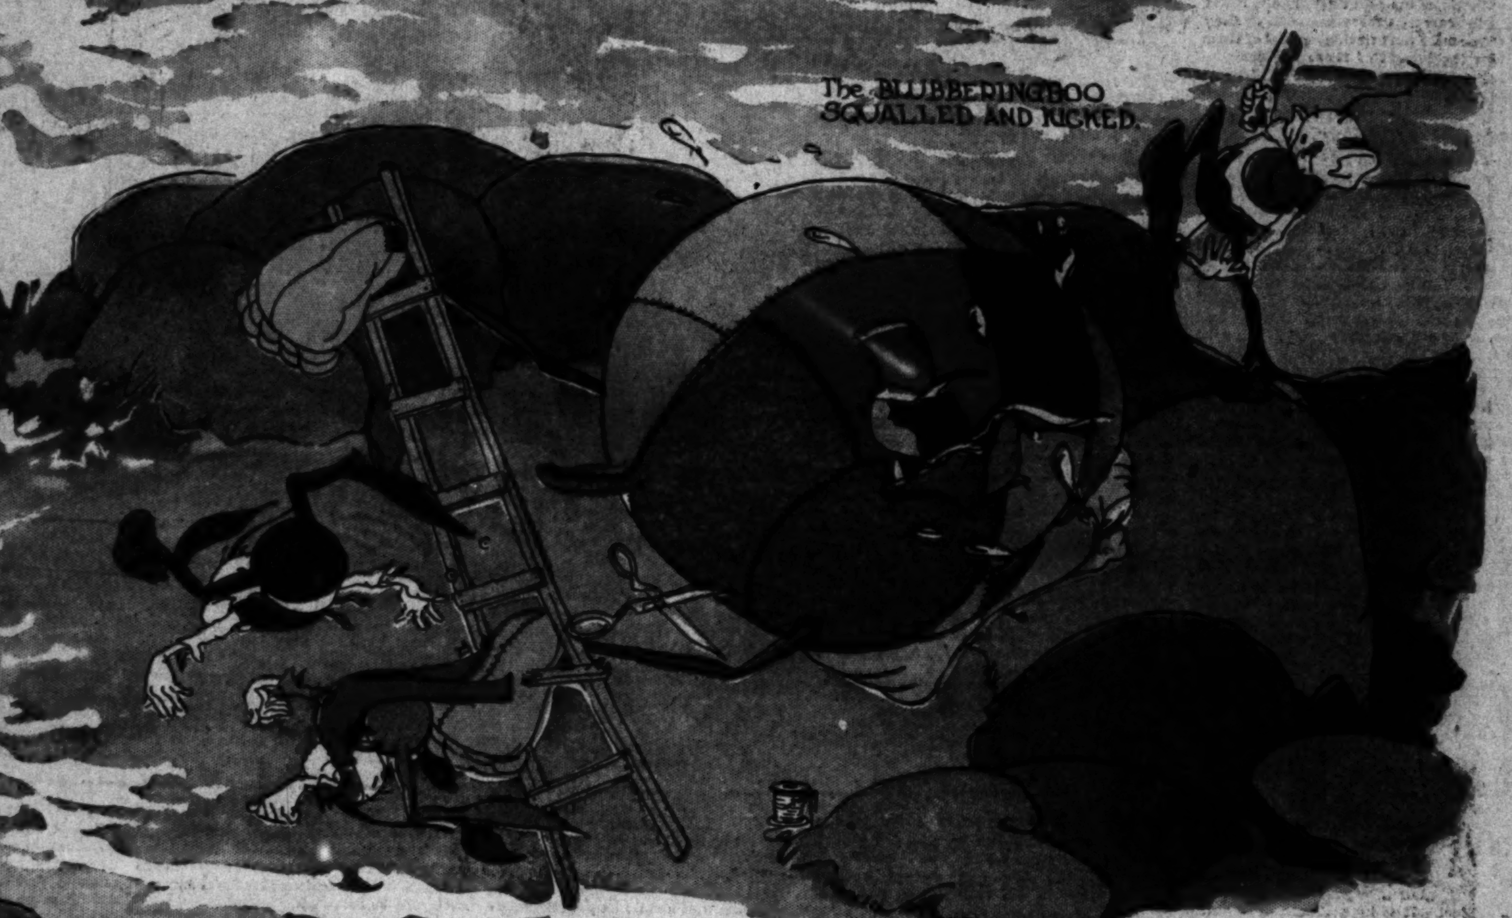
"'Now the Jay-fowl never does forget
The things the Zotwots do,
For the Jay-fowl is the Zotwots' pet,
And the Zotwots know it, too!'"

"My! I'm glad of that," I said with a sigh of relief. "I hope the Jay-fowl will remember his lesson and keep out of trouble in the future."

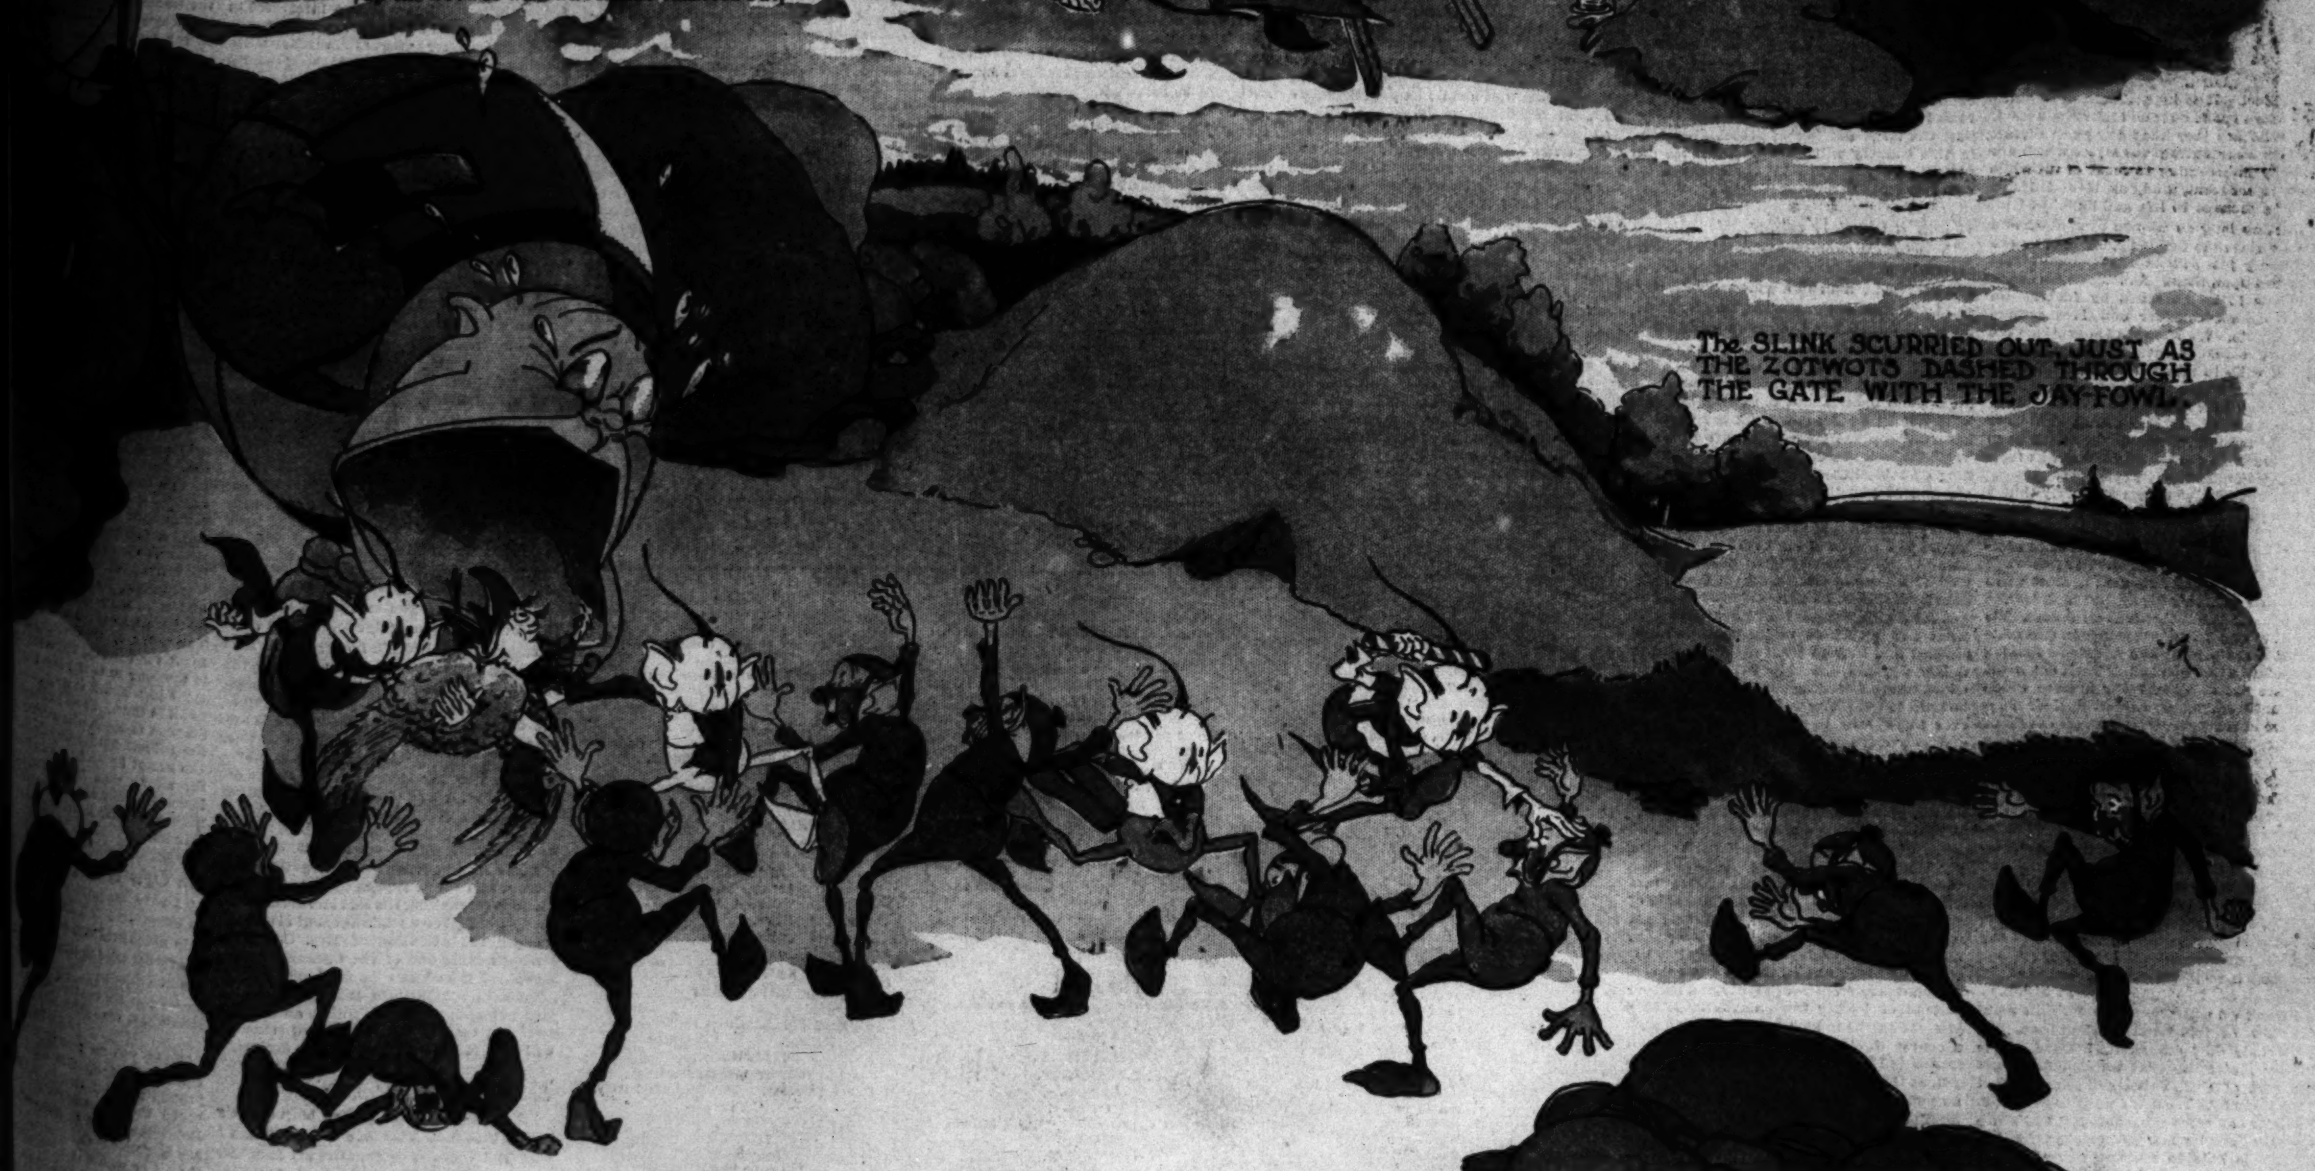
"I hope so, too," agreed my little friend, "but he's very impulsive, you know."



The ZOTWOT RIPPED OFF ONE OF THE PATCHES ON The BLUBBERINGBOO'S SIDE.



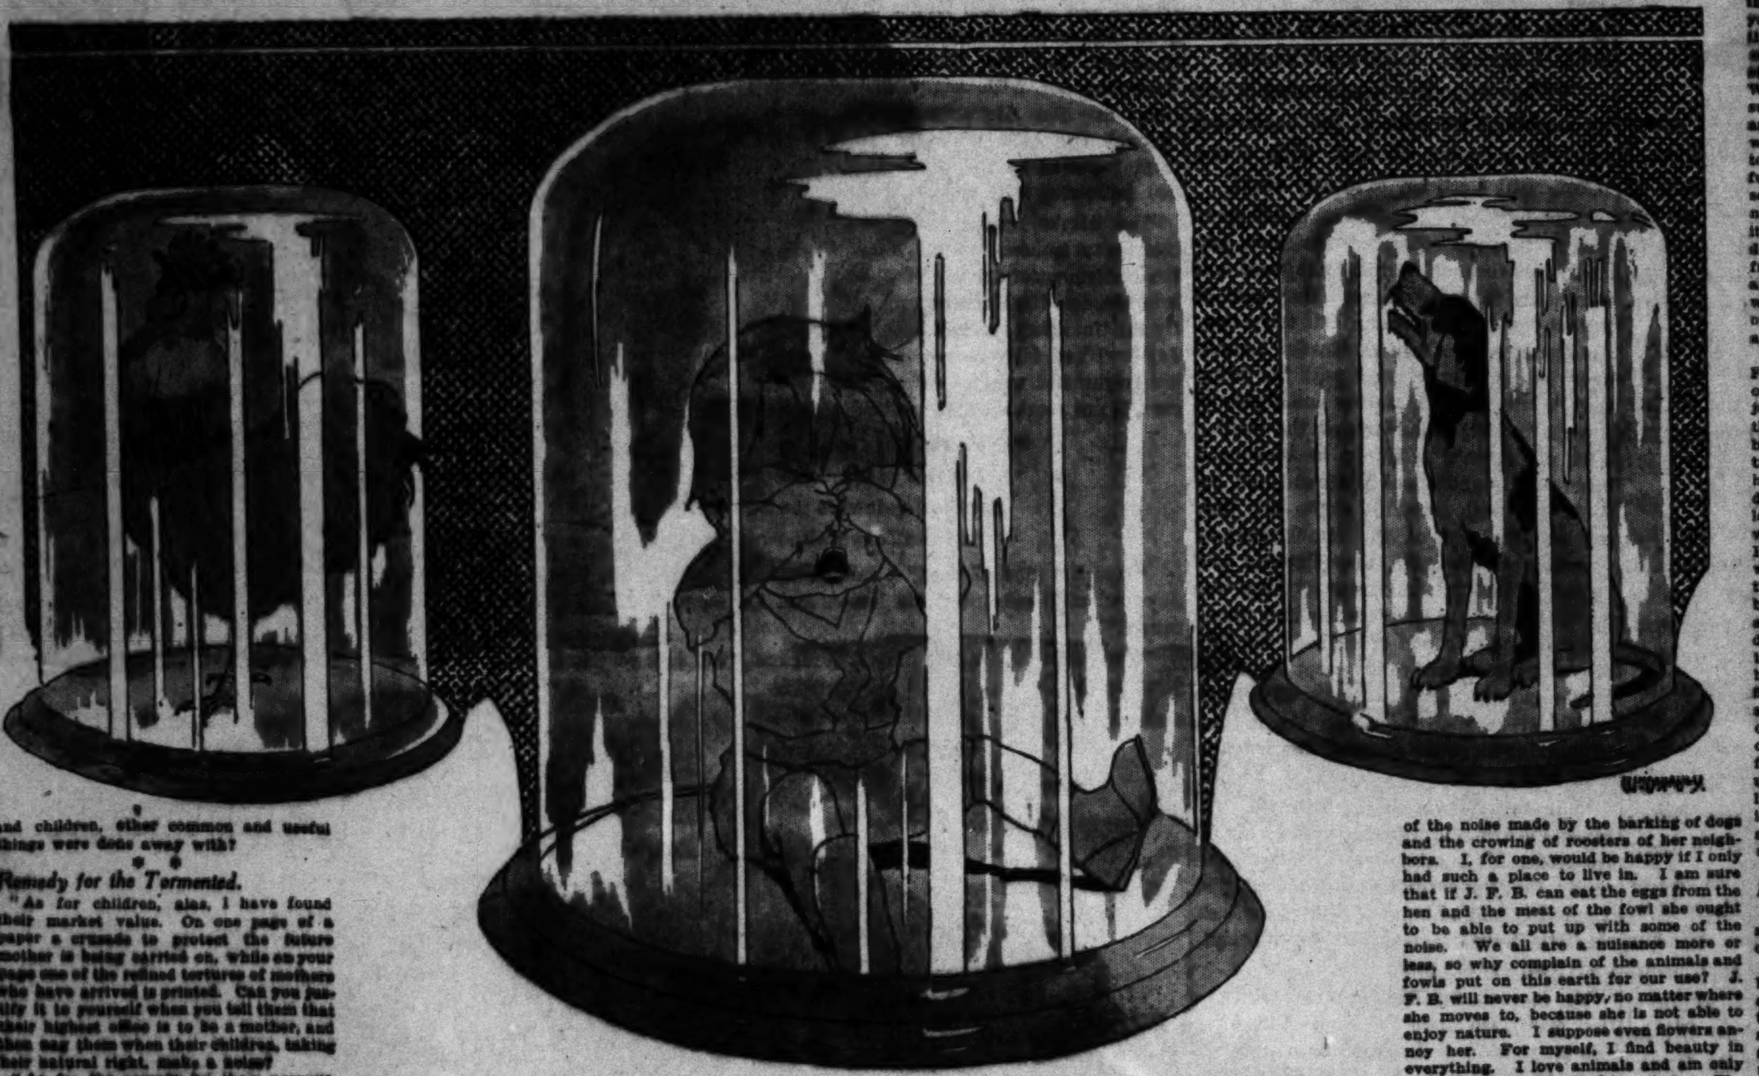
The BLUBBERINGBOO SQUALLED AND KICKED.



The SLINK SCURRIED OUT JUST AS THE ZOTWOTS DASHED THROUGH THE GATE WITH THE JAY-FOWL.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

COMMENTS ON NEIGHBORHOOD NOISES.



SOME of you may remember that several weeks ago I expressed myself on this page on the topic of "Neighborhood Nuisances," moved thereto by the recital of the trials of others as well as by certain experiences of my own. Much apropos came a letter to me at about the same time from one of our Cornerites telling me of the tribulations she had undergone along the same line. I printed her letter with the following comment:

"I do not apologize for printing so long a letter as this, for I think it extremely interesting reading. Now, there are two sets of persons from whom I would like to hear on this matter. One consists of the inventive geniuses who can suggest some way for quieting dogs and the cats and the chickens or other live stock—including crying babies—or inducing the people who own them to do it, and to accomplish this without giving mortal offense. Any one who can make a practical suggestion along these lines should win the rank of a benefactor. The other class I wish to hear from is made up of those who keep the nuisances and apparently are not annoyed by them. What are their explanations for refusing to keep their dogs and chickens and children quiet? By what system have they trained themselves that they either do not hear the racket themselves or are not disturbed by it? I pause for reply—for a number of replies, I hope. This topic is of interest to all of us from one standpoint or another."

I had no idea of provoking a hail storm of comment, but that is what I did. Letters came pouring in, some indignant, others sympathetic, many amusing. In the belief they will interest others as much as they have done me, I am printing several of them here for the benefit of those readers who may agree or disagree with the sentiments of the epistles.

Thinks Noises Necessary.

The first one leads off rather severely:

"My faith in you is jarred by your attitude on dogs, chickens, and children, so I am going to waste some of my valuable time defending the lawless creatures who own them. Do you think they could be kept quiet? A dog will bark, though you beat him; and who ever heard of training a rooster not to crow or a hen not to cackle? There has been something left out of every one who is not brought back to childhood days by those sounds. As for crying babies, even our learned physicians say they must and will cry, and I know from experience that it is true. Granted, then, that these plagues will not keep quiet, let us assail their right to be. Dogs I have no use for myself, but as a rule the owners of dogs are the ones who belong in the class of disturbee, not the disturbers.

"The man who raises a chicken, even though he eats it himself, has produced something to add to the world's wealth. How far would the broker's pile go to fill the stomach if the people who produce the things he needs did not offer him their wares for sale? How long could nervous nabobs hold the pen to write letters to the newspaper if, along with chickens, dogs, and children, other common and useful things were done away with?

Remedy for the Tormented.

"As for children, alas, I have found their market value. On one page of a paper a crusade to protect the future mother is being carried on, while on your page one of the refined tortures of mothers who have arrived is printed. Can you justify it to yourself when you tell them that their highest office is to be a mother, and then nag them when their children, taking their natural right, make a noise?

"As for the remedy for these nervous, tormented higher few, the answer is only this: Find work to keep you busy and treat your body right. People who are busy doing more than their share of the world's work hear nothing that does not concern them, and lie down and sleep through everything that is not their business. But these same people wake from the deepest sleep when their own work calls. Few people are honestly ill. Either pampered, or petted, or abused bodies will revolt, but one should be ashamed to flaunt her sins before the world and demand that the rest of us assist her in destroying herself? Isn't it raw to complain of these sounds in a city when one can't stand five minutes, night or day, without hearing a roar, crash, or screech of the bigger things at work? I could talk a block on this subject, but I must get my plagues up, ready to torment the neighbors who can hear through two sets of walls what I am doing.

"SCRAPPER."

Joined the Don't Worries.

I might remark that invective is not argument, or point to the many hard workers whom outside noise distressed. No one would call Thomas Carlyle an idler, but he had a soundproof room built at the top of the house in an effort to escape the noise which interfered with his diligent and unremitting labors. I had not suspected that I was guilty of "nagging" at the crying babies, but let that pass.

The next letter is much more lenient:

"I am greatly interested in the letter of J. F. B. Having suffered a nervous breakdown I went away for rest and quiet, and with my determination to be an active member of the Don't Worry club, I am steadily improving. We live away from city noises, but cannot escape from the crowing of the roosters, and I simply cannot get used to them, although I have tried hard for over a year. We also have the barking dog near us, but have made up our minds to endure what can't be cured. Our neighbors are our friends and we want to keep them friendly. I have been through the same experience as J. F. B. and I know that nervous breakdowns come from worrying and from fear and we can overcome it and become happy by doing kindness to others. If one is obliged to move away to get away from noise, why, just move and have it over with. Don't add worry to the strain of moving. I have learned, too, that we must buy friends with kindness.

"AN OLD LADY."

This letter served as a comforting sort of poultice after the other, and I commend its teachings heartily. I have no difficulty at all in understanding why her neighbors are her friends.

The writer of the next again reprimands:

"I notice that Mrs. J. F. B. complains of the noise made by the barking of dogs and the crowing of roosters of her neighbors. I, for one, would be happy if I only had such a place to live in. I am sure that if J. F. B. can eat the eggs from the hen and the meat of the fowl she ought to be able to put up with some of the noise. We all are a nuisance more or less, so why complain of the animals and fowls put on this earth for our use? J. F. B. will never be happy, no matter where she moves to, because she is not able to enjoy nature. I suppose even flowers annoy her. For myself, I find beauty in everything. I love animals and am only sorry I am unable to keep them. The world and everything in it is beautiful if people would only take notice and forget their grouch.

"MRS. H. W."

Complaints Sound Ridiculous.

The following is a trifle overwhelming:

"I notice that of late you have said a great deal about neighborhood nuisances and I must say that to me many of the complaints sound ridiculous, such as trying to make the rooster stop crowing during the hours when some dear lady is trying to get her beauty sleep. Can you imagine a farmer having such control over his cattle as to be able to say to his Jersey cow, 'Now, Bess, moo all you like during the day, but don't let me hear [illegible] you at night or Mrs. [illegible] that I have you put on the [illegible] nearest meat [illegible] steak.' And the babies, [illegible] We have just had one of our own [illegible] sure some of our friends [illegible] any more fond of noise than [illegible] what can we do if the baby takes [illegible] to cry after we have looked it over [illegible] fully? Stick a wad of cotton in [illegible] so it won't disturb the neighbors [illegible] next flat, or must we walk the floor [illegible] it until the little one insists that [illegible] do it when it cries? I think some [illegible] friends let their nerves run away [illegible] and if they would only take a [illegible] would be surprised to find how [illegible] of the things that now bother them [illegible] affect them.

"A. [illegible]"

"What I have to say will not please J. F. B., I daresay. Some years ago I [illegible] of a woman with the same trouble [illegible] just hated dogs, cats, babies, in fact, [illegible] thing—didn't want to stir. Finally her husband told her she had to go to the country where she could get fresh air. [illegible] he bought cows, sheep, chickens, [illegible] dogs, cats, pigs, etc., and turned [illegible] loose in the yard. She declared [illegible] would leave, that she could not [illegible] He told her to go if she chose, but he was going to stay. Then, when she [illegible] that things were not going her way, [illegible] braced up, and took an interest [illegible] and in one year's time her neighbors did not know her. Now she is [illegible] think a little of the same medicine [illegible] be good for Mrs. J. F. B. As for babies, [illegible] find that when they cry it is because they are sick, hungry, too hot, too cold, [illegible] of lying down or of sitting up, or [illegible] clothes uncomfortable. We often [illegible] feel like crying sometimes when we are uncomfortable, I don't doubt. I don't believe they ever cry just for temper. [illegible] it best to look at the sunny side and [illegible] afford to do anything else after my experience of eighty years.

"MRS. [illegible]"

Humans Have First Consideration.

Just one little line of [illegible] sympathy to cheer up those of [illegible] own to sympathizing with Mrs. J. F. B.

"I do hope your effort to check neighborhood noise may meet with success and lead some of your readers to [illegible] that perhaps every one is not so [illegible] strong as to be able to work or [illegible] in spite of noises. I grant the right of roosters and the dogs, but [illegible] human beings rights a little ahead of those of the animals and isn't it better to [illegible] such measures as keeping the [illegible] up part of the time than to [illegible] and nervous humans? As for the babies, when they cry it is usually because something is the matter with them and that's one reason it distresses to [illegible] them. I am always sure they are suffering or neglected and that makes me unhappy and anxious about them.

"[illegible]"

I wonder if there are any others who feel like the last writer or if she and poor J. F. B. are the only Cornerites who are disturbed by the noises of the neighborhood.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"MRS. J. K. B. wishes to know what we think of the prevailing styles and what we are going to do about it. I am more than glad to express my opinion on the subject. It is high time every thinking woman spoke out and took some action, too. Who are they that any shall dictate that we wear outrageous styles which are not only unbecoming to most of us, while much is indecent, and, as Mrs. J. K. B. says, 'a menace to life and limb.'

"Just as long as women bow down and become slaves to fashion as most of us are now doing, just so long will extreme styles be forced upon them. As long as we suffer ourselves to be governed by fashion we surely cannot consider ourselves competent to vote. We have made ourselves the laughing stock of men in general and if women wish to stand shoulder to shoulder with men in the business and political world they must show themselves worthy of honor and trust. Men do not want us to lose our femininity nor do they wish us to be mannish in our deportment nor as foolish as we undoubtedly appear now.

"I love to see women wear pretty things and to look like dainty, lovable creatures. Because she appears like this does not mean that she has not intelligence to compete in the business world. In some ways women are superior to men; in most ways we are as capable as they, but in dress and deportment we show much weakness. We ought to stand firmly together in this matter of dress reform and not allow fashion to dictate what we shall or shall not wear. We are not obliged to buy dresses which are unbecoming, uncomfortable, or suggestive of indecency just because the shops are displaying that kind. If we would pass them by we would soon see something better provided for us.

"Women who are mothers of boys who will soon be men should think that just as they are leading these boys up to an honorable manhood, just so will the men be influenced in later life. If we dress in a way to lower ourselves in their esteem we fail in our mission in life. Our dress and deportment are sign posts which show the way; let them point to that which is best and highest, not towards those things which are foolish, suggestive, and indecent.

"AUNT MAUD."

I think we will agree fully with the point of view of this correspondent. On one point only do I differ with her and that is in her statement that we should not get the sort of things that are sold now but pass them by. We don't want to get them, but how can some of us help it? The woman who employs a dressmaker for her clothes is able to say how she will have them cut and made, but the large number who do not have time to have dressmaking done for them but find they save time and money by buying ready to wear garments are much at the mercy of the shops. We must get what they sell us, and the best we can do is to select the most modified styles we can find and try to have them adapted to our tastes. The matter of the shirt waists which button in the back is an illustration of this. Still, I hope that the large number of sensible women in this country will have an influence on prevailing styles and bring them around to common sense before long.

Wants a Quiet Wedding.

"What is the simplest and best way to get married under the following circumstances? The man is a widower with one child and lives out of town, where he owns a home. I am helping my family and can't spare much for clothing as my father is old and my mother has been sick, so I don't care to have a regular wedding or to let anyone know about it until it is over. Would it be wrong not to let my parents know of my marriage until afterwards? Would it look badly if I don't buy any bedding or table linen to begin housekeeping on, and do you think such a course would make the man think less of me? He has some furniture and some jewelry that belonged to his wife. I don't care much about using them, especially if he offers me her ring as an engagement ring. Is that often done? Would it be inconsiderate in me to ask for a different one? Please tell me just what you would do under such circumstances and how to treat the child, who is a boy 6 years old. His father seems to adore him. I wonder sometimes if it will be hard to get along with him and if I shall ever know how to meet the people there and get acquainted with them. They all know his wife so well I wonder if they would all the time be criticising me and comparing me with her?

"ANXIOUS."

I am at a loss to understand your letter. Why should not your mother and father know of your wedding until it is over? To my mind you are putting your family in a peculiar position with regard to your future husband and giving him a singular idea of your relation towards your parents. I can understand that you might not wish to have a public wedding, but it seems to me it would be much out of the way to conceal the marriage from your father and mother instead of letting them share in it with you. If I were in your mother's place such a course would grieve me deeply. By all means tell them of it and have them with you at the ceremony. This may be as quiet as you please, at the house of the clergyman or in church with no one present but the immediate family, but the other course you suggest savors of a clandestine affair with something about it of which you are ashamed. As to the other details, there is no reason why you should feel obliged to buy table linen and bedding. Your future husband doubtless understands your resources and would not expect this. I can understand your feeling as to the engagement ring and you should be on such terms with him that you can tell him you would prefer a ring that should be your own with no other associations connected with it. The boy seems to me a desirable feature of the marriage and you should treat him as you would if he were your own. Of course, you must be prepared for criticism from the friends of the first wife. That is only natural and what you may look for in the circumstances. Unless you love the man enough to stand that sort of thing you make a mistake in marrying him. If you do love him as you should these conditions will make no real difference in your course.

English Ginger Beer.

"Can you give me a recipe for old fashioned English ginger beer, and also tell how to keep it good without using artificial preservatives? The home made ginger beer one gets in the country is insipid compared with the original product.

"F. C."

Last week I printed a request from another source for a recipe for root beer. This is along the same line, and I shall have to do with this as I did with the other and turn it over to my correspondents in the faith that an early and satisfactory answer will be received.

Cement of Newspapers.

"Almost immediately after reading the inquiry in last Sunday's paper asking for cement of newspapers for filling cracks, I picked up a book and read the following: 'Large cracks can be filled with newspaper prepared as follows: The newspaper should be soaked in boiling water till it becomes a pulp; then the water should be squeezed out and the paper mixed with enough flour (rye is preferable) to form a stiff paste, which, with the addition of a few drops of carbolic acid, will be found effective. Press this mixture into the crack and smooth with a broad bladed knife. When the room is dry, shoot Persian powder under the baseboard and around the windows and door frames; make all the dust possible, forcing it far into the interior of crevices.' I send this that you may use it, or any part of it, if you see fit.

"E. B."

Thank you very much. I am sure the information will be of use to many of the Cornerites, and I hope they will cut it out and put it where they can find it when they need it again. We cannot always hope for so happy a chance of a promptly answered inquiry.

More Books Needed.

"We have a free circulating library in the country, and need good books for boys very much indeed. We have eleven stations in different neighborhoods, with 400 borrowers. This is the library which, more than a year ago, received generous help through your columns. The library has doubled its circulation since then. We will gladly pay carriage on all books given.

"R. P. H."

An application like this must appeal to all of us who have faith in the good work done by books. The fact that we thought well enough of this object last year to give "generous help" should induce us to supply further aid. I am not asking those who gave before to meet this demand, but I hope the request may move those who have not helped hitherto, but who are interested in boys, to come forward now. To my mind, there is no greater safeguard for a boy than a love for reading, and if anything can be done to foster and encourage this, it is our privilege as well as our duty to "lend a hand." I hope for many applications for the address of the librarian.

Crochet Patterns Wanted.

"I would like very much to have the crochet patterns offered by Mrs. J. W. M.

"MRS. M. L. L."

I regret that those patterns had been given away before your request was received. I print it here in the hope that someone else may have similar ones to bestow and that you may have the benefit of them. I will give your address to such a one.

"I am a lonely shut-in, and would be pleased to receive silks, Battenberg patterns, etc. I can do such work to while away the time, and I enjoy it.

"MRS. ELLEN K."

Another seeker for patterns! Will not someone who has such things for which she has no further use send for the address of these Cornerites?

Inquiries for Bead Formulas.

"I would like you or some member of the Corner to give a recipe for making what is called the California flower bead. This preparation is not the salt bead, nor the rose bead. I know it contains a little plaster of Paris, but do not know the amount of the other ingredients. I would much appreciate some information along this line.

"CONSTANT READER."

"I wish to ask if you can supply the directions for making the salt and corn starch or salt and corn meal colored beads. I will be greatly obliged to anyone who can help me about this.

"MRS. G. W. E."

These two inquiries belong together, and I trust to receive replies to both. The directions for making the salt and cornstarch beads were given a while ago, but evidently escaped the attention of Mrs. G. W. E. Perhaps some one of the Cornerites kept a copy of it and can let me have it to reprint here. "Constant Reader" does not give her address, but I will be glad to answer her inquiry in the Corner if someone will send me the information she desires.

A DOU

DESIG

WITH a plain blouse and exquisite neckwear any woman should feel well dressed. And with this thought in mind I have made for you a double collar that will be a great friend to you and a modish delight to all who look at it.

You will see that the undercollar has a strip that continues down the front and crosses toward the waist, as shown in the little sketch. The upper collar has the flower border and forms a beautiful finish for the top of the blouse. At the sides of the crossed bands that give a vest effect there can be placed frills of lace or fine mull, and in this way the whole blouse will be changed. This collar will prove a boon to the woman who must have many changes at a small expenditure, for with a plain blouse and several changes in neckwear she can appear in different guises.

Color is effective in this style of neckwear. I hesitate to say which color to use, for you see I do not know the color of your eyes or skin, and I may prescribe the wrong thing for individual cases. Your personal predilections will have to decide for you.

The lower collar has a hem turned and is decorated at the edge by an outlined border which has dots in solid work at intervals. These must be padded first and worked in the opposite direction with soft cotton. Do this all the way around the collar and down the front strips on each side.

Baby's Comfort

WHEN we see the wabbly, unresisting little bodies of tiny babies being squeezed and twisted into dresses that have to go on over their heads, some of us, especially those of us not any too familiar with babies, cease to breathe until the tiny head and poor little tortured arms emerge, quite whole and "undislocated." A wise little woman observed this, and when her own baby came she determined that she would not so risk hurting the little one.

It may not be that very serious injury results frequently from the "overhead" dresses, but that the children are made uncomfortable during the process, and sometimes even sharply hurt, there is no doubt. All the dresses that the wise woman made were not very long, being not more than a foot below the little socked feet, and those dresses buttoned clear to the hem. They opened all the way down, and the dresses were put on like aprons, and not over the head. As a consequence, dressing was a not unpleasant process for the infant; and, besides, the heart of the laundress was delighted because the little slips were so easily ironed. All of us who are mothers know how difficult it is to get the iron into all parts of the tiny dresses when the skirts are seamed halfway up.

Open the dresses and even the petticoats down the back and the trouble will cease. One must take care, however, to have the little, flat, thin buttons of pearl or the crocheted buttons, for there must not be any hard little lumps of buttons to bruise baby's pink flesh. It it best to have the petticoat next to the baby's skin opened. It can be slipped over the feet instead of the head, as can also the dresses that are seamed down the back, although this latter way is also unnecessarily uncomfortable for the baby. It is quite a simple matter to alter the dresses one already has to the button variety, if this warning has come in time.

A DOUBLE COLLAR

DESIGNED BY BETTY LYNNE

WITH a plain blouse and exquisite neckwear any woman should feel well dressed. And with this thought in mind I have made for you a double collar that will be a good friend to you and a constant delight to all who look at it.

You will see that the undercollar has a strip that continues down the front and narrows toward the waist, as shown in the little sketch. The upper collar has the flower border and forms a [illegible] finish for the top of the [illegible]. At the sides of the dressed [illegible] that give a vest effect there can be a pleated frill of lace or fine mull, and in this way the whole blouse will be [illegible]. This collar will prove a boon to women who must have many changes at a small expenditure, for with a plain blouse and several changes in neckwear she will appear in different gowns.

[illegible] in this style of neckwear. I hesitate to say which color to use for you as I do not know the color of your eyes or skin, and I may prescribe the wrong thing for individual taste. Your personal predilections will be a guide for you.

The upper collar has a hem turned and finished at the edge by an outlined [illegible] done in solid work at [illegible]. These must be padded first and worked in the opposite direction [illegible]. Do this all the way around the collar and down the front [illegible] each side.

The upper collar should be cut so as to provide for the attaching of it to the under form, so allow about an inch to be safe.

Pad the petals of the flowers and the disks that fill out the design. This can be done with darning cotton. Work with mercerized cotton in solid stitches, and on the petals that are the outer line of this collar use buttonhole stitch where they will form the cut edge. The scallops that connect the flowers should be padded and buttonholed, as any scallop should be. At the front corners the same method of working should be followed. Pad first and work in solid stitch afterward.

Adjust the collar to a band that will allow for the turning in and basting to the blouse. And, above all, do not forget to add a frill at the back, wired to stand up and break the line at the neck. Many women who cannot possibly wear the collarless line because of their thin necks will be able to rejoice in this style of neckwear, with its softening frill at the top.

Although this is a separate collar, it can be made to trim a frock of linen or ratine. It can be transferred and worked in a harmonising shade, and in itself it will give an individual note that will be well worth the time spent on it.

I hope that this collar, or these collars, will meet all demands that you will put on them, and the working of them will give enjoyment in the knowledge that the beautiful and the practical are being combined.

Baby's Comfort

WHEN we see the wobbly, unresisting little bodies of tiny babies being squeezed and pulled into dresses that have to go over their heads, some of us, especially those of us not any too familiar with babies, cease to breathe until the head and poor little tortured arms emerge, quite whole and "unhurt." A wise little woman observed this, and when her own baby came she determined that she would avoid hurting the little one.

It may not be that very serious injury results frequently from the "overhead" dresses, but that the children are made uncomfortable during the process, and sometimes even slightly hurt, there is no doubt. All the dresses that the wise woman made were not very long, being not more than a foot below the little socked feet, and these dresses buttoned clear to the hem. They opened all the way down, and the dresses were put on like aprons, and not over the head. In consequence, dressing was a not unpleasant process for the infant; and besides, the heart of the laundress was delighted because the little slips were so easily ironed. All of us who are mothers know how difficult it is to get the iron into all parts of the tiny dresses when the slips are seamed halfway up.

But the dresses and even the petticoats open from the back and the trouble is [illegible]. One must take care, however, to have the little, flat, thin buttons of pearl or the crocheted buttons, for there must not be any hard lumps of buttons to bruise the soft flesh. It is best to have [illegible] next to the baby's skin [illegible]. It can be slipped over the [illegible] of the head, as can also [illegible] that are seamed down the front, though this latter way is also [illegible] uncomfortable for the baby. It is quite a simple matter to alter the dresses one already has to this variety, if this warning has come in time.

Applied Designs

CAN you not recall many times that you have parted with old and worn laces with much regret? Perhaps the laces were designs that you particularly liked and whose frail backgrounds were hopelessly worn, so that the entire lace, including background and design, had to be thrown away. There is now, however, a way of preserving the design of a lace after the background has worn out. Cut the design carefully from its original background and apply it to a piece of fresh net, plain or figured. Plain is usually the safest, if one would get the most artistic effect. Beautiful collars for summer shirtwaists can be made in this way. A pretty fashion is to scallop and buttonhole the edge of the net collar and then apply the cut-out designs in the corners or wherever they look well on the collar. Cuffs can be made to match. Sometimes a pretty edge can be made by stitching the cut-out designs along the extreme edge of the net, thus forming a border of the designs. Much, in fact all, depends upon the size and shape of the designs. First lay them over the collar loosely in various designs before stitching, so that you can judge which looks the best. Then proceed to stitch the designs upon the net, using a short stitch on the upper side and a rather long stitch on the under side. One clever girl applied these cut-out designs to a background of net by buttonholing the designs fast with a colored silk. The effect was unusual and pretty.

One Half of Design

For Your Summer Wardrobe

THE present vogue for blouses of transparent materials makes it necessary to wear underbodices of net, crepe de chine, silk or shadow lace. Short lengths of these materials can be utilised to make the underbodices.

Purchase a reliable pattern and place it over the material chosen, pinning the pattern in position. After cutting, join the sections with French seams and finish the top with a beading and edging of lace. The armholes are trimmed in the same manner. Gather the lower edge of the underwaist into a belt which fits the waist snugly. Some of the underbodices are made with short sleeves, which conceal the shields when it is necessary to wear them.

A band of wide ribbon is sometimes stitched through the center of the underbodies, and in the more elaborate models of shadow lace the ribbon forms a flat bow directly in front.

Make one of these pretty underbodices for your young friend who will graduate this summer.

These underbodices differ slightly from the camisoles in that they are made with the idea of laundering, and therefore more practical materials are selected.

Cap Trimming

THE prettiest kind of cap bows and trimming can be made in a few minutes from about 2½ yards of ribbon, and the ribbon may be from one to two inches wide. Make two rosettes, containing about three-quarters of a yard each (more, if the ribbon is narrower), making 1½ yards of ribbon used for both rosettes, and leaving a yard of the ribbon yet unused. From the remaining yard the crosspiece is made. This should be of two lengths of ribbon loosely twisted together. Tiny tacking, basting stitches are used to keep the twists in place, and a rosette is tacked fast to either end. The whole is then put over the front of the cap, a rosette being placed at each side, and the plain crosspiece going over the top of the cap. The whole is basted with rather large basting stitches to the cap. The trimming can readily be transferred to another cap or removed when the cap needs laundering. It is not necessary at times, if the cap is quite small, to have the twisted crosspiece a half yard in length. Whatever is not needed on this crosspiece may, of course, go on those pieces which make the rosettes. For those who like larger rosettes, a greater quantity of ribbon will, of course, be needed.

Organdie and Bobbinet

SMARTER than the elaborate lace collar is that of plain white organdie and bobbinet. The collar is to be of the lay-down variety, and is smartest when shaped like a short but long-pointed sailor collar, the points coming well on the shoulders. The collar, which is of organdie, is hemstitched about the edge. The net ruffle should be from ¾ to 1¼ inches wide, and is double. That is, there is no hem on the net, it being simply a double fold of the material, the creased end being used as the bottom or edge of the ruffle. The bobbinet ruffle may be simply whipped to the collar, or after this is done a finish of buttonholing in color or plain white thread can be made over the joining of collar and ruffle. These dainty collars buttonholed in old blue, old rose or that gray green are pretty indeed.

A Novel Basketbag

THOSE pretty Japanese willow baskets make the nicest kind of basketbags for needlework. They're rather cumbersome to carry about, of course, but for the home needlework they're so much nicer than an ordinary bag. The size of the willow basket to be bought depends, of course, upon the size of the bag to be made. We will presume that the silk to be used is a deep old rose. No color goes quite so well with that mahogany shade of the Japanese willow as old rose.

Line the basket with shirred silk, or place in it a silk-covered pasteboard bottom in the shape of a disk (we are making the bag with a round basket). Those of different shape need the pasteboard bottoms cut accordingly. The sides of the basket are lined with a gathered strip of silk, which is whipped to the pasteboard bottom and to the upper edges of the basket. From another strip of silk is the bag made. This strip should be long enough to go once and a half about the basket. It is then hemmed at the top with a 2½-inch hem. An inch above the line of stitching required to make the hem is placed another row of stitching, to form a casing for the draw ribbons. The two narrow ends are then seamed up and the bottom of the bag thus formed, instead of being closed, is turned up with the narrowest of hems and shirred to fit the willow basket. The bag is then stitched with strong stitches to both the basket and the silk lining of the basket.

The basketbag is not yet complete. The really novel part is that formed by the placing of the silk flowers about the basket rim, just slightly below where the bag joins the basket. The flowers can sometimes be found in the old millinery box or be bought for a very small sum, perhaps marked down, at the shops. The prettiest flowers, however, are those made from the silk itself, for these harmonise beautifully with the willow and carry out the color scheme. Padded daisies made in this color are effective. The petals should be about an inch long and a quarter of an inch wide. Each petal requires two pieces of the silk. These are seamed about the edges and turned so that the seams are inside. The petal is then stuffed with cotton. Several of these petals are made, twelve or more, and then they are attached to the center, being tacked on the wrong side, so that the stitches do not show, nor the raw edges. These centers should be of black or gold. One can make them or purchase them at the shops. Tiny padded biscuits of black or gold silk may be used for the centers. These are very easy to make. More attractive centers, however, having little stamens, can be had from the shops. These padded daisies are placed about the basket so that their petals are about two inches apart, and so that the petals come about three-quarters of an inch above the basket, to rest upon the silk bag. The basketbag is not half so pretty without the flowers.

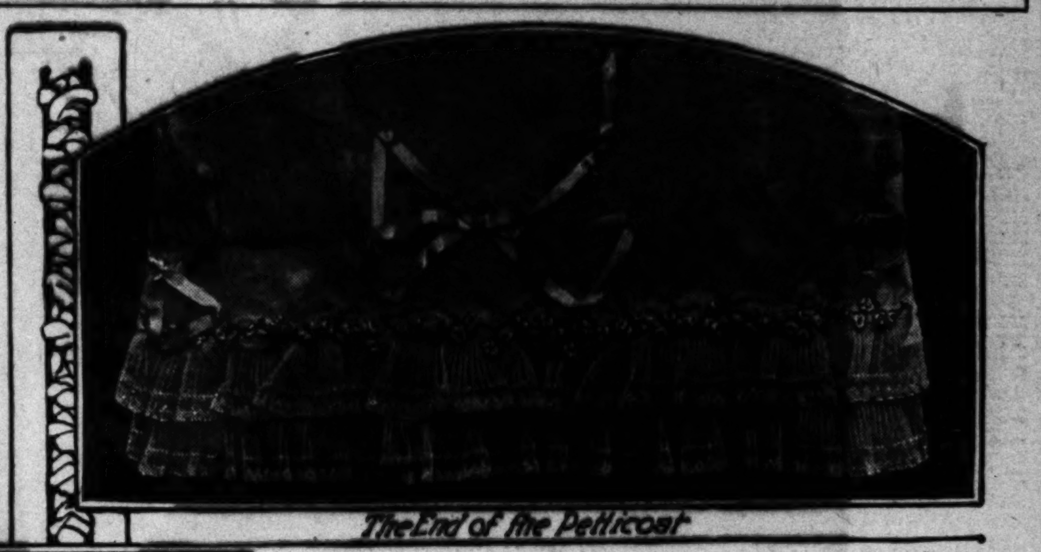
How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.

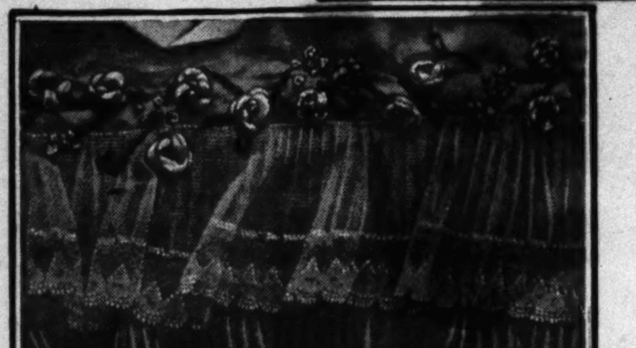
QUICK EMBROIDERY

The Flower Pillow

A WOMAN who is very fond of our common field flowers, and in whose living room the wild flowers in season can always be found, has a pretty fashion of having some of her numerous living-room cushions and pillows echo the pretty flowers. For instance, she has violet pillowslips, daisy pillowslips, buttercup pillowslips, goldenrod pillowslips, pine-cone slips, and even dandelion slips. Consequently, the coming in from outdoors is made singularly pleasant by finding even in a room filled with summer or furnace heat a bit of God's outdoors.



The End of the Petticoat



Detail of Stitches

For the Boy

IF YOU want something very quaint in the way of a suit for the little lad, why not make him a Dickens suit, at least for the play hour? These little suits are used even for afternoons. The trousers are decidedly knickerbocker fashion, having no fullness at the knees to make them in any way resemble the bloomers which, until lately, were so much worn by boys. The knickerbockers come very high up in the waist line, almost to the armpits, and button on the outside of the dearest little scallop-embroidered shirtwaist. This shirtwaist is tucked smooth and straight, without any fullness whatever, into the knickerbockers. A rounded turnback collar is embroidered in buttonhole stitch and turnback cuffs match. The knickerbockers are frequently made in pink or blue and the shirtwaist in white, and vice versa. Sometimes the knickerbockers are brown linen, with a white shirtwaist, or even a shirtwaist of pink or blue linen. Chambray, too, is used for these little suits. The buttonholing is usually done in white.

THERE is a fascination about quick embroidery that no woman can resist. It matters not how nimble her fingers and clever her art in doing fine work, the idea of accomplishing the result, and getting an effect quickly, invariably appeals to her.

This is an age of simple and effective embroidery, in which artistic bits of handicraft can be evolved without an undue amount of work and the accompanying eyestrain. It is safe to say that any woman knowing only the elementary rules of embroidery, or plain sewing for that matter, can attempt and satisfactorily accomplish the popular embroidery that is finding favor at the present time.

The fine silk floss of almost gossamer texture has been replaced by a heavy corded thread, which, for the most part, is mercerized in place of silk. This is not only very much cheaper per skein, but requires very much less material to work with, and the effect is much the same. One of the popular embroideries of the day is the Dresdenwreath, done in heavy mercerised cotton in the prescribed Dresden shades. This work is used not only to decorate the regulation household furnishings, such as centerpieces, table covers, bureau scarfs, runners, etc., but is suggested as a trimming for personal attire as well. These wreaths or garlands, embroidered on a lace, net or chiffon frock, add an indescribable charm to the garment and give the effect of a very expensive trimming.

A most elaborate petticoat can easily be made with very little trouble or expense, by making a simple foundation of china silk or crepe in pink, blue or white and finishing the edge with a double-flat flounce of pleated net or lace frilling. This latter can be had in a number of styles at the ruching counter of any of the shops, and is reasonably priced at 25 cents a yard.

Above the flouncing garlands of Dresden flowers are embroidered in the simple and easy manner illustrated here. The result is a very pretty and dainty petticoat, suitable to wear beneath a sheer white lace frock or a negligee. Bowknots made of a half-inch ribbon can be gracefully tied, and tacked in place at the edges and made to form an effective addition to the embroidery. It is pretty to arrange these to give the effect of tying up the garlands.

If the method of embroidery shown here is adopted, the entire trimming on a skirt of this description can be accomplished in an evening. The garlands are formed of roses, daisies, forget-me-nots and violets, while the foliage and stems are done in a very pale shade of green. In making the roses a heavy twisted cord of mercerised cotton is used, a pretty soft shade of pink being selected. This cord is sufficiently thick to require a punching needle to carry it through the fabric. Each rose is simply a French knot, made with one twist around the needle. A double French knot worked in the regulation twisted floss and about four shades deeper in color forms the center of the rose. The forget-me-nots are made of five French knots worked in a circle with a yellow dot in the center. These are worked in the thinner floss. The petals of the daisy are worked in the lazy-daisy stitch, with a knotted center, and the violets are made like the forget-me-nots, substituting violet floss for the blue. The foliage and stems are done in a thin twisted floss, the stems in a simple outline stitch and the leaves in the quick lazy-daisy.

It is not necessary to have this design marked; just a faint outline of the garlands is all that is required; the flowers then can be placed at will, blending the shades together to give a harmonious effect. After the flowers have been embroidered, they are joined together with the green. Circles can be substituted, or even a straight line used, if preferred. A few hours' time can accomplish this pretty and effective work.

CONSIDER the PEASANT of the FIELD

EVER been on the other side? Then the peasants of the field are valuable when you try to trace these styles; they and their picturesque costumes at work or at play will demand consideration from you on this personally conducted tour through the realm of fashion.

It is a notable fact that the peasant classes of all countries in Europe are artistic. Which prize-winner of an artist goes abroad and fails to catch the inspiration from the working beings of the field? Who does not admire the bright colors, the grace of line, the comfort, the clever ideas in artistic expressions, that are everyday facts in the vineyards, the farms, the flower gardens of lands far away? As the train speeds you from one district to another the peasants straighten up from their work, and probably yearn for a third-class ticket on the cars. They admire the cars; you admire them—and there you are!

Do you remember the full trousers of dark woolen material that the peasants wore that wonderful day when you were whirled from one great patch of farmland to another? Well, it is here again in a wonderful adaptation of the original idea. The skirt has a full line around the top, with gathers held in by green braid and buttons. And—now hold your breath—there are two very masculine pockets at the front. No longer need you rifle your husband's pockets; you have two of your own in which to keep your hands. Then there are supporting straps over the shoulders, that are very practical and suggest that hard work might be the order of the day without any derangement of the waist line. The loose, flowered collar of the blouse further carries out the idea of the comfortable working garb. But, of course, this is a dress that has been taken from its original office and will be placed on the woman who likes the unusual.

A veritable peasant's smock is the inspiration of the coat of this suit. It hangs loose from the shoulders and is buttoned up to the neck with bright green buttons. Cords, buttons and binding in this color trim the dark blue of the material. There is freedom in the loose line of the peasant sleeve, which is long and fits the wrist. Do you know the Spanish painters? Well, this very coat has a distinct resemblance to a painting of a peasant in his Sunday garb. So, you see that art stands back of this style.

There is no danger line as far as the consideration of the peasant frock goes. Mountains may be crossed, doubtful districts invaded without passports, meadows and hills may be taken for stopping-places in which with your fashion sketchbook you can make pictures that will contribute to the line and color of your dress, in these different cities of this different land.

Novelty is here before you. Accept it if you are looking for departures from the frilly type of dress that is characteristic of this season. Consider the peasants of the field.

The Greatest Game in the World

President of the American League

BASEBALL appears to be having a more direct and permanent civilizing influence in the Philippines than has been inspired by the fear of bayonets and battleships. Such is the interesting, though not exactly surprising report from our Far Eastern possessions—and it contains food for comment and reflection. Far in the interior of the several islands, where the natives have little use for clothing other than the traditional loin cloth, one can find stored away for safekeeping the apparatus necessary to play baseball.

Recently, in fact, a company of constabulary landed from a steamer on Jolo Island, and shortly afterward received an object lesson in the far-reaching results of the game as taught by the American soldiers. As the military were pitching camp, they heard a tremendous uproar. Cautiously deploying through the jungle they reached a clearing, whence the sounds came, and perceived a ball game in spirited progress, with some thousand natives making pandemonium over a home-run.

Baseball, as a colonizing or as a domestic influence, is medicine for millions—and its endorsement by the Philippines and by growing numbers of Orientals simply confirms the verdict of the western world. Baseball, in the best and biggest way of probably any game, involves the spirit of fair play. Free of that destroying element, gambling—the bane of so many sports—the game calls for the highest development of the mind and eye of the player, and has positively no equal as an all-round popular exhibition of athletic skill. Add the element of luck, or chance, and the result is an out-door game about as near perfect as human ingenuity can make it.

No harmful influence is ever exerted in behalf of the game, no artificial stimulant is needed to keep it alive. There is no place in baseball for the gambler; no room in the ball park for his evil presence. The game, notwithstanding loose occasional charges, stands solely and honestly on its merits.

The Squarest of All Games

IN the heat of an exciting race for the pennant, with clockwork organizations in rivalry, imagination sometimes runs riot and assertions are made, under stress of excitement, that games are not played on the level. As a matter of fact, to fix a ball game, that is, to arrange in advance a scheme whereby one team would be sure to win, would be harder than drawing water out of an empty well.

If the game were not honest, it stands to reason that New York, which spends more money on it than any two other American cities, would never have a cellar team. Furthermore, a player might very often succumb to temptation and throw a game to an opponent.

As an instance: Late in the season of 1908, the New York Yankees and the Detroit Tigers were playing the last inning in the final game of a series of three. It was a vitally important game. Detroit was making a desperate fight for the pennant, hard pressed by Cleveland, St. Louis and Chicago. The score was five to four in favor of the Tigers, with New York, a cellar team, at bat for the last time—a runner being on both second and third, and two out. The New York batter, as it happened, knew that he was soon to be traded to the Tigers, and that he would share in the championship prize money if Detroit won the pennant. Nevertheless, displaying ordinary loyalty to his team, he made a hit which scored the two men on bases—and Detroit lost the game.

There are two reasons why baseball must be above suspicion. It would be poor sport and a still poorer business proposition if it were not. Its lure is the lure of a game where the best man wins. Each is fighting genuinely, desperately to win. The spectators are thrilled by the zest of a real contest, by the matching of skill against skill, stirring sluggish corpuscles and shaking lethargy into life. It is the call of good sport, and good sport cannot be manufactured. This is not only common sense. It is tested psychology. Considered from a business angle, a fixed baseball game would be commercially suicidal. The fact would be bound to creep to the public—and every player knows that proof of crookedness would spell ruin.

Millions Are Involved

SIXTEEN million people see American baseball games each season. The expenses of a major league will run to a million dollars in one year, without including the salaries of league officials, the business staffs of the local teams, ground rent, taxes and other items. One hundred thousand dollars a season are spent for transportation, another sixty-five thousand for hotel accommodations. The bill for sleeping cars and meals en route for a single team may easily amount to thirty thousand dollars. Salaries to players will approximate eight hundred thousand dollars and the hire of umpires adds another thirty thousand. Baseball is a big business investment and risk. The men who take the risk and put up the money are not going to jeapordize lightly or recklessly their chances of getting it back. Crooked baseball would be a big business and sporting failure. Furthermore, there is no record of a man retiring from the game with a fortune, with the possible exception of a Chicago individual.

Once let the game be [illegible] by the malevolent influence of gambling, and the whole structure would topple to the ground. Other sports have been wrecked by the betting evil; but the men who now have baseball in their care, have profited by the lessons of others and there is little danger that the sinister shadow of the gambler ever will fall across the diamond.

Your Walls Must Be Right

You can tear out a faulty heating system. You can re-lay poor floors. But the construction of your walls must be right in the first place. The permanence and beauty of inside plaster and outside stucco depend upon the wall base. The base that is absolutely reliable under all sorts of conditions is

Kno-Burn

Expanded Metal Lath

Plasterers do good work and quick work over "Kno-Burn" because it is rigid and offers a smooth surface to the trowel. It expands and contracts with the plaster when the temperature changes suddenly. This prevents cracks. It will never rot away because it is a metal lath. It compares favorably in cost with other plaster bases. Ask your architect.

Perhaps you are not thoroughly familiar with the superiority of metal lath. Then send for our new book, "Practical Homebuilding." It contains house plans, cost estimates, comparative cost of different forms of construction, numerous photographs and the best of general advice on home-building.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER

An Intimate Study of the Richest Man in the World

By Elbert Hubbard

NOT long ago I had an engagement to play golf with John D. Rockefeller at nine o'clock in the morning. Arriving at the golf grounds on the minute, we had no more than climbed out of the automobile before Mr. Rockefeller arrived on a brand-new bicycle. His first words were: "On schedule, boys, on schedule! That's the thing!" And he leaped off his machine as lightly and easily as might a boy of twenty.

"You are wasting some of your hard-earned money," said I, pointing to the new wheel.

"Yes, I am getting extravagant," said Mr. Rockefeller. "That wheel cost me just fifteen dollars. I saw them advertised and sent one of my boys down with the money. Twenty-five years ago that wheel would have cost one hundred dollars. And yet they talk about the high cost of living! Some things are higher, of course, but others are not. And as some one has said, 'If it costs more to live today than ever before, is it not worth the money?' "

I suppose Mr. Rockefeller's face would be called homely, but when he talks to you, his countenance beams with animation, friendliness, appreciation, good-nature—intelligence. I never met but one man who has the innate politeness and courtesy which John D. Rockefeller possesses, and that man is Sir Wilfrid Laurier. No one can meet Sir Wilfrid without thinking better of himself and better of humanity, and it is exactly the same with Mr. Rockefeller. Sir Wilfrid, however, has the handsome face of the French nobility. He is a king in demeanor. His raiment is royal-tailored. But Mr. Rockefeller, in golf clothes, reveals the man of power, with all the natural courtesy of the gentleman.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER is as homely as Julius Caesar, and looks very much like him. Caesar never wore a uniform, and Plutarch says that he never lifted his voice high, nor did he criticize, berate nor condemn. Powerful men can afford to be polite. Strong men can well afford to be modest. Mr. Rockefeller is not the sanctimonious, dogmatic, joyless shrimp that we see pictured in the comic section. The fact is that he is a persistent joker. He bubbles with wit, and exudes good nature.

In the company, when I met him, that Saturday, was a little old Scotchman by the name of Sears, a neighbor of Mr. Rockefeller who drops in now and then to see how things are going on and discuss old times. This Scotchman has a close-cropped white beard, streaked with red. Mr. Rockefeller said to me: "Of course you came here, Mr. Hubbard, expecting to see me, but you did not know you were to have the pleasure of meeting Andrew Carnegie!" And he waved a hand in the direction of the little hoot mon.

Also with us on this occasion was Doctor Bustard who wore a pair of checked trousers very much the worse for wear. These trousers excited the lively interest of Mr. Rockefeller, who said to me, "Bustard wears 'em because he knows I am very fond of checks."

Then turning to Bustard, he said: "Doctor, your breeches remind me of the story about a tramp who applied to a preacher for aid, and as proof of his piety pointed to the patches on the knees of his trousers. 'This is all right,' said the dominie; 'but how about that patch on the seat of your pants?'

" 'Oh,' said the tramp, making a quick sidestep, 'you know I am a backslider.' " And then Mr. Rockefeller added, "You see, Mr. Hubbard, that is a straight Baptist joke."

He hit the ball a good, straight, swinging stroke, and as we walked across the field he continued the Baptist talk, and said: "You know, the fact is there are neither Baptists nor Methodists now — not even Roycrofters. There are just men and women. As you say, none of us is wholly right and none wholly wrong, but I believe the world is surely getting better." Mr. Rockefeller had just presented one of his helpers with a "Ford," and the man was expressing his gratitude. One of the men present made the very natural remark, "Mr. Rockefeller, why didn't you give him an automobile?"

The subtlety was not lost on Mr. Rockefeller, who replied without a smile, "Well, if the price of gasoline keeps going up as it has lately, we will all be riding in Fords soon!"

The talk turned on the question of apples, and the new way they were being packed in boxes instead of barrels. Mr. Rockefeller recalled the days when he was in the commission business and every year handled thousands of barrels, going to Orleans County, New York, to supervise the packing.

"I used to have to watch those farmers close, for they couldn't get rid of the habit of placing the big, rosy, perfect apples on top," he said. And then, after a pause, he added, "When you buy a box of apples now you know beforehand they will be all alike clear to the bottom."

Then there was another little pause, and Mr. Rockefeller concluded with a sly twinkle, "Well, you know The Standard Oil Company has been severely criticised, but no one even yet has accused of putting the best oil on top. Our barrels of kerosene were always alike all the way through!" And after an interval of absorption in the game: "I would like to live just fifty years longer," said Mr. Rockefeller. "Things are moving so fast, and they are moving in the right direction, that I just want to stay and see what a beautiful place the civilized world will be when business men awake to their opportunities."

Elbert Hubbard Rev. Dr. Bustard John D. Rockefeller
Golfing on the Rockefeller Grounds at Cleveland

AND so we played the nine holes through. At one point my ball got into a particularly bad lie. Mr. Rockefeller came to my rescue, picked up the ball, carried it out and put it in a perfect position, explaining in the gentlest way possible: "You know this is winter golf. All rules are off after November first."

He beat me six points, and I got back at him in the final score with, "You know what Herbert Spencer says about billiards?" "Yes," he said, "I know what Herbert Spencer says about billiards. But I would like to hear you tell Doctor Bustard." And so I told Doctor Bustard, and Mr. Rockefeller laughed as if he had never heard the remark before.

As I putted into the last hole Mr. Rockefeller reached over, picked out the ball, fished an envelope out of one of his pockets, put the ball in the envelope, and handed me over the package with a gracious smile and a bow, saying, "As a souvenir of a very happy occasion!"

Doctor Bustard and I remained to play off one more hole and decide a tie.

When we started off home, at a bend in the roadway we saw Mr. Rockefeller. He had gotten off of his bicycle and was working with three Italians who were distributing gravel on the road. He had a shovel in his hand. We stopped and he cheerily called: "I am just showing these boys how to distribute gravel. See this?" He took up a shovelful and threw it, and with a dexterous twist of his wrist scattered the gravel as an experienced fireman flings a shovelful of coal and distributes it over a large surface. "I have not forgotten how — have I?" he said.

* * * * * * * * *

AND so I have quoted the world's greatest business man, resting my superlative conclusion on the following facts: 1. He is the richest man in the world. 2. His yearly income is more than that of any living man or of any man who has ever lived. 3. He is chief owner in thirty-four separate, highly successful corporations, with aggregate assets of one thousand million dollars. 4. As chief owner in these companies or corporations, he is the largest employer of high-priced labor in the world. 5. He markets a greater volume of goods at less expense for handling, advertising and selling than any man in the world. 6. He has helped make more other men supremely rich than any other man in the world. 7. He has more time to play than any other rich man in the world. 8. He has been more reviled, libeled, ridiculed and caricatured than any man in the world, and yet he has the respect, confidence and affection of the people who know him and who do business with him. 9. CHAPTER IX.

THE PRINCE MEETS MISS GUILE.

LATER on R. Schmidt sat alone in a sheltered corner of the promenade deck, where chairs had been secured by the forehanded Hobbs. The thin drizzle now aspired to something more definite in the shape of a steady downpour, and the decks were almost deserted, save for the few who huddled in the unexposed nooks where the sweep and swish of the rain failed to penetrate. There was a faraway look in the young man's eyes, as of one who dreams pleasantly, with little effort but excellent effect. His pipe had gone out, so his dream must have been long and uninterrupted. Eight bells sounded, but what is time to a dreamer? Then came one bell and two, and now his eyes were closed.

Two women came and stood over him, but little did they suspect that his dream was of one of them: the one with the lovely eyes and the soft brown hair. They surveyed him, whispering, the one with a little perplexed frown on her brow, the other with distinct signs of annoyance in her face. The girl was not more than twenty, her companion quite old enough to be her mother: a considerate if not complimentary estimate, for a girl's mother may be either forty, fifty or even fifty-five, when you come to think of it.

They were looking for something. That was quite clear. And it was deplorably clear that whatever it was, R. Schmidt was sitting upon it. They saw that he was asleep, which made the search, if not the actual recovery, quite out of the question. The older woman was on the point of poking the sleeper with the toe of her shoe, being a matter-of-fact sort of person, when the girl imperatively shook her head and frowned upon the lady in a way to prove that even though she was old enough to be the mother of a girl of twenty, she was by no means the mother of this one.

AT THAT very instant R. Schmidt opened his eyes. It must have been a kindly poke by the god of sleep that aroused him so opportunely, but even so, the toe of a shoe could not have created a graver catastrophe than that which immediately befell him. He completely lost his head. If one had suddenly asked what had become of it, he couldn't have told, not for the life of him. For that matter, he couldn't have put his finger, so to speak, on any part of his person and proclaimed with confidence that it belonged to R. Schmidt of Vienna. He was looking directly up into a pair of appraising, startled eyes, in which there was a very pretty confusion and a far from impervious blink.

"I beg your pardon," said the older woman, without the faintest trace of embarrassment, — indeed, with some asperity, — "I think you are occupying one of our chairs."

He scrambled out of the steamer rug and came to his feet, blushing to the roots of his hair.

"I beg your pardon," he stammered, and found his awkwardness rewarded by an extremely sweet smile — in the eyes of the one he addressed.

"We were looking for a letter that I am quite sure was left in my chair," said she.

"A letter?" he murmured vaguely, and at once began to search with his eyes.

"From her father," volunteered the elderly one, as if it were a necessary bit of information. Then she jerked the rug away and three pairs of eyes examined the place where R. Schmidt had been reclining. "That's odd. Did you happen to see it when you sat down, sir?"

"I am confident that there was no letter ——" began he, and then allowed his gaze to rest on the name-card at the top of the chair. "This happens to be my chair, madam," he went on, pointing to the card. "'R. Schmidt.' I am very sorry."

"The steward must have put that card there while you were at luncheon, dear. What right has he to sell our chairs over again? I shall report this to the Captain ——"

"I am quite positive that this is my chair, sir," said the girl, a spot of red in each cheek. "It was engaged two days ago. I have been occupying it since — but it really doesn't matter. It has your name on it now, so I suppose I shall have to ——"

"Not at all," he made haste to say. "It is yours. There has been some miserable mistake. These deck stewards are always messing things up. Still, it is rather a mystery about the letter. I assure you I saw no ——"

"No doubt the steward who changed the cards had sufficient intelligence to remove all incriminating evidence," said she coolly. "We shall find it among the lost, strayed and stolen articles, no doubt. Pray retain the chair, Mr. ——," she peered at the name-card — "Mr. Schmidt."

Her cool insolence succeeded in nettling a nature that was usually most gentle. He spoke with characteristic directness.

"Thank you, I shall do so. We thereby manage to strike a fair average. I seize your deck chair, you seize my table. We are quits."

She smiled faintly. "R. Schmidt did not sound young and gentle, but old and hateful. That is why I seized the table. I expected to find R. Schmidt a RETROSPECTIVE—Prince Robin of Graustark, traveling about the world, arrives in the Catskills to visit the Truxon Kings. W. W. Blithers, self-made multimillionaire and doting father of an only daughter, Maud, prematurely decides on the Prince as a son-in-law. He knows that Graustark is financially embarrassed as a result of the Balkan wars, and with the Blithers millions in mind he confides his domestic ambition to his wife. Blithers calls at the King villa and meets the Prince. He decides to lend Graustark $16,000,000 and departs for New York to confer with Count Quinnox, the Graustark Minister of War. Meanwhile it is decided to give a ball at Blitherwood in honor of Prince Robin. Maude does not attend the ball, and Mr. Blithers, meeting the Prince the next day, apologizes and invites him to dinner and to be his son-in-law. Maude writes her parents that she and her former governess are going abroad, she under an assumed name, and expect to book passage on the Jupiter. "Miss R. Guile, S. S. Jupiter, New York City, N. Y.," and typewritten.

"It is only fair that we should be quits in every particular," she said, with a frank smile.

He bowed. "A letter of introduction," he said, "in the strictest sense of the word. You have already had my card thrust upon you, so everything is quite regular. And now it is only right and proper that I should see what has become of your chair. Permit me ——"

"Really, Miss Guile," interposed her companion, "this is quite irregular. I may say it is unusual. If you will allow me to suggest ——"

"I think it is only right that Mr. Schmidt should return good for evil," interrupted the girl gaily. "Please enquire, Mr. Schmidt. No doubt the deck steward will know."

Again the Prince bowed, but this time there was amusement instead of uncertainty in his eyes. It was the first time that any one had ever urged him, even by inference, to "fetch and carry." Moreover, she was extremely cool about it, as one who exacts service of young men in serge suits and outing-caps. He found himself wondering what she would say if he were to suddenly announce that he was the Prince of Graustark. The thought tickled his fancy, accounting, no doubt, for the even deeper bow that he gave her.

"They can't be very far away," he observed quite [illegible]. "Oh, I say, steward! One moment, here." The deck steward approached with alacrity. "What has become of Miss Guile's chair?"

The man touched his cap and beamed joyously upon the fair young lady.

"Ach! See how I have forgot! It is here! The best place on the deck — on any deck. See! Two — side by side, — above the door, away from the draft [illegible] in the corner, ha ha! Yes! Two side by side. [illegible] very best. Miss Guile complains of the draft by the door. I exchange the chairs. See! But I forgot to speak. Yes! See!"

Sure enough, there were the chairs of Miss Guile and her companion snugly stowed away in the corner, standing at right angles to the long row that lined the deck, the footrests pointed directly at the chair R. Schmidt had just vacated, not more than a yard and a half away.

"How stupid!" exclaimed Miss Guile. "Thank you, steward. This is much better. So sorry, Mr. Schmidt, to have disturbed you. I abhor drafts, don't you?"

"Not to the extent that I shall move out of this one," he replied gallantly, "now that I've got an established claim to it. I intend to stand up for my rights, Miss Guile, even though you find me at your

"I perfectly love ——" began Miss Guile, a flash of real enthusiasm in her eyes. A sharp, horrified look from her companion served as a check, and she became at once the coolly indifferent creature that scorns everything. "Thank you, Mr. Schmidt, for being so nice when we were trying so hard to be horrid."

"But you don't know how nice you are when you are trying to be horrid," he remarked. "Are you going to sit down, now that we've captured the missing chair?"

"No," she said, and he fancied he saw regret in her eyes. "I am going to my room, — if I can find it. I daresay it also is lost. This seems to be a day of missing things."

"At any rate, permit me to thank you for discovering me, Miss Guile."

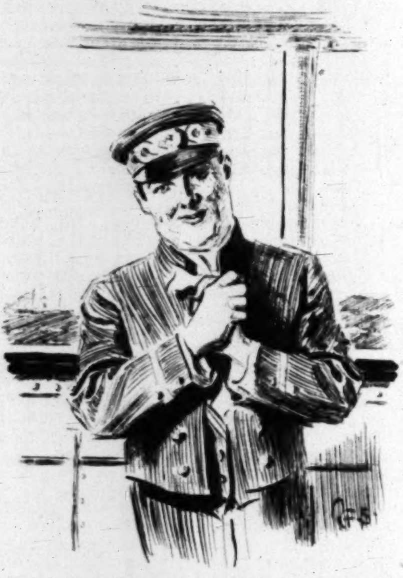
"Oh, I daresay I shall misplace you, too, Mr. Schmidt." She said it so insolently that he flushed. He drew himself up and stepped aside to allow her to pass. For an instant their eyes met, and the [illegible] humble was not to be found in the expression of either.

"Then that will be something for me to look forward to, Miss Guile," said he. Far from being vexed, she favored him with a faint smile of — was it pity or admiration?

Then she moved away, followed by the uneasy [illegible] who was old enough to be her mother and

Robin remained standing for a moment, looking after her, and somehow he felt that his dream was not yet ended. She turned the corner of the deck building and was lost to sight. He sat down, only to rise almost instantly, moved by a livelier curiosity than he ever had felt before. Conscious of a certain feeling of stealth, he scrutinized the cards in the backs of the two chairs. The steward was collecting the discarded steamer-rugs farther down the deck, and the few passengers who occupied chairs, appeared to be snoozing, — all of which he took in with his first appraising glance. "Miss Guile" and "Mrs. Gaston" were the names he read.

"Americans," he mused. "Young lady and chaperone, that's it. A real American beauty! And Blithers loudly boasts that his daughter is the prettiest girl in America! Shades of Venus! Can there be such a thing on earth as a prettier girl than this one? Can nature have performed the impossible? Is America so full of lovely girls that this one must take second place to a daughter of Blithers? I wonder if she knows the imperial Maud. I'll make it a point to inquire."



A deck steward approached with alacrity, and beamed upon the fair young lady

Moved by a sudden restlessness, he decided that he was in need of exercise. A walk would do him good. The same spirit of restlessness, no doubt, urged him to walk rather rapidly in the direction opposite to that taken by the lovely Miss Guile. After completely circling the deck once he decided that he did not need the exercise after all. His walk had not benefited him in the least. She had gone to her room. He returned to his chair, conscious of having been defeated but without really knowing why or how. As he turned into the dry, snug corner, he came to an abrupt stop and stared. Miss Guile was sitting in her chair, neatly encased in a mummy-like sheath of gray that covered her slim body to the waist.

She was quite alone in her nook, and reading. Evidently the book interested her, for she failed to look up when he clumsily slid into his chair and threw the rug over his legs — dreadfully long, uninteresting legs, he thought, as he stretched them out and found that his feet protruded like a pair of white obelisks.

Naturally he looked seaward, but in his mind's eye he saw her as he had seen her not more than ten minutes before: a slim, tall girl in a smart buff coat, with a limp white hat drawn down over her hair by means of a bright green veil; he had had a glimpse of staunch tan walking-shoes. He found himself wondering how he had missed her in the turn about the deck, and how she could have ensconsed herself so snugly during his brief evacuation of the spot. Suddenly it occurred to him that she had returned to the chair only after discovering that his was vacant. It wasn't a very gratifying conclusion.

An astonishing intrepidity induced him to speak to her after a lapse of five or six minutes, and so surprising was the impulse that he blurted out his question without preamble.

"How did you manage to get back so quickly?" he inquired.

She looked up, and for an instant there was something like alarm in her lovely eyes, as of one caught in the perpetration of a guilty act.

"I beg your pardon," she said, rather indistinctly.

"I was away less than eight minutes," he declared, and she was confronted by the wonderfully frank smile that never failed to work its charm. To his surprise, a shy smile grew in her eyes, and her warm red lips twitched uncertainly. He had expected a cold rebuff. "You must have dropped through the awning."

"Your imagination is superior to that employed by the author of this book," she said, "and that is saying a good deal, Mr. — Mr. ——"

"Schmidt," he supplied cheerfully. "May I inquire what book you are reading?"

"You would not be interested. It is by an American."

"I have read a great many American novels," said he stiffly. "My father was an American. Awfully jolly books, most of them."

"I looked you up in the passenger list a moment ago," she said coolly. "Your home is in Vienna. I like Vienna."

He was looking rather intently at the book, now partly lowered. "Isn't that the passenger list you have concealed in the book?" he demanded.

"It is," she replied promptly. "You will pardon a natural curiosity? I wanted to see whether you were from New York."

"May I look at it, please?"

She closed the book. "It isn't necessary. I am from New York."

"By the way, do you happen to know a Miss Blithers, — Maud Blithers?"

Miss Guile frowned reflectively. "Blithers? The name is a familiar one. Maud Blithers? What is she like?"

"She's supposed to be very good-looking. I've never seen her."

"How queer to be asking me if I know her, then. Why do you ask?"

"I've heard so much about her lately. She is the daughter of William Blithers, the great capitalist."

"Oh, I know who he is," she exclaimed. "Perfect roodles of money, hasn't he?"

"Roodles?"

"LOADS, if it means more to you. I forgot that you are a foreigner. He gave that wonderful ball last week for the Prince of — of — Oh, some insignificant little place over in Europe. There are such a lot of queer little duchies and principalities, don't you know; it is quite impossible to tell one from the other. They don't even appear on the maps."

He took it with a perfectly straight face, though secretly annoyed. "It was the talk of the town, that ball. It must have cost roodles of money. Is that right?"

"Yes, but it doesn't sound right when you say it. Naturally one doesn't say roodles in Vienna."

"We say noodles," said he. "I am very fond of them. But to resume; I supposed every one in New York knew Miss Blithers. She's quite the rage, I'm told."

"Indeed? I should think she might be, Mr. Schmidt, with all those lovely millions behind her."

He smiled introspectively. "Yes; and I am told that, in spite of them, she is the prettiest girl in New York."

She appeared to lose interest in the topic. "Oh, indeed?"

"But," he supplemented gracefully, "it isn't true."

"What isn't true?"

"The statement that she is the prettiest girl in New York."

"How can you say that, when you admit you've never seen her?" (Continued on Page 8)

an ability to select men, inspire them with love and loyalty, and thus secure from them a maximum of service unequaled by any other man in the world. 10. He knows more of the minutiae of living and has a greater capacity for detail, and yet is less submerged in detail than any other big business man in the world.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER is no steam-roller; he is no tyrant, either in his domestic relations, in business, in church affairs or anywhere else. He never puts things through over the heads of other people. He gives everybody a run for his money. Nothing is decided until all parties are heard.

An executive has been described as one who decides quickly and is sometimes right. Mr. Rockefeller does not decide quickly. The habit of the man is gracious, gentle, suave. His voice is low, and while he does not talk very much, yet his silence contains no menace. Any one who meets him is not abashed.

I have seen him talking to Italian laborers, foremen, superintendents, and also to men high in the financial world, and seemingly his manner toward each and all was the same. He is simple, frank and direct. He impresses you as a man who has all the time there is. His feelings never run riot. He has the well-ordered mind that listens, considers, appreciates and then decides. His success in the business world has been no fluke.

Mr. Rockefeller said to me, "I have been very fortunate in being associated with able people." And his genius is shown in his management of men.

In his book entitled, Random Reminiscences of Men and Events, Mr. Rockefeller lays bare his heart on various interesting things. The book has a distinct literary style, and this style is simplicity in itself. Mr. Rockefeller never talks or writes Johnsonese. He speaks gently and quietly. In his book he tells of the men who have helped him most, and he pays them great tribute.

Some of these were men of totally different temperament from himself. For instance, H. H. Rogers was what is called "a good sport." Mr. Rockefeller knew the worth of H. H. Rogers, and managed him by leaving him alone. Mr. Rockefeller gave Rogers an opportunity to become what he was. Rogers was abrupt, fiery, profane, with very pronounced ideas on a great many subjects. He took chances. Mr. Rockefeller is mathematical. Mr. Rockefeller gave Rogers his own way, and at the last always had his.

Mr. Rockefeller has met the world of society on a church basis. But in religious affairs he is not dogmatic. The Baptist denomination in America traces a pedigree to Roger Williams of Rhode Island, and Roger Williams stood for liberty when the thing itself in America was a barren ideality. The Baptist denomination has neither pope nor bishops. Mr. Rockefeller is a primitive Baptist by prenatal tendency — a semi-ascetic, first cousin to the Quakers, Menonites and Dunkards.

Mr. Rockefeller likes to associate with plain people. Tobacco, strong drink and the wide social swath have never been for him. All of his pleasures are of a very simple sort. He has been an expression of his times, and of the best in his times. He has played the game of business according to the rules laid down by the times, and as the times have changed so has changed John D. Rockefeller.

Cosmic ankylosis has never caught him. His soul is not of the vintage of 1873, of 1883, nor 1893, nor 1903 — he has always been abreast of the times, or in the vanguard. Just now he is deeply interested in road-building, tree-planting and farming. These three things he is studying from every possible point of view. He knows what is being done at Ames, Iowa; Manhattan, Kansas, and at Cornell. He himself maintains dozens of scholarships at various agricultural schools. He does not tell you this — you have to get it by cross-questioning.

He never boasts of what he has done or what he is going to do. In his nature there is nothing sordid, selfish, mean, contemptible. He is not resentful. His patience under criticism sets him apart as a marked man. He does not attribute wrong motives to people — he looks for the best in everybody and everything. In his personality there is nothing of the parvenu. The man is modest, deferential, gentle, discriminating. He has a sense of values. He knows that the mere possession of wealth, of itself, makes no man great. And he, of all men, realizes that there are some things which money can not buy.

He has infinite faith in the future of America. He knows that co-operation means the elimination of waste. He knows that wealth must not be hoarded. He invests and reinvests, and thus gives work directly and indirectly to millions.

Until recent times Mr. Rockefeller has been a great borrower, and he has kept his credit absolutely untainted. He has never defaulted on his paper or on a payroll. In his book he tells of the proud moment when he was able to borrow at a bank two thousand dollars on his own name — this before he was twenty. When he was thirty years of age he was borrowing money in a way that would have staggered his creditors if they had known how much he was owing. However, he was working out a definite plan, and that was the organization of the oil business so as to reduce the cost of pumping, refining, transporting, distributing, selling and advertising.

Mr. Rockefeller is well, sinewy and strong. He has cut down his food supply to Edison's ten ounces a day. He eats little meat, subsisting mostly on fruit, salads and milk. I noticed that his breakfast was usually just a baked apple, and nothing more. He goes to bed between nine and ten and is always up before seven. He sleeps soundly, and no one can meet him and not be convinced that he enjoys life. His brain is active and he is hungry to know. He often refers to his "lack of education," not realizing that in the broad sense he is one of the best educated men in the world.

I think it is a source of great satisfaction to him that anyone who has invested money with him has made money. If they lost money, they did so by not "coming in" on his invitation. Those who lost did so by staying out and fighting.

IT will not do to say that Mr. Rockefeller has the brain of Sir Isaac Newton, Alexander Von Humboldt, Herbert Spencer, or Thomas A. Edison. Nevertheless, he has succeeded in doing what he set out to do. And he has kept his sanity, and moved in the line of evolution, without getting submerged in success. He has played the game and played it according to the rules.

To free himself from importunity, he has organized a bureau to take care of his charities. Every application is referred to this bureau and investigated. Said Mr. Rockefeller, "I used to give to the plausible and the persistent, until one day it came to me that this was not only unwise but silly. Just as if I would hire a foreman because he begged to be hired! Now I delegate my giving to men whose judgment in these matters I consider better than my own." And thus does Mr. Rockefeller make himself free.

The Standard Oil Company has stopped the leaks, taken up the economic slack, reduced friction, and rendered a service to the world that is the nearest approach to [illegible] perfection of any example that [illegible] named.

I thought of this last summer when I visited Association Island, in Lake Ontario, an island that happens to be surrounded by water and is five miles from the mainland. This island is the tying-up place for a goodly fleet of gasoline launches. To minister to the requirements of these launches the Standard Oil Company laid a pipe line directly across from the mainland, and maintains a station on the island, where with one whirl of the handle of a "Bowser" you get your gallon of gasoline and away you go to the fishing grounds, care-free, with never a thought but that when you want more fuel you can put into port there at the island and get the perfect service which makes you forget about it.

When things are done smoothly, rightly, properly, beautifully and well, the world knows nothing of them. As a rule we only print accounts of the unusual, the extraordinary, the abnormal, the terrible and the tragic. The world accepts the service of the Standard Oil Company just as we accept the sunshine, the dew, the starlight, the silver moon, and the parcel post.

Gasoline cannot be transported safely in wooden barrels. It must be held in metal. Mr. Rockefeller had to build pipe lines, tank cars, tank wagons, and storage tanks; and besides he had to manufacture a most volatile and dangerous article. The Standard Oil Company has been the biggest consumer of steel, next to the automobile industry. And the automobile gave the Standard Oil Company its proud position in the world, but in the evolution of the automobile, the Standard Oil Company had no part. It simply met the demand for gasoline. The users of gasoline are an exacting clientele. To supply them with a reliable product at [illegible] price, has been the work of John D. Rockefeller.

THAT the Standard Oil Company should thrive through this service is exactly as it should be. At the same time let it be noted that the Standard Oil Company does not hoard its money. It is eternally building and laying out new pipe-lines, erecting new stations, building new steamships, and now it is exchanging its forty thousand horses for motor trucks that will carry light, heat and power to every farmhouse, village, town and city in the United States of America and elsewhere. It has been a jest up to this time that the Standard Oil Company has [illegible] horses to deliver gasoline instead of using gasoline to deliver gasoline. The simple reason that horses have been used is because our roads in America have been of so impassable a kind that gasoline trucks were [illegible] for the favored few who lived [illegible] faultless roadways.

Mr. Rockefeller said to me: "I [illegible] never be satisfied until every Standard Oil tank-wagon runs with [illegible] gasoline for motive power, but [illegible] cannot be until we have good roads leading from every farm to every schoolhouse, and from every [illegible] house to every postoffice.

"Build your country roadways [illegible] teen feet wide of nine-pound brick [illegible] a concrete base," said Mr. Rockefeller. "Then leave eight feet of macadam [illegible] the side. A fourteen-foot road [illegible] compel automobiles coming [illegible] each other to slow up. A driver [illegible] he gets off the brick will involuntarily lessen his speed. This makes [illegible] doubly sure. Fourteen-foot brick [illegible] that's what you want — not [illegible] feet. Tabs on the Famous

By Fred C. Kelly

SENATOR O'GORMAN is ever as calm and unruffled as Oscar Underwood himself, and the Floor Leader of the House will probably go down in history as the Calm Man—just as Job was the Patient Man. O'Gorman was reading a document to the Senate one day when his nose glasses fell off. They hit the flat top of his desk and broke into a great many pieces. With first-aid haste other senators rushed to his side offering their glasses for him to try. He put them on one after another, but none would do. Through it all, though, he kept on calmly talking as if nothing had happened. After he had tried all the glasses he reached down casually for one of the larger pieces of his own broken lenses, held it to the pupil of his eye, and finished reading some fine print. At no stage of the proceedings did he skip a single note.

Byron R. Newton, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, writes good verses and plays the fiddle when he finds himself in the quiet of his own home with nobody to interfere.

Although he does not pose as one who talks the language of a comedian, Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, of the United States Supreme Court, is good at off-hand bon mots. One of the best of these is that about Associate Justice Day and his son Bill, who is a United States district judge in Ohio. The elder Day weighs about 101 pounds in his overcoat, and Bill easily runs 230 ringside. Justice Holmes looked at the two one time and said to his confrére:

"Well, Day, I see your son is a block off the old chip."

Champ Clark, Speaker of the House, always has at least nine good-sized handkerchiefs in his pockets. He carries them not so much for fear he might catch cold, but to insure having his brow mopped from time to time in good old-fashioned statesmanlike manner. As a rule the Speaker carries his kerchiefs in three different pockets and works them in eight-hour shifts, but when he makes a set speech, he uses them all and they look limp and discouraged at the close.

Senator Bryan, of Florida, carried a close county in his campaign for his present job, by cracking a big, long blacksnake whip he borrowed from a teamster in a village street. His knack at handling the whip captivated the bystanders who rapidly spread the news that the serious-looking candidate was "all right."

About a minute and a half after the United States Senate convenes each noon, the Hon. Reed Smoot, of Utah, comes dashing in, hat in hand, and all surrounded by an atmosphere of haste. He always gives the impression of having dropped everything and rushed to the scene to stop a wedding.

Senator Cummins was in a Chicago railway station en route to the West to become a railroad man when an old friend met him and persuaded him to turn back, study law and go into politics. Except for reaching the station just at that minute, the senator from Iowa might have ended up as a division superintendent with both upper vest pockets full of yellow lead pencils.

Senator Newlands, of Nevada, rarely if ever goes an entire day without eating a quantity of boiled rice. One day all the rice in the boiler at the Senate restaurant was scorched and the rice item was scratched off the menu. That left Newlands in a quandary. He sat for five or ten minutes all gummed up with cogitation trying to make up his mind what to take in place of rice.

10% More for Your Money

Quaker Oats is now put up also in a 25-cent size, nearly three times as large as the 10-cent size. By saving in packing it offers you 10 per cent more for your money. See how long it lasts.

There is Energy In Quaker

Behind That Luscious Flavor

When children or grown-ups seem lacking in vim, give them more Quaker Oats.

It is rich in phosphorus, of which brains are made. It is rich in lecithin, of which nerves are made. As an energy food it is incomparable with anything else you know.

And Quaker is inviting. Children are glad to get more of it. We make it only from the richly-flavored grains.

There are millions of people who would work and play better if they ate more Quaker Oats. And their breakfasts would be twice as enjoyable. It will take but a few days to prove this.

Quaker Oats

Flaked from the Big Grains Only

Quaker Oats is distinctive and unique. It is like nothing else in oat food.

It is made from the cream of the oats, from the big, plump grains. We get but ten pounds of Quaker Oats from a bushel.

You get here the large, luscious flakes alone, unmixed with the puny grains. And you get a flavor and aroma which have won the world to Quaker.

There are millions of people—in foreign lands—who pay a high price for Quaker. There are duties to pay and freights. But they pay them to get this flavor.

You, in America, pay no extra price. And you go to no extra trouble, for all grocers sell Quaker.

Please remember this. The grains we use and the process we use make Quaker Oats as rich in flavor as they are in energy.

This will always be so. Poorly-flavored, starved, unripe grains will never be used in Quaker.

You will never find it less delicious than it is today.

Serve Quaker Oats in large dishes. Small servings are not sufficient to show in full its vim-producing power.

Give This Perfect Adder A 10-Day Test

Watch It Work

See for yourself if $35 does buy a quick, competent Adder. Give it this chance to prove itself, without cost or obligation.

What 10 Cents a Day Will Do

You will want this machine when you try it. You will see it compute a hundred figures a minute, and with never an error. You will not again want to add in the old way.

19,482 Users

This is a new Adder, but more than 19,000 offices have adopted it already. It is used by the U. S. Government and by a very large number of the largest concerns in America.

But it is not for big offices only. It is for little offices, for stores and shops—for men who have heretofore gone without Adders, because competent machines cost $150 and up.

The American Adder $35

It is for any man who computes. For 10 cents a day it does all this work for him. It checks his invoices, insures his footings, and makes addition easy and accurate.

We have two propositions. You may pay the cash price—which is $35. Or you may pay 10 cents a day—$3 a month—until you pay $37.50.

The Prince of Graustark

"I can say it with a perfectly clear conscience, Miss Guile," said he, and was filled with delight when she bit her lip as a sign of acknowledgment.

"Oh, here comes the tea," she cried, with a strange eagerness in her voice. "I am so glad." She scrambled gracefully out of her rug and arose to her feet.

"Aren't you going to have some?" he cried.

"Yes," she said, quite pointedly. "In my room, Mr. Schmidt," and before he could get to his feet she was moving away without so much as a nod or smile for him. Indeed, she appeared to have dismissed him from her thoughts quite as completely as from her vision. He experienced a queer sensation of shriveling.

At dinner that night, she failed to look in his direction, a circumstance that may not appear extraordinary when it is stated that she purposely or inadvertently exchanged seats with Mrs. Gaston and sat with her back to the table occupied by R. Schmidt and his friends. He had to be content with a view of the most exquisite back and shoulders that good fortune had ever allowed him to gaze upon. And then there was the way that her soft brown hair grew above the slender neck, to say nothing of — but Mrs. Gaston was watching him with most unfriendly eyes, so the feast was spoiled.

The following day was as unlike its predecessor as black is like white. During the night the smooth gray pond had been transformed into a turbulent, storm-threshed ocean; the once gentle wind was now a howling gale that swept the decks with a merciless lash in its grip and whipped into submission all who vaingloriously sought to defy its chill dominion. Not rain, but spray from huge, swashing billows, clouded the decks, biting and cutting like countless needles, each drop with the sting of a hornet behind it. Now the end of the world seemed far away, and the jumping off place was a rickety wall of white and black, leaning against a cold, blue sky.

ONLY the hardiest of the passengers ventured on deck; the exhilaration they professed was but another name for bravado. They shivered and gasped for breath as they forged their bitter way into the gale, and few were they who took more than a single turn of the deck. Like beaten cowards they soon slunk into the sheltered spots, or sought even less heroic means of surrender by tumbling into bed with the considerate help of unsmiling stewards. The great ship went up and the great ship came down: went up so high that the sky seemed to be startlingly near, and down so horribly low that the bottom of the ocean was even nearer. And it creaked and groaned and sighed even above the wild monody of the wind, like a thing in misery, yet all the while holding its sides to keep from bursting with laughter over the plight of the little creatures whom God made after His own image but not until after all of the big things of the universe had been designed.

R. Schmidt, being a good sailor and a hardy young chap, albeit a prince of royal blood, was abroad early, after a breakfast that staggered the few who remained unstaggered up to that particular crisis. A genial sailor-man and an equally ungenial deck swabber advised him, in totally different style of address, to stay below if he knew what was good for him, only to be thanked with all the blitheness of a man who jolly well knows what is good for him, or who doesn't care whether it is good for him or not so long as he is doing the thing that he wants to do.

He took two turns about the deck, and each time as he passed the spot he sent a covert glance into the corner where Miss Guile's chair was standing. Of course he did not expect to find her there in weather like this, but — well, he looked and that is the end to the argument. The going was extremely treacherous and unpleasant he was free to confess to the genial sailor-man after the second breathless turn, and gave that worthy a bright silver dollar upon receiving a further bit of advice: to sit down somewhere out of the wind, sir.

QUINNOX and Dank were hopelessly bedridden, so to speak. They were very disagreeable, cross and unpleasant, and somehow he felt that they hated their cheerful, happy-go-lucky Prince. Never before had Count Quinnox scowled at him, no matter how mad his pranks as a child or how silly his actions as a youth. Never before had any one told him to go to the devil. He rather liked it. And he rather admired poor Dank for ordering him out of his cabin, with a perfectly astounding oath as a climax to the command. Moreover, he thought considerably better of the faithful Hobbs for an amazing exposition of human equality in the matter of a pair of boots that he desired to wear that morning but which happened to be stowed away in a cabin trunk. He told Hobbs to go to the devil and Hobbs repeated the injunction, with especial heat, to the boots, when he bumped his head in hauling them out of the trunk. Whereupon R. Schmidt said to Hobbs: "Good for you, Hobbs. Go on, please. Don't mind me. It was quite a thump, wasn't it?" And Hobbs managed, between other words, to say that it was a whacking thump, and one he would not forget to his dying day—(if he lived through this one).

"And you'd do well to sit in the smoke-room, sir," further advised the sailor-man, clinging to the rail with one hand and pocketing the coin with the other.

"No," said R. Schmidt resolutely. "I don't like the air in the smoke-room."

"There's quite a bit of air out here, sir."

"I need quite a bit."

"I should think you might, sir, being a 'ealthy, strappin' sort of a chap, sir. 'Elp yourself. All the chairs is yours if you'll unpile 'em."

The young man battled his way down the deck and soon found himself in the well-protected corner. A half-dozen unoccupied chairs were cluttered about, having been abandoned by persons who over-estimated their hardiness. One of the stewards was engaged in stacking them up and making them fast.

Miss Guile's chair and that of Mrs. Gaston were staunchly fastened down and their rugs were in place. R. Schmidt experienced an unusual sensation of pleasure. Here was a perfect exemplification of that much-abused thing known as circumstantial evidence. She contemplated coming on deck. So he had his chair put in place, called for his rug, drew his chin down into the collar of his thick ulster, and sat down to wait.

foggy or doubtful. He has his own views, but he does not present them dogmatically.

I do not see how it is possible for any man to achieve the success that Mr. Rockefeller has, and to confer on the world the benefits which have accrued from his thrift and foresight, and not be misunderstood by the many. To live at all is an offense to some, and to live deeply, courageously, and to express yourself in a myriad of ways in tangible form are bound to incur the displeasure of the people who do not live at all. This does not for a moment mean that Mr. Rockefeller is an impeccable character—that he is free from any taint of selfishness, and that he lives in a high moral altitude separate and apart from the temptations that come to common men.

"A surplus and a weak opposition would debauch an archangel," said Sir John A. MacDonald. Success did not come to Mr. Rockefeller without a struggle; he has fought his way inch by inch. The white light of publicity has beaten upon him. Courts have done their worst to destroy him. Legislation, both State and Federal, has used him for a target. Yet he has gone steadily forward, from his seventeenth year, when he began business.

He has made vast fortunes for a great number of individuals; he has supplied opportunity for countless thousands. Only one man in America is to be compared with him as a maker of men, and that man is Marshall Field. Marshall Field always divided his prosperity with others. Those who could get under the burden received big rewards. And so we have such men as Selfridge, Higginbotham, Shedd and a dozen others who are multi-millionaires, thanks to the opportunity supplied by Marshall Field. But where Marshall Field made one millionaire, the genius of Standard Oil has produced a dozen.

Making the Hair Grow, and Other Beauty Secrets

Individualism and Simplicity in Methods of Beauty-Making, Are Strongly Exemplified in the Following Article by the Foremost Living, Self-Made Beauty of the American Stage, Miss Valeska Suratt. In Characteristic Vein, She Explains the Methods Which Have Produced for Her the Loveliness Which Has Brought Her Fame.

By Miss Valeska Suratt

Valeska Suratt

MAKING the hair grow was for a long time as great a problem to me, as it is today to thousands of women. There were days when thick hair would come out on comb or brush, and I feared baldness would soon result. After long experimenting I came to two inevitable conclusions—the hair must have nourishment to keep it in good condition, and the hair roots must be allowed to breathe. Dirt and scurf accumulate on the scalp and no soap can remove it. Dandruff results, the hair becomes starved, looks lifeless and begins to fall out. I came to the conclusion then that the hair needs two things, a shampoo that is not a soap, but a remover of scurf, dandruff and dirt, and a tonic that will strengthen the roots, stop the hair falling and force the hair to grow.

For the shampoo I have found that a teaspoonful of eggol dissolved in a cup of hot water makes the cheapest and best cleanser. It will remove every particle of dirt and scurf, and leave the hair soft and fluffy and easy to do up. I usually shampoo at least twice a month. Twenty-five cents' worth of eggol is enough for a dozen delightful shampoos.

Now for my hair-growing formula: Mix half a pint of alcohol with half a pint of water and add one ounce of beta-quinol (if you prefer use a pint of bay rum instead of the alcohol and water), apply this freely to the scalp, after brushing it generously for a few minutes; rub thoroughly with the finger tips. The beta-quinol will cost you about fifty cents at the drug store and this will make a full pint of the best hair tonic it is possible to make.

As for wrinkles, I used to look upon them much as the drying of an apple skin foretells inevitably the passing of youth that can never again return. Since I have worked out for myself the problem of ridding myself of these check-marks of Nature's bookkeeper, I have changed my mind. Like a splash of a pebble in a pond, the face of the water is ruffled, many ripples widen toward the shore and disappear, and the water reflects the sun and the blue sky again as before—it was just a splash, nothing more! My dear readers, there is little excuse now for the presence of wrinkles. The results of this formula have indeed proved this to be the case. Every woman should try this formula, use it freely, and then your face will reflect again the sunshine of youth, and every wrinkle will be just a vanishing ripple, nothing more! In a large bowl pour half a pint of hot water; place bowl in a pan of hot water on a slow fire; add slowly two ounces of eptol and stir constantly until it begins to cream; remove from fire and add a tablespoonful of glycerine, stirring until cold. This will give you a large quantity of fine, white, satiny cream. This will not grow hair. Enough eptol to make the above formula will cost you about fifty cents at any first class drug or department store.

The complexion may be quickly beautified. A lady once said to me, "I'm sick and tired of trying to beautify my face and arms. I have used about everything this side of the pearly gates and I still haven't a complexion to be proud of." This is the sentiment felt by thousands of women everywhere, and the question is asked, "Is there anything which will actually and in a short time produce the rose-like complexions we see in beautifully colored photographs?" Upon one of my trips through the South, I met a lady who had the most beautiful, peach bloom, velvety complexion I ever saw and she gave me a formula for a cream. I made up some and used it liberally, the results were remarkable. Here it is: Bring a pint of water to the boiling point; add, slowly, one ounce of zintone; stir constantly until all is dissolved; then add two tablespoonfuls of glycerine. Fifty cents' worth of zintone will make a pint of this excellent beauty cream.

For superfluous hair there is nothing which will remove it so perfectly, so magically as simple sulfo solution. It simply dissolves the hair instead of burning it off like pastes and powders, and never irritates, reddens or injures the skin. It can be used on the tenderest skin and no matter how stiff or soft the hair growth. Many women have "down" on their faces and arms. Removed with this simple solution, the difference in appearance will be startling. Druggists charge one dollar an ounce for simple sulfo solution, and it is certainly worth it.

Blackheads, big and little, should be removed without pinching and squeezing, as this reddens and spots the skin. Get some powdered neroxin from your druggist. Fifty cents' worth will be all you will need. Sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge and rub briskly for a minute or two over the blackheads. You'll be surprised how they will disappear in a few moments.

Every article mentioned in my formulas can be found in most first-class drug stores. If you are not convenient to one, or if your druggist should not have the article you want, my secretary will mail you the article, postpaid, if you enclose the price to me. Simply address your letter, Valeska Suratt, 375 Thompson Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Kindly mark your letter, "For Secretary."

A SURPRISE FOR THIN WOMEN

Thousands of thin women have [illegible] wonderful results from a treatment [illegible] years old and gaining in popularity [illegible]

It has not cost them a penny to try it, [illegible] it you.

You will be surprised and delighted at the change in your appearance when the treatment has produced its effect. It has been astonishing how little additional flesh and bust development it has required to make many of our thin patrons attractive—even fascinating. They tell us they seem to be attracting a flattering attention which they never enjoyed and had ceased to expect.

Just write today saying "Send me your free treatment." We will immediately send, in a plain wrapper, sufficient Dr. Whitney's Nerve & Flesh Builder to give you the additional flesh that will add so much to your attractiveness. In many cases the trial alone has been all that was needed.

No. 1 is the general flesh builder. No. 2 is for giving development to the bust alone without enlarging other parts of the body. Say which one you prefer.

Write us today, before this generous offer is withdrawn, and get your free treatment in plain wrapper by return mail. C. L. Jones Co., 95E Friend Bldg., Elmira, N. Y.

NEW WRINKLES

This department is a General Exchange of Ideas for our readers. Nearly every one has worked out or happened upon a better way of doing something than the usual way—some new wrinkle. If you know any new wrinkle, give others the advantage of it, and at the same time benefit yourself. One dollar will be paid for each new wrinkle accepted. Unused manuscripts will be destroyed unless postage is enclosed for return. Address NEW WRINKLE BUREAU, Room 1262 Fifth Avenue Building, New York, N.Y.

When large flower pots are too big for jardinieres and crepe paper decoration becomes tiresome, try making an Indian design with black crayon on the red pot itself. A conventional zig-zag line around the top, a few black circles, the size of a fifty-cent piece, scattered on the sides, and a single line or two circumscribing the base, transform a homely red jar into a good Mexican imitation.—R. B. G., Cleveland, Ohio.

If the hair has a tendency to be oily, washing it often makes it more so. If you will beat the white of an egg as stiff as possible, and rub it into the hair until it is wet all over, then allow to dry, the egg will brush out like a fine white powder and leave the hair fluffy and bright.—D. C. C., New Orleans, La.

To keep a placket from tearing, fasten the last or bottom hook and eye and then clamp it with a hammer. It cannot come unhooked, cannot tear or rip, and eases the strain on the goods just below the placket at the spot which is so often torn, even in almost new material after a little use.—M. C., Providence, R. I.

If you hang the door key near the door, you soon form the habit of taking it down, and are apt to forget it and lock yourself out. Putting a safety pin on the ring will be helpful, as the key can be pinned to the inside of the coat where it will be out of the way and easy to find.—E. P. C., New York, N. Y.

To do away with darning rub the heels of new stockings with paraffin. Put the stocking over the darning egg and warm the paraffin enough to make it soft in the hand; then rub well. It will be found that this protects the heel against rubbing and that it will not wear out.—F. H., Seattle, Wash.

Annoying match marks can be removed from white paint by rubbing with a cut lemon. Then, to prevent against future marring, smear the spot slightly with vaseline. After a few futile attempts to repeat the match scratching on the greasy surface the most persistent offender will finally desist.—M. C., Providence, R. I.

A neat way to mend fine lawn waists, etc., is to dip a piece of material to match the garment in raw starch; lay it underneath the torn place and iron neatly. It will remain and hardly be noticeable until washed; then the same process can be resorted to again.—S. J. H., California, Mo.

Those who keep hens should save all egg shells to grind up and put in with the regular oyster shell. The hens like this very much and it does not teach them to eat their eggs as when the egg shells are thrown out in the scraps.—N. S., Wilmington, Mass.

It is well to keep a box of dry sand in the kitchen. If a fire should break out from burning grease, oil, gasoline, etc., a few quarts of sand thrown on it will immediately smother the flames. Water only spreads them.—F. W., Chicago, Ill.

Widths of matting that are sewed together with a loose carpet thread stitch look neater and wear better than when staples or tacks are used to fasten the matting down.—W. K., Champaign, Ill.

Wide bloomers made out of old raincoats, will prove a boon to many mothers, if used to tuck in the children's clothes when they are out doors playing in the snow.—N. S., Wilmington, Mass.

A rag dipped in paraffin will clean windows perfectly and give a brightness impossible to obtain with water. Tissue or any soft paper makes a good polisher.—C. V., Topeka, Kan.
